The new star that is to be added to the national flag to represent Utah will be placed to the right of the fourth row from the top. At the same time the regulation size of the flag will be changed from 6 feet by 5 to 5 feet 6 by 4 feet 4 inches. All of the new flags are to be made of the finest American silk, and will be very handsome.

MINNESOTA NEWS.

The Lost Found.

The daughter of Gilbert Mattson, a farmer living three miles south of Hector, has been heard from. Seventeen years ago this summer the 4-year-old girl was sent out with a lunch to carry to her brother, who was herding cattle not far from the house. This was the last seen or heard of the little one until a letter from New York came to the home of the Mattsons from the daughter, now a lady 21 years old.

After her sudden and mysterious disappearance the country was searched for miles around; all the sloughs were dragged and every effort made to recover the lost child. Finally the search was given up and the little girl was mourned as dead by her parents, and when what was supposed to be bones of a small child and some pieces of clothing were found in a large slough near the Mattson farm, it was thought certain that the little one was dead.

Much Money.

State Treasurer Koerner has completed the compilation of his statistical report for the fiscal year, ending July 31. The total receipts in the hands of the state treasurer at that time amounted to $5,426,935.96, as against $4,752,306.15 at the close of business in 1894, an increase for 1895 of $674,633.81. The total receipts for the present year, from county treasurers and all other sources, as compiled by the state treasurer and apportioned to the various funds, are as follows:

|---|---|
| Revenue fund— | |
| From counties | $1,129,979.46 |
| Railway companies | 851,394.25 |
| Stumpage | 1,000.00 |
| Miscellaneous receipts | 388,554.95 |
| Incorporation fees | 13,220.00 |
| Insurance fees and taxes | 155,888 79 |
| Steamboat taxes | 67.94 |
| Total | $2,540,105.44 |

Pardoned.

Gov. Clough has pardoned the Floyd boys. They were convicted in connection with a defalcation from the Bank of Minneapolis, of which Phil Scheig was the paying teller. The latter, it will be remembered, turned up missing one morning, and several thousand dollars of the bank's money was likewise absent. It afterwards developed that Scheig was joined by the Floyd boys and that they went through the southern country with a wagon, brass band, team of horses and everything else that made life pleasurable. They were captured in New York city just as they were to sail for Brazil, where they expected to join the revolutionary forces. They have been in prison 18 months, being sent there in April, 1894.

Kate Ging's Insurance.

Harry T. Hayward, awaiting execution for the murder of Catherine Ging, has assigned his interest in the insurance upon her life to his father, W. W. Hayward. The move is a peculiar one, inasmuch as he had filed his answer in the suit brought against him by Julia Ging to secure title to the $10,000. The assignment will leave it to the assignee to defend the title, and Harry can only act as a witness in the case. It is probable that the assignment was for the purpose of putting the burden of the battle upon some one who was free, and also to reimburse the father as far as possible for the expense of the defense in the criminal action.

News in Brief.

Richard Einfeldt, formerly instructor of the Duluth Athletic club, but now of the Winona Turners, broke the state record at high and broad jumping. He cleared 5½ feet high and 10½ broad.

The Akeley lumber mill at Minneapolis cut 504,990 feet of lumber in 11 hours.

Oscar Nodine, a 9-year-old boy of Minneapolis, attempted to board a Great Northern train, but his feet slipped and he fell beneath the wheels of the train. His head was completely severed from his body. The remains were removed to the county morgue.

Mrs. Andrew Webber, an old resident of Hay Creek, was found dead in the road. It is supposed she had fallen and afterward been killed by a team passing.

A street car on Maria avenue line, St. Paul, was held up by two masked men, who relieved the conductor of $13.

At a wedding at Waucouta, John Smith fractured the skull of W. Roberts. Both were drunk.

Della Henderson, of Henning, who was burned by a lamp explosion two weeks ago, has died.

Peter Czapiewski, of Winona, was sentenced to one year at hard labor in the state prison at Stillwater. He was caught in the act of entering a shoe store for the purpose of making a raid.

Fred Willbrecht, a farmer living south of Grand Meadow, lost his large barn and sheds, seven stacks of grain and five cows by fire. The origin of the fire is unknown, but it is thought it was caused by some tramp who had taken lodging in the haymow. Loss, $1,600; insurance, $600.

The house of the Burley family at Rollingstone, Winona county, was entered in broad daylight, while the family was absent, and a silver watch worth about $25 was stolen. A man was arrested in Winona and the watch recovered.

Ed Howatt, a young farmer of Plainview, was stabbed in the abdomen by Thomas Burgess, a friend, who suddenly became a maniac. Howatt is in a serious condition. Burgess was sent to the Rochester asylum.

Secretary of State Berg has replied to the letter received by him from Treasurer Koerner in regard to the right of Mr. Wildt to draw an additional salary of $150 per month for services rendered by him in the taking of the census. Mr. Berg decides that Mr. Wildt is entittled to the money.

Soap and washing powders for all the insane hospital of the state is made at the hospital at Rochester. It is a great saving to the state.

Bishop Marty, assisted by Fathers Power and Mooney, laid the corner stone of the church being built at Foley known as the Assumption Catholic church.

Edward Anderson, who murdered his niece, Josephine Sjerdal, the 12-year-old daughter of Sever Sjerdal, of Eureka, on July 19 last, committed suicide at the county jail at Hastings, by tying a piece of twine about his neck to a cross bar. He was aged 35 years, and his mother lives at Milbank, S. D.

Josiah Lambert, of Brockway, fell dead as he was going from his house to a threshing crew. He was 50 years old.

John Johnson, an employe of the St. Cloud Lumber Comyany, had his left hand cut off by a saw.

PERSONAL AND IMPERSONAL.

—Sir Edward Clarke, the noted English barrister, is so democratic in appearance, that, when he addressed a workingman's club recently, where he was unknown, people remarked on the great intelligence the speaker showed for a laboring man.

—Desmond Fitzgerald, the knight of Glin, died recently at Glin castle, county Limerick. Like the knight of Kerry, the knight of Glin is a hereditary knighthood created by a Fitzgerald of Desmond in the fourteenth century, by his authority as count palatine without the interposition of the crown.

—Count Eugene Richy, who has been hunting in Asia for traces of the origin of the Magyars, has returned and states that he has determined the line of the Magyar immigration, has found many Hungarian names of families and places, and made observations of interest among the Asiatic tribes whose origin is the same as the Magyars.

—Queen Emma, of Holland, speaks French, English and Dutch with as much apparent facility as German, her native tongue. It is related of her that upon one occasion a foreign diplomatist who wished to gratify her addressed her in German, but she replied in French: "You forget that I am no longer German, but Dutch." She was a young girl and her husband was sixty-two when she became his second wife.

—Luther Laflin Mills, the Chicago criminal lawyer, says that when he was a boy he frequently accompanied his father, who was a wholesale merchant, on collecting tours through the northwest. They had to travel by wagon, and as the father would have large sums of money about him it was often a problem where they could safely put up for the night. "My boy," the old man used to say, "it is safe to stay at a house where there are flowers in the window."

—M. Barthelemy Saint Hilaire, the lifelong friend of Thiers, is now ninety. He lately presented to the Bibliotheque Nationale his rich collection of editions of Aristotle and works on him, brought together for the French edition of Aristotle, the labor of sixty years, which he completed three years ago. He remembers seeing the first Napoleon three times: once in March, 1814, just before the allied armies reached Paris, and at a review and lastly on the Tuileries terrace just before Waterloo in 1815.

—Mr. Harry de Windt, who has already traveled from Pekin across Siberia, is going to make a journey from America to Europe by way of Behring's strait next year. From San Francisco he will go to Alaska and explore the country between Mount St. Elias and Cape Prince of Wales; from there he will cross the strait on the ice to the east Cape of Siberia, and, after examining the northeastern corner of Siberia, will go by way of Ghijiga and Okhotsk to Yakutsk, returning to England some time in 1897.

—Paris is afflicted with a Tamsen, too. While the house of Senator Magnier, who is accused of frauds in the Southern railway matter, was carefully watched by the police officials the senator walk out of the house unobserved, attended to his business in Paris, and got out of France without trouble. The story was started that he was taken out of the house, like Falstaff, in a basket of dirty linen, but in a letter to Le Figaro he denies this, saying that he simply walked out in broad daylight without interference.

"A LITTLE NONSENSE."

—He—"It makes me a better man every time I kiss you, darling." She—"Oh, my, Harold! How good you must be now."—Tit-Bits.

—"Why, I didn't know you were acquainted with old Moneywug?" "Oh, yes." "How long have you known him?" "About three years at ten per cent."—Chicago Record.

—A maiden writes: "Can you tell me how to change the color of my hair, which all the young men tell me is red?" Certainly we can. Get rich; they will then call it golden or auburn.—Erie Messenger.

Upon the unjust and the just Alike the rain doth fall.
But the unjust frequently purloin the good umbrellas of the just,
And don't get wet at all.
—Philadelphia Record.

—"They say," said the prudent man, "that a man who never drinks, nor smokes, nor stays up late at night, always lives to a great age." "Yes," replied his very blase friend, with a yawn, "that's his punishment."—Washington Star.

—Its Mother—"Oh, John, John! What shall we do? Baby has swallowed its rattle." Its Father—"Do nothing. Now he'll always have it with him, and we won't have to be forever looking for it when he cries."—Town and Country Journal.

—"You say the trout weighed ten pounds?" "Yes, sir; it was the biggest trout I ever saw." "And it got away from you?" "Yes." "Will you make an oath to that?" "I'll take no more oaths; I swore enough about it when he got away."—Tammany Times.

—The following extracts are from examination papers recently handed in at a public school in Connecticut: (1.) From what animals do we get milk? From the camel and the milkman. (2.) The hen is covered with feathers. With what is the cat covered? The cat is covered with fleas. (3.) Name an animal that has four legs and a long tail. A mosquito. (4.) Name two kinds of nuts. Peanuts and for-get-me nuts.—Harper's Round Table.

—It was in a small theater in Chester during the races. A number of turfites were present, for your racing-man is always a supporter of the drama. During the entr'acte a very sickly looking youth came on to play a 'cello solo. He started mournfully with "Auld Robin Gray," and was ambling along lugubriously when, during a slight "rest," a plaintive voice came from the back of the circle: "All right, old man. Don't go on—owe it us!"—Arthur Roberts' Adventures.

—A Good Definition.—Poor, patient Ned had been kept in again and again to learn a very simple stanza that had been easily mastered by all the rest of his class. Finally he broke down and sobbed out: "I can't do it, Miss Gray; I just can't do it. Father says its because I have such a poor ——" "A poor what, Ned?" "You know what it is," a glimmer of light flickering in the dear, dull little face—"the thing you forget with." Such is memory, alas! to the most of us.—Philadelphia Times.

HOUSEHOLD BREVITIES.

—Chicken Patties.—Mince chicken left from dinner. Add pepper, salt, a little flour and cream. Stir over the fire till it thickens. Line patty pans with paste, fill with the mixture and bake.—Housekeeper.

—Apple Jelly for Cakes.—Grate one large apple and add the juice and grated rind of one lemon; mix with them one cup of white sugar, and let boil for three minutes. Use immediately. This makes a delicious filling for layer cakes.—Prairie Farmer.

—Eggs.—A brush of the shell with the finger as eggs are broken will make an additional white to every dozen. The revolving whip of an egg beater should be held in a horizontal position. Eggs served as "soft eggs" should be cooked by the "coddling process." Place six eggs in a flat dish so that they will not lie one upon another; pour over them two quarts of boiling water; let them stand in it ten minutes. For "hard eggs," drop eggs into a kettle of cold water, and allow the water to boil without covering the kettle, then let the water simmer gently for ten minutes.—Ohio Farmer.

—Potato Cakes.—Boil a pound of potatoes, plain; put into a basin an ounce of dripping or butter and one whole egg; pass the potatoes while hot through a wire sieve (if well mashed with a fork it will answer as well). Mix well in the basin with the egg and butter, season with a little grated nutmeg, pepper and salt. Turn the potato on to a floured board, roll it with the hands into the form of a thick roly-pudding, then cut it in slices of two inches, flour a baking sheet, and put on the little potato cakes; bake in a hot oven twenty minutes; serve split and buttered or plain for tea.—Leeds Mercury.

—Peaches and Rice.—Boil three tablespoonfuls of cleaned rice in one pint of milk, with sugar to taste and flavor with vanilla. Allow it to cool. Meanwhile prepare a custard by boiling together one gill of milk and the yolks of four eggs, which mix into the rice. Beat a gill of cream to a froth with a little sugar and just a pinch of gelatine dissolved in a spoonful of water. Stir this lightly with the mixture, fill a mold and set on ice. Cut a few peaches in halves and simmer them in sugar and water sirup for half an hour, then drain and allow to cool. Lastly, turn out the form of rice on to a plate and arrange the peaches around it.—Mary Mason, in Boston Budget.

—Stuffed Cabbage.—Take a firm head of cabbage, pour over boiling water, let it stand fifteen minutes, drain, scald and let stand half an hour, then drain and shake until dry. Make stuffing of two tablespoonfuls of rice, a tablespoonful of chopped onion, a tablespoonful of chopped parsley, half a pound of sausage mixed well together. Open the cabbage to the center, put in a half teaspoonful of the mixture, fold over two or three of the leaves, cover with a layer of the mixture, fold over more leaves and continue until each layer is tuffed. Press all firmly together, tie in a piece of cloth, put in a kettle of salted, boiling water and boil an hour and a half. When done remove the cloth carefully, put the cabbage in a deep dish, and serve with cream sauce. Scraps of ham or other meat can be used, also cold biscuit, light bread, crackers; the crackers and butter make a good stuffing seasoned with pepper, dressed with cream.—Mrs. M. C. Sparkman, in Farm, Field and Fireside.

MIMICRY AND REASON.

A Monkey That Appears to Be Endowed with a Share of Each.

"That the monkey possesses intelligence to a considerable degree is probably true," said a hotel proprietor who has a small menagerie on his premises. "I believe, however, much of the intelligence with which that animal is credited is due to his love of mimicry or imitation.

"The other day two young men with two girls were at the monkey's cage feeding him peanuts. One of the girls was chewing gum, and one of the men suggested that she give the monkey some, expecting that if he took it in his mouth it would stick to his teeth and he would make sorry work of trying to chew it. The girl at once parted with the sweet morsel she was so industriously chewing, extending it toward the cage. The monkey grabbed it instantly and put it in his mouth, but instead of chewing it, or attempting to, began pulling it out in small ribbons, as children are frequently seen to do. When he had it all out of his mouth he rolled it into a compact ball between his hands, threw it into his mouth and began the operation again. He appeared to enjoy the performance as much as his visitors. That was imitation."

"That's all right," rejoined another, "but I had an experience with that same monkey wherein he displayed intelligence. I was by the cage smoking one day and I thought to annoy him by blowing smoke in his face. I was much surprised to find that instead of being annoyed he enjoyed it, as was evidenced by his edging up as near me as possible to receive the smoke in larger volumes. Soon he began scratching himself at the point where most of the smoke came against him. When I had smoked one side for a few minutes, he would turn squarely around to have the other side treated in the same way. Then he sat up directly in front of me and received the smoke squarely in the face and neck. I don't know whether he held his breath, but he did not cough, sneeze or wince a particle. To complete the job he then sat with his back toward me, and it would have done you good to have seen him throw his hind feet over his back and scratch. It made me think of the kickers of a hay tedder in motion. Now that monkey knew, through some sort of intelligence, that nothing will send fleas and other insects to the surface or stupefy them as effectively as tobacco smoke."—Utica (N. Y.) Observer.

Home-Made Smelling-Salts.

One may have a fancy to fill her own bottle with smelling salts, for which keep a pint of liquid ammonia in a strong bottle with a glass stopper, and to it put one teaspoonful each of oil of rosemary and English lavender, with half as much oil of bergamot and of cloves. Have all bottles for perfumery and extracts perfectly, clean and dry, rinsing lastly with alcohol, for the least drop of water may make the liquid look milky or turbid and may lead to fungus in toilet water. Perfumes should be tightly closed with glass stoppers, and kept dark and cold in well-filled bottles, not to lose quality.—Boston Globe.

THEY SHOCKED UNCLE REUBEN.

But He Learned to Endure, Then to Embrace, the Bloomers.

A family from the New England states who moved to Chicago shortly before the fair, and are now living on the South side, received a letter a short time ago that an old relative, an esteemed bachelor uncle, familiarly known to young and old as "Uncle Reuben," would make them a visit before he died, and, no time being like the present—not, of course, to die, but to make them a visit—he would arrive at such and such a time, says the Chicago Times-Herald.

Now, Uncle Reuben being, as they term it in New England vernacular, "raither well fix'd," and having no nearer blood relations than this family in Chicago, his intending visit was discussed and a cordial invitation extended.

The family, of which the male head is a professional man, consists of two charming young daughters and an equally charming mother this side of forty, but young for her age. The family live in a rather swell neighborhood and move among the gayest set on the South side, participating with pleasure in all amusements, and in particular bicycling, both mother and daughters belonging to a swell club, and having adopted the latest style in bloomers.

Of course, knowing Uncle Reuben's old-fashioned ideas of what is proper, it would not do to appear on a bicycle, far less in a bicycle costume, but as several days would elapse before Uncle Reuben would arrive the ladies decided one beautiful morning to take a final spin, and started out for their forenoon of pleasure.

Three or four hours later they arrived home, let themselves in the house with their latch keys, when, to their horror, who should they find in the library but Uncle Reuben. The old man stood speechless for a minute and then grabbed his hat and held it before his face. "Your skirts have fallen off! Your skirts have fallen off!" the old man cried. To run upstairs and change their costumes was the work of a few minutes, and on descending the young women found Uncle Reuben closely examining the wheels in the hall.

It seems that Uncle Reuben had decided to start earlier than he intended, and that a telegram had miscarried in some way. To now make Uncle Reuben forget his first impression and view the matter in a nineteenth century way was the task the ladies had before them, and when did not woman's wiles get the best of mankind?

Punishing Children.

Moral suasion may do very well for older children, but I never could appreciate its powers during babyhood. I read the experience recently of a mother who was a strong believer in the "Come away, baby; there's a darling, do," theory, but her own little one began to creep about. Like other babies, he investigated everything within reach, being especially attracted by the books which he could reach and pull to the floor. For awhile, the mother patiently replaced the books and carried baby away. Just as often he went back again, until patience ceased to be a virtue. Then theory gave way to something more practical—the mischievous little hands were punished—and the books were left in peace.—Womankind.

Kate Field in Denver.

DENVER, Sept. 10.—My journey from Chicago was over the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad, one of the best managed systems in the country, I should says judging by the civility of the employes, the comfort I experienced, the excellence of it, roadbed, and the punctuality of arrival. I actually reached Denver ahead of time. The Burlington Route is also the best to St. Paul, Minneapolis, Omaha and Kansas City.

The doctors tell us, now-a-days, that disease germs are everywhere; in the air, in the water, in our food, clothes, money; that they get into our bodies, live there, thrive and grow, if they find anything to thrive on.

Consumption is the destruction of lung-tissue by germs where the lung is too weak to conquer them. The remedy is strength—vital force.

Scott's Emulsion, with hypophosphites, means the adjustment of lung strength to overcome germ-life. It is fighting the germ with the odds in our favor. These tiny little drops of fat-food make their way into the system and re-fresh and re-invigorate it. Whether you succeed with it or not depends on how good a start the germs had, and how carefully you can live. The shortest way to health is the patient one. The gain is often slow.

DELANO DIARY

—Subscribe for the GAZETTE.

—The Commission to locate the Fourth Hospital for Insane are expected here soon.

—Hon. B. F. Christlieb's letter in this number of the GAZETTE will be interesting to many of our readers.

—Doctor Ames has built an outside steps to the rooms above W. J. Johns store, and now has his office there.

—The past few days weather would compare favorably with Georgia's balmy atmosphere but a few degrees cooler.

—Read the new advertisement of John Brandser, the tailor. He can be found in the Swedeback brick, on River street, up stairs.

—We understand that the recent effort to pay off the M. E. church debt resulted in reducing the principlal to about $450., an amount which can be more easily handled, —The desk and chairs for the pulpit at the Presbyterian church have arrived, they are nicely adapted for the business except the minister thinks he will need steps to get up to them.

—The entertainment given by the Presbyterian Society in the City Hall Friday evening to raise money to buy seats for the new church was well attended, and enjoyed by all who were present.

—Potatoes were offered at 20cts per bushel on the streets Saturday without takers. They are apt to bring more in the spring. We are of the opinion that it will pay to take care of what you have.

—On Saturday morning at 6:30 the fire alarm called out volunteers to extinguish a small blaze in the barn of Peter Samuelson caused by emptying ashes containing live coals into the manure pile the preceeding evening.

—Numerous trains loaded with cattle, sheep, wheat and other products of the country west of us continue to rush through town at a terrific rate of speed. They should be a little more law abiding and not break ordinances or law in their haste to get produce to market.

—Singing is now being made a prominent part of the exercises at the Public School. Miss Clark has charge of the class for about twenty minutes every morning and it is expected that soon Delano will be noted for her musical talent and musicans even more than ever before.

—The sons of the Revolution offer two medals for the best essays on "The Declaration of Independence." The scholars of Minnesota High Schools are to be the competitors. Prizes to be awarded on Washington's birthday '96. Delano High School should do her best, and capture one or both the medals.

—From the Valley Herald we learn that the Commission for locating the Fourth Hospital for Insane except Dr. Smith, of St. Paul, visited Chaska Tuesday and looked over their offer, leaving Wednesday, for Jordan to see their site. They will probably reach Delano next week. The village committee should acquaint itself with all the advantages of our site and be prepared to show up our offer to the best advantage.

—On account of a change in our business we are obliged to have all parties owing us on book account or notes due call and settle on or before Nov. 1st. 1895. All accounts unsettled after that date will be turned over to M. M. Wooley for collection and 10 per must be added for collection. We mean what we sry and don't want to make any extra costs. —Rev. J. W. Powell preached his farewell sermon on Sunday evening, to a good sized audience. The occasion was a solm one. The aged pastor who has for fifty years been a Methodist preacher, now goes on the superanuated list. He will live at Mankato near which place he owns a farm, now clear of incumbrance since the M. E. preachers raised the $400. mortgage and paid up back taxes. A nice thing for them to do; and richly deserved by a man who has so faithfully worked for half a century in the itinerancy. The text for Sunday night's able sermon was "And the Spirit and the bride say, Come. And let him that heareth say, Come. And let him that is athirst come. And whosoever will, let him take the water of life freely." Rev. XXII, 17.

Resolutions.

The following resolutions were passed by the Minnesota Editors and Publishers Association, at Atlanta, October 3d:

ATLANTA, GA., Oct. 3d, 1895.

This annual meeting of the Minnesota Editors and Publishers Association will form one of the brightest pages in the history of the organization. The trip to Atlanta has been one full of enjoyment to all participants, replete with historic information to the membership present, and will prove forever memorable because of the many courtesies received at the hands of all who have so generously contributed to our comfort and happiness.

Your committee, on behalf of this association, and in slight recognition of favors received, begs to present for the action of the association the following resolution:

1. That to C. C. Whitney, president of the association, C. P. Stine, secretary executive committee and H. P. Hall, the irrepressible, we owe a debt of gratitude for the comforts we have enjoyed and the continued round of pleasure which has been ours from the hour of departing from our northern beloved homes. Words are inadequate to express our appreciation as we feel in the fullness of our hearts, but these gentlemen can rest in the assurance that the absence of words is only a more complex index to our deep sense of gratitude toward them for what they have done to make this the most pleasurable, as well as the most profitable outing of the many enjoyable excursion in the history of our beloved organization.

2. That we are more than mindful of the generous hearted treatment received at the hands of Samuel C. Stickney, manager of the Chicago Great Western railroad, and for the personal consideration accorded us by C. E Robb, the genial city ticket agent at St. Paul, of this most excellent railroad system, are we especially indebted.

3. The Chicago and Eastern Illinois is a line excellently equipped, from the president down to the dining car conductors, and to General Passenger Agent Stone, one of those genial spirits which abide by night as well as by day, do we return thanks for the kindly attention showered upon us, and also by those princes of good fellows Mr. Charles W. Humphrey, of St Paul, and Mr. Rogers, of Nashville, both of whom belong to this transportation system.

4. To the Louisville & Nashville railroad, through Mr. C. P. Atmore, G. P. A., do we unitedly and enthusiastically return thanks for splendid service and generous recognition, and to that genial and polished gentleman, Mr J. K. Ridgley, the Chicago representative of this splendid system, do we especially recognize as one of "our kind" for his personal interest in our comfort and welfare while enroute over his line.

5. To Mr. William Danley, general passenger agent of the Nashville, Chattanooga & St. Louis Railway, are we greatly indebted, and to Supt. Wrenn, at Nashville, for the courtesy of a special train to Chattanooga do we make our proudest bow and most humble courtesy. An unsolicited favor spontaneously accorded is one which we fully appreciate, and then to have accompany us on the trip such a chivalrous representative as Mr. J. L. Edmonson, causes us to remark, "bless you my children, bless you," only consider us the "children."

6. To Charles E Harmon, general passenger agent of the Western & Atlantic road, and his assistant T. M. Doyle our thanks are due for special and unexpected favors.

7. That the hospitable entertainment showered upon us at Nashville through the citizens committee composed of Herman Hasslock, A. J. Grigsby, Hon. W. J. Slatter, Major Willis, R. J. G. Miller, Luke Walker, General W. H. Jackson, Pres't E. M. Cravath, of Fisk university, J. H. Bruce, William Gerst and others is a bright spot in our memory, of this most memorable trip, and we pledge Nashville our best consideration of their great Centennial exposition in 1896 which gives promise of eclipsing anything heretofore attempted by a single section of this gloriously united country.

8. That to Hon. H. Clay Evans, the citizen statesman of Chattanooga, we owe a debt which can only be repaid in part by writing upon the pages of more than a hundred newspapers of our state, in an incomplete way, to be sure, of historic events of the memorable battles which occurred on Missionary ridge, at Chickamauga, and Lookout Mountain, so graphically, entertainingly and exhaustively depicted by him for our information and we may at this time appropriately say our edification. To him are we indebted more than to any single individual met on our trip, and may his pathway be strewn with pleasant walks to the same degree as are those who are so fortunate as to fall into his hands when in his beautiful and historic city, is the sense of the Minnesota editors proclaimed by a rising vote,

9. That to the exposition management of Atlanta, and to Mr. Cabaniss president of the Georgia Editorial association do we take pleasure in returning thanks for courtesies received and services rendered. The Cotton States and International Exposition far exceeds the limit of our expectations in the matter of exhibits, extent and scope of grounds, beauty of location, grandeur of scenery and elegance of arrangement. The development of the South as herein indicated is a pleasant revelation to us and we heartily commend the enterprise displayed to states more pretentious in their claims, but less demonstrative in their doings.

10. That the Pullman Palace Car Company and its St. Paul representative, F. E. Rice, is entitled to our appreciation for considerate favors, and we thank the management for courtesies received.

11. That our thanks are due, and are cordially extended to Mrs. L. P. Hunt, of the Minnesota commission at the Atlanta exposition, for her thoughtfulness in aiding and arranging courtesies for our association during the stay in Atlanta; and we extend the thanks of the association to Miss Marie Collins, for the pleasure extended by her delighting elocutionary efforts.

12. That these resolutions be published in every paper represented on this excursion and that marked copies of the same be sent to all individuals and corporations herein recognized,

Respectfully submitted,
L. P. HUNT,
E. C. HUNTINGTON,
G. S. PEASE.

—The Commission to locate the Fourth Hospital for Insane are expected here soon.

—Hon. B. F. Christlieb's letter in this number of the GAZETTE will be interesting to many of our readers.

—Doctor Ames has built an outside steps to the rooms above W. J. Johns store, and now has his office there.

—The past few days weather would compare favorably with Georgia's balmy atmosphere but a few degrees cooler.

—Read the new advertisement of John Brandser, the tailor. He can be found in the Swedeback brick, on River street, up stairs.

—We understand that the recent effort to pay off the M. E. church debt resulted in reducing the principlal to about $450., an amount which can be more easily handled.

—The desk and chairs for the pulpit at the Presbyterian church have arrived, they are nicely adapted for the business except the minister thinks he will need steps to get up to them.

—The entertainment given by the Presbyterian Society in the City Hall Friday evening to raise money to buy seats for the new church was well attended, and enjoyed by all who were present.

—Potatoes were offered at 20cts per bushel on the streets Saturday without takers. They are apt to bring more in the spring. We are of the opinion that it will pay to take care of what you have.

—On Saturday morning at 6:30 the fire alarm called out volunteers to extinguish a small blaze in the barn of Peter Samuelson caused by emptying ashes containing live coals into the manure pile the preceeding evening.

—Numerous trains loaded with cattle, sheep, wheat and other products of the country west of us continue to rush through town at a terrific rate of speed. They should be a little more law abiding and not break ordinances or law in their haste to get produce to market.

—Singing is now being made a prominent part of the exercises at the Public School. Miss Clark has charge of the class for about twenty minutes every morning and it is expected that soon Delano will be noted for her musical talent and musicans even more than ever before.

—The sons of the Revolution offer two medals for the best essays on "The Declaration of Independence." The scholars of Minnesota High Schools are to be the competitors. Prizes to be awarded on Washington's birthday '96. Delano High School should do her best, and capture one or both the medals.

—From the Valley Herald we learn that the Commission for locating the Fourth Hospital for Insane except Dr. Smith, of St. Paul, visited Chaska Tuesday and looked over their offer, leaving Wednesday, for Jordan to see their site. 8. That to Hon. H. Clay Evans, the citizen statesman of Chattanooga, we owe a debt which can only be repaid in part by writing upon the pages of more than a hundred newspapers of our state, in an incomplete way, to be sure, of historic events of the memorable battles which occurred on Missionary ridge, at Chickamauga, and Lookout Mountain, so graphically, entertainingly and exhaustively depicted by him for our information and we may at this time appropriately say our edification. To him are we indebted more than to any single individual met on our trip, and may his pathway be strewn with pleasant walks to the same degree as are those who are so fortunate as to fall into his hands when in his beautiful and historic city, is the sense of the Minnesota editors proclaimed by a rising vote,

9. That to the exposition management of Atlanta, and to Mr. Cabaniss president of the Georgia Editorial association do we take pleasure in returning thanks for courtesies received and services rendered. The Cotton States and International Exposition far exceeds the limit of our expectations in the matter of exhibits, extent and scope of grounds, beauty of location, grandeur of scenery and elegance of arrangement. The development of the South as herein indicated is a pleasant revelation to us and we heartily commend the enterprise displayed to states more pretentious in their claims, but less demonstrative in their doings.

10. That the Pullman Palace Car Company and its St. Paul representative, F. E. Rice, is entitled to our appreciation for considerate favors, and we thank the management for courtesies received.

11. That our thanks are due, and are cordially extended to Mrs. L. P. Hunt, of the Minnesota commission at the Atlanta exposition, for her thoughtfulness in aiding and arranging courtesies for our association during the stay in Atlanta; and we extend the thanks of the association to Miss Marie Collins, for the pleasure extended by her delighting elocutionary efforts.

12. That these resolutions be published in every paper represented on this excursion and that marked copies of the same be sent to all individuals and corporations herein recognized.

Respectfully submitted,
L. P. HUNT,
E. C. HUNTINGTON,
G. S. PEASE.

OLD BOB WHITE.

Now the hills are turning yellow and the brown is on the corn;
There's melody that's mellow in the music of the horn,
And the sassafras is blazing and the sumach all aglow
Where the old bell cow is grazing on the fallows down below,
And the pea vines gladly rustle where the soft winds are at play
And the young quail chirp and hustle, growing plumper every day,
And the cunning old suborner in the bushes to the right,
Perched upon the low fence corner, whistles

"Old Bob White!"

Get your ammunition ready, now, and limber up your gun,
Train the young dogs to be steady so as not to spoil the fun,
For the time is swiftly coming and October's nearly here,
When we'll set the woods a-humming with the music far and near,
And we'll fill each hunting jacket with the spoil our prowess yields,
As we raise a merry racket in the forest and the fields,
For the challenge is temptation as they sit there out of sight
All around the big plantation whistling

"Old Bob White!"

—Montgomery M. Folsom, in Forest Tribune

ELASTIC Currency? What's the matter with using India rubber?

IT looks now as if Editor Johnson of the St. Peter Herald, might see his idea of a Grand Northwestern Exposition in the Midway district carried out to perfection in the near future.

WHEN Ohio's Governor, McKinley, failed in business his Republican friends came to his aid and put him on his feet again. Will Minnesota Republicans do as much for their Governor?

PRESIDENTIAL day at the Atlanta Cotton States Exposition was a fine day, and President Cleveland and party were greeted by thousands of people from all over the country. He made a short speech on the occasion.

GOV. CLOUGH, and the firm Clough Bros., including the estate of the late Gilbert Clough, have been obliged to make an assignment, on account of inability to collect from the firm of N P. Clark who recently failed, at St. Cloud.

THE Monroe doctrine bids fair to become one of the political planks in the party platforms at the next election. All parties seem to favor the enforcement of that doctrine in the impending imbroglio between Venezuela and Great Britain.

THE Westlicher Herold, published at Winona, by Joseph Leicht, arrived this morning. We bunked next to the editor on the Atlanta trip and found him a very agreeable, jolly man. His paper appears to be first class. Our German friends can see our copy or can get a sample by sending to the Westlicher, Winona, Minn.

ONE good thing will result from Dr. Hewitt's visit. We will get an analysis of our water supply, both from river and wells. The Times will not be surprised if the pumping station water is criticised.—St. Cloud Times.

We hope the Times will not have to wait on Dr. Hewitt as long for an analysis as we have in Delano.

SOUTHERN Railroad beds are being put in fine condition. From Nashville to Chattanooga and Atlanta the editorial excursion passed over some very nice and level, and the most substantial looking on the whole route. The Nashville, Chattanooga and Atlanta were very accommodating giving us a special in the night after "Yankee-doodle and Dixie" had been listened to, from Nashville to Chattanooga.

NOTHING should be freer from political and mercenary motives than the actions of school officers in this free land of ours. And especially should this be the care in controlling the Normal schools of the state. The institutions where coming teachers are prepared, largely at the expense of the state, to assist in educating the coming men and women of our state. No taint of political intrigue; no suspicions that high officials are not up to the world's standard of morals should be tolerated. If a man has fallen into a snare, and finds the finger or scorn pointed at him, as an officer of a Normal school he should for the good of this great institution either clear his skirts to the satisfaction of the public or step down and out of a position that should be untarnished.

THE next presidential campaign is almost upon us The Republican committee has been called to meet in Washington in December and decide upon the place and time for holding the next Republican National Convention. From now on strings will tightened more and more until the convention is held.

EX PRESIDENT CARHART, of the St. Cloud Normal School has apparently smothered his indignation at being so unceremoniously superceded in his high office, by the star chamber process and his friends, himself and the public left to hunt for a reason, until, like a volcano he has opened up all at once; and with no uncertain sound demands a reason. The Resident Director offered as an excuse, it seems, that it was because the Professor didn't promptly pay his bills. The Professor meets this charge with a list of some eighteen receipts in full, from as many business men, and firms, with whom he has done business in St. Cloud, within the last five years; some of them add very flattering statements of their willingness to trust further. These cover various mercantile and professional bills and, from this distance, and without contradiction effectually answers that charge.

Professor Carhart has demanded an explanation of the following language which he claims was used in addition to the charge he has so thoroughly exploded: "Other reasons pertained to himself in his attitude toward and relations to the school, and his attitude toward individual members of his faculty." The above language is not very explicit and the board of directors owe it to the public to explain now that the Professor demands it. If he is guilty of all the sins this language may be made to cover people have a right to know it. And if Prof. Carhart is innocent officers of the Normal School have no business to publish such insinuations. Public officials ought to be able to transact public business in a way that would need no such arguments as have been called out in this affair.

Elastic Currency.

A great deal is being said and written about an elastic currency. It is claimed that by abolishing the greenbacks and placing in their stead some interest bearing bonds to be paid in gold, and on which other bank notes may be issued for circulation, we would be making for ourselves an elastic currency. Elastic currency! Who wants a more elastic currency than that in present use? Is not the currency of to-day elastic enough to suit anybody? It is so elastic that the poor man can not hold even a few pennies over night; he cannot get enough ahead to carry around and jingle. The ordinary working man can not hold it; it is so elastic as to rebound from his pocket into that of his employer or some other individual, oftentimes before he has even got home with it. The property holder, the farmer cannot hold it; it is so elastic as to elude his grasp; and instead of going to enlarge his bank account it rebounds from the very mortgage on his property, and goes into the hands of money loaners, on an order, before he has seen it. He sells his grain, turns in his checks for debts, but sees no money; pays discount, exchange, collection fees and like incidentals, quite a sum in the course of a year. The present money is, surely, "elastic" enough for the average man.

What is needed is more money; so that when a man does business he may have the exquisite pleasure of holding in his hands a few dollars of his own. It gives a man a better feeling to have money, of his own; he is more independent than when depending on paper; on the "elastic" currency. A story is told of a minister who used to borrow ten dollars, of a friend, every Saturday night and return it every Monday morning. The friend noticed that each time the same money he loaned was returned and asked why. The minister replied: "I can preach better when I have money in my pocket."

Cotton States Exposition.

The Cotton States Exposition, now being held at Atlanta, Ga., is a grand success. At the time we saw it, Oct. 2 and 3, everything was not in place, some of the buildings were just completed. Many of the exhibits were not yet in place. The streets were covered with broken stone which was as hard to walk on as gravel with the additional unpleasantness of having sharp corners, the stones being pounded into peices the size of almonds or a little larger. The grounds were very tastily laid out; the lake was a thing of beauty; the buildings presented attractive appearances, and the bird's eye view gave the apperance of a great exposition.

We were first piloted to the Forestry building and out onto the roof garden where several speeches were delivered. Next the midway plaisance was visited and nearly everything was exhibited to wearers of the Minnesota badge free of charge, a lunch was served to the association, on the roof garden. The Minnesota Editors then put in two days every man for himself. Most of them saw all of the exposition they could; others looked over the city and the surrounding country all enjoyed themselves. The carfare to the grounds the admittance at the gate and the noon lunch had been furnished members of the association without expense to them and praises of the donors were heard on every side.

The exposition grounds are in Piedmont Park and cover 189 acres. About a dozen large buildings and several smaller ones make quite a town. The Auditorium, Forestry building, Government building, Machinery building, Agricultural building, Electricity building, Negro building, and others, take up lots of time in looking through. The Georgian building was rapidly being put in order. As usual those living near by thinking they had lots of time seemed a little behind. When all is together in place it will be worth seeing, sure. It opened up Sept. 18th and will run until Dec. 31, possibly longer. If possible go and see for yourself. It is time and money well spent, to take the trip, alone, to say nothing of what you see when you are there.

People from this section of country in looking through Tennessee and Georgia are astonished at the number and the size of the towns and their apparent thrift. People seem busy and doing well. In passing along the R. R. one sees the numerous small whitewashed huts and poor buildings generally, and wonders from whence comes the prosperity evident in the towns. Occasionally a factory or a mine or other evidence of industry is seen along the R. R. At this season of the year the climate is fine, we enjoyed what our crowd persisted in calling the "Minnesota weather", very much. A frost went with us and was very much in evidence the morning we arrived at Nashville, and the next morning at Atlanta. The big tropical plants had their tender leaves terribly twisted and shrunken up. The soil through Georgia was red as brick in many places; but they tell us it is productive. In Tennessee we found the finest dust we ever saw: But Nashville had her streets sprinkled in the morning by time people wanted to use them. Atlanta for some reason seemed less lavish of water and allowed more dust to fly about. Not even the lawns about fine residences were sprinkled and no beautiful green grass like one sees in Minneapolis or St. Paul showed up there. It was claimed the grass would not grow there as in Minnesota. Atlanta claims 110,000 inhabitants and bears the marks of an enterprising city. It seems to be a regular central point for most all kinds of business; horse barns with auctions every day, cotton, and all other southern products were to be seen moving on

We visited the Post Office, a large and orderly, well arranged place, which seemed well patronized. In the public street in front stands a fine statue of a man Atlanta must have loved, W. H. Grady, the former editor of Atlanta's great daily paper, the Atlanta Constitution. We also visited the office of the Constitution, and met the present editor Clark Howells, who is a youngish looking man, but who is getting out a good paper. We made arrangements to exchange with the Weekly Constitution and find it very newsy and good reading.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

From our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, D. C. Oct 18, 1895.

Carry the good news to Dixie! Mrs. Cleveland and the ladies of the cabinet will probably accompany President Cleveland and his entire cabinet when they leave Washington for the Atlanta exposition, next Monday. Mrs. Cleveland did not intend to go, but when she learned how disappointed the thousands who had never seen her but hoped to do so at the exposition and en route would be if she did not, she, with her usual good nature and obliging disposition, has been almost pursuaded to change her mind and go.

President Cleveland and all the members of his cabinent met for the first time in several months at thereg ular cabinet meeting this week. The meeting was more in the nature of a friendly social gathering than one of business, although there was some exchange of opinions and informal discussion of important matters bearing upon the coming session of Congress.

Sympathy for Cuban revolutionists is a perfectly natural feeling in the heart of Americans, but the zeal of an enterprising newspaper publisher of Washington, in pursuit of popular free advertising for his property, has caused a number of more or less prominent business men to allow their sympathy to run away with their good judgement and to join in a public call for a mass meeting to be held in Washington for the purpose of publicly expressing sympathy for the revolutionists. The meeting will be held, and the resolutions of sympathy adopted; but under existing circumstances it is an ill-advised affair, implying an entirely unnecessary and uncalled for lack of confidence in the administration to deal properly with the Cuban affair. The aforesaid enterprising publisher has been seconded in this scheme by republicans, who hope thereby to embarrass the administration. President Cleveland is probably as fully conversant with the present status of affairs in Cuba as any man in the United States and holding meetings in Washington or elsewhere, will neither delay or expedite matters. He will do his duty regardless of his own or the sympathy of others.

Assistant Attorney General for the Post Office Department Thomas—he's a clever fellow, a good lawyer, and a good democrat, notwithstanding that long title—in his annual report to Postmaster General Wilson leaves no doubt of his opinion of those business concerns which adopt lottery methods to attact customers. After giving the number of lotteries which have been shut out of the mails by the anti-lottery law, which he declars has sounded the death-knell of lotteries in this country, Mr. Thomas in his report says: "But many business men think they must, in order to succeed, resort to schemes that appeal to the gambling spirit of the people, and they acordingly sugar-coat their legitimate enterprises with lottery advertisements. These fascinating and apparently innocent schemes reach the boys and girls of the land and tend to make them gamblers." The rebuke is sharp, but no thoughtful newspaper reader can deny that it is deserved, nor that it is needed by some business concerns.

Mr. Harrisons managers are losing their shrewdness, if they approve of or are responsible for a political fairy story that was circulated in Washington this week. Talk about a thing making a horse laugh, if such a thing were possible this story would do it. The preface to the story sets out that it was Tom Platt and his wicked anti-Harrison associates, and not the immaculate Benjamin, who stabbed Gov. Morton in the back at the Minneapolis convention of '92 and gave the vice-presidential nomination to Whitelaw Reid. And as if that were not sufficient perversion of facts for a single story, it proceeds to tell that Mr. Harrison doesn't want next year's nomination to go to Reid, McKinley or Allison, but to his bosom friend and one-time runing mate, Gov. Morton. Gov. Morton has not proved himself to be as good a politician as he is buisness man, but nobody in Washington believes that he can be fooled by any such story as this. He knows that Mr. Harrison was in telegraphic communication with the men who controlled the Minneapolis convention, and that one word from him to John C. New would have prevented the Whitelaw Reid deal from being carried out. He also knows that the friendship now so publicly proffered is but the Judas-like precursor of another stab in the back, if the opportunity to administer it occurs.

A great many cock and bull stories are being told concerning bargains made by the democratic Senators with the republican Senators for a reorganization of the Senate and a division of the committee chairmanships etc. No such bargain has been made. Just before the last session of Congress closed there was an informal talk about some such arrangement, but it was not participated in by more than half a dozen Senators and they had no authority from their colleagues to make any bargain. I do not say that some such arrangement may not be made, but I do say that it cannot be made by two or three Senators.

Dr. Ridgway has moved into the office of Dr. Lowe over F. F. Jude's grocery.

Editor Wharton of the Eagle spent Sunday here.

Mr. and Mrs. Meek, who have been visiting Mrs. Meek's brother A. Y. Eaton and family, left for Omaha, where they will visit a short time before returning to their home in Ohio.

Williard Mann returned from his trip to Vermont last Thursday.

Mrs. H. S. Dean of Minneapolis is the guest of Buffalo relatives and friends this week.

Miss Kate Junken visited in Waverly a few days last week the guest of Miss Lulu Flannigan.

The Ladies Aid of the Presbyterian Church gave a missionary tea at the home of Mrs. E. O. Brewster, last Tuesday evening. A very enjoyable evening is reported.

INDEPENDENCE INCIDENTS.

The cold weather we have had of late reminds us that winter is nigh; even at the door. That northwest wind must have originated near the north pole, for it was enough to chill the very blood of a New York politician.

Farmers are trying to get ready for winter but are making very slow progress; too much cleaning of house and making sour-crout. By the way Mr. Editor are you a friend to sour-crout? I am not; and I move that an internal revenue be placed upon that commodity; or that it be put upon the retired list.

E. W. Mills has built a new barn; so Armstrong is improving.

W. Stenson has moved into Armstrong.

Armstrong has more churches and fewer saloons to the size of it than any town this side of Honolulu.

Harry Smith is pressing hay for market.

Maple Plain merchants are doing quite a good trade now; they seem to be well stocked up with goods.

All of the schools now in Independence are in good running order.

Dr. Burns, of Minneapolis, was in our town yesterday, on professional business.

G. W. Bradford is still on the sick list: confined to the house all the time.

Abe Richards and Miss Violet Wilson, of Buffalo, were calling on friends last week. Mr. Richards has just returned from Montana.

Some of our people still have the southern fever.

MRS. DR. NANSEN, the wife of the north pole explorer, seems to think that part of the failure of the Peary expedition was due to the presence of Mrs. Peary. She says that women have no business to force themselves into such expeditions, that exploring in the ice is work for men.

A RECENT experiment of the military authorities with "emergency rations" in the form of condensed food was not encouraging. Of a company of regulars sent out on a four days' march one officer and thirty-nine men were made sick by the rations on the first day, and the captain wired back for a supply of hardtack for the remainder of the march.

THE late Hjalmar Hjorth Boyesen was once asked why he didn't simplify the spelling of his name, so as to make it less perplexing for the average American. The inquirer was informed that it was a fine Norwegian name in the first place, and, secondly, that it was worth a good many dollars to its possessor as a distinctive trademark for his literary wares.

THE late Mr. Houghton, of Boston, was wont to tell a characteristic story of Noah Webster. Houghton was a boy in a printer's shop when an odd-looking old gentleman came in one day to make him promise that he would always set up the word "center," not "centre." The dictionary man is said to have traversed New England on this errand to printers.

AN amusing printer's error occurred in a recent issue of the London Times. In announcing the marriage of a young city man to the daughter of a naval constructor at Sheerness, a few words of telegram which apparently belonged to some notes from China or Armenia were printed after the interesting intelligence. They read as follows: "Trouble is expected."

THE revenue cutter Commodore Perry brings to San Francisco the news that about twenty out of the forty volcanoes in the chain of Aleutian islands are now active, after it had been supposed for many years that all but one of them were extinct. The exception was Bogaslov island, which some years ago was found in a state of eruption, and another island was formed by the material vomited up from beneath the waters. Now the two islands have become one, a neck of volcanic material having been forced up to connect them. The Aleutian islands belong to the United States.

MASSACHUSETTS has a "man suffrage association," bent on killing off woman suffrage in the state. The women are not content with voting for school offices, but want to take a hand in municipal politics and control the state. As there are more women than men in the old Bay state the male voters realize their extreme peril and with visions of women governors, mayors, aldermen and legislators looming up in bulging relief before their eyes, they have resolved to die in the last ditch rather than yield to the bosship of women. The fact that the men have to organize shows the strength of the women.

THE Iron Age says the quantity of fuel necessary to produce iron or steel has fallen in recent years from four or five times the weight of the product to only a little more than the weight of the steel produced, while there has been little change in the quantity of ore required to make a ton of metal. Of course, every alteration in the ratio lengthens out the distance from the coal mine at which the manufacture can be carried on at a profit, a fact which goes a long way towards explaining the recently noted tendency to remove the furnaces and the mills from the vicinity of the coal mines to the shores of the great lakes.

TEMPERANCE WOMEN.

Their Convention at Baltimore a Marked Success.

Attendance of Delegates Large and Their Enthusiasm Intense—Miss Willard's Address — The New Star Spangled Banner.

BALTIMORE, Md., Oct. 21.—Between 500 and 600 delegates from thirty-eight states and territories, representing 300,000 members of the Woman's Christian Temperance union, congregated at Music hall Friday morning to attend the twenty-second annual convention of that society.

Mother Thompson Present.

As Miss Willard stepped to the front of the stage, carrying a huge bunch of La France roses, the audience tumultuously applauded her. Following the drop of her gavel a crusade Psalm was read, responsively, led by Mrs. Eliza Thompson, of Hillsboro, O., who is more familiarly known in temperance circles as "Mother Thompson." She began the crusade inauguration in her home twenty-one years ago, and from which rose the present W. C. T. U. Mrs. Thompson is in her 86th year, but her powers seemed unimpaired as she led the reading Friday morning.

Mrs. Henrietta L. Monroe, president of the Ohio W. C. T. U., offered a fervent invocation. Some routine business was followed by the reading of the president's annual address, which was, in part, as follows:

Miss Willard's Address.

"Civilization is but Christianity's effect on the brain and hands of the race: science and invention are its twin daughters, and both lend the totality of their influence against the practice of stimulation. All of the states and territories except two (Georgia and Arkansas) now require the teaching of the laws of health to all school children, beginning with the youngest. Mrs. Mary H. Hunt heads this movement as the representative of the Woman's Christian Temperance union. Four times a year the Sunday-school lesson explicitly teaches total abstinence. This is another point gained by white-ribboners, who worked ten years for it.

"The general assembly of the Presbyterian church has this year declared in favor of non-alcoholic wine for sacramental purposes.

"In the widening field of athletics all stimulation is discounted. The bicycle is the most influential temperance reformer of the time, and milk is the favorite beverage of those who ride to win. Legislation follows on after individual progress. The Canadian parliament this year declared by an overwhelming majority in favor of prohibition; in South Australia and Utah women have been admitted to the full rights of citizens. Five legislatures last winter voted to submit this question to the people. In New York city reform has forsaken the line of least and sought that of greatest resistance. Municipal politics in that metropolis and many others turn on the temperance question. The enforcement of law by Commissioner Roosevelt and the renewed war upon Tammany, led by the redoubtable Dr. Parkhurst, are the salient features of the time.

"The action of the Methodist conferences in voting to admit women to the general conference is the largest straw on the current of the times. The woman's department of the Atlanta exposition and the great congresses of women held in the farther south are other tokens hardly less significant. A union of reform forces is contemplated, and the leaders have agreed to a basis, which is commended to the good-will of all white ribbon women.

"The labor movement is the natural ally of the white ribboners. The 'working class' are the only true aristocrats. Roman Catholic young women of Danbury, Conn., have formed a society of members pledged not to marry any man who is not a strict abstainer. The unfading hope of the social purity movement was set forth in the resolution unanimously adopted by our London convention in June last."

Miss Willard closed her review of the woman question with these words:

"In primitive days we had the matriarchate, which means the rule of the mothers, and now for a painfully lengthened period we have had the patriarchate, or the rule of the fathers; but we begin to see the dawn of the amphiarchate, or the joint rule of a joint world by the joint forces of its mothers and its fathers. Happy are they who put their sturdy shoulders to the wheels of this white chariot of the sun."

An important part of the address was devoted to the situation in Armenia, and an urgent plea was made for the united efforts of women in collecting funds and circulating petitions for the relief of "our well-nigh martyred Christian neighbors in Asia Minor."

In the midst of her address, while recommending a continuance of total abstinence on the part of every delegate, Miss Willard requested every woman present to arise and thereby indicate their willingness to renew the pledge. Every woman in the house, delegates and visitors as well, arose, while great enthusiasm prevailed in every direction.

New Star Spangled Banner.

A handsome white silk banner, bearing fifty gilt stars, representing the states and territories wherein the W. C. T. U. have representation, was presented to Miss Willard by Mrs. W. Jennings Demorest, chairman of the executive committee, of Sorosis, N. Y. This beautiful emblem was waved to and fro by Miss Willard and Mrs. Eliza Thompson, while Mrs. Katharine Baldwin, of New York, a niece of the national president, sang the recently composed song, "The White Ribbon Star Spangled Banner," the first verse of which is:

"Fling it out to the breeze. Let it tell to the world
That the faith which has raised it will never surrender;
Let it tell that the love which our banner unfurled
Is the guard of the home and the nation's defender.
Let it gleam as a star for the shipwrecked afar,
Like a beacon that warns of the treacherous bar;
Let that banner of freedom and purity wave
As a signal of hope midst the perils we brave."

The enthusiasm was beyond description as the throng arose and sang the closing stanza of the hymn. A cablegram of greeting from Lady Henry Somerset, of England, was read.

At the afternoon session two important resolutions were presented and adopted. Mrs. A. S. Benjamin, of Michigan, offered a resolution denouncing lynching and other lawless practices in our own or any other country, and declaring the belief that when women have a share in making the laws such atrocities will disappear from the face of the earth.

"Methods of promoting our principles" brought forth a number of papers, and each speaker was allowed ten minutes to present her views.

Work among colored people was talked about by Mrs. Lucy Thurman (colored), of Jackson, Mich. During the year, she said, more headway had been made in the work than in any other like period. Forty unions of colored women had been organized in the south, but more active work yet was needed. Among the ten millions of her race in this country, Mrs. Thurman said, there was not one distiller or brewer; something that could be said of no other race.

After the Smokers.

The superintendent of the narcotics department, Mrs. E. B. Ingalls, of St. Louis, said that more persons were interested in the movement than ever before, and that reformers are beginning to realize that soothing sirups, headache medicine and the cigarette lead to the use of opium, chloral and other drugs. Many men, she said, were giving up the use of tobacco. Lecturers were becoming more numerous. She said they were decreasing the numbers of smokers. Mr. Pullman had been petitioned not to place smoking apartments in his cars and she understood that the millionaire car-builder was not putting these compartments in the sleeping cars and that smokers would be forced into the ordinary smoking-car or go without the weed.

The Night Session.

An enormous crowd attended the session at Music hall Friday night. After devotional services Mayor Latrobe welcomed the delegates to the city. A message of encouragement and sympathy was read from Cardinal Gibbons. Addresses of welcome were delivered by Rev. John F. Goucher in behalf of the Methodist Episcopal church; Rev. W. E. Bartlett, in behalf of the Catholic clergy; Mrs. Mary Haslup, president of the state W. C. T. U., in behalf of the state unions, and Mrs. Alice C. Robinson spoke for the city W. C. T. U. organization. Mrs. Mary Reed Goodale, of Louisiana, and several other ladies responded.

Occupy Baltimore Pulpits.

BALTIMORE, Md., Oct. 22.—Women talked temperance from forty-two Baltimore pulpits Sunday to over 30,000 people. In addition to the great meetings in Music hall special services were held and addresses delivered by earnest, eloquent speakers of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union in thirty-three Methodist, two Protestant Episcopal, two Baptist and three Presbyterian churches, one Congregational church and the Friends' meeting house.

NOT SO BRISK.

The Volume of Business Shows a Slight Falling Off.

NEW YORK, Oct. 21. — Bradstreet's says:

"There is less push to the general commercial movement this week, as indicated by reports from eastern jobbers and others whose travelers have returned from trips west and northwest. There are, of course, noteworthy exceptions, Baltimore merchants finding relatively most satisfactory trade. This is largely due to the remarkably favorable conditions at the south. In general the volume of business appears slightly smaller this week, but with a wide-spread although somewhat irregular demand.

"The manufacturing industries show no material change except that at central western and western cities shoe manufacturers announce a better demand than at the east. The falling off in demand of Bessemer pig iron and steel billets may or may not be due to consumers refusing to further discount their future requirements. Nominal declines in these metals have yet to meet the test of any considerable order getting into the market. Woolen manufacturers find no more encouragement than heretofore, but manufacturers of cottons, bolstered by the high and advancing prices for the raw staples, find demand and quotations for their specialties satisfactory.

"The total value of foreign trade in September was slightly smaller than a year ago, owing entirely to lighter shipments of cotton and provisions, as breadstuffs, particularly corn and refined petroleum shipments, were larger than a year ago. Imports, however, heavily exceeded exports during that month. Detailed figures for August and the eight months show that while exports of agricultural products (breadstuffs, cotton and provisions), show decreases, manufactured products and products of mines and forests show gains. Imports have increased very heavily over a year ago, particularly in raw and manufactured textiles. Sugar imports have fallen off heavily.

FOUR KILLED.

Train Strikes a Wagon at a Crossing in Ohio.

STEUBENVILLE, O., Oct. 23.—Four men were hurled into eternity at 7:30 Monday morning at Miller's station crossing on the Pan-Handle railroad by eastbound accommodation No. 56. The men are from Youngstown, near Latrobe, in Westmoreland county, Pa., and their bodies were horribly mangled. Their names are:

Edward Cogan, a driver, 18 years of age.
Samuel Cogan, Jr., aged 20 years.
Samuel Cogan, Sr., a plasterer.
John Campbell, a hod carrier, aged 26.

The men were working for Jesse Cogan, who had a plastering contract under George C. Anderson & Son, of Latrobe. The men started for Miller's in a wagon Monday morning. When near the railroad crossing they saw the accommodation and started the horse on the run to cross the track in front of the train. The engineer of the train says he did not see the wagon until he was right on top of it, as there is a sharp curve approaching this point, and the engine struck the wagon about in the middle, demolishing it and killing all four men. The horse escaped uninjured.

The Negroes at Washington.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19.—The colored national convention completed its work Thursday when Chairman James W. Poe declared it adjourned to meet at Richmond, Va., Tuesday, July 2, 1896. It adopted a long platform, a synopsis of its main points being as follows:

It denounces the administration of President Cleveland; also the crime of lynching; reaffirms its allegiance to the republican party; favors freedom for Cuba; declares in favor of the use of both gold and silver as money; eulogises Morton, Reed, Harrison, Allison, Sherman, and practically indorses the candidacy of McKinley.

Nominated for Fourth Term.

DETROIT, Mich., Oct. 21.—The republican city convention was held here Saturday to nominate a city ticket. There was no opposition when Mayor Pingree was renominated for a fourth term and his nomination was made unanimous. The remainder of the ticket was filled by the "Pingree" nominees.

Voluntarily Raise the Wages.

ALLENTOWN, Pa., Oct. 22.—The Crane iron works Monday made a second voluntary increase of 10 per cent. in wages of their 400 employes within a few months.

CHRISTIAN UNITY

It Receives a Severe Blow in the Episcopal Convention.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Oct. 19.—It was a signal victory that was won Thursday evening by the conservative element in the house of deputies of the Episcopal convention. By a vote that was close, so far as the clericals were concerned, but decisive on the side of the laymen, the Lambeth quadrilateral, which has been discussed in every aspect by the church on both sides of the Atlantic during the past three years and which has proven a sore subject of contention between the narrow and broad church parties of the American church, was scattered to the winds, and the question of Christian unity was declared by the result as being outside the pale of the consideration of the church.

Debate was resumed immediately after the routine business of the opening hour had been disposed of, the pending question being the report of the majority of Dr. Huntington's committee, admitting to the oversight of the church other Christian bodies willing to accept the apostles and Nicene creeds, and to submit themselves to the authority of an Episcopal bishop, who should prescribe the form of service such body might employ.

The ballot, which was taken at 6 o'clock amidst more evidences of suppressed excitement than have been manifested at any previous session of the convention, was the culmination of a brilliant debate, in which the parliamentarians, tacticians and orators of the body exhausted all their arts in the effort to win votes.

The vote stood: Clericals, aye, 19; nay, 28; divided, 11. Laymen, aye, 15; nay, 27; divided, 3. Of the clericals the dioceses of California, Indiana, Iowa, Georgia, Louisiana, Massachusetts, Mississippi, Pennsylvania, Pittsburgh, southern Ohio, and western Michigan voted with Dr. Huntington, New York, Ohio, South Carolina and Massachusetts being divided. Of the lay vote Massachusetts and Pennsylvania were divided, and New York, New Jersey, Rhode Island, Maryland, South Carolina and southern Ohio were among the dioceses in support of the proposition.

The house of bishops nominated Rev. Peter Trimble, of Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., as a candidate for the new bishopric of Alaska and Rev. Joseph M. Francis, of Japan, formerly of this state, as missionary bishop of Kyoto.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Oct. 23.—Monday's session of the Episcopal convention was characterized by the slim attendance of delegates, the majority of whom left the city Saturday and Sunday. Dr. Morgan Dix, of New York, was appointed chairman of the committee on amendments to the constitution and canons which will report at the next convention. The bishop of Alabama resigned from the commission on christian unity. The question concerning Swedish orders was postponed until 1898; and the joint commission on the provincial system was continued.

DECLARED OFF.

There Will Be No Fight Between Corbett and Fitzsimmons.

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., Oct. 23.—The Corbett-Fitzsimmons fight has been declared off by the Florida Athletic club. Corbett and Brady were willing to postpone the fight to November 11, but Julian, as Fitzsimmons' representative, was not, and the club then declared the match off.

The negotiations were brief and not in the best temper. Both sides charged an inclination to either get the better of the bargain or to kill the fight altogether.

Saturday the ruling of Chancellor Leatherman was to be taken before the supreme court by the attorney general, and the tribunal of last appeal may consume several days in handing down a final hearing. In view of this fact and anticipating a favorable decision, Dan Stuart called the parties in interest together and stated the conditions. Stuart wanted a postponement to November 15. He argued that even if the court of final resort sustained the decision of the chancellor it would take that long to restore confidence and get the crowd to Hot Springs. Brady, for Corbett, was willing, but Julian was not.

Despite the fact that Corbett went into training a week before his prospective opponent, Julian contended that his man was "too fine," and that to train for several days after the original time would militate against his physical condition. The proposition was then made to have the men fight in private for the main stake. $10,000 a side. Here Stuart interjected an offer of an added $10,000. Brady was willing but Julian demurred. He opined that the club, if it pulled the fight off Oct. 31, would have to make good its full promise of $41,000.

A Famous Austrian's Crime.

VIENNA, Oct. 23.—A great sensation was caused here Monday in military and other circles by a murder and suicide committed by an old soldier who had served his emperor and country with much distinction. The suicide was Lieut. Gen. Gustav Dunst von Adelsheim, aged 72 years, who in 1879 was retired from the army on a pension. The murdered person was his wife, Baroness Abele, aged 50 years. Their bodies were found lying under a tree in the Prater, the great park in the environs of Vienna. Both had been shot with a revolver, which was found close to the general. Apparently the general had despatched his wife and then killed himself. A note was found in one of his pockets reading: "We quit life voluntarily."

England's Ultimatum to Venezuela.

LONDON, Oct. 22.—The St. James Gazette says it is in a position to state that Lord Salisbury has sent an ultimatum to President Crespo, of Venezuela, demanding reparation for the arrest of policemen at Uruan and stating the terms upon which Great Britain will definitely determine the boundary dispute with Venezuela. The ultimatum is either on the way to Venezuela or, possibly, has by this time been actually delivered.

Dr. Fraker Indicted.

RICHMOND, Mo., Oct. 21.—The grand jury of Ray county has returned four indictments against George W. Fraker, the alleged insurance swindler. Three of the indictments charge an attempt to obtain money under false pretenses. The fourth charges an attempt by fraudulent representations to cheat and defraud. Dr. Fraker is confined in the Ray county jail and his trial is set for next February.

BREAKING A MIRROR.

Its Significance to the Girl With a Superstitious Turn.

"There!" said the girl who was getting ready to go out. "I've broken my hand mirror! What does that mean?"

"Seven years of sorrow," said her friend; "it also betokens that you will quarrel with your dearest friend."

"Charlie? That would be too dreadful!"

"Charlie? I thought you always counted me your dearest friend! So you have let the cat out of the bag. That pudding-headed Charlie Strong! Before I'd—"

"You needn't say anything more, Sue Garland, I hate you! And as for Charlie, you know you would have given your eyes to have caught him!"

"Pooh! I refused him half a dozen times before he ever looked at you. I wish you good afternoon and a better temper, my dear," and the friend slammed the door behind her.

There were several other girls left and they one and all began to condole with the girl who had broken her hand mirror. But she was inconsolable.

"You see how it has acted already, and if there are to be seven years of it I shall just died, I know I shall! There, I've quarreled with Sue, the dearest girl in the world, and that's only the beginning!"

"Let me see where it's broken," said one of her chums as she picked up the cause of the trouble.

"There's a fracture right through the length of the glass, but I don't know how it came there. I didn't drop it or strike it against anything. Seven years? Ain't it just awful?"

"Seven grandmothers!" exclaimed the other girl; "that isn't a fracture; it's nothing but a streak of moist air. Look. I can wipe it off with my handkerchief!"

"So it is. Oh, you dear thing, run right after Sue and bring her back. Tell her the glass wasn't broken, and we haven't quarreled after all! And the seven years are up already, and oh, ain't I just thankful!"—Detroit Free Press.

I NEVER think he is quite ready for another world who is altogether weary of this.—H. A. Hamilton.

HER EYES.

From her eyes the 'prisoned sunbeams,
Shining bright,
Send their message to the dark soul,
Through the night.
Till the encircling gloom is pierced,
And there is light.

But within the deep recesses
Of those eyes,
Beyond the sunbeams' realm,
A shadow lies.
To loving ones a sad
Yet sweet surprise.

For sympathy is deepest
Where the pain
Has passed from soul to soul,
And back again;
The comfort like the sunlight
After rain—
As underlies the sweetest song
The saddest strain.

ONLY A PAIR OF FOOLS.

BY P. M'ARTHUR.

May was waiting for her affianced lover to call. As might be expected, she was looking her best, and her best was very good, indeed. She was wearing the dress she knew he liked, and her hair was made up as she knew he loved to see it—in soft folds on the sides and gathered into a loose knot at the back.

Though there was much about her petite figure and bright face that suggested sauciness, it was quite evident there was at least one person in the world for whose sake she was willing to subdue her teasing disposition. Fred was really not late; but as she happened to be ready to greet him before the appointed hour she was just as impatient as if it were long past. As she could not spend all her time looking in the mirror over the mantel to see if her hair was just right and all her ribbons in place, or in admiring her diamond engagement ring, she finally picked up the morning paper and began to read. After scanning the millinery advertisements she searched till she found the "Wit and Wisdom" column. She then curled herself in a capacious easy chair and prepared to pass the time as pleasantly as possible.

Now it sometimes happens that newspaper humorists are exceedingly wise young men who frequently give utterance to marvelous maxims. As May read down the column, laughing at the jokes and from time to time exclaiming against her lover's tardiness, her eye was arrested by a notable bit of wisdom. It read as follows:

"No girl but a fool would marry a man whom she has never seen enraged."

"How absurd," she exclaimed. "What good would it do to see him enraged? It would only make him say disagreeable things."

Then she mused awhile. "Well," she thought, "perhaps it would be better to know before one is married than after what disagreeable things a man can say. I am not going to enrage Fred for any such foolish reason; but, perhaps, it would be good fun to tease him a little. What can I do? I couldn't enrage him very well without flirting, and I am not going to do that. I know! He always says a girl with beautiful hair can make herself look more hideous by doing it up untastefully than in any other way—and he hates to see mine made up in a knot on top of my head. I'll just make it up that way and see how he will act. It will annoy him so that I can tease him just a little and then make up friends. He deserves a little punishment, anyway, for it is almost five minutes past eight o'clock."

She hurried away to her room to make the change just as Fred rang the doorbell. He was admitted by the servant and was surprised not to find May prepared to greet him, but went into the parlor to wait. In his hand he had a box of bon-bons he had brought in payment of a wager he had lost. To make wagers with his fiancee and lose them is the duty and delight of every true lover. While waiting he untied the ribbon of the box, so that she might get at the sweets without delay. But still she did not come.

To pass the time he was at last forced to take up the paper May had left in the easy chair. Finding it folded so as to show the "Wit and Wisdom" column, he began to read the paragraphs. As became a man of the world, he sniffed contemptuously at the old jokes and smiled patronizingly at those that were new to him. Suddenly he came to a dead halt at the companion paragraph to the one that was inspiring May's conduct at that moment. It read:

"No man but a fool would marry a girl whom he had never seen cry."

"What nonsense!" he said, as he passed on to the next paragraph. But he didn't read much before he found himself turning back to that piece of wisdom.

"By Jove!" he thought, "I have never seen May cry. Well, I hope I never shall. I wonder what is keeping her? Probably she is preparing some little surprise for me;" and he smiled to himself with that blissful egotism peculiar to men who are engaged. After awhile he reflected: "I wonder if it would really be very hard to make her cry? I guess not. She is such a dear, tender-hearted little creature it would be cruel to try. Still I could easily explain everything away and then we could make up friends. She really deserves some punishment for keeping me waiting. I believe I'll pretend to be offended and make myself disagreeable to her. I know that will bring the tears to her eyes in an instant and then I'll explain. To begin with, I'll pretend not to have brought the candies." He went out into the hallway to hide the box. The first place that suggested itself was his hat, and he dropped the box into its ample depth. He had no sooner returned to the parlor than May appeared. Each had the same end in view—to offend the other slightly. Of course, neither began the plan of campaign until after the kiss of greeting. Then he noticed that her hair was made up in the way he detested. There was his excuse for being disagreeable and he jumped at it.

"Have you any idea how homely you look when you have your hair made up in that way?" he asked.

The cruel candor of the question made her gasp, for he had always vowed that she looked beautiful in every way.

"Why," she answered, saucily, "there are other people who like it very much in this way."

"Who, for instance?"

"Reggie Burnett."

A detestable fellow, whom Fred would not honor by considering as a rival.

"I am proud to find you value his opinion more than mine," he answered, hotly.

"He, at least, does not neglect to pay when he loses a wager," she responded, looking about for the expected box of candies.

"Then he is just the man for you to make wagers with."

"Thanks for the advice. I shall arrange one with him the next time he calls."

"And you can make up your hair in exactly the way he likes it."

"It is that way now."

"Perhaps you are expecting him tonight," he remarked, suspiciously.

The suspicion hurt her more than his anger and she began to lose her temper too.

"I didn't say I was not!"

"That is why you are so disagreeable to me! You wish to drive me away, so that you can have the evening free to spend it with him."

"How clever of you to guess it all."

They had both forgotten their original purpose by this time and were really angry with each other.

"And this," he said, with all the calmness he could command, "is the girl who has promised to marry me!"

"She hasn't married you yet, and she never will."

"Very well! It is good it is not too late!"

"I am glad it isn't!"

"Indeed! Then, Miss Bond, I shall bid you good night, and leave you to enjoy the company of those whose admiration you prize so highly."

He rushed into the hallway and picked up his hat. As he raised it to his head a shower of assorted candies rattled about him and scattered over the carpet. By distracting his mind from his anger for a moment this little accident brought him to his senses. He felt that he could not leave her so, and returned to the parlor to ask if he might ring for a servant to sweep up the candies.

As he stepped back to the parlor door he saw that May had thrown herself on the sofa and was sobbing violently. With one hand she was taking the pins out of her hair and pulling it down about her shoulders.

It is almost always true of lovers' quarrels that repentance comes swiftly, though reconciliation may be slow. He no sooner saw that she was crying than he remembered he had set to work to make her cry. Everything else—her exasperating conduct and all—was forgotten in an instant. He rushed to her side, and putting his arm about her, pleaded:

"Forgive me, won't you, dear? I had no right to act so disagreeably, and I am very sorry."

She instantly showed him a very tearful face.

"No! No! It is I who should ask for forgiveness. I made up my hair in that horrid way on purpose to anger you. Will you forgive me?"

They forgave in the conventional way. A moment later she laughed through the tears that were still falling, as she reached up and took a cream drop out of his hair.

"Why, how did that get there?"

"O! I brought that box of candies and left it in my hat in the hallway. When I was putting on my hat I spilled the boxful of candies over myself. The floor is covered with them."

"Then you brought them after all?"

"Yes! I hid them out there just to tease you."

"Why?" she asked. Then she remembered that she had done up her hair to provoke him. They both looked instinctively at the paper and then at each other.

"Were you reading those jokes, too?" he asked.

She nodded, shamefacedly.

"And you thought you would not be fool enough to marry me without having seen me enraged?"

"Well, I suppose you feel the better of having seen me cry," she answered, saucily.

At this point there occurred a lack of matter, such as Rosalind says should be supplied with a kiss. Presently she whispered: "Fred, dear, I have thought of another maxim that should be added to the two horrid ones in that paper."

"What is it?"

"Only a pair of fools would ever try to be as wise as a newspaper humorist."—N. Y. Truth.

Land Titles in Indian Territory.

There are now about three hundred thousand white people in the Indian territory. They have built up towns, but are mere tenants at sufferance without a particle of title to the lands on which they built. The Indian courts are closed against them, as are the Indian schools to their children, thirty thousand of whom have no other opportunity for schooling, excepting those whose parents are able to hire private teachers. They have no voice in the governments of these five nations nor a police officer to protect them or their property against violence. It will be the object of the commission, first, to obtain such a solution of the 'own-site question that those who have built up these towns and invested large sums in costly buildings and expensive stores and trading places may have some title to the ground upon which the structures stand and some voice in their government, and secondly, to see that the vast and valuable territory shall be held either according to the original title, for all Indians equally, or shall be allotted in severalty to them, so that each may hold his own share in fee.—Chicago Chronicle.

Burned at the Stake in London.

We can hardly realize the fact that it has only been but little over a hundred years since counterfeiters were publicly burned at the stake in London, the present boasted "center of civilization." On March 18, 1789, Christiania Murphy was executed at Newgate tower, London, for the crime of "coining." She was bound to the stake seated on a stool, the main tie being a cord around the neck. The funeral pyre was then lighted by the executioner and his deputies, one of the latter of whom finally jerked the stool from under the wretched creature, allowing the weight to fall on her neck. Within forty-eight minutes the body was entirely reduced to ashes and buried in a hole on the spot where the execution took place.—St. Louis Republic.

—How often have I seen the most solid merit and knowledge neglected, unwelcome, and soon rejected, while flimsy parts, little knowledge, and little merit, introduced by the graces, have been received, cherished and admired.—Chesterfield.

MINNESOTA NEWS.

It Did Not Occur.

The proposed prize fight between Dannie Needham and Dick Moore did not take place at St. Paul, as advertised. Upon order of Gov. Clough, Needham was arrested and placed under bonds. Following the arrest of Needham by Deputy Sheriff Kinney, the promoters of the fight got together and decided to call off the affair. The men could not fight in public, and as there would be nothing in it for them to fight in private they decided not to fight. But this compact was not made public, and in order to make assurance doubly sure, the state officials went ahead and arrested the captains, pilots and engineers of the boats that were to take the people to the scene of the battle. The men were arrested on the strength of allegations contained in warrants sworn out by D. R. Noyes and W. L. Wilson, charging the men arrested with aiding and abetting prize fighters, and conniving to arrange a prize fight.

The men arrested were Capt. John C. Smith, captain of the Gracie A. Mower; Capt. P. F. Ritchie, captain and owner of the excursion steamer Daisy; George Tilbury, engineer, and Ariah J. Bosley, pilot of the steamer Daisy. They were arrested on their respective boats. On being taken to the county jail they were confined in the boys' ward, where they were kept behind bars all day, despite the attempt of friends to have them allowed the freedom of the corridor, or to release them from jail. Three of the four arrested are wealthy pioneer residents of St. Paul. Capt. Smith is 55 years old, and is said to be worth in the neighborhood of $50,000. Capt. Ritchie is 65 years old, and he is the possessor of a fortune valued at more than $100,000.

Valuable Land.

Among the pieces of land in Morrison county appraised by the state for sale this fall was a tract of 40 acres, upon which a valuation of $280 per acre was placed. The tract comprices 40 acres and was appraised at $8,000. It being unusual to appraise state lands so high a figure, the officials in the state auditor's office investigated the matter and found that the land belonged to the Morrison County Roller Mills Company. On the property there are six houses and a flour mill, with a capacity of 150 barrels of flour per day, being operated by both steam and water power. The company had allowed the interest on it to remain unpaid until the land sale became delinquent, and the land again reverts to the state.

Game Seized.

The St. Paul game wardens made a seizure of three large trunks full of game coming from North Dakota and bound for Iowa. There is a law in North Dakota, as in Minnesota, forbidding the shipping the shipment of game out of the state, and by agreement with North Dakota officials the wardens in Minnesota are to seize all game coming into this state from North Dakota, the compliment to be returned by the North Dakota people in case of game being sent from Minnesota. There were 118 pieces of game in the trunks, including everything in the bird line from Canada geese down to snipe and teal duck.

HOME HINTS AND HELPS.

—Peach Sauce: Pare, stone and quarter your peaches, to one quart of cut peaches add one and one-half cupfuls of sugar. Let stand about three hours before serving.—Home.

—Pickled Oysters: Put the oysters in a saucepan with their own liquor, and allow to simmer gently for ten minutes; then lay in a jar. When cold pour over them the following pickle: boil the liquor of the oysters with a bit of mace, lemon peel, black pepper and vinegar. Keep in small jar well covered.—Harper's Bazar.

—Sultana Scones: Rub two ounces of butter into one pound of flour, adding two teaspoonfuls of baking powder and a little salt. Mix into a nice light dough with sour milk, working in at the same time a handful of sultanas. Roll out about an inch thick, cut into three-cornered shapes, and bake until slightly browned in a good, steady oven.—Leeds Mercury.

—Apple Custard Pie: Peel, core and stew apples in a very little water until tender, put them through a colander, and for one pie take three eggs, one-third cup of butter, one-third cup of sugar, and flavor with nutmeg and lemon; use one cup of the apple pulp to each pie, and only the yolks of the eggs, making a meringue with the whites for the top.—Prairie Farmer.

—Bacon and Liver Stew: Pour boiling water over a beef or calf liver, let stand one-half hour, then cut the liver with deep gashes, insert thin slices of bacon in these cuts and fasten in with toothpicks. Have three or four slices of bacon in the pot over a hot fire frying with an onion cut fine; when fried to a crisp put the liver in, cover tightly; let cook about ten minutes, turning often, then dredge well with flour, pour boiling water over till the liver is covered, put on the top of the stove, where it will cook slowly. Cook three hours; a nice brown gravy will be done with the liver.—Womankind.

—Chili Sauce: Remove the skins from a peck of ripe tomatoes, and peel eight onions. Chop the whole fine, and put over the fire in their juice in a porcelain kettle to cook for half an hour. Then strain through a sieve and add a pint of vinegar, a tablespoonful each of ground cinnamon, allspice and black pepper, and a teaspoonful of cloves. Let the mixture cook about four hours, until quite thick, stirring it frequently. As it is taken from the fire add a tablespoonful of ground mustard, a teaspoonful of cayenne pepper, two teaspoonfuls of ground ginger and two tablespoonfuls or more of salt, according to the taste. Use perfectly clean, sound bottles, cork tightly, and seal.—Western Rural.

HATS OF MULL.

Beauty and Comfort Are Combined in Hats for the Little Ones.

The little maid of to-day listens in wonderment to tales of grandma's childhood, and in her innocent way dreams of the children who roamed about with sunbonnets on their heads. She thinks they must certainly have been very queer.

But my little lady does not understand that she herself is wearing a sunbonnet. True, it is not like those of yore. It has a new quality, that which the mother of the little maid strives to develop in her daughter.

It is emancipated. No longer is it made of hot gingham, which jars one's nerves every time it touches the ears; neither is it coarse and ugly.

It is made of finest mull, in dainty colors and trimmed with lace or Irish point embroidery. The sunbonnet is so light and cool that the little maid does not mind having it on her head in the least.

The crown of the bonnet is made very full and a cape of embroidery hangs about the neck. A wide ruche, also of embroidery, encircles the face.

The little maid does not always wear sunbonnets, however. There is another style of head covering for her and she wears it quite as often as the bonnet.

Again it is of mull, but this time over a stiff wire frame. The wires which form the brim are shirred inside the mull. So sometimes no mull is used for the brim, but instead handsome embroiderery which is stiffly starched. The embroidery is plaited, and falling in waves, makes a pretty framework for the baby face.

A bow of ribbon or mull of the same color as the hat, catches back the brim in the center of the front.—Chicago News.

BROILED MUSHROOMS.

A Seasonable Dish Which Is Sure to Tempt the Epicure.

Fresh mushrooms are flooding the market, and the epicure is tempting his palate by ordering them prepared in every conceivable style. The housewife may follow the sage advice of him who said "the way to a man's heart is through his stomach," and gain a point by serving the man of the house with a savory dish of broiled mushrooms. The recipe is here given. Too much care can not be taken in selecting this vegetable, as the false ones so nearly resemble the edible ones. The most delicious mushrooms are gathered in the broad fields, where they have grown to perfection in the open sunshine. Mushrooms should be gathered soon after sunrise. Select some that have been spread open wide; these are better for broiling than the "button mushroom," which serve for other ways of cooking.

Choose the largest mushrooms to be had. Peel and cut the stalks one-half inch from the tops. Baste well with melted butter and sprinkle lightly with pepper and salt. Heat the broiler very hot, lay the mushrooms upon it with the uppar side down; close it carefully, that the mushrooms may not be broken and broil over a clear fire, turning the broiler first on one side and then on the other. As soon as tender, which will be in about five minutes, open the broiler, remove the mushrooms with care and place on well-buttered slices of thin toast which have been previously prepared, or else on bread which has been fried in butter. Pour over the whole a sauce made of drawn butter and hot water thickened to the consistency of cream.—St. Louis Republic.

—Youth is not the age of pleasure; we then expect too much, and we are, therefore, exposed to daily disappointments and mortifications. When we are a little older and have brought down our wishes to our experience, then we become calm and begin to enjoy ourselves.—Lord Liverpool.

LIFE'S LESSON.

With what madness, untold sadness,
Spin we the tangled threads of life;
With what worry, undue hurry,
And such eagerness for strife,
Do we go reeling, devoid of feeling,
Save for self, and self alone,
Through all the day, in life's pathway,
A noble hope unknown.

Tread we fearless, blind and tearless,
On many an aching heart;
While it lies bleeding we, unheeding,
Race on as swift as at the start;
Knowing never, if, or ever,
The thing we seek to clasp
Shall finally, in security,
Rest in our eager grasp.

And then, at last, when life is past,
And we hear the breakers roar
On the great sea of eternity,
As they dash upon its shore—
Too late we learn our chief concern
Were something else save trying
To pluck the flower, born of the hour,
That fades while we are dying.
—Chicago Inter Ocean.

Scarlet Fever Settled in the Back.

An Operation Was Unsuccessfully Performed.

The Patient Was Finally Restored, After Eighteen Years.

From the Evening News, Newark, N. J.

About eighteen years ago, when Mrs. Annie Dale, of 88 Bruce street, was a bright, merry school girl, she was taken ill with scarlet fever. She recovered, but she was a very different girl from a physical standpoint. She was cured of the scarlet fever, but it left her with an affection of the back. As she grew older the pain seemed to increase. Her sufferings were intensified by her household duties, but she never complained, and with one hand pressed tightly to her back she did her work about her cozy home.

"I was fourteen years old when I was attacked with scarlet fever, and have now suffered with my back for eighteen years.

"Night and day I suffered. It really seemed as if I must succumb to the pain, and then, to make matters worse, my head ached so badly that I could scarcely see, at times. Finally I went to St. Michael's Hospital, at the corner of High Street and Central Avenue, and there the surgeons performed a difficult operation on my back, but it did no good; it was like everything else. I was told at the hospital to return for another operation, but the first had left me so weak I could not go back. Then again I had become discouraged and my three children needed my attention and care at home. The pain became harder to stand and my back was almost broken, it seemed. I thought I would never know what it would be like to be well again when I was told to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. With many doubts, a faint heart and an aching back I went to get the pills, and little dreaming that they would prove the elixir of a new life to me, I began to take them. Only a short time elapsed before I began to improve. Could it be possible that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills were doing what everything else had failed to accomplish? I asked myself the question many times and before long I was enabled by my improved condition to answer the query with an emphatic 'Yes.' Now the pain of almost twenty years is cured by these Pink Pills in a few months I have no pain of any kind now, but I have got some of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, and while I do not think it will ever be necessary to use them again. I shall certainly never be without them in the house."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills contain, in a condensed form, all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves. They are also a specific for troubles peculiar to females, such as suppressions, irregularities and all forms of weakness. They build up the blood, and restore the glow of health to pale and sallow cheeks. In men they effect a radical cure in all cases arising from mental worry, overwork or excesses of whatever nature. Pink Pills are sold in boxes (never in loose bulk) at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50, and may be had of all druggists, or direct by mail from Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

SYSTEM IN HOUSEWORK.

The Difficulty of Running a House by Rule and Square.

While there is nothing in the world so wearisome as iron-clad regulations and inflexible rules in the household it must be admitted that a reasonable amount of system lightens labor, reduces the friction of the domestic machinery to a minimum and makes it possible to accomplish a great deal more work in the same time than can be compassed when everything goes in a slip-shod, helter-skelter fashion.

To attempt to run a house by rule and square is a task too hard for the average woman. She who tries it finds the attrition altogether too much for her in the long run. It wears out her temper, saps her vitality, and destroys the peace and harmony of the establishment. Meals at the tap of the drum are important, provided one can get all of the members of the family to make their appearance on time, but in most families there are indolent or semi-invalid persons who never conform to regulations and who are always behindhand. If this is the case it is just as well to take things easy as to be forever buffeted with such delaying conditions.

There is nothing more important than to teach children to be prompt at meals, but it is not, as a rule, the children of the family who make the trouble. It is the adult, the aged and semi-invalid and the careless and indifferent who disarrange all of the housekeeper's plans.

Without trying in any way to disparage method and its advantages, it is not difficult to see that the faculty of adaptation and the ability to meet emergencies are quite as useful to the housewife as the gift for the strictest and most rigid system. Housekeeping is an occupation that is made up of short corners and quick turns. The unexpected is always happening and the woman who is able to grasp a situation and turn an unfortunate accident into a tolerable alternative or an advantageous incident, is the one who comes out best in the long run.—N. Y. Ledger.

WOULD STAND NO GUYING.

He Wasn't Stall-Fed, But He Was Right on His Muscle.

They came on a train from the north the other day and headed up Jefferson avenue holding each other by the hand. They had left the depot only two blocks behind when they came to a man sitting on a box in front of a store, and as he caught sight of them a grin crept over his face like molasses spreading out on a shingle.

"Grinning at us, I 'spose," queried the young man as he came to a halt.

"Yes," frankly replied the sitter.

"Tickles you most to death to see us take hold of hands, don't it?"

"It does."

"And you imagine you can see us feeding each other caramels, can't you?"

"I can."

"And you shake all over at the way we gawp around and keep our mouths open?"

"That's me."

"Well, this is me! I'm not purty, and I haven't been cultivated between the rows, nor hilled up nor fertilized. I hain't what you call stall-fed, and the girl ain't no prize chromo, but it won't take over a minit to jam you seven feet into the ground! I told Lucy I was going to begin on the first man who looked cross-eyed at us, and you are the chap. Prepare yourself to be pulverized!"

"Beg pardon, but I didn't mean ——!"

"Yes, you did! Lucy, hold my hat while I mop the walk with him!"

"Say—hold on—say——!"

He took up the middle of the street like a runaway horse, and the young man took after him, but it was no use. After a race of a block the man who grinned gained so fast that the other stopped short and went back to his girl and his hat. Stretching forth his hand to the innocent maiden he remarked:

"Lucy, clasp on to that, and if you let go for the next two hours, I'll never call you by the sacred name of wife."—Detroit Free Press.

Professor A.—Do you know, I find it difficult to remember the ages of my children!

Professor B.—I have no such trouble, I was born two thousand three hundred years after Socrates; my wife one thousand nine hundred years after the death of Tiberius Cæsar; our son John two thousand years after the entrance into Rome of Titus Simphronius Gracchus for the re-enactment of the "leges Liciniae," and our Amanda one thousand five hundred years after the beginning of the Folk wandering—that is perfectly simple, you see.—Fliegende Blaetter.

—In the government of Kasan, in Russia, no fewer than 11,034 converted heathen, 5,690 of them women, relapsed from the orthodox faith into their original idolatry last year. During the same period in the same district, 12,188 Tartars, including 5,767 women, gave up the Greek church for Mohammedanism, and the religious authorities believe that the greater part of the converted orthodox Christians are at heart either Mohammedans or heathens.

A Big Regular Army.

The mightiest host of this sort is the army of invalids whose bowels, livers and stomachs have been regulated by Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. A regular habit of body is brought about through using the Bitters, not by violently agitating and griping the intestines, but by reinforcing their energy and causing a flow of the bile into its proper channel. Malaria, la grippe, dyspepsia, and a tendency to inactivity of the kidneys, are conquered by the Bitters.

Sarsaparilla Sense.

Any sarsaparilla is sarsaparilla. True. So any tea is tea. So any flour is flour. But grades differ. You want the best. It's so with sarsaparilla. There are grades. You want the best. If you understood sarsaparilla as well as you do tea and flour it would be easy to determine. But you don't. How should you?

When you are going to buy a commodity whose value you don't know, you pick out an old established house to trade with, and trust their experience and reputation. Do so when buying sarsaparilla.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla has been on the market fifty years. Your grandfather used Ayer's. It is a reputable medicine. There are many sarsaparillas. But only one Ayer's. IT CURES.

—Several carloads of Maple wood have been shipped from this point to the cities this week.

—If you want to know about the South address M. V. Richards Land Immigration Agent, Southern Railway Washington, D. C.

—Several cases of typhoid fever have made their appearance in this vicinity this fall. Mrs. Austin Cooper and Victor Jacobs are, at present, down with it.

—The Christian Endeavor Society met in the M. E. church Sunday evening and after an interesting session made part of a splendid audience to welcome Rev. J. L. Farber, the new M. E. pastor who preached an excellent sermon.

—On Sunday morning the bell in the new Presbyterian church at this place rang out calling people to church where they listened to Rev. Tabor Davies, in the first sermon in the new church. This is the first protestant bell to make its home in Delano.

—Joseph Cramer laid some new sidewalk in front of his property on River street including the butcher shop. Quite a number pieces of money, jewelry and other valuables were found when the old walk was removed. The finder kept his find and quite a lively time was had for a few minutes.

—Many farmers are allowing their corn to stand in the shock without husking until the wind does not blow so hard or until some kind of moisture comes. While it is so dry, and so windy it is claimed that the best half of the fodder blows away while handling it in husking, and all fodder is being saved that can.

—We predict a mild winter, with hay cheaper in the spring than it is now. When everybody is saying at this time of year, as they are now, it is almost shure to turn out so. On the other hand we predict that potatoes will be worth more in the spring as everybody seems to have plenty and to spare now, and many are being neglected in the ground or left to be frosted in the field or other temporary place.

—Delano needs evening schools. There are quite a number of young men and some young ladies, who spend their winters here, and who have no place to enjoy the long evenings to their profit; and the village is lamentably destitute of anything tending to uplift such people. There should be a school where the rudiments of English and a general education could be had. A writing school, a singing school, a lecture each week on some interesting subject. Those of our citizens interested in the advancement of such things should organize and take steps to have them.

—The large amount of cornfodder in the country this year will serve to piece out feed for cattle and horses as hay was a light crop.

—A Watertown team gave an exhibition of its speed on R. R. avenue, and down the alley next to Roosen's Opera House, one day this week. The wagon was broken some, but the front wheels, the box and driver John Steege, staid with the team until they came to a halt at Bridge Street.

—The watering fountains have, already been shut down for the winter, and people coming to town will have to find drinks for their horses elsewhere. A sensible council would have the old town well cleaned and a trough arranged and the old town pump, the broken pieces of which have been repaired and are now in the hands of the street commissioner, put together and furnish a watering place for the winter. But the Dictator don't desire it; and, at present he seems to be getting things to his liking. The tolerance of people is surprising when they will let an individual, for his own spiteful ends, fill up a well so useful as has been the one under consideration and have no place in town where teams can be watered.

LATER.—Since the above was in type we learn that the council has ordered the Street Commissioner to fix up the old town pump. It looks like the man who threw stones over the fence and then threw them back again; as it has been but a few days since he, in compliace with orders took off all the bolts and got it ready to pull up; being unable to get a man to help it still stood, and on Wednesday he was around again, with more orders to put them back, and fix up the pump!

—On Tuesday the Commission appointed by the Governor to locate the Fourth Hospital for Insane, with the exception of Dr. S. G. Smith, of St. Paul, visited Delano and looked over our offer for a site. The weather was quite cool and a short job was made of it. The Commission consists of a man from each Congressional district as follows:

Fisrt Dist. C. E. Bondy, Eyota.
Second Dist. J. H. Block, St. Peter.
Third Dist. A. J. Carlson, East Union.
Fourth Dist. Dr. S. G Smith, St. Paul.
Fifth Dist. O. C. Merriman, Minneapolis.
Sixth Dist. Alvah Eastman, St. Cloud.
Seventh District. Henry Hoper, Stephen.

The Commission was accompanied here by Senator W. E. Culkin, of Buffalo, and Architect E. O. McGlauflin, of Anoka.

They went to inspect Stacy, Itasca and Anoka, when the sites will all have been visited. We understand the board will then look over the grounds of several Hospitals and acquaint themselves more thoroughly with the requisites of a first class site, after which they will choose the best site. Delano seems to us to possess as many good points and fewer bad ones than any other place offered.

Personals.

Dr. E. E. Shrader, of Watertown, was in yesterday.

Joseph VanEman, of Buffalo transacted business here this week.

William Hittsman returned this morning from his trip to Dakota.

T. S Kerr and family drove to Minneapolis and are visiting relatives this week.

C. C. Hohl, of Rockford, drove over Wednesday to consult a veterinary surgeon.

Miss Sadie VanEman, of Watertown, called on Delano friends one day this week.

Thomas Prestidge and son, of Rockford, were business visitors to Delano Thursday.

Rev. M. Cawley and Ex-County Superintendent Muffly were stage passengers for Watertown this morning.

Mrs. C. G. Halgren left last evening, via the G. N. for Owatona to visit her daughter, Lottie a studeut at the Pillsbury Academy.

Miss Nellie Jacobs, of Rockford who has been teaching in the Devil's Lake country is reported quite sick with Typhoid Fever.

Capt. O. C. Merriman claims to be the only Democrat on the Commission to locate the Fourth Hospital for Insane. He's a good one.

John McGary was up Wednesday. He must be working hard now-a-days, or 16 to 1 is getting the upper hand of him; he appears to be growing thin.

Earl Hoisington, of Independence, was a caller Tuesday. He says he has had a wonderful vision, lately, and threatens to write it up for publication.

Alvah Eastman, editor of the St. Cloud Journal is said to have Congressional cravings. He didn't call in and tell us when he was here, looking up the Hospital site.

Mrs. A. A. Clark has started out to visit relatives in different parts of the state; after which she will travel southward; she expects to spend the winter in Florida.

Dr. S. G. Smith did not accompany the Commission on location of the Hospital for Insane to Delano. We hope he will come and see our site before the voting is to be done.

J. W. Mounts, Rockford's Democratic warhorse was over Wednesday. He is not favorably impressed with the prospect of being obliged to go a few blocks further for his mail

Julius Block of St. Peter, is the biggest man on the hospital commission. He runs the Block House to perfection; and his friends think he would make a good State Treasurer.

Sheriff Carpenter was over Wednesday giving special invitations to some of our citizens to be present at the next term of District Court. He also, looked after some other business.

Jenner Chance, who is at tending lectures at the College of Physicians and Surgeons, Minneapolis, was home on a short visit Sunday. He says studying medicine is hard work; but he enjoys it.

It is noticed that the republicans who tried so hard to nominate Grant for a third term are now foaming at the mouth at the possibility of a third term for President Cleveland.—St. Cloud Times.

If Gov. Clough continues to abuse the pardoning power invested in his position he will outrival the anarchist governor of Illinois, as the firm friend of the criminal class. One of his latest freaks being to interfere with the justice court at Elysian, pardoning a prisoner without even investigating the facts relative to his conviction. It was done just to oblique a friend of political influence.—Mapleton Enterprise.

It is said by some of the newspapers that much of our present wheat crop is being held for higher prices. We are under the impression that the amount of unsold wheat is considerably overestimated as much of it is already contracted or sold to elevator men who in turn have sold futures elsewhere. When the actual amount materializes we think some of the big speculators will be highly disappointed with the result. There is scarcely a doubt that the actual amount will fall far below what has been anticipated.—Annandale Post.

Print Your Name.

The following is suggested by the Granite Falls Journal:

"It is surprising that farmers, while painting their barns do not put their names thereon. It is a matter of much convenience and satisfaction to those who pass by. Whether a coat of paint is put on or not or whether it has ever had one, let the name go up anyway. It is a matter of pure business convenience. It is due to the public, even were there no personal gain in it. Once done, the farming community would no more have it undone than they would have the business signs in town taken down."—Wabasha Democrat.

Fourth Hospital for Insane.

It has been found necessary to build the Fourth Hospital for Insane, in order to make room for the increasing number of these poor unfortunates, and to relieve the overcrowded institutions used as their homes. The commission, one member from each Congressional district was appointed by the Governor and this week will have concluded a tour of inspection of sites offered. The Commission seems to be a fair one to be made up of practical, sensible men; who will weigh well the subject before jumping at conclusions, and will finally locate the Hospital on the very best place for a permanent home that can be selected.

Delano's site has the requesite number of acres 640; is offered for the price appropriated by the State with which to purchase a site $15,000. The land is high, rolling, well drained, having a river frontage. Water is good, and is easily had by digging. There is plenty of timber, meadow and plowland. No finer site for building can be found than this. A good brickyard is near by. Bowlders for foundations can be had in abundance.

The site is favorably located, lying between the Great Northern, (Breckinridge Division), and the Soo Line, which at this point are only four miles apart; each road passes through a well populated part of the State and neither has an institution of the kind on its route. Delano is but 28 miles from Minneapolis, and the cities will doubtless furnish most of the patients at this Hospital, this is a convenient distance; being beyond the turmoil of the cities while being almost as accessible as if on a street car line. The G. N. passes just south and the Soo, north of the site, neither being so near as to disturb the patients. Thus the Hospital can have all the advantages and none of the inconveniences arising from the close proximity to two railroads.

The Delano site is capable of being transformed into one of the finest homes in the state, and whether the Fourth Hospital for the Insane is to be built on the old plan, of one large building, on the cottage plan, or a mixture of the two, no better location can be found.

We hope the Commission will not make a choice of a place for so large a number of people to spend their lives as will occupy this Hospital from time to time year after year, without first weighing carefully all of Delano's advantages.

ALFRED AUSTIN has been made Poet Laureatr of England.

THE St. Peter Herald says: "It is a fact that Tom McDermott is a candidate for governor." He'd make a good governor.

FROM the St. Cloud Times we learn that an epidemic of Diphtheria and several cases of Scarlet Fever are keeping the Health Officer busy.

YESTERDAY morning at about 5 o'clock the hardest earthquake felt for years shook the central part of the United States. Charleston, Nashville, St. Louis, Chicago and Iowa, Wisconsin and other places felt more or less of the shocks.

I. DONNELLY wants to fight a duel because someone addressed a letter to him as the editor of the Pioneer Press. A great mistake. And yet in the same number of the Representative he calls the St. Peter Journal a Republican paper. Want Horace Greeley Perry make him wish he hadn't?

ANOTHER negro has been publicly burned by a large mob in Texas, for assaulting and murdering a white woman. The murdered woman's husband set fire to the pile of fuel which served to burn the criminal. He was about 50 minutes in torment before death came to his release. Such things are terrible to contemplate.

SOME of our Republican newspapers are trying to make out that Governor Clough, Alva Eastman and others have got a fixed commission to locate the asylum at Anoka. It must be this is political buncome. Surely no seven men in Minnesota would undertake to locate such an institution on any but the very best location obtainable for the amount appropriated.

THE Democrats are much more unanimous in their choice of a candidate for Chief Executive of the State than are the Republicans. While the latter are all split up into the Clough Crowd, the Gibbs Growlers, the Van Sant Visionists, the Evans Evanescents and the Hoorahers for William Henry, the Democrats mention but one candidate, T. J. McDermott, of St. Paul.

THE State Capitol Commission have awarded the building to Cass Gilbert, of St. Paul, whose plan they have accepted.

Second Prize, $1,000 to George R. Mann, of St. Louis.

Third Prize $800. to Traphagen & Fitzpatrick, Duluth.

Fourth Prize $700. Clarance H. Johnson, St. Paul.

Fifth Prize $500. Harry W. Jones, Minneapolis.

THE report has been circulated through the newspapers that England is willing to form an alliance with the United States to aid in enforcing the Monroe Doctrine; she to have equal rights with our government in enforcing it. We believe with Thomas Jefferson that our government should have "entangling alliances with none." If when the United States has but herself to please, she has trouble how much better would it be if she had a partner to satify?

THERE are rumors of war in every direction. The British lion roars, the Russian Bear growls, the French Eagle screems. The Austrian, the German, the Italian stands guard over his respective country. Norway and Sweden are as near to each other, on the map, as ever. The Irish are for autonomy; Japan is still across the Pacific; Hawaii in the ocean; Chinese continue to come; South America is in her old place; The Monroe Doctrine is all right; And Uncle Sam still survives.

JUSTICE in Judge Lynch's court is meeted out in a summary manner; not so in other courts. Men who have been charged with the most henious crimes have been fooled along with for months; on one pretext or another their trials have been postponed from time to time or their sentences delayed or commuted, or have escaped punishment altogether, by fight or otherwise. If we are to have a free country we must have laws and they must be enforced, or examples of lynch law will grow more common instead of less so Public opinion makes laws for the public safety and the same public opinion demands the enforcement of the laws.

SEVERAL of our exchanges don't seem to have been able to read our map of the location for the new asylum. That was before the Commission had been here. Perhaps it will appear clearer soon.

EDITORIAL EXCURSION.

Chicago a Great City.

As the three sleepers Gemini, Rheu and Ramalch pulled out of St. Paul, at 7:30 P. M, Saturday evening, Sept. 28, over the Maple Leaf Route, Great Western R'y. loaded with editors and their wives; two to a bunk, everybody was anxious to be off for the Sunny South. A jolly crowd was that. Each Editor used to feeling as big as anybody; and his wife ditto, made a grand party. After riding all night, some of the bunks threatening to land their occupants on the floor, the excursionists, well shaken, were ready for breakfast when the dining car conductor announced it ready; some waited until the Windy City was reached, at 9:45 on a beautiful Sunday morning Once in that hub of the country the Minnesota Editors were soon lost in the crowd. Every man for himself, seemed to be the order of the day; and, in a few minutes after disembarking from the cars it was a hard matter to find any of the big feeling crowd. So insignificant did the editors appear in Chicago that such old veterans, grown gray in dispensing news and their ideas gawked along up the streets, seeing what they could see, attracting no more attention than did the youngest or the most countryfied of the flock, in fact not so much. Occasionally two or more of the Association would site a badge, which only the skilled or the initiated could decipher and the greeting "Hello, Minnesota!" would pass between them. Soon after 5 P. M. the weary wonderers began to assemble at Dearborn St. station, which they left, in the same sleepers used before, over the Eastern Illinois and Louisville and Nashville roads to Nashville, Tenn., where they arrived at 7:30 Monday morning.

Chicago is by all odds, the biggest place we visited on our journey. Although the crowd dissembled into such small particles and was so thoroughly mixed up with Chicagoans all day and again the following Saturday, on the return trip, it did not see all the beauties nor all the ugliness of that great place. Some, on Sunday, attended church; others visited different places of interest and amusement; many found their way, on the electric cars, through the tunnel under the river, to Lincoln Park, one of Chicago's greatest prides. The statues of Abraham Lincoln, of Ulysses S. Grant and of others are fine, The wonderful tropical garden, with its large variety of plants which most of us had only read about, never seen. The splendid menagirie containing a good assortment of animals from the elephant, number of fine bear, tiger on down to the playful prairie dogs, all are worth seeing. The park beautiful by nature has been made still more attractive by the hand of man. The view of Lake Michigan and her vessels was a site many improved the opportunity to see. The pumping stations, supplying the city with water, are wonderful to behold; the central station is said to pump 32,000,000 gallons, daily; and this is but one of several sources of supply. The type foundries were especial objects of interest, and many of the editors saw, for the first time the methods employed in making type; in casting the letters used by them in spreading the news throughout the country. Some new machinery has recently been invented greatly simplifying the business. Cook County Hospital was found to be a magnificent structure, with nicely kept grounds. Rush College, near by, named for the patriot Benjamin Rush, the alma mater of so many eminent medical men; other institutions of learning; and various public buildings and enterprises served to impress the Minnesota Editors with the importance of Chicago.

There appears to be little regard paid to Sunday unless it be to make of it a gala day. Parades of different societies, headed by bands of music, and carrying banners were to be seen, here and there. The Italions had a grand procession, men marching, on foot the ladies following, in carriages. Saloons and other resorts and places of amusement seemed to be gathering a harvest. It seemed as if more respect to keeping the Sabbath day holy might, with a great deal of propriety, be paid.

No where on the whole excursion did our party feel its littleness, like they did in Chicago; not even the Mayor or an Alderman showed up; the people acted as if they had no time for an editor in general, and a Minnesota editor in particular; it must be they don't read the papers, and didn't know we were coming; or perhaps they thought from our badges, we were from some foreign country, and feared to undertake to find out. At all events on several sidewalks about twenty feet wide, on both sides of the streets, far as we could see were people, and cars, three in a train, rushing up and down the streets contained hundreds more; the inhabitants of those collossal structures towering skywards and their country cousins, and aunts and uncles all appeared to be there, and going some place, some of them in a terrible hurry, others were trying to see everything and everybody along the road, but, sad thought, none seemed to be aware that three full car loads of Minnesota editors were in the city. Now if Chicago wants to have a real warm place in the hearts of the Gopher mind moulders, she mush't make them feel their insignificance too much. It does even a Minnesota editor good to get away from home once in awhile it only to learn how little and insignificant a mortal he is. Verily Chicago is a great city.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct 25, 1895.

President Cleveland found on his return from Atlanta that although the season for the propagation of Cabinet resignations was a little late in opening it had been working overtime to catch up. He learned for the first time that a disagreement existed between himself and Secretary Olney of such a serious nature that the latter was going to retire from the cabinet, and that it was on account of that disagreement that Mr. Olney did not accompany him to Atlanta. This might have been very distressing to him, if he had not known that it was because he would have to go to Atlanta a little later on with the foreign representatives to take part in the exercises of Diplomatic Day at the exposition, and the pressing nature of some private business in Boston, that prevented Secretary Olney going with him.

The President presided over a Cabinet meeting today, but there was nothing said or done which implied in the slightest degree any disagreement over the position of this government in dealing with the dispute between England and Venezuela. From the first the President and every member of the cabinet have held the same opinion on this matter, and they still do. While not pretending to speak for the President or the members of his cabinet, it can be said that many prominent democrats believe the current stories about disagreements and intended resignations are circulated for the purpose of trying to goad the administration into declaring what it will do in case England should resort to force to carry its point in Venezuela, and that some of the circulators have benefitted at the expense of the English secret fund. Be that as it may, the administration has no idea of showing its hand to England at this stage of the game. Its position has been fully determined upon and will be announced when necessary, and when announced it will be approved by a great majority of our people, if not by all of the President's political opponents.

A very small thing is needed in Washington to start a very big sensation. One of those small things was the order for continuous work on the guns which are being made in the government gun shop, for the new battleship Oregon, now lying at the Mare Island navy yard waiting the completion of her armament. This order was made the foundation for a string of the most outrageous stories as to the administration's hurried preparations for the inevitable war with England and similar rot. The truth was easily obtainable, if it had been wanted. The order for continuous work was issued by the Navy department for no other purpose than to have the guns ready at the stipulated time in order to prevent the throwing of any blame for delay on the department by the contractor By working three eight-hour shifts three days work are accomplished on the guns every 24 hours. How very war like these preparations are may be seen from the size of the working shifts—one foreman, four machinists, one engineer, one fireman, and two laborers to each.

It is, of course, known that President Cleveland is and will be a very busy man until his message to Congress is completed, but there is one thing that all the democrats hereabouts would like him to take time enough to do. That is to dismiss the negro, Taylor, who is Recorder of Deeds for the District of Columbia. Taylor claims to have been a democrat before he came to Washington, but his rascalities have been much more marked than his democracy since he secured one of the best local positions in Washington, and this week he attended a negro republican mass meeting and made a speech in favor of a negro republican being elected as one of the delegates to the National republican convention. Since then every democrat one meets expresses the wish that President Cleveland would kick Taylor out of the office to which he appointed him.

Secretary Carlisle proposes to set a good example by going all the way to Covington, Ky., to register in order that he may be able to cast his vote for the straight democratic ticket in that state.

The stoppage of the coinage of silver has no bearing whatever upon the silver question. The only silver that has been coined for sometime has been worn and mutilated silver. The appropriation for that purpose for the current fiscal year having been exhausted Secretary Carlisle directed that the mint at New Orleans be closed and the employes furloughed until such time as coinage may be resumed. It is probable that the question of the coinage of the 137,614,000 ounces of silver bullion which the government now has on hand, remaining from the purchases made under the Sherman law, will be referred to Congress. Should Congress order this silver to be coined the government would make a profit of almost $54,000,000 on it, that being about the difference between its cost and the amount of silver dollars it could be coined into. Ineffectual attempts were made to get the last Congress to authorize this coinage.

CORRESPONDENCE

INDEPENDENCE INCIDENTS.

Have not replenished my stock of news much since last week and there is not very much to write about.

Weather has been fine for outdoor work and everybody is busy getting ready for winter. The little skift of snow that came the other day reminded us of sleigh bells, toboggan slides and snow drifts. Surely winter will be with us in a short time; in this country it never misses a fellow.

DIED.—In South Greenwood, on Sunday morning, 27th inst., of lingering illness, E. K. Smith, aged 61 years. Funeral sermon at Rockford A. C. church following Tuesday afternoon, conducted by Rev. Burrell, of Minneapolis, assisted by Rev. J. N. Potter, of Independence. He was buried in Elmwood cemetry, at Rockford. Mr. Smith was a patient sufferer, having been sick for nearly two years and confined to his bed most of the time. He leaves a wife and other friends to mourn his loss.

Quite a number seem to be on the sick list just now. Mrs. Jacob Beal and Mrs. Sophia Pagenkopf are among those on the sick list.

There is quite a number of marriageable old men at Maple Plain just now, all claiming to be in a good healthy condition and compos mentis; and the gods of humanity would confer a great blessing upon them by sending them a helpmote. Marriage is honorable among all men; among the Gentiles as well as among the Jews.

Cordwood and hogs are being shipped from Maple Plain and Armstrong in large quantities of late.

The sporting gentlemen and Nimrods of the country have been making a good deal of noise of late, but we hardly think the game worth the ammunition.

The poor have not yet received a regenesis in way of good times, etc.; but large bodies move slowly; especially during a low stage of water. The chief captains and mighty men are disputing over actual causes and right of discovery while the canker worm is eating the vitals out of the nation.

The popgun aristocracy are looking too high. They forget that God says we are all made of one flesh; then what advantage hath the Jew over the Gentiles. But we read in Holy Writ that people and nations are heaping together treasures for the last days. It is not costly apparel nor outward adornment that makes the man, but principles that tend towards righteousness. No certain political party nor any one sectarian denomination has any God given right to userp authority over individuals, people or nations; for according to divers authority we are all free born. But from a Biblical standpoint I am surprised at the condition of things as they exist in this country, and also in all Europe; for our history has been written prophetically centuries ago, and we will have to submit to the powers that be.

J. H. MCGARY.

FROM the St. Cloud Times we learn that an epidemic of Diphtheria and several cases of Scarlet Fever are keeping the Health Officer busy.

YESTERDAY morning at about 5 oclock the hardest earthquake felt for years shook the central part of the United States. Charleston, Nashville, St Louis, Chicago and Iowa, Wisconsin and other places felt more or less of the shocks.

I. DONNELLY wants to fight a duel because someone addressed a letter to him as the editor of the Pioneer Press. A great mistake. And yet in the same number of the Representative he calls the St. Peter Journal a Republican paper. Want Horace Greeley Perry make him wish he hadn't?

ANOTHER negro has been publicly burned by a large mob in Texas, for assaulting and murdering a white woman. The murdered woman's husband set fire to the pile of fuel which served to burn the criminal. He was about 50 minutes in torment before death came to his release. Such things are terrible to contemplate.

SOME of our Republican newspapers are trying to make out that Governor Clough, Alva Eastman and others have got a fixed commission to locate the asylum at Anoka. It must be this is political buncome. Surely no seven men in Minnesota would undertake to locate such an institution on any but the very best location obtainable for the amount appropriated.

THE Democrats are much more unanimous in their choice of a candidate for Chief Executive of the State than are the Republicans. While the latter are all split up into the Clough Crowd, the Gibbs Growlers, the Van Sant Visionists, the Evans Evanescents and the Hoorahers for William Henry, the Democrats mention but one candidate, T. J. McDermott, of St. Paul.

THE State Capitol Commission have awarded the building to Cass Gilbert, of St. Paul, whose plan they have accepted.

Fourth Prize $700. Clarance H. Johnson, St. Paul.

THE report has been circulated through the newspapers that England is willing to form an alliance with the United States to aid in enforcing the Monroe Doctrine; she to have equal rights with our government in enforcing it. We believe with Thomas Jefferson that our government should have "entangling alliances with none." If when the United States has but herself to please, she has trouble how much better would it be if she had a partner to satify?

THERE are rumors of war in every direction. The British lion roars, the Russian Bear growls, the French Eagle screems. The Austrian, the German, the Italian stands guard over his respective country. Norway and Sweeden are as near to each other, on the map, as ever. The Irish are for autonomy: Japan is still across the Pacific: Hawai in the ocean: Chinese continue to come: South America is in her old place: The Monroe Doctrine is all right: And Uncle Sam still survives.

JUSTICE in Judge Lynch's court is meeted out in a summary manner: not so in other courts. Men who have been charged with the most heinous crimes have been fooled along with for months; on one pretext or another their trials have been postponed from time to time or their sentences delayed or commuted, or have escaped punishment altogether, by fight or otherwise. If we are to have a free country we must have laws and they must be enforced, or examples of lynch law will grow more common instead of less so Public opinion makes laws for the public safety and the same public opinion demands the enforcement of the laws.

SEVERAL of our exchanges don't seem to have been able to read our map of the location for the new asylum. That was before the Commission had been here. Perhaps it will appear clearer soon.

EDITORIAL EXCURSION.

Chicago a Great City.

As the three sleepers Gemini, Rheu and Romaich pulled out of St. Paul, at 7:30 P. M., Saturday evening, Sept. 28, over the Maple Leaf Route, Great Western R'y. loaded with editors and their wives; two to a bunk, everybody was anxious to be off for the Sunny South. A jolly crowd was that. Each Editor used to feeling as big as anybody; and his wife ditto, made a grand party. After riding all night, some of the bunks threatening to land their occupants on the floor, the excursionists, well shaken, were ready for breakfast when the dining car conductor announced it ready; some waited until the Windy City was reached, at 9:45 on a beautiful Sunday morning Once in that hub of the country the Minnesota Editors were soon lost in the crowd. Every man for himself, seemed to be the order of the day; and, in a few minutes after disembarking from the cars it was a hard matter to find any of the big feeling crowd. So insignificant did the editors appear in Chicago that such old veterans, grown gray in dispensing news and their ideas gawked along up the streets, seeing what they could see, attracting no more attention than did the youngest or the most countryfied of the flock, in fact not so much. Occasionally two or more of the Association would site a badge, which only the skilled or the initiated could decipher and the greeting "Hello, Minnesota!" would pass between them. Soon after 5 P. M. the weary wonderers began to assemble at Dearborn St. station, which they left, in the same sloepers used before, over the Eastern Illinois and Louisville and Nashville roads to Nashville, Tenn., where they arrived at 7:30 Monday morning.

Chicago is by all odds, the biggest place we visited on our journey. Although the crowd dissembled into such small particles and was so thoroughly mixed up with Chicagoans all day and again the following Saturday, on the return trip, it did not see all the beauties nor all the ugliness of that great place. Some, on Sunday, attended church; others visited different places of interest and amusement; many found their way, on the electric cars, through the tunnel under the river, to Lincoln Park, one of Chicago's greatest prides. The statues of Abraham Lincoln, of Ulysses S. Grant and of others are fine, The wonderful tropical garden, with its large variety of plants which most of us had only read about, never seen. The splendid menagirie containing a good assortment of animals from the elephant, number of fine bear, tiger on down to the playful prairie dogs, all are worth seeing. The park beautiful by nature has been made still more attractive by the hand of man. The view of Lake Michigan and her vessels was a site many improved the opportunity to see. The pumping stations, supplying the city with water, are wonderful to behold; the central station is said to pump 32,000,000 gallons, daily; and this is but one of several sources of supply. The type foundries were especial objects of interest, and many of the editors saw, for the first time the methods employed in making type; in casting the letters used by them in spreading the news throughout the country. Some new machinery has recently been invented greatly simplifying the business. Cook County Hospital was found to be a magnificent structure, with nicely kept grounds. Rush College, near by, named for the patriot Benjamin Rush, the alma mater of so many eminent medical men: other institutions of learning; and various public buildings and enterprises served to impress the Minnesota Editors with the importance of Chicago.

There appears to be little regard paid to Sunday unless it be to make of it a gala day. Parades of different societies, headed by bands of music, and carrying banners were to be seen, here and there. The Italions had a grand procession, men marching, on foot the ladies following, in carriages. Saloons and other resorts and places of amusement seemed to be gathering a harvest. It seemed as if more respect to keeping the Sabbath day holy might, with a great deal of propriety, be paid.

No where on the whole excursion did our party feel its littleness, like they did in Chicago; not even the Mayor or an Alderman showed up; the people acted as if they had no time for an editor in general, and a Minnesota editor in particular; it must be they don't read the papers, and didn't know we were coming; or perhaps they thought from our badges, we were from some foreign country, and feared to undertake to find out. At all events on several sidewalks about twenty feet wide, on both sides of the streets, far as we could see were people, and cars, three in a train, rushing up and down the streets contained hundreds more; the inhabitants of those collossal structures towering skywards and their country cousins, and aunts and uncles all appeared to be there, and going some place, some of them in a terrible hurry, others were trying to see everything and everybody along the road, but, sad thought, none seemed to be aware that three full car loads of Minnesota editors were in the city. Now if Chicago wants to have a real warm place in the hearts of the Gopher mind moulders, she musn't make them feel their insignificance too much. It does even a Minnesota editor good to get away from home once in awhile it only to learn how little and insignificant a mortal he is. Verily Chicago is a great city.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct 25, 1895.

President Cleveland found on his return from Atlanta that although the season for the propagation of Cabinet resignations was a little late in opening it had been working overtime to catch up. He learned for the first time that a disagreement existed between himself and Secretary Olney of such a serious nature that the latter was going to retire from the cabinet, and that it was on account of that disagreement that Mr. Olney did not accompany him to Atlanta. This might have been very distressing to him, if he had not known that it was because he would have to go to Atlanta a little later on with the foreign representatives to take part in the exercises of Diplomatic Day at the exposition, and the pressing nature of some private business in Boston, that prevented Secretary Olney going with him.

The President presided over a Cabinet meeting today, but there was nothing said or done which implied in the slightest degree any disagreement over the position of this government in dealing with the dispute between England and Venezuela. From the first the President and every member of the cabinet have held the same opinion on this matter, and they still do. While not pretending to speak for the President or the members of his cabinet, it can be said that many prominent democrats believe the current stories about disagreements and intended resignations are circulated for the purpose of trying to goad the administration into declaring what it will do in case England should resort to force to carry its point in Venezuela, and that some of the circulators have been fitted at the expense of the English secret fund. Be that as it may, the administration has no idea of showing its hand to England at this stage of the game. Its position has been fully determined upon and will be announced when necessary, and when announced it will be approved by a great majority of our people, if not by all of the President's political opponents.

A very small thing is needed in Washington to start a very big sensation. One of those small things was the order for continuous work on the guns which are being made in the government gun shop, for the new battleship Oregon, now lying at the Mare Island navy yard waiting the completion of her armament. This order was made the foundation for a string of the most outrageous stories as to the administration's hurried preparations for the inevitable war with England and similar rot. The truth was easily obtainable, if it had been wanted. The order for continuous work was issued by the Navy department for no other purpose than to have the guns ready at the stipulated time in order to prevent the throwing of any blame for delay on the department by the contractor By working three eight-hour shifts three days work are accomplished on the guns every 24 hours. How very war like these preparations are may be seen from the size of the working shifts—one foreman, four machinists, one engineer, one fireman, and two laborers to each.

It is, of course, known that President Cleveland is and will be a very busy man until his message to Congress is completed, but there is one thing that all the democrats hereabouts would like him to take time enough to do. That is to dismiss the negro, Taylor, who is Recorder of Deeds for the District of Columbia. Taylor claims to have been a democrat before he came to Washington, but his rascalities have been much more marked than his democracy since he secured one of the best local positions in Washington, and this week he attended a negro republican mass meeting and made a speech in favor of a negro republican being elected as one of the delegates to the National republican convention. Since then every democrat one meets expresses the wish that President Cleveland would kick Taylor out of the office to which he appointed him.

Secretary Carlisle proposes to set a good example by going all the way to Covington, Ky., to register in order that he may be able to cast his vote for the straight democratic ticket in that state.

The stoppage of the coinage of silver has no bearing whatever upon the silver question. The only silver that has been coined for sometime has been worn and mutilated silver. The appropriation for that purpose for the current fiscal year having been exhausted Secretary Carlisle directed that the mint at New Orleans be closed and the employes furloughed until such time as coinage may be resumed. It is probable that the question of the coinage of the 137,614,000 ounces of silver bullion which the government now has on hand, remaining from the purchases made under the Sherman law, will be referred to Congress. Should Congress order this silver to be coined the government would make a profit of almost $54,000,000 on it, that being about the difference between its cost and the amount of silver dollars it could be coined into. Ineffectual attempts were made to get the last Congress to authorize this coinage.

CORRESPONDENCE

INDEPENDENCE INCIDENTS.

Have not replenished my stock of news much since last week and there is not very much to write about.

Weather has been fine for outdoor work and everybody is busy getting ready for winter. The little skift of snow that came the other day reminded us of sleigh bells, toboggan slides and snow drifts. Surely winter will be with us in a short time; in this country it never misses a fellow.

DIED.—In South Greenwood, on Sunday morning, 27th inst., of lingering illness, E. K. Smith, aged 61 years. Funeral sermon at Rockford A. C. church following Tuesday afternoon, conducted by Rev. Burrell, of Minneapolis, assisted by Rev. J. N. Potter, of Independence. He was buried in Elmwood cemetry, at Rockford. Mr. Smith was a patient sufferer, having been sick for nearly two years and confined to his bed most of the time. He leaves a wife and other friends to mourn his loss.

Quite a number seem to be on the sick list just now. Mrs. Jacob Beal and Mrs. Sophia Pagenkopf are among those on the sick list.

There is quite a number of mariageable old men at Maple Plain just now, all claiming to be in a good healthy condition and compos mentis; and the gods of humanity would confer a great blessing upon them by sending them a helpmate. Marriage is honorable among all men; among the Gentiles as well as among the Jews.

Cordwood and hogs are being shipped from Maple Plain and Armstrong in large quantities of late.

The sporting gentlemen and Nimrods of the country have been making a good deal of noise of late, but we hardly think the game worth the ammunition.

The poor have not yet received a regenesis in way of good times, etc.; but large bodies move slowly; especially during a low stage of water. The chief captains and mighty men are disputing over actual causes and right of discovery while the canker worm is eating the vitals out of the nation.

The popgun aristocracy are looking too high. They forget that God says we are all made of one flesh; then what advantage hath the Jew over the Gentiles. But we read in Holy Writ that people and nations are heaping together treasures for the last days. It is not costly apparel nor outward adornment that makes the man, but principles that tend towards righteousness. No certain political party nor any one sectarian denomination has any God given right to usurp authority over individuals, people or nations; for according to divers authority we are all free born. But from a Biblical standpoint I am surprised at the condition of things as they exist in this country, and also in all Europe; for our history has been written prophetically centuries ago, and we will have to submit to the powers that be.

J. H. MCGARY.

IT costs American women a million a year to wear puffed sleeves. It may, therefore, have been a question of economy that sent a lot of our girls into bloomers.

THE color of hosiery does not agitate the Chinese and Japanese in the least. Ninety-five per cent. of them—men, women and children—go bare-legged winter and summer.

A NEW YORK policeman has accumulated a fortune of $500,000, and the commissioners have very properly forced him to resign. That is enough for him. He should give the other fellows a chance.

DENVER, Col., was named after James W. Denver, an ex-governor of Kansas. Denver is situated on the sites of two towns, St. Charles and Aurora, which were consolidated in 1860 and the new name adopted.

THE last government test of armor plate resulted in sending an 1,100-pound projectile, fired from a distance of 4,000 yards, through 15 inches of good steel and burying it 12 feet in the earth beyond. That is an interesting suggestion of what the next naval combat may be like.

A BOOK dealer in Cincinnati has the following note, dated 1880, from Mrs. Harriet Beecher Stowe: "You are right as to 'Uncle Tom's Cabin;' it was not written on Walnut Hills, but in the old Titcomb house in Brunswick, Me. It took Maine air and vigor, added to Cincinnati and Kentucky experience, to perfect the work."

MRS. U. S. GRANT, who has purchased ex-Senator Edmunds' house in Washington for $60,000, is a very young-looking woman for her age. Her hair is only slightly touched with gray. Her voice and manner are youthful, but her brow shows a few wrinkles. She is very energetic and business-like in her methods. It has always been her desire to end her days in Washington.

IN Buffalo, N. Y., it is asserted that 578 families have grown enough vegetables on city plots given to the poor for cultivation to keep them from want during the coming winter. In all $12,000 worth of potatoes were grown on vacant lots in that city and the people who cultivated them have acquired some degree of skill as farmers. Buffalo seems well pleased with her experiment.

A POLITICAL situation that is probably unique developed in the little town of Acree, Ky. It was the annual election of municipal officers, and there were 42 voters on the list. When the balloting took place it was found that only one of the 42 voters was properly registered. That one was the candidate for mayor. He cast the only ballot at the election and duly elected himself and a board of aldermen.

QUEEN SOPHIA of Sweden is one of the most enthusiastic friends and promoters of the Salvation Army. The Salvation Army also is receiving tokens of imperial favor at St. Petersburg. Among the cordial responses sent by Emperor Nicholas in person to the messages of condolence which he received from abroad at the time of his father's death, and of congratulation on his marriage, were dispatches which he himself addressed to Gen. Booth.

CLARETTE AVERY, the 10-year-old negro girl who is converting so many whites and blacks in the south by her magnetic preaching has a ready command of pure and elevated language. She comes from Washington, and her mother, who travels with her, says of her: "Claretta has been preaching for nearly two years now, and she is just 10 years old. We taught her to read, but beyond that she has had no advantages. She is a perfectly artless child at home, has a lot of dolls, and is running in and out of the house all the time, singing, laughing and playing with other children."

TO THOSE persons whose study of geography was discontinued a score or more years ago, the latest maps of the continent of Africa will be a revelation. Such maps now show that Africa has become almost entirely tributary to Europe, the rush for territory by the European powers having resulted in the annexation of almost the entire continent, with the exception of the Sahara. Great Britain claims 2,500,000 square miles of African territory, France 3,000,000, Germany 825,000, Belgium 850,000, Portugal 900,000, Italy 600,000, Spain 250,000 and Turkey 840,000.

THE newspapers have at various times come in for so much criticism from politicians, and especially from those in England, that when a public man candidly concedes the value of the press it is particularly gratifying. Arthur J. Balfour, the prominent English leader, evidently believes in the newspaper, for at a recent banquet he said of it: "I would rather have newspapers without a government, than government without newspapers. The newspaper is to-day the most potent of human agencies for the protection and advancement of the race." This sentiment is growing.

HOLMES ON TRIAL.

The Alleged Multi-Murderer Before the Bar in Philadelphia.

Refused a Continuance, His Lawyers Withdraw and the Accused Proceeds to Conduct His Own Case—The Jury Chosen.

Philadelphia, Oct. 29.—Herman W. Mudgett, better known as H. H. Holmes, the self-confessed life insurance swindler, and the alleged multi-murderer, whose supposed crimes have been a topic for general discussion the past several months, was placed on trial Monday morning in the court of oyer and terminer on the charge of having murdered Benjamin F. Pitzel.

Judge Arnold presided. The commonwealth was represented by District Attorney George S. Graham and Assistant District Attorney Thomas W. Barlow, and the defense was conducted by W. H. Shoemaker and Samuel P. Rolan.

After the formalities in connection with the opening of court had been concluded, Attorney W. H. Shoemaker, of counsel for the prisoner, in an address of some length, asked for a postponement of the case for 60 days. Mr. Shoemaker's contention was that the defense was not prepared for trial; that no witnesses were present. District Attorney Graham strenuously opposed the motion, he declaring that the state's witnesses were present at their own volition, and that if a continuance should be granted it would mean "the absolute destruction of the commonwealth's case."

H. H. HOLMES.

Mrs. Pitzel's health was impaired, Mr. Graham further said, and if the case should be postponed the strain would intensify her illness.

Lawyer Samuel P. Rolan for the defense also pleaded for time in which he and his colleague could realize on Holmes' assets, and thus bring witnesses to Philadelphia who will not come unless their expenses are paid. The discovery of new testimony within the past four or five days which he wanted to investigate was a further plea of the attorney for a continuance.

Judge Arnold overruled the motions for postponement in a very few words and ordered the trial to go on. Just at this juncture a startling climax was reached, which resulted in the withdrawal of Lawyers Shoemaker and Rolan from the case, notwithstanding an injunction from the court that they would be open to disbarment by taking such a step "on the eve of a murder trial."

Still further sensation was created when Holmes refused to accept the services of Attorneys Everett A. Schofield and Joseph R. Fahey, whom the court was about to appoint to defend him, and who, in fact, had taken seats in the chairs vacated by Messrs. Shoemaker and Rolan. Schofield and Fahey also withdrew. Holmes himself pleaded to the court for a postponement, but the judge declared that the case must go on. The trial was resumed, Holmes conducting his own defense.

Holmes continued questioning the jurors as they came up. His words, which embraced the usual technical questions, were well chosen. He listened to District Attorney Graham's formal inquiries with the keenest interest, an almost imperceptible flush relieving the pallor of his cheek. Besides the usual questions as to whether or not the jurors had formed any opinion as to the guilt or innocence of the prisoner and the entertainment of conscientious scruples against capital punishment, Holmes also asked:

"Have you visited the dime museum at Ninth and Arch streets?"

The reason for this question was the fact that there has been on exhibition in the museum for some weeks a wax counterpart of Holmes, "the multi-murderer," as he is there called, together with models of the Irvington (Ind.) house and the Chicago "castle." All who had seen these were peremptorily challenged by Holmes.

The work of securing a jury was completed at 1:45 o'clock and then a recess was taken until three o'clock.

It was 3:10 o'clock when the trial was resumed, and nearly all of the session, which continued until 4:55 o'clock, was taken up by District Attorney Graham in outlining the case to the jury. The opening address of the district attorney was forcible throughout, but his denunciations of Holmes, which at times were particularly severe, had no outward effect upon the accused. Holmes' composure was wonderful, and during the narrative he busied himself in taking copious notes of the prosecuting officer's address.

When the district attorney had concluded his argument Holmes requested that he be allowed light and writing materials in his cell in the county prison.

After the adjournment of court Judge Arnold stated that he would not press the case for disbarment against Messrs. Shoemaker and Rotan, in view of the fact that Holmes had refused counsel and would conduct his own case.

Too Dry for Wheat.

Cleveland, O., Oct. 26.—A special to the Press from Portsmouth, O., says: The continued drought has caused serious loss throughout Scioto and adjoining counties. The tobacco crop is almost a total failure, and fall wheat is in bad shape, a great deal of it having been killed after sprouting. Water sells at 25 cents per barrel at West Union and Wellston, and 40 cents per barrel at Winchester. A number of barrel at Winchester.

New Queen of Corea.

St. Petersburg, Oct. 29.—A dispatch to the Novoe Vremya from its correspondent in Seoul says that the king of Corea has chosen another queen and has assumed the title of "emperor." The representatives in Seoul of the powers, the dispatch adds, have made a protest against the king's action.

ALL RECORDS BROKEN.

A Lake Shore & Michigan Southern Train Makes Fast Time.

Buffalo, N. Y., Oct. 25.—Railway records of the world were smashed Thursday by the Lake Shore & Michigan Southern railway. It ran a train from Chicago to Buffalo in 7 hours 50 minutes and 20 seconds actual running time at the rate of 64 9-10ths miles an hour. The record was as follows:

Chicago to Elkhart, 87.4 miles, in 85 minutes 26 seconds.

Elkhart to Toledo, 123.4 miles, in 134 minutes 35 seconds.

Toledo to Cleveland, 107.8 miles, in 106 minutes 6 seconds.

Cleveland to Erie, 95.5 miles, in 85 minutes 32 seconds.

Erie to Buffalo, 86 miles, in 70 minutes 16 seconds.

Here are the records that went by the board:

New York Central—Wednesday, Sept. 11.—New York (Grand Central depot) to East Buffalo, 436½ miles in 411 2-5 minutes, including stops; average 63.61 miles per hour; time excluding stops, 407 2-3 minutes; average, 64.26.

England-Scotland West Coast Record—Thursday, Aug. 22.—From London (Euston station) to Aberdeen, 540 miles in 512 minutes, including stops; average, 63.28 miles per hour; time excluding stops, 507½ minutes; average, 63.84 miles per hour.

The run from Chicago to Buffalo was made for a practical object. It was neither to beat the record of the English roads nor to show what speed could be attained on the roadbed, but to ascertain at what rate a commercially-paying train could be made to go safely.

New York, Oct. 25.—The New York Central Empire state express brought into Grand Central station at 10:15 Thursday night several of the party that left Chicago on the Lake Shore fast train early Thursday morning. Some of the party visited the Empire theater and the Broadway theater. This is a feat never before accomplished, to leave Chicago in the morning, travel 980 miles and attend the theater in New York the same evening.

The entire distance of 980 miles was made in seventeen hours, forty-five minutes and twenty-three seconds. Chicago newspaper men who were on board had in their pockets morning newspapers of Thursday. This was the first time that a regular edition of a Chicago morning paper has been read in New York the day of its publication.

RUSSIA AND COREA.

England Jealously Watches Developments in the East.

London, Oct. 26.—The dispatch from Shanghai Thursday afternoon, announcing the departure of a fleet of nineteen Russian warships from Vladivostock for Chemulpo and Fusan, Corea, and the Times dispatch from Hong Kong, announcing that Russia has obtained the right to anchor her fleet at Port Arthur, and construct railroads on the Liao-Tung peninsula, have caused intense excitement in official circles here as well as in those having commercial relations with the far east. These most important statements are looked upon generally as being a sudden reopening in an unexpected quarter of the far eastern question in its widest sense.

The Shanghai dispatch added that the Japanese fleet in Formosa waters had been recalled, that several British warships had been ordered to Corea and that preparations for a struggle were visible on all sides. The Hong Kong cable message to the Times caused that paper to remark, editorially, Friday:

"Russia cannot possibly imagine that the great powers will view with indifference such a destruction of the balance of power, which is almost unparalleled in its audacity. China's option to purchase the railways is a jest almost too cynical to find a place in any serious diplomatic transaction. Under the indicated conditions Manchuria would practically become a Russian province, while Peking would be within Russia's grip."

WOULD-BE LYNCHERS.

A Mob Driven Back from the Tiffin (O.) Jail—Two Killed.

Tiffin, O., Oct. 28.—In an attempt early Sunday morning to avenge the murder of August Schultz, Tiffin's popular city marshal, who was shot down in cold blood by Leander J. Martin, alias Williams, a farmer of Hopewell township, last Wednesday evening, two more victims were added to the tragic affair. At 1:30 o'clock a mob of 150 infuriated men, many of whom were under the influence of liquor, attacked the jail in an effort to secure Martin and hang him. A volley from a half dozen Winchesters met them and two of the mob were killed. They are: Henry Mutchler, Jr., and Christian Matz.

Early Sunday morning crowds began to gather in the vicinity of the jail, and Sheriff Van Nest, fearing further trouble, called out Company C, of the 16th regiment O. N. G., to maintain order. This company, which is stationed here, is not numerically strong, and the sheriff, thinking Capt. Loomis' men would be unable to cope with a more general civic uprising, telegraphed Gov. McKinley for more troops. The governor complied with the request, ordering three additional companies to the scene. During the day one company each came from Fremont and Sandusky, and late in the evening the company from Kenton arrived on the Big Four.

LITTLE CHILDREN KILLED.

Brother and Sister Struck by a Train in a St. Louis Suburb.

St. Louis, Oct. 29.—Willie and Mattie Vaughan, aged six and eight years, respectively, whose parents live at 4118 Gratiot street, were run over by a train on the St. Louis, Keokuk & Northwestern railway at Forsyth junction, near Forest Park, Monday evening and killed. The children stepped from one track to the other to avoid a train and got in front of another train. They were horribly mangled.

Hurts the Reserve.

New York, Oct. 28.—The approach of the holiday trade is making a demand from jewelers for gold bars and is causing a loss in the treasury gold reserve. The jewelers present greenbacks at the subtreasury, for which they receive gold coin. They redeposit the coin and are given orders for gold bars on the assay office. The loss of gold to the reasury ranges from $250,000 to $750,000 a week. It is expected that the average will be high for some time to come. The same process is going on at other subtreasuries throughout the United States.

Poisoned by Decayed Fruit.

Pittsburgh, Oct. 29.—Marion Henderson, six years old, is dead, and Delia Maloy, same age, will die from eating decayed fruit they picked up on the river bank Monday afternoon. The little girls live on lower Pennsylvania avenue and wandered down to the river. When they returned home both became violently ill. The Henderson child died and the other girl cannot live.

FRENCH CABINET RESIGNS.

Result of Government Defeat on Railway Scandal.

Paris, Oct. 29.—The cabinet of the French government has been refused a vote of confidence by parliament and the members have placed their resignations in the hands of President Faure. The difficulty was caused Monday by the demand of certain members of the chamber of deputies that the minister of justice, M. Trarieaux, publish the documents in his possession regarding the South of France railway scandal. M. Binder, a member on the right, charged the minister of justice with culpable leniency and demanded that the guilty parties be punished. M. Trarieaux replied that whenever the government believed it had incriminating evidence it had prosecuted the parties involved. No deputy, he added, was included among the guilty parties. Said he: "The chamber knows the truth, and if parliament considers its dignity and honor compromised the government will join the chamber in voting for repressive measures, and in the face of these explanations asks the chamber for a vote of confidence."

M. Rouanet's motion asking for an explanation as to the partiality which had been shown toward those involved in the scandals, claiming that the authorities had been afraid to prosecute them, and demanding that the minister of justice publish the documents in the case which were in his possession, was then adopted by a vote of 275 to 196.

After the adoption of this motion the ministers left the chamber of deputies in a body amid ironical radical cheers and went to the Elysee palace, where they handed in their resignations to President Faure. The chamber of deputies was adjourned for a week.

MORE ARE SLAIN.

A Mussulman Mob's Awful Treatment of Armenians

Constantinople, Oct. 29.—Another terrible massacre of Armenians is reported to have occurred in the Baiburt district, between Erzeroum and Trebizond. According to the news received here a mob of about 500 Mussulmans and Lazes, the great majority of whom were armed with Martini-Henry rifles, made an attack on the Armenians inhabiting several villages of that vicinity, and set fire to their houses and schools. As the Armenians fled in terror from their dwellings they were shot down as they ran, and a number of men and women who were captured by the rioters, it is added, were fastened to stakes and burned alive. The Armenian women who fell into the hands of the mob, it is also asserted, were brutally treated and mutilated.

It is also reported that the churches were desecrated and the villages pillaged, the cattle and all the portable property of any value belonging to the Armenians being carried off by the marauders. During the disturbance 150 Armenians are reported to have been killed. The surviving villagers applied for protection to the governor of Baiburt, who, after hearing their complaint, sent three policemen to the scene of the massacre after the slaughter was ended. The Turkish officials, it is claimed, know the ringleaders of the outbreak, but apparently no steps have been taken to arrest them. The number of Armenians massacred at Erzingjan is now said to be several hundred.

CLOSED THE COLLEGE.

The Agricultural Institution at Ames, Ia., Cannot Run Without Water.

Ames, Ia., Oct. 29.—The commencement of the Iowa agricultural college was to have been held in two weeks. The faculty and trustees decided Monday to close the college without further examinations, exercises or study. The cause is lack of water. A spring, the only supply of water for the entire college, suddenly failed Saturday. There is no water on the campus. The town of Ames is three miles from the college.

Killed His Brother's Slayer.

Nashville, Tenn., Oct. 26.—At 2:30 o'clock Thursday Dibrell Walker shot and killed young Terry at the Union passenger depot in this city. Both are prominent young men of Cookville, Tenn. They had come in on an excursion train. Some months ago Terry killed Walker's brother. Walker was drunk and sought a difficulty with Terry.

Flames in the Fields.

Hardin, Mo., Oct. 29.—A fierce fire is raging in the cornfields and grass about two miles east of here. The section is principally covered with prairie grass, which is cut for hay. Much of this had been baled and hauled away, but the greater part still remained on the ground, either baled or in the rick. All of this has been destroyed.

Billiardist Heiser Dead.

New York, Oct. 28.—J. Randolph Heiser, the biliardist, who became insane a few weeks ago, died Saturday morning at Blackwell's island. He was born at Kokomo, Ind., about 41 years ago. Although not a success as a match or tournament player, he was at one time one of the most skillful billiard experts in the country.

Pushed from a Train.

Bloomington, Ind., Oct. 29.—Joseph Hill, a traveling tailor, was found Monday afternoon beside the Monon tracks, south of this city, in a dying condition. He claimed to have been pushed from a freight train by a brakeman. His home is in Steubenville, O. He died at five p. m.

In the Hands of a Receiver.

West Superior, Wis., Oct. 25.—Strothman Brothers' foundry, the largest in Superior, has been put into the hands of a receiver, owing to complications caused by contentions among the partners. The plant does a large business and is valued at $75,000.

THE MINNESOTA IRON MINES.

Money Still Being Poured In for the Development.

A recent article in the Pioneer Press throws a new light upon the iron industry of Minnesota. When the discoveries on the Mesaba Range were made some three years ago, hundreds went wild over the prospect of immediate wealth by investing $50 in a state lease. The sequel shows that only with immense capital and indomitable pluck can the iron mines be made profitably productive. It was only because J. D. Rockefeller was induced to take hold of the properties on the Mesaba Range in 1893 that a great financial disaster was averted. Under the stimulus of Mr. Rockefeller's capital, the Lake Superior Consolidated Mining Company was formed, and the work continued, employing hundreds of men when nearly every industry in the country was absolutely stagnant. Up to this date not a dollar has been paid in dividends on the Consolidated stock, and much new capital is still being required for the development.

It is said by those close to headquarters that the Rockefeller interest, for instance, so far from deriving profit from the Consolidated mines, of which they are large owners, have actually advanced about a million and a half to the mines during the present season.

Wanted to Join Her.

A man and his bride started on their bridal tour on an ocean steamer, and were taken violently ill almost as soon as the boat started. The voyage was exceedingly rough, and both bride and groom became so dangerously ill that it was found necessary to put them in different staterooms. Neither manifested any especial interest in the other, so deathly sick were they both.

At last the steward came to the stateroom of the husband and said to him: "I am very sorry, but I have come to tell you that your wife is dead."

"That's good," the seasick husband returned feebly. "I wish I was."—N. Y. Journal.

WIND VOICES.

Wind, that art wailing through the night,
With the voice of a soul in pain!
Thou hast waked the waves that slept on the shore;
I hear them rise, and dash once more
'Gainst the sullen, fixed and changeless rock
Which has stood unmoved through many a shock
Of the raging storm, and the breakers white
That must sweep to the sea again.

Wind, that art wailing through the night,
With the voice of a soul in pain!
Thou hast waked the passion of wild regret,
Which slumbered so long—to rage and fret
'Gainst the pitiless, fixed decrees of life:
As well may the waves with the rock hold strife!
Back—to the tide of the Infinite,
Poor heart, that has cried in vain!

Wind, that art wailing through the night,
With the voice of a soul in pain!
Thou hast gathered up each cry of earth
That from mortal anguish ever had birth,
At the door of the living to enter in,
Weeping for sorrow and death and sin:
Yet heart, make answer, "God's will is right,"
And rest in His peace again.

—Mary Gorges, in Chambers' Journal.

LOST RIVER IS A WONDER

The Remarkable Features of an Indian Stream.

It Disappears and Rises Again Several Miles Away—A Subterranean Waterfall, and Caverns Descending to Its Banks.

Of all those vagaries of nature which attract both scientist and curio seeker in southern Indiana there is none, perhaps, more interesting and more mysterious than Lost river, which takes a second lease of life in the upper world this place, writes an Orangeville (Ind.) correspondent to the Chicago Record. For fourteen miles or more in an air line—for fifty miles and more if all the ramifications and gyrations of the bed are followed—this river flows under the surface of the earth. It enters its subterranean way by running into a hill. It emerges, clear and cold, from beneath the base of a tall bluff. In a nutshell, a river, or, rather, a good-sized creek, rises in Washington county, flows a short distance, and disappears in a hole in the ground. Miles away, at Orangeville, in Orange county, it reappears, and thereafter in most respects behaves itself like any other stream until it loses its waters in the east fork of the White river and eventually in the beautiful Ohio.

This stream has something of a counterpart in Stamper's creek, which sinks near where Lost river sinks and rises at Spring Mills, forming the source of French Lick creek. That these streams flow for so many miles under ground seems due to the curious geological structure of this portion of the country. There are hills rising from three to four hundred feet, seemingly independent of each other. The country is wild and the timber land in many cases is still untouched. Lost river flows in ordinary channels until it commences to lose itself in sink holes. These sink holes are common. The whole country seems to be hollow. The subterranean channel of the river is not a simple, straight, cavernous opening like a sewer, through which the water rushes, but is a complex arrangement of mains and leads in two distinct systems, each of which is a counterpart of the dry bed on the surface of the ground. In ordinary weather all the water in the river is taken in at the first sink hole. The water simply flows into a hole just as if it were flowing into a great sewer. When there have been heavy rains and the flow of water is greater, it appears that all the channels and chambers of the lower subterranean system are filled, and the overflow water runs along the dry bed for several miles until it reaches a second sink hole, where it disappears. In times of unusually high water this second system of channel chambers is filled, and the overflow rushes down the dry bed of the river on the surface, like any other stream.

All of these systems reunite at Orangeville—or, at least, very near there. The system through which the ordinary current runs appears from the bluff on which the village is built. The dry bed circles around the village and merges with the bed of the stream as it reappears, just below the village. About a mile further down the second channel chamber system gives up its water and the reunited stream is regular thereafter. The channels do not follow the course of each other, however. In several places the lowest channel is several miles from the dry bed. All are more or less in connection with each other and many curious phenomena result.

For instance, about ten miles east of Orangeville the dry bed and the lowest channel are connected by three openings, which are known as "wet-weather rises." It is known that the lowest channel receives a large amount of water from underground branches during its course. Sometimes these branches supply more than the usual amount of water and the overflow is forced up through these three openings into the dry bed. Then there is the interesting spectacle of water flowing in the lowest and the top systems, but none in the middle system.

The dry bed of the river is not an open channel. It has the appearance of the bed of an ancient river long since gone dry. Not only is there the usual vegetable and timber growth common to river banks along its shores, but in the bed itself are to be found majestic forest trees. It presents one of the wildest and most picturesque scenes imaginable when filled with rushing waters following a heavy rain, the stream seemingly being lost in the depths of the forest. The timber growth is heaviest in the bed of the stream itself.

The underground stream winds and twists about like any surface stream. It has its shallow places and its deep places, its eddies, its ripples, its waterfalls and its tributaries. About eight miles from Orangeville a cavernous passage leads from the surface of the ground to the brink of the dark stream. The descent is gradual and several years ago two white men and a negro took a boat in and explored the river for several miles, finally being stopped by a waterfall. The current became very swift just before they started to return, and for awhile it looked as though the party would be carried by the dark waters over the falls to a fate fascinating in its horror. The stream can also be reached through a small cave in the side of a hill near this point. Indeed, natives say that it can be reached almost anywhere. Sink holes, large and small, are to be found in every valley. For a native to stick a fence rail down one of these, climb down and get a drink and then out by the same means, is a feat of only ordinary occurrence. The whole country hereabouts seems to be honeycombed by underground streams, of which Lost river and Stamper's creek are but surface developments.

One of the most interesting phenomena of this great underground water system is what is known as Lost River gulf. Less than a mile north of the village there seems to be a sort of break in the high tableland on which the surrounding farms and homes are located. Here a deep ravine, or, rather, a series of four ravines uniting in the shape of a great star, are formed. These ravines are covered with dense underbrush and many large forest trees. On the southeast side the land is somewhat lower than on other sides and a river bed seems to stretch away for half a mile or so, one of the features of the depression being a huge pile of weather-worn limestone rocks which appear in the ancient river. These ravines run down about seventy-five feet from the level of the surrounding country and there meet the surface of this gulf. The gulf itself is about four hundred feet in circumference. its waters come from no one knows where. No one knows how deep it is, for its banks are the sides of the ravine, and are almost perpendicular. The water is clear and very cold, showing that it has long been under ground.

If perfect silence on the part of the visitor is maintained for some time, blind fishes will appear on the surface of the gulf and will swim slowly around with their upturned white mouths close to the surface in search of food. The slightest noise will disturb them; their sense of hearing is their only protection from an enemy. Blind crayfishes also are to be found in the gulf in the shallow water where the great white pool empties itself.

To the west and to the northeast the great ravine lengthens itself, and at the extremes of the ravine in these directions the waters of the gulf proper flow under the bluffs at these points. The opening into which the west streams discharges itself is somewhat larger than its counterpart and can be entered for ten or twelve feet. In times of wet weather on the area drained by this stream the water in the gulf rises higher and higher, until it overflows the southeast side, where the land is lower, and the rushing flood sweeps across the fields over the great limestone rocks heretofore mentioned, losing itself in the dry bed of Lost river. Just what portion of the county is drained by this stream is not known. The stage of water in the gulf is entirely independent of the water at Orangeville or in this vicinity, and the coolness of the water, the blind fish, and all other circumstances, clearly show that the water flows for a great distance through a subterranean channel. The pressure necessary to raise the water in the gulf high enough to overflow into the dry bed of Lost river is enormous, almost enough to move the everlasting hills themselves.

There are no wells at Orangeville. In the first place, no one would dare to dig one for fear he would fall through the botttom into one of these subterranean streams. The earth hereabouts is hollow. Sink holes in barnyards, into which one might toss a stone and hear the splash of water, are too common to be noticed by a native. Then, wells are not necessary. These gulfs and springs are too numerous. At the top of the bluff from under which Lost river appears there is a windlass arrangement, called a "telegraph" by the natives, by means of which a bucket is drawn up full of water. A similar arrangement is in use at the gulf of Lost river.

Orangeville is some distance from any railroad, has no hotel, and, generally speaking, is not much of a town, but in matters of interest to a tourist it has more to the square foot than any other village in the Ohio valley.

The Migration of Brains.

A medical authority asserts that a post-mortem examination of the fingers of a blind man discloses, at the tips, a deposit identical with the gray matter of the brain. It has for years been a noted fact that blind people become marvelously apt in detecting things with their fingers, and this statement gives rise to the query just what is brain matter, and how does it act? This authority seems inclined to the belief that nature compensates for the loss of sight by transferring to the finger-tips some of the perceptive matter of the brain, and this accounts for the supersensitiveness of the touch of people of defective vision. Blind persons who perform no manual labor have very delicate hands and fingertips, and there may be some truth in the theory of a brain migration. It is quite as plausible, however, to believe that there are in the finger-tips latent cells that develop when the necessity for them presents itself. Indeed, this seems much more likely than that there is any actual transference of brain matter from one part of the body to another.—N. Y. Ledger.

A Race of Pigmies.

Several years ago an interesting discovery was made in Switzerland—the bones of a number of dwarfs, true pigmies, were found during some excavations at Schweitzersbild. The adults were apparently about four feet to four feet five inches in height. They seemed to be very well formed and to have lived with or near other tribes of the usual stature. It may have been that the burial grounds were the same and that they occupied different localities. With these bones, some highly polished stone implements and well-made and interesting specimens of pottery were taken out. The period in which these people lived is supposed to have been the Neolithic. The discovery has attracted a good deal of attention, and further investigations are to be made. It is suggested that all countries establish bureaus or commissions for the purpose of collecting and preserving the antiquities and also to set on foot inquiries that may lead to discoveries of great importance.—N. Y. Ledger.

—There's no music in a "rest," but there's the making of music in it. And people are always missing that part of the life melody, always talking of perseverance and courage and fortitude; but patience is the finest and worthiest part of fortitude, and the rarest, too. —Ruskin.

MINNESOTA NEWS.

Hayward's Plans.

Harry T. Hayward has finally given a statement of his side of the plot to escape.

He placed his signature to a document which had been written by Ed Stevens from voluminous notes furnished by Hayward. The explanation is quite lengthy, and the prisoner would not give the paper out for publication until he had read it all through.

He denies in toto that the plot originated with him; that the first thought of it was when Kierce came to him and advanced the idea and offered to help him for a money consideration. He claims that Kierce received money from him at various times. To use Hayward's own expression, "Kierce worked him for all he was worth." He charges that Kierce made the impression and had the keys made. This is denied by the sheriff, who claims that Goodsell, Harry's cousin, is the man who did the work.

Following this, the officers claim to have discovered a plot to put Adry Hayward out of the way. Adry was first to be kidnapped and taken to a house near Hopkins, out on the prairie, some distance from any other building. There he was to be kept until he wrote certain confessions, the form of which Harry had already drafted and presented to the conspirators, for use when the time came. These statements were in effect that he (Adry), out of remorse, was about to kill himself; that it was he, not Harry, that had caused Miss Ging's death; that rather than live and see his brother innocently hanged he had taken his own life, in the hope that it might lead to saving his innocent brother; and more along this line.

Not satisfied with driving Adry to the necessity of writing a confession of a crime he did not commit, the plot was to strangle him as soon as the document was signed. Then the dead body was to be brought from the lone house on the prairie and hung by a rope on a tree near the spot where the Ging murder was committed. This is the reason for the detail of strangulation. In fact, so far had the details of this horrible crime been developed that it was Harry's instructions to have a board or something leaning against the tree to show how Adry had climbed up. Then the body of Adry was to be found by some useful person and the notes found in the pocket, which were to open the door of the prison to the instigator of the murderer of Catherine Ging.

Fires.

The towns of Kertsonville and Tilden, were scourged by fire in a manner which occasioned very serious losses, and which taxed the efforts of the settlers to their utmost to quench. The dry wind had rendered the country a tinder box, and a spark would nearly in every instance kindle into a conflagration. Locomotive sparks set three fires on one trip from Red Lake Falls to the crossing of the Fosston line, at Tilden. Just east of this crossing, the worst fire occurred. It swept north and great loss must have resulted. Another bad fire started in Kertsonville, eight miles east of Crookston.

Arbitration Committee.

Gov. Clough has named two members of the state board of arbitration and conciliation. The member representing the employers is ex-State Senator W. B. Dean, of St. Paul, of the hardware firm of Nichols & Dean, while labor is represented by J. E. E. Johnson, of Minneapolis, a member of the tailors' union. These two are authorized to meet in 10 days and suggest to the governor the name of a third, who is to be neither an employer of labor nor a laborer. If they do this the governor will have the right to name the third member also.

News in Brief.

A recent hearing before the Minnesota Railroad Commissioner at Duluth concerning passenger fares developed the fact that the Duluth, Mesaba & Northern Railroad had run its passenger trains the past year at an actual loss of $17,000.

The steamer Flora Clara left Hastings for New Orleans with five barges loaded with produce, mostly potatoes.

The team of John Swanson, a farmer living in the town of Wilson, Winona county, ran away. Swanson was thrown out, his head struck a stone and he was instantly killed. Deceased leaves a widow and two children. The wife, driving behind, found her husband's body in the road.

Five of those who took part in the charivari at Wacouta some time ago, where Clinton Roberts was nearly killed, have been arrested for disturbing a wedding.

Willie Vichet, who ran away from his home in Anoka, was caught at New Paynesville. The boy is only 15 years old and says he left home because he didn't like to be whipped with a manure fork.

Clough Bros., lumber dealers of Minneapolis, have assigned. The governor is a member of the firm, but the assignment does not affect his banking interests.

John Ruff had his right hand caught in the gearing of the packing machinery at the Gardner rolling mill at Hastings, losing the middle finger and badly crushing the other three.

The postoffice at Hills was robbed, the safe blown open and about $200 in cash, a lot of stamps, notes and three deeds secured.

Within the past week it has developed that the sinking of the six-inch artesian well on the public levee at Winona, has decreased the flow from the four wells an inch and a half in diameter previously sunk at Sugar Loaf, two and one-half miles distant. It has taken several weeks for the effect to become noticeable.

Lewis Moors, of Read's Landing, was drowned while catching lumber in the river at the pontoon bridge. He leaves a widow and two children.

Leroy Berrier was arraigned before the United States authorities at Minneapolis upon the charge of sending obscene literature through the mails.

Mary A. Gilbault's body, stiff and cold, was found at daybreak one morning on the streets of Minneapolis. She had on only night clothes, and it is thought she froze to death.

Bogue & Wood's general store at Castle Rock, was burglarized. The thieves carried away all light goods and cutlery, etc., and drilled the safe, but were scared away before opening it. The amount of the loss is not known.

By the breaking of the rafts of the Clyde, Ravenna and J. K. Graves, in Lake Pepin there are now floating in the lake 3,000,000 feet of logs.

HOME HINTS AND HELPS.

—Efface scratches on furniture, directs the New York Telegram, by rubbing on some linseed oil, and then following with a little shellac dissolved in alcohol.

—Rusk—In the forenoon mix together one-half cup of butter, one cup of sugar, one and one-half cups milk, one egg, one cake of yeast and to make into stiff dough. When risen so that the dough looks like honey-comb form into balls and let rise again and bake.—Chicago Record.

—Apple Charlotte: Rub the bottom and sides of the pudding dish well with butter, slice stale bread thin and line the dish with it. Peel tart apples, cut in small pieces enough to nearly fill the pan, scattering bits of butter and sugar well through it. Soak slices of bread enough to cover the apples, put a plate over to keep the bread close to the apples. Bake in a quick oven.—Womankind.

—Rice Buns: Necessary ingredients: Four ounces of flour, seven ounces of ground rice, six ounces of sugar, six ounces of clarified beef dripping, a teaspoonful of baking powder and two eggs. First cream the dripping and sugar. Mix the flour, ground rice and baking powder together. Stir half the flour, etc., into the butter and sugar, then add a beaten egg, more flour, etc., and the other eggs. Flavor with vanilla essence, and beat the mixture twenty minutes. Grease some pattypans and fill them two-thirds full of this mixture. Place in a hot oven and bake for fifteen minutes. When done turn out on a sieve to cool.—Leed's Mercury.

—Frozen Rice: Two ounces of rice, one pint of milk, four ounces of powdered sugar, one-half ounce of gelatine, one-half pint of whipped cream, one teaspoonful of vanilla. Boil the rice in water five minutes, then pour off the water and add the milk and flavoring. Let all simmer slowly until the rice becomes almost a jelly. When the rice is well cooked add the sugar and gelatine after they have been thoroughly dissolved in water. Put it on the ice to cool, stirring constantly, then add the whipped cream, mixing all thoroughly together. Put into mold with cover and set in ice and salt to form. Beaten cream, in which are stirred grated maccaroons, may be poured over it when served.—Boston Budget.

AMONG THE SHOPS.

Some Shadows That Autumn Fashions Are Now Casting Before.

The smart white mohair gowns of the summer serve admirably as demi-saison dinner toilets.

New belts are of soft gay plaid silk, knotted under a metal clasp at one side, and are suggestively named toreador.

All browns with a reddish tinge are in especial favor for the coming cool season, though no warnrobe will be complete without one good black gown for the street.

The most modish and Parisian house dress seen in a high-class workroom had the double Watteau plait at the front instead of the back. The neck was cut a la pompadour, and the plait extended from it to the hem of the gown. As far as the waist line handsome lace fell each side of the plait, passing over the shoulders to form a sailor collar over the princess back of the gown.

Wide effects continue in millinery. The early autumn hats look very much overloaded in their abundance of ostrich plumes, wide ribbons and elaborate ornaments.

The women who come back to town with black mohair gowns lined in colored silk to match the bodice worn with them need only a small, full cape of black velvet, trimmed with jet Vandykes, to have handsome early autumn toilets.

Framboise or raspberry red is a color that will be much seen in millinery, felt bonnets and hats being shown of this tint.—N. Y. Times.

HOUSE-CLEANING TIME.

Sharp-Witted Women Look Well to the Minor Details.

Sharp-witted city housekeepers do not depend upon servants cleaning their own rooms without supervision. An ounce of prevention that may save a gallon of cure is to thoroughly besprinkle the servant's sleeping quarters with gasoline in the interim between the departure of one and the arrival of the next incumbent. Her trunk and its contents, if they have come from other quarters less carefully looked after, should be thoroughly searched. Hence an eye should be kept on the room from week to week.

If clothes closets have moths in them in spite of your careful spring attempts to keep them out burn sulphur in them. Put the sulphur in an old porcelain dish and set in a wide pan of water, light the sulphur and shut the closet up. Don't go far away, or leave the blaze long unheeded. With the pan of water there is, however, next to no danger that a spark will fly off and set anything on fire. The scintilla of possibility, though, should not be overlooked.

Do not take the screens out of doors and windows yet awhile. The flies will creep into the sunshine in the middle of the cool autumn days and pour into the house for weeks after it is late enough for them to be gone, making havoc of the newly-decorated chandeliers and regilded picture frames and whitened ceilings. — St. Louis Republic.

Round Waists Not Favored.

The round waist and fancy bodice has but a small place in the styles now offered for elegant dresses, but fashions don't change completely all at once, and the dainty waists woman have been wearing are not to be absolutely discarded. They can not but look pretty, at any rate, for the house for many a long day yet. Designers of costumes made from warmer stuffs know this; and many of the woolen house dresses are cut and adorned in close resemblance to fancy waist style. —St. Louis Republic.

Winter Waists.

Shirt waists of woolen materials will be in existence this winter as much as those of wash goods were in summer. Plaids are much liked for misses and young women; changeable effects are eagerly sought for in all kinds of goods. For instance, red and blue changeable waist may be worn with a red or a blue skirt, varying the stock collar to match the skirt. One of changeable green and gold may be worn with a black or green skirt.—Womankind.

HOUSEHOLD MYTHS.

They Are Departing From the Modern Housewife's Mind.

One by one the household myths depart, to keep company with the legend of the apple shooting and the fountain of perpetual youth. A very convenient myth of this class was the belief in "growing pains." The mother used it as the sufficient explanation of certain twinges and nips of pain which assailed her sons and daughters, and she invariably conveyed the idea that they were an inseparable concomitant of the physical expansion and accretion that is the youth's most absorbing ambition. Now comes along one of the close-looking, analyzing, statistical doctors of the period and puts the convenient consolation to flight. He insists that growth is natural and has no pains; but he finds that pains come from overexertion of the muscles, as children will overuse them when entering enthusiastically into their games. If in the leg elevating and rubbing it will soon bring about what the old doctors called a "determination" of healthy blood to the part, which restores the overwrought tissue and gives swift relief. Those pains should not be neglected or overlooked, for children often have the beginnings of rheumatism, although it is generally regarded as a disease of age—that timely care from a skillful man may cure; and nearly all fevers have "pains in the bones" as one of their preliminary stages, so that while "growing pains" as a distinct disorder are gone parents should not be indifferent to the sufferings of adolescence, but should take the "stitch in time."—N. Y. Independent.

The Always Serviceable Waist.

Not to have at least one fancy silk waist is to argue oneself further behind the fashions than the average woman is willing to do, to say nothing of missing a genuine convenience and "stand by," for these waists are suitable just now for more occasions than any other possible toilette. They take the place of the erstwhile indispensable black silk gown without which no woman considered her wardrobe complete. The silk waists are made in two distinct styles, the blouse, or loose, unboned waist, made to wear with a belt and the dressier tight fitting basque terminating just below the waist and finished with a twist of velvet or ribbon of some contrasting color to match the wrinkled collar—which, by the way, has altogether dispensed with projecting ears under the ears of its wearer. The box plait still holds sway, and when not cut on a blouse it may easily be simulated by a fold put on the outside.—Philadelphia Press.

Invitations to Church Weddings.

There is a good deal of dispute in regard to the etiquette of acknowledgment of a card for a church wedding. Some high authorities assert that the invitation is so general and means so little particular attention that no notice need be taken of it except in the regular line of future visits to the bride and to the bride's mother. But Mrs. John Sherwood, who is, probably, our American social oracle, declares that a card is obligatory at the hour of the wedding, if one can not attend, and that if the house address is unknown, this card should be sent to the church. If this is necessary most people err wofully, for few non-attendants send the card.—Chicago Tribune.

"Did you enjoy the concert, Mrs. Barber?" "They wasn't any. A man came out and banged a pianner, while his wife stood beside him shriekin' at him all the time. Seems to me they'd ought to have arrested the woman for interferin'." — Harper's Bazar.

Housekeeper—"Your milk is as thin as water to-day." Milkman—"Well, mum, it was foggy this morning when we milked." —Puck.

Eighteen Hundred Million Mile?

In Milton's great poem of "Paradise Lost" we find these lines:

"Thence, full of anguish driven,
The space of seven continued nights he rode
With darkness: thrice the equinoctial line
He circled; four times across the car of night,
From pole to pole, traversing each colure;
On the eighth returned, and on the coast averse,
From entrance or cherubic watch, by stealth
Found unsuspected sway."

The reference is, of course, to the fall of the "lost spirits," and the distance they must have traveled, according to the hints and allusions in the lines quoted, is exactly 1,832,308,363 miles, 1,120 rods! Quite a tumble, wasn't it? By what process this result was reached, we have not space here to say. Can any of our readers figure it out, and give steps used to "get the answer?" In the meantime, for some interesting figures as to distances between prominent cities by rail, and the cost of tickets via the Burlington Route, address W. J. C. Kenyon, Gen. Pass. ### Trips Undertaken for Health's Sake

Will be rendered more beneficial, and the fatigues of travel counteracted, if the voyager will take along with him Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, and use that protective and enabling tonic, nerve invigorant and appetizer regularly. Impurities in air and water are neutralized by it, and it is a matchless tranquillizer and regulator of the stomach, liver and bowels. It counteracts malaria, rheumatism, and a tendency to kidney and bladder ailments.

KNOWLEDGE

Brings comfort and improvement and tends to personal enjoyment when rightly used. The many, who live better than others and enjoy life more, with less expenditure, by more promptly adapting the world's best products to the needs of physical being, will attest the value to health of the pure liquid laxative principles embraced in the remedy, Syrup of Figs.

Its excellence is due to its presenting in the form most acceptable and pleasant to the taste, the refreshing and truly beneficial properties of a perfect laxative; effectually cleansing the system, dispelling colds, headaches and fevers and permanently curing constipation. It has given satisfaction to millions and met with the approval of the medical profession, because it acts on the Kidneys, Liver and Bowels without weakening them and it is perfectly free from every objectionable substance.

Syrup of Figs is for sale by all druggists in 50c and $1 bottles, but it is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only, whose name is printed on every package, also the name, Syrup of Figs, and being well informed, you will not accept any substitute if offered.

DELANO DIARY

—The Town Pump is fixed! Good.

—Tuesday was a fine day after the bluster of Sunday and Monday. People after reading of the snows down east are very thankful that we are having good weather yet.

—The cold snaps Sunday and Monday nights caught quite a few potatoes which now will do to boil up for pig feed; those safely housed will be more valuable.

—The Delano creamery is to run four days in the week during the winter months. Milk will keep all right at this season of the year, and it will be more convenient for all to make this change.

—With potatoes at 16 cts per hundred and hay at 26cts per hundred, with hay scarce and potatoes plenty, it looks as if the latter might be profitably boiled and fed, to take the place of hay to a large extent.

—Some of our Third Street residents tell a story of a gun, in a wood shed on Sunday evening, uncerimoniously going off, and alarming the family. The proprietor of the premises thinks he has a clue to the cause.

—Thanksgiving is drawing nigh. Fat up your poultry and watch the markets, and when you get a price that will pay sell. Don't wait until Thanksgiving day, or the day before, and all go to market at once and expect to get as much as you would sooner. Well dressed fowls sell best, generally.

—A business meeting of the Epworth League was held at the home of the president Mrs. L. A. Frazee, on Monday evening. It was voted to donate $6 to the Ladies Aid Society to help pay the insurance on the church for three years. Other minor business was transacted, when, after pop corn, the meeting adjourned.

—J. S. Cooper, the Standard Oil Company's man at this place, while doing business in Howard Lake, met with a loss: After he had settled up business for the day, and received his cash last Saturday, he found his pocketbook containing money and accounts had mysteriously disappeared. After remaining over night he departed for home without finding what became of them.

—At 8:41 Wednesday morning the first horse took a drink from the old town pump, since the counsel came to horse senses. Ex-councilman Adam Horsh drove his old white horse hitched to a light wagon up to the trough where Street Commissioner Belt was pumping and in the presence of Ex-Concilman Hiram Dyer and S. S. Ball, Esquire, the noble steed quaffed the beverage as if it was the first he had seen since the town pump broke. Councilman Wittman captured the first pail of "Aqua."

THE TOWN PUMP REPAIRED.

Once again is heard the thump, thump
Of the old town pump;
And now, when you come to town,
You want feel like an old clown,
As you drive your gaunt nag along.
But can proudly hault before the trough
And let him drink, till he has enough.

—Subscribe for the GAZETTE.

—Hutchinson family at the City Hall Thursday, Nov. 7.

—The first snow of the season, only a slight flurry, came Sunday evening.

—Yesterday was a typical fall day, and was much enjoyed after the cold snap.

—Several young skaters tried their skill on the river a short time yesterday morning.

—A large number of Delanoites attended the funeral of Misss Nellie Jacobs at Rockford, last Sunday.

—Elmer S. Babb says he likes a fair square dealing man even if he is advanced agent for a concert troupe.

—Drive to town when you have business, water your horses at the town pump, and stop in and get a GAZETTE.

—Last night the boys remembered it was halloeen night and this morning things about town caused the older heads to become aware of the fact.

—Exhibitions of cowboy skill were given by several young men, yesterday afternoon while endeavoring to round up a herd of cattle that had broken out of the stock yard of the R. R. Company.

—Look out for chicken theives. It said several farmers at Eden Praire have lost their years crop, a few days ago. Some of the poultry raisers in this vicinity had a little experance a few years ago. Don't be caught this time.

—An epidemic of Jaundice, mostly among children is haying a run in the vicinity of Rockford and in Hennepin County. Some of the patients are quite sick others keep about. Some malarial fever, has also made its appearance, as well as several cases of typhoid fever.

—The town pump is now ready for as much handshaking and spouting as you please, and the handles do not point towards the GAZETTE office either.—Eagle.

We enjoy seeing the thirsty horses drink, before departing for home after a long drive, or hours spent in town, all the same.

Personals.

Tom Lanway is home again from the West.

Duane Chapel, of Minneapolis, was in town Monday.

I. Gutzwiller, Jr. took a trip to Waverly last Saturday.

Con Czock, of Montrose, called on Delano friends today.

John Czock, of Minneapolis, was a Delano visitor today.

Al Hitsman and threshing crew are home from the west.

Will Sleight and Charley Mills have returned from the Dakotas.

D. W. Flannigan, of Waverly, came down on this morning's train.

Miss Ollie Wiese came home Monday morning from Minneapolis.

S. D. Putnam, of Buffalo, was visiting Delano friends Saturday.

A. F. Mrocok took a trip to the Gities Wednesday on business.

Fred Brandes, of Leudeman, was over seeing the folks, Monday.

W. Sidney Belt, of Woodland, made Delano relatives a visit Saturday.

Mrs. James Stoddart, of Rockford, was a business visitor to Delano, Monday.

Joe Merriman and Darv Welker have returned from their western expedition.

Isaac S. Podas, formerly of Buffalo, now gets his mail at 3343, 4th Ave. S., Minneapolis.

Mrs. M. J. Mulford visited her sister, Mrs. M. A. Chance, at Minneapolis, last night.

Dr. C. H. Kohler, of Minneapolis, was a pleasant caller Wednesday, on his way to Watertown.

Frank Japs returned Tuesday evening from Wheaton where he has been at work. He is down with typhoid.

Swan Erickson went to Waverly Monday to put some finishing touches on the new Presbyterian church at that place.

John Mayer, dispatcher at Great Falls visited home this week. The young folks gave him a surprise Wednesday evening.

Valentine Epple, Jr., returned Wednesday evening from near Moreton, Dak. He says John Haffner is getting along all right.

Dr. J. H. Dunn, of Minneapolis, spent a part of Sunday in town on his way home from Watertown where he had been in consultation.

John O'Hair, the gentlemanly clerk of the Brunswich Hotel, Minneapolis, came down from Waverly, where he had been visiting friends, Monday evening.

Misses Alta Clark and Lizzie Kimball spent Sunday in the Cities. Miss Ellen Clark and Miss Mary and Alva Catlin drove to Wayzata to meet them. A pretty cold trip.

Miss Josephine Kephart departed Tuesday morning for Minneapolis, after an enjoyable visit of four weeks with her sister and parents, Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Kephart.—Todd County Argus.

County Cullings.

Milk cows appear to be the best paying property since the creamefy craze struck the country.

John Davis, of St. Paul, formerly of Woodland, and a brother of Mrs. Wm. Quinn, of Waverly, died, of heart disease last week. He was buried at Watertown.

Hogs are dying off at a lively rate in the southern part of the state with some epidemic. Don't keep a pen full fat, and ready for market until you loose them all.

We are sorry to learn that William Cochrane, of Buffalo, has had to have his eye, which has been troubling him for some time, removed, in order to save the other eye.

Ex-County Auditor Heath, of Buffalo recently returned from Washington. we understand that he likes that country and says that O. J. Stewart is thriving nicely, there.

With cotagious diseases raging with more than usual violence near by, Wright County Commissioners should be on the alert to promptly and effectually quarantine the first apperance of anything of the kind, and obviate the necessity of jangling over a few paltry dollars for quarentine services, while the diseases spread and the inhabitants die.

We are sorry to learn that our neighbor Howard Lake, has taken a backward step in school matters. Education, now-a-days, must be obtained by the young person who would rise in the world. Yet many of the most learned men of the past, and of the present never had a chance to graduate at a high school. If Howard has any truly great coming men and women they will not be cast down by the lack of facilities, even though they should be obliged to come to Delano, where they will be welcome, to graduate in the High School.

It is Something Like This.

C. H. VORSE.—"I think Clerk of Court O'Leary's old shoes about my style. Guess I'll try them on anyway, even though it be Hobson's choice."

A. Y. EATON.—"I think O'Leary should keep his office another year, and give all Republican candidates an equal chance for '96."

C. H. FRENCH.—"It is a put up job. It was promised to Vorse before last election, and the Judges are bound to deliverer the goods, whether anybody else gets anything or not."

J. C. O'LEARY.—Och! shure and it's meself as thinks times be hard and I'm after needing to wear out me own auld shoes. O'i dunno lonk to give 'em up at all, at all."

It is evident that the second generation of the Hutchinsons have lost none of the vim, dash and vigor, none of the culture and true musical genius, of the old stock.—Winnebago Enterprise, Nov. 8, 1894.

Among Our Exchanges.

Heafter the Litchfield meat markets will not open on Sunday.—News Ledger.

Red Wing intends to change the weekly school holiday from Saturday to Monday.—St. Peter Herald.

President Cleveland evidently mislaid that page of his Atlanta speech in which he was to come out strong for George Washington for a third term.—Minneapolis Times.

According to the daily newspapers a great wave of prosperity is flooding the country, and yet there are a half-dozen or more bank failures every day in the land.—Broad Axe.

It begins to look as though the Venezuela question would have to be settled in some way soon. Will our government back down, or will it uphold the Monroe doctrine? Preceding administrations have upheld the doctrine even when we were not in as good condition to do so as we are now.—Sherburne County Times.

L. C. Long, the oft-time candidate for congress on the Pop ticket, has engaged in the general mercantile business. When runing for office everyone not a farmer was dishonest and preying upon the vitals of farmers. It must be either that he was playing the demagogue then or he is doing the preying now.—Lake Benton News,

The Duluth Evening Herald asks for the resignation of W. B. Mitchell, resident director of the St. Cloud Normal school. Mr. Mitchell is accused of using his position for his own personal benefit, to the detriment of the school, and the accusation does not appear to have been met with successful denial. If the facts are what they appear to be from this distance, the Herald's position in the matter is right.—Brainerd Journal,

Probably no people ever took more pains to please and to entertain a company than did the people of Nashville upon the recent trip of the Minnesota editoral excursion, and it is to be regretted that the hospitalties of the occasion were marred by the unmannerly efforts of the drunkard makers of Tennessee to advertise their hell broth of insanity and intoxication by distributing souvenirs of bottled whiskey and beer. The man must be ill-bred indeed, in this day and age, who will offer intoxicating liquor to a stranger.—Waseca County Herald.

It appears to the News that the application of the Monroe doctrine to the Venezuela dispute is far fetched. It might be accepted as good policy to go to war with a European nation that should undertake to set up a Monarchy on this continent as the Emperor Louis Napoleon did in Mexico, but in this case, which is a dispute as to boundary line between British Guiana and Venezuela, we are of opinion that an administration that should involve this nation in war over it with Great Britain, two of the supposed to be most enlightened nations of the globe, by meddling on behalf of Venezuela, on pretence that England was violating the Monroe doctrine, would receive the condemnation of an overwhelming majority of the American people.—Moorhead News.

Notices have been posted by order of our Village Council, calling for a special election to be held November 4th to determine whether Maple Lake shall pay a bonus of three hundred dollars for a newspaper. The gentleman who made such a proposition has many friends and relatives here, but our Council scarcely felt warranted in giving public money for private enterprise without the consent of the voters—more especially as the former effort to start a paper here by the aid of a bonus proved so disastrous. Some of our people also feel that a mill or some public improvements would be better objects of a bonus. Sentiment in the matter is considerably divided and it is difficult to predict the outcome of the voting.—Maple Lake dept. Post.

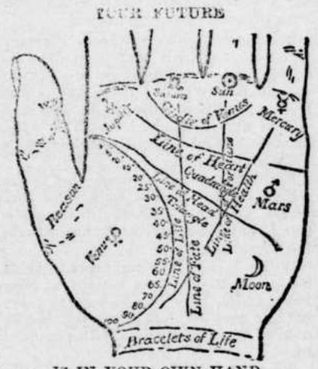
YOUR FUTURE



IS IN YOUR OWN HAND.

Palmistry assumes to tell what the lines in your hand indicate. It will amuse you, if nothing more. The above diagram almost explains itself. The breath of the LINE OF LIFE indicates probable age to which you will live. Each BRACELET adds you thirty years. Well merited LINE OF HEAD denotes brain power; clear LINE OF FORTUNE, fame or riches. Both combined mean success in life; but you must keep up with modern ideas to win it. You will find plenty of these in Demorest's Family Magazine, so attractively presented that every member of the family is entertained. It's a dozen magazines in one. A CLEAR LINE OF HEART bespeaks tenderness; a straight LINE OF FATE, peaceful life; the reverse if crooked. A well defined LINE OF HEALTH spares you doctors' bills; so will the health hints in Demorest's. No other magazine publishes so many stories to interest the home circle. You will be subject to extremes of high spirits or despondency if you have the GIRDLE OF VENUS well marked. Keep up your spirits by having Demorest's Magazine to read. By subscribing to it for 1896 you will receive a gallery of exquisite works of art of great value, besides the superb premium picture, 17x22 inches, "I'm a Daisy!" which is almost a real baby, and equal to the original oil painting which cost $300; and you will have a magazine that cannot be equaled by any in the world for its beautiful illustrations and subject matter, that will keep you posted on all the topics of the day, and all the fads, and different items of interest about the household, besides furnishing interesting reading matter, both grave and gay, for the whole family; and while Demorest's is not a fashion magazine, its fashion plates are perfect, and you get with it, free of cost, all the patterns you wish to use during the year, and in any size you choose. Send in your subscription at once, only $2.00, and you will really get over $25.00 in value. Address the publisher, W. Jennings Demorest, 15 East 14th St., New York. If you are unacquainted with the Magazine, send for a specimen copy. A large QUADRANGLE means honesty; a large TRIANGLE, generosity; long FIRST DIVISION OF THUMB, strong will; LONG SECOND DIVISION, reasoning faculty. The MOUNT OF JUPITER betokens ambition; that of SATURN, prudence; the SUN, love of splendor; MARS, courage; MOON, imagination; VENUS, love of pleasure; and MERCURY, intelligence. Take our advice as above and you will be sure to possess the best and most valuable quality.

P. H. KERWIN, of Olivia, has been appointed Surveyor General, of Minnesota.

PERHAPS the Democratic bosses have had all the Third Term nonsense they care for now.

EUGENE FIELD, of Chicago, the noted author, journalist and humorist died suddenly on Monday, the 4th inst.

WE understand that some of the young ladies of the University think that too much attention is bestowed upon the foot ball team; and these thoughts are not inispired by green eyed jealousy either.

ST. PAUL has concluded to have a carnival of winter sports, although they may have no ice palace, they can doubtless make an interesting time for all visitors. They had better not announce it too early in the season but wait for winter weather.

IF the St. Cloud people are as anxious to get rid of their Resident Director of the Normal School as they appear to be they should get up a petition and send it to Governor David Clough. The Governor is noted for hearing petitions, even to letting the convicts out of the Penetentiary.

FROM the St. Peter Herald we learn that T. J. McDermott, Chairman of the State Democratic Central Committee, who was interviewed, while there, visiting his mother, is not and will not be a candidate for Governor or any other office. That's just the kind of a Governor Minnesota wants; and Tom is too good a Democrat to refuse the nomination of his party for such a prize.

THE Aitkin Republican published a call for a non partizan meeting of those favoring the Anderson bill. Meetings are to be held in other places and a united effort made to enlighten voters on the question of taxing unused rail road lands; and a united effort will be made to educate the voters of the state in the propriety of voting for the taxation of unused railroad lands, of which several northern counties have a large number of acres.

ELECTIONS were held on Tuesday in 13 States. New York, Massachusetts, New Jersey, Maryland, Pennesylvania Ohio, Kentucky, Virginia, Iowa, Nebraska, Utah, Mississippi are claimed by Republicans, in most cases by increased majorities. In some states, one thing was made an issue, in others something else had to be settled. Mississippi made her fight for free silver. The Democrats favoring free coinage and winning.

SONEBODY seems intent on getting up a clash of arms somewhere, at sometime, and it seems to matter little to them who the fighters are or where and when it takes place: just so it occurrs. Boundry lines in Alaska is the latest cause given; boundry lines in Venezuela, Seal fishing, firing on vessels, imprisoning of citizens of one country by another and the money question, and tariff, labor, whiskey and all sorts of excuses are given for getting up a war, and still war does not come. It is rumors of war only, in most cases. If newspapers would talk peace instead of war it would be like pouring oil on the troubled waters and peace would prevail.

THE last election is a pretty well mixed up mess. On the face of it, it looks like a Republican land slide; down a little deeper can be figured out that the bosses in both old parties have had quite a shaking up. Republicans are taught to stick to the party through thick and thin, and when anyone else is disaffected and votes with them, or refuses to vote, they reap the benefit, and elect their men, Democrats are dissatisfied about a third term; about the failure of the Democratic Congress to reduce the McKinley bill to where they promised to; and about the conspiring together of Democrats and Republicans to force a gold standard upon the people against their will; and with the boss system in vogue; having little interest in the success of their own nominees either staved away from the polls and allowed the G. O. P. to take every thing, or aided them in doing so, perhaps; as they did last fall in Minnesota when they failed to vote for Gen. Becker, against whom the Republicans would not say a word, and voted for Governor Knute Nelson, simply to prevent the election of S. E. Owens. Had the Republicans not been so dyed in the wool, perhaps they might have left Mr. Nelson and voted for Gen. Becker rather than have the Populists win. But the democrats seem to be doing business on that plan all along the line. If they ever hope for a reasonable amount of success they must abide by their principles, do as they agree, and vote their honest convictions; quit doing things for policy, then will the people once more be with them and they will have a hand in directing the affairs of a contented constituency.

OUR TRIP SOUTH.

A Day at Chattanooga and Chickamauga Battle Fields.

The Editorial Excursion came in sight of Lookout Mountain at a very early hour in the morning; and, soon after drew up at the depot where the party left the cars for the day. We were furnished a special train from Nashville, where we had remained over time to hear the famous Taylor brothers Alf and Bob, in Yankee Doodle and Dixie, through the kindness of Mr. J. L. Edmonson, P. A. of the Nashville, Chattonooga and St. Louis R'y. The railroad people all treated us well, and in this section of country they did not fall behind. The road is substantially built, the scenery is fine and we ran on time.

On getting out of the cars at Chattanooga the first people to meet us were a couple of little negro boys with the Chattanooga Times, Mayor Och's paper, for sale; they soon disposed of their stock, and hurriedly ran for more, quickly returning followed by more peddlers the crowd was soon reading All About the Minnesota Editors. After a good breakfast at the Read House, carriages appeared at the door and the party started for a trip over the battlefields and the National Cemetery. The conveyance in which we rode contained three ladies and five men besides the driver. H. Clay Evans who, it is claimed was elected Governor of Tennessee last year but counted out, pilated the party. Our driver, preferring not to drive in the dust of such a crowd went first to the National Cemetery, near town, where we saw in well kept grounds, row after row of white marble slabs bearing the name, and regiment of thousands of soldiers. A large part of the beautiful knoll contained square, white gravestones marking the last burial place of thousands of unknown dead; of bones found unmarked, and to whom they belonged it is now impossible to tell. Many fine monuments are to be seen, marking officers and others graves; a conspicuous one bearing on its top a locomotive is in honor of the Andrews Raders, who ran off with an engine but were captured. The Lieutenant detailed to care for the cemetery lives on a knoll, near the center of this great city of the dead.

From here we drove a short distance to Orchard Knob, where General U. S. Grant had his headquarters at one time; this is a round topped hill near Missionary Ridge and between it and Chattanooga giving a fine view of the surrounding country, where was fought one of the most important battles of the war in 1863. On the side of Missionary Ridge, stands a high tower, near where we were told stands a tall marble shaft marking the place where the 2nd Minnesota made their gallant charge. Our guide didn't appear to know what was there, and didn't take us to the spot, and we not being sure allowed him to drive on up the ridge to General Bragg's headquarters, on a commanding eminence. From there we could see Chattanooga at the foot of the ridge on the west with Lookout Mountain a little further west and the Tennessee River to the north; into this narrow plat, little more than a mile in width, with a mountain on either hand and the river in front and Bragg's army threatening them with a line twelve miles in length stretching away from the river on one side around to the river on the other side, occupping the mountain tops where they could get a view of the entire camp, had Gen. Rosecrans and his army been driven from Chickamauga. And when the situation of the city and the predicament into which Rosecran's forces had been driven were understood the questions of "Why didn't they leave them there?" (the Confederates on the hilltops,) were no longer asked as the stories of the battle above the clouds and Missionary Ridge were told. When Gen. Grant came to relieve the famishing army from its perilous situation he placed a pontoon bridge across the river and shelled the hills, and the soldiers charged up the hills and mountain's side.

After driving the length of the ridge we crossed the Tennessee line into Georgia and viewed the Chickamauga battlefield. We passed through Rossville Gap, drove by Clouds on to Snodgrass Hill where the gallant Minnesota 2nd Reg. stood their ground so manfully and which is marked by one of the finest and most costly monuments on the grounds. The bronze figures surmounting the marble is pronounced a splendid piece of workmanship; it represents three soldiers, one holding the colors, one kneeling with gun in hand, the other dying from a wound just received. The old log house where the Snodgrass family lived, and which served as Gen. Thomas' headquarters still stands close by; and a number of mounds were pointed out as the graves of several members of the family. We passed the widow Glenn's place where her house was burned, during the battle. Near by is the huge stone monument being erected by general Wilder to mark where his command did some hot work. From here we went on to Crawfish Springs, near where General Rosecrans had headquarters for awhile and after dinner at the Park Hotel we started on the return to Chattanooga accompanied by Col. W. M. Cockrum, of Indiana, who as a commissioner of the state was superintending the placing in position the Indiana monuments. We found the Col. very well posted and a first class man to point out the principal objects of interest; having lain for 17 days wounded, on the battlefield, he was familiar with much of the details of the engagement. Lee & Gordon's mill was among the first places on this road and from there on for several miles some hard fighting was done. The monuments are thick all along the line, and the Col. informed us that the dead were so thick that one could walk on them for an acre or more. We saw the monument to the 2nd Minnesota Battery near this road. Indiana, Ohio, Michigan and Illinois monuments were well distributed over the field.

In the hurried manner one must look at every thing in going over these historic grounds in one day he can have little time for anything else but satisfying his curiosity; reflection will be indulged in when more leisure hours come. In order to thoroughly appreciate the visit several days must be consumed. The first day they might do as we did, go over all they could; then, after locating everything, the points of particular interest to them, could be looked more carefully over; then begin where one army was located at the beginning of the battle and follow its tracks to the close. Then the other army's course could be traced and time taken to compare notes and think over the terrors of war; its awful consequences; of the deaths, and ghastly wounds, and the battlefield after the battle; of the after lives of the survivors; of the widows, and orphans, and friends whose hearthstones have a vacant chair; and of the uselessness of war, and of the blessings of peace.

The United States Government has expended a large sum of money in procuring and fixing up this National Park and Cemetery at this place. The different states whose troops were in the battle have spent thousands of dollars in erecting monuments and many thousands more are to be spent. Good wagon roads now traverse the entire grounds; where the soldiers had to get through the brush and rough country, and through the swamps, and up the hills and mountain's side as best they could their friends now travel in carriages, on good roads. Where friends now go, carefully looking up where their loved ones took part, in a few years, doubtless, sightseers will rush recklessly along, on electric cars, thoughtlessly gazing at the beautiful monuments and grounds.

Things are being arranged, as nearly as possible, as they were at the time of the battle. Cannons are placed where they were in the hottest of the fight. Monuments are erected where different state's troops took an active part. Guideboards giving names of commanders, and numbers of corps, and other information are placed at convenient places. The boards are black and those giving the Federal positions have white borders and white letters; those indicating Confederate lines have red letters and borders. So it is possible by simply observing the colors to locate the important stands and charges made. In many places these colors and the rows of cannons are quite close together; indicating that the engagement was a warm one, and at short range.

The Chattanooga National Park and Cemetery have already become popular places to spend a few days, for those who are taking an outing; and is destined to become still more so as its attractiveness becomes more known.

Our load hurried and arrived at the hotel just in time to catch the last street car load for St. Elmo, to take the incline and narrow guage railroal trains for Lookout Inn, on the top of Lookout Mountain.

Poles of Winona Object to Being Classified as Russians.

There has been another Polish revolt, but it was one of the quiet revolutions, though by no means silent, and the Poles have carried the day. The revolt occurred in Winona, and was against the action of the census bureau in classing them among the Russians. They want to be classed as natives of Poland, since they are not natives of either Russia or the United States. Representative Blagik led the Polish forces, and Secretary of State Berg promptly granted the concession demanded. When the official report appears the natives of Poland, who reside in Winona, and there is a host of them, will not be classed as Russians. —St. Paul Dispatch

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 1, 1895.

President Cleveland has, in accordance with his usual custom, moved from the White House out to his suburban residence, in order to put in more time upon his message to Congress than he could possibly do when liable to almost constant interruptions from callers whom he would not care to decline seeing. These he is entirely free from at his suburban residence as no one goes there to call upon him unless specially invited. While not stated as a certainty, there are good reasons for the belief that the annual message to Congress will not deal with the diplomatic controversy with England over the application of the Monroe doctrine in Venezuela, further that to say that the whole subject will be fully treated in a special message which will follow the annual message and be accompanied by the diplomatic correspondence. The President and every member of the cabinet are well pleased with the present status of this Venezuela matter, and very confident that they will be still better pleased a little later. A diplomatic victory is preferable to one acheived by the use of powder and ball, in some cases. And this is one of the cases.

If proof was needed that the real purpose of the public meeting held last night, for the ayowed purpose of expressing the sympathy of the citizens of Washington for the Cuban revolutionists, was to embarrass the administration and make republican partisan capital it was furnished in great big chunks by the names of those who controlled the meeting, made the speeches and wrote the resolutions adopted. Every man of them was a republican. The presiding officer was the notorious "corpal" Tanner, the writer of the resolutions was Dr. Rankin, president of the Howard University, the negro college which is partly maintained at public expense, and the only woman speaker was Mrs. John A. Logan.

Judge Lochren, Commissioner of Pensions, has a paragraph in his annual report headed "Patriotism and Pensions," in which he says: "Those men who enlisted early and fought the battles of the war were not moved by mercenary considerations, and unless actually disabled did not show the haste in applying for pensions manifested by those who enlisted near the close of the war for large bounties, and did little actual service, and who are now the noisiest in clamoring for more pensions. As compared with this latter class the real soldiers of the war have been modest in preferring claims for pensions." The figures in the report are interesting. June 30th, 1894, there were on the rolls 969,544 pensioners; during the year following 39,185 new names were added and 4,205 names of those which had been restored. There were 27,816 deaths, and 14,575 names were dropped for other causes, making the net increase of the total number of pensioners for the fiscal year ending June 30, last 860. The appropriation for the year covered by the report was $150,000,000, and Judge Lochren's estimate for the next fiscal year is $140,000,000.

Ex-Congressman Bynum, of Ind., is one of the few men who regards Mr. Harrison's chances for the republican nomination as being ahead of either those of Reed, McKinley or Allison. He says Mr. Harrison is stronger with his party in Indiana than ever before and that the Indiana republicans are going to get him nominated if such a thing is possible. Speaking of the democratic nomination Mr. Bynum said: on the democratic side there is much talk in favor of Col. Morrison, and he has many friends in all parts of our country. My opinion is that evidently democratic sentiment will center on Secretary Carlisle. He is well liked in the North and East, and in the South his nomination would create tremendous enthusiasm."

Representative Forman of Ill., who has been on the stump in Kentucky, Maryland and New Jersey, arrived in Washington this week. He says he hasn't the slightest doubt that all three states will go democratic.

Senator Olney has received a copy of the proceedings, of the French court martial which sentenced the negro Waller, who is a Ex U. S. Consul, to twenty years inprovement under the charge of having betrayed French military movements in Madagascar, and the wife of the imprisoned man has given the Secretary all the information in her possession, documentary and otherwise. It cannot be stated what Mr. Olney thinks of the case, but others who have had access to the information regard the outlook for Waller as a bad one, and say that the case has been misrepresented for political effect by certain republican newspapers.

Sir Julian Pauncefote, the British Ambassador, and Secretary Olney are engaged in negotiating a convention to determine the amount of damages sustained by the owners of Canadian sealing vessels which were seized in Bering Sea by this Government before the arbitration of the claims of the two countries. It is expected it will be completed before Congress meets.

STATISTICS aver that since bicycling has become a popular pastime, the rubber trade, in consequence, has risen probably $5,000,000 within the last 18 months.

WOMEN have worn their hats punched into so many extraordinary shapes that it seems more or less remarkable that they have never yet conceived the idea of wearing them inside out.

"THE coming woman" has been here all the while, and will doubtless stay. The world without her would be one great, blank page, and life not worth living for longer than a week.

THE cranberry crop has been reported short, but here comes Cape Cod and reports "a great crop of 125,000 bushels." It is a big country to give thanks for, and the best on all this green earth.

THE Brewers' Journal states that English syndicates have $91,000,000 invested in American breweries, the dividends on which last year, at nine per cent., were $8,190,000, and were paid in gold.

THE Chinese have a singularly complicated calendar. Their cycles have 60 years—each year, month and day having its own name; and by combining these the day, month and year are designated.

GEN. GRANT, after his tour around world, predicted that at no distant day China and Japan would take 5,000,000 bales of American cotton every year. Southern planters believe the time is near at hand.

THE bottlers of the United States employ 26,738 men, serve 1,489,038 customers, use 23,940 horses, have invested $41,573,469, use annually $12,747,633 worth of bottles, and the loss and breakage amounts to $3,522,804.

A KANSAS court has ruled that "a man who calls upon a woman regularly, and takes her to entertainments occasionally, is legally engaged to marry her." Young men in that state cannot be too careful about paying attentions to their mothers.

THE old guns of 16 and 20 inch caliber at Fort Hamilton, N. Y., are giving place to weapons of smaller bore. But the new cannon will carry a shell ten miles, or four times the range of the old ones, and can also be fired with much greater precision.

CHINA is alarmed about "the new woman." It is reported that the governor of Kwang-Shau-Fu has issued an edict prohibiting women's clubs and admonishing the women who belong to them to return to their husbands within one month. "Contumacious wives will be taken back to their husbands by the police," says the proclamation, in conclusion.

THE figures presented by an English mathematician showing that the sun will burn itself out and all living creatures pertaining to the solar system perish in 10,000,000 years may be accepted as approximately correct. No lease should be granted for a longer term than 9,999,999 years, and all attempts to discover the north pole may as well be abandoned at once. There isn't time.

JOSEPH B. CROWLEY, United States treasury agent in charge of the seal islands, says the seals have approached so closely to extermination that they can now be counted. Naturalists from all parts of the world, anticipating the herd's extinction, are clamoring for specimens. He believes that this winter measures will be adopted by the United States and Great Britain to provide adequate protection for the remnant of the herd.

A RIVER larger than any other stream in the province of Quebec, a vast area af timber lands and unknown country suitable for agricultural purposes, is what Dr. Robert Bell, assistant director of the geological survey, who has just returned to Ottawa, Can., from a trip to St. James bay, reports having discovered. This new river, for which the Indians have no name, is much larger than the Ottawa, and Dr. Bell affirms it to be the sixth of the great rivers of the world. The river banks are heavily wooded with pine, spruce, tamarack, balsam, and white birch.

THE death of King Menelek II., of Abyssinia, removes from the world's stage a picturesque figure, even though his role was a minor one. There will be a difference of opinion as to whether this semi-barbarian chieftain was a hero or a monster. That he fought heroically in attempting to expel the Italian invaders from his borders cannot be denied, but his inhumanity and cruelty to captives made his name infamous. Menelek devoted his life to blocking the path of civilization in Africa, and his death is in some ways a matter of congratulation.

IN the controversy over the boundary of Alaska there is little difference of opinion as to the terms of the treaty. This provides that the strip of land extending southward from Mount St. Elias some 300 miles shall be ten marine leagues in width. The Canadian authorities claim that this means ten leagues from the outer coast of the line of islands extending along the main coast and not from the coast line proper. The claim is too ridiculous to receive serious consideration, and it will not. The other questions pertaining to the boundary turn on exact surveys and calculations.

FROM WASHINGTON.

A statement of the public debt issued on the 1st showed that the debt increased $5,341,472 during the month of October. The cash balance in the treasury was $179,947,998. The total debt, less the cash balance in the treasury, amounts to $946,431,168.

Exchanges at the leading clearing houses in the United States during the week ended on the 1st aggregated $1,082,880,957, against $1,148,708,311 the previous week. The increase, compared with the corresponding week in 1894, was 17.1.

The republicans of the 54th congress will meet in Washington on the 30th inst. to nominate a speaker, clerk, doorkeeper, sergeant-at-arms, postmaster and chaplain for the house.

In the United States there were 299 business failures in the seven days ended on the 1st, against 231 the week previous and 259 in the corresponding time in 1894.

The United States supreme court adjourned until Monday, November 11.

HOLMES TO HANG.

The Arch-Fiend Found Guilty of the Murder of Pitzel.

Jury Requires But a Moment to Decide Upon His Fate—The Verdict a Surprise to Many—Brief Resume of the Trial.

Philadelphia, Nov. 4.—Henry H. Holmes was convicted of murder in the first degree at 8:51 o'clock Saturday night for killing Benjamin F. Pitzel. He coughed slightly when he heard the words. That was the only sign.

The jury retired to deliberate at 5:40 o'clock. According to one of their number, they had reached their verdict before the doors of their room closed upon them. For hunger's sake they ate their supper first. Then they took a ballot, and without hesitation every man of the 12 answered: "Guilty of murder in the first degree."

At 8:40 o'clock there was a bustle of moving people in the packed courtroom and it became known that the jury was coming in. A moment later Judge Arnold took his seat. District Attorney Graham and his assistants entered and the jury filed solemnly in and took their seats in the box. Then, amid an oppressive silence, Holmes was brought in and placed in the dock. For a moment there was not a sound. The silence was literally painful and every heart in that crowded room throbbed faster. The man who was about to hear his doom pronounced stood erect in the dock, the same death like pallor on his face. He stared at the jury blankly, his hands clasped behind his back. Once or twice he moistened his lips with his tongue. There was no other sign of agitation. Then, from a deep-voiced court clerk came the request to the jury for their verdict. The condemning words came promptly from the foreman: "Guilty of murder in the first degree."

Then the jury was polled, and as each name was called Holmes wrote it on the margin of a newspaper in his hand, and the fingers holding the pencil never shook. The verdict was formally recorded by the court, the motion for a new trial was made, and Holmes was taken to his cellroom and a few moments later to prison. Then the jury was thanked for its attention and labors and sent home, the court adjourned and the most extraordinary case in the annals of American courts was ended.

Immediately after the announcement of the verdict the usual application for leave to file a motion for a new trial was made. District Attorney Graham did not oppose the motion, and Judge Arnold fixed the 18th of this month for a hearing. The principal reason urged will be lack of time for the preparation of the defense. Should a new trial be refused, an appeal will be taken to the supreme court, and argument heard at its next sitting in this city, January, 1896.

Mr. Graham made the argument for the prosecution and Mr. Rotan that for the defense.

Judge Arnold, in his charge to the jury, began with the usual definition of the various degrees of murder and manslaughter, and read several passages from the penal code of Pennsylvania. He instructed the jury to direct their thoughts to the question whether the prisoner had committed murder, and, if so, of what degree. If the commonwealth had proved that it was a wilful, deliberate and premeditated murder, then he was guilty of murder in the first degree. If persuaded that it was suicide and not murder, or if there was a reasonable doubt in the minds of the jurors they must acquit.

The verdict returned by the jury was a surprise to many persons who did not believe the crime had been fastened upon Holmes beyond a reasonable doubt. When these heard of it they said: "Well, it was on general principles, and it's just as good." That, however, is not the meaning of the law, but everybody agrees that "it's just as good." There is no word of pity or sympathy for the condemned felon. He is regarded as a menace to society.

During the trial the commonwealth presented no direct proof that Holmes had murdered Pitzel. Their chain of circumstantial evidence even was not as strong as had been expected, and but for the admissions of Holmes himself at various times, the district attorney would have had a most difficult task in making a case at all.

Herman W. Mudgett, better known as H. H. Holmes, the self-confessed life insurance swindler, and the alleged multi-murderer, was placed on trial for his life on Monday, October 28. At the outset the defense asked for a postponement of the case for 60 days, claiming they had not had time enough to prepare themselves and bring their witnesses to the city. This being refused, quite a sensation was created by the withdrawal of the counsel for the defense. Holmes refused other counsel offered by the court and said he would conduct his own case. The questions he put to the jurors as they came up showed great shrewdness. Holmes also showed much skill in his cross-examination of the state's witnesses on Thursday evening at Holmes' request and by permission of the court the attorneys for the defense resumed charge of the case. Wednesday afternoon Mrs. Pitzel was on the witness stand. She told of her various meetings with Holmes, and of the latter's associations with Pitzel. Her story was told simply, and the cross-examination was unable to develop anything favorable to the defense, but if anything only strengthened the story of Holmes' cold-blooded knavery. Later she identified the portrait of her husband and the valise he had when he left home.

Thursday things looked a little more favorable for the defense. This resulted from two rulings of Judge Arnold. The first was a refusal to allow certain letters written by the Pitzel children to their mother to be read in court. The second was a decision thwarting the plan of the prosecution to drag the fate of the two children into the present case. But these were but negative advantages, and outside of confusing the prosecuting attorneys for a time had little effect.

Holmes on Friday threw himself on the mercy of the jury. His attorneys announced that they considered the prosecution had not made out its charge of murder and they would rest their case upon the evidence offered by the commonwealth and submit no testimony in defense of the prisoner.

Probably the decision of the jury was most influenced by the fact that it had been shown by expert testimony that Pitzel could not have committed suicide, the chloroform having been injected into the stomach after death, and apparently the only one to atill benefit by Pitzel's death was Holmes.

BIG STRIKE FEARED.

Trouble Between Great Northern President and A. R. U. Men.

St. Paul, Minn., Nov. 2.—It looks as if another great strike was about to be inaugurated on the Great Northern system. An American Railway union mediation committee came here on the 30th, and from that date until Friday noon tried to secure an interview directly with President Hill, which they said was provided for in the agreement of May, 1894. Mr. Hill refused to hear the men, but referred them to General Manager Warren, who turned them down with a brief note to the effect that they were not employes of the company. The committee, Friday evening, addressed a letter to Mr. Hill stating that as he had absolutely refused to treat with it, the matter was again in the hands of the men, who would demonstrate the fact that the members of the committee do represent the employes of the company. In an address to the public the committee says:

"The great body of wage-earners, business men and farmers all along the Great Northern system are with the American Railway union as against corporate tyranny. The people of this country need not be surprised to see the Great Northern system tied up tighter than a drum from St. Paul to the coast, and remain so until President Hill signs the documents which the men have prepared, and which are nothing more than the fulfillment of the agreement made in May, 1894, by President J. J. Hill for the Great Northern system and President Eugene V. Debs for the American Railway union. Our men are opposed to strikes, but they are the only means they have for protection against wrong and imposition, and Mr. Hill has left them nothing else to do unless they want to accept slavery."

Kalispell, Mont., Nov. 5.—After a session lasting until two o'clock Monday morning the local branch of the American Railway union passed a resolution to call out the men on the Montana division of the Great Northern railway. Under the leadership of Roy Goodwin, director of the union, six or eight members of the union took possession of the roundhouse and ditched and killed several engines and ran several cars into the turntable. Goodwin and his gang soon got into collision with the police and six of them, including the leader, were placed under arrest to be given a hearing Tuesday. A gang of men was at once set to work at the turntable and succeeded late in the afternoon in getting trains going again. Engineers and firemen who were not members of the A. R. U. remained at their posts and took out trains both ways.

West Superior, Wis., Nov. 5.—Engineer William Best, one of the A. R. U. committee of three appointed to confer with President Hill, of the Great Northern, was notified of his discharge Monday night. Best is also president of the local A. R. U. organization. He was regarded as one of the best engineers on the road, and won a reputation during the great Hinckley fire, in September, 1894, by saving a train load of passengers from the fire.

THE PUBLIC DEBT.

Monthly Statement Shows an Increase During October.

Washington, Nov. 2.—The debt statement shows a net increase in the public debt, less cash in the treasury, during October of $5,321,472.08. The interest-bearing debt was increased $740; the noninterest-bearing debt decreased $116,632.85, and cash in the treasury decreased $5,437,364.93. The balances of the several classes of debt at the close of business October 31 were: Interest-bearing debt, $747,361,560; debt on which interest has ceased since maturity, $1,681,670.26; debt bearing no interest, $377,335,876.64. Total, $1,126,379,106.90. The certificates and treasury notes, offset by an equal amount of cash in the treasury, outstanding at the end of the month were $591,102,673, a decrease of $9,125,020. The total cash in the treasury was $812,137,610.87. The gold reserve was $92,943,179. Net cash balance, $87,004,819.48.

FLAMES IN A MARSH.

Famous Hunting Grounds Are Now Laid Waste.

La Porte, Ind., Nov. 4.—Fanned by the high winds of the last few days the marsh fires have again broken out in the Kankakee region, and a vast waste of ashes tells of the fury of the flames. Already two men have been seriously, if not fatally, burned. They are Henry Jonas and David Stadon. Starting at a point in Lake county in the lowlands of the Kankakee, which is now but a sluggish creek, the fire has swept with cyclonic force over an immense area, destroying everything in its path. Human efforts have been powerless, and, despite the ceaseless vigilance of men, women and children throughout the day and the night, the flames have leaped across creeks, spanned open spaces where it was hoped to stop the work of devastation and swept onward to fields which were soon desolated.

JACK DEMPSEY DEAD.

Consumption Ends the Career of a Famous Pugilist.

Portland, Ore., Nov. 2.—Jack Dempsey, the ex-champion middleweight pugilist, died here Friday of consumption. Dempsey was one of the best known and most widely liked fighters in the world. He held the championship of his class for years, meeting all comers and fighting under all sorts of handicaps.

(Dempsey was born in County Kildare, Ireland, December 15, 1862, and came to America when a boy. He first achieved fame as a wrestler when 20 years of age, and then entered the fistic arena. His record follows:

Defeated Jack Boylan, Bob Turner, Bill Dacey, George Fulljames, Billy Frazier, Jack Fogarty, Pete McCoy, Johnny Reagan and George La Blanche.

Beaten by George La Blanche and Bob Fitzsimmons.

Draws with Jack Burke, Mike Donovan and Tommy Ryan.)

May Tie Up the System.

Oil City, Pa., Nov. 4.—The switchmen of the Western New York & Pennsylvania railroad went out on a strike owing to the failure of the men to secure the restoration of a cut of ten per cent. made some time ago. The road at this place is practically blocked. If they cannot reach some satisfactory agreement with the officials of the road it is understood that the men will go out at Buffalo, Olean and Rochester and tie up the whole system of 900 miles.

Thanks from Japan.

Washington, Nov. 2.—Accompanied by Secretary Olney, Mr. Kurino, the Japanese minister, and his secretary of legation called upon President Cleveland and presented to him an autograph letter from the emperor of Japan, expressing his appreciation of the good offices exercised by the United States government to bring about a restoration of peace between Japan and China, and for the protection accorded to Japanese residents in China.

THE ELECTIONS.

The Republicans Have a Shade the Best of the Results.

New York State Goes Republican, While Tammany Carries the City—The Democrats Snowed Under in Maryland.

New York.

New York, Nov. 6.—Returns received from all but 497 out of the 3,383 election districts north of the Harlem river in New York state, give Palmer (Rep). for secretary of state, 344,709; King (Dem.), 224,715; a Republican plurality of 119,994 outside of New York and Kings county showing a Republican gain of 26,333 compared with 1893. Deducting the Democratic plurality below Harlem, the Rupublican plurality in the state at large will be in excess of 70,000.

The nearly completed returns show that the Tammany county ticket fell behind the vote for Democratic state ticket by from 20,000 to 24,000.

Maryland.

Baltimore, Nov. 5.— There are returns to indicate that there has been a landslide in Maryland and that the Democratic ticket is underneath it by majorities ranging form 6,000 upward. There seems to be no room for doubt that the Republicans have elected their entire state and city ticket, and that they will have a working majority in the next legislature, which will choose a successor to United States Senator Gibson. Even Howard county, the home of Senator Gorman, has apparently reversed its normal Democratic majority of 500 and gives Lowndes (Rep.), for governor, a majority of at least that number of votes.

Baltimore city goes for the Republican ticket, both state and municipal, by majorities of from 6,000 to 8,000.

Ohio.

Columbus, O., Nov. 5.—While the high water mark of 137,000 Republican plurality last year for Secretary of State Taylor will not be reached, the Republican state committee since midnight claim that their record will be broken for the vote on any governor. The highest Republican plurality for governor heretofore was that for John Brough over Clement L. Vallandigham in 1863, when the latter was a refugee in Canada. The Republicans claim that this plurality will be surpassed and the Democratic state committee conceded the state to the Republicans at 11 o'clock, when they closed their headquarters, by 80,000, or as much as the plurality of two years ago.

Iowa.

Des Moines, Iowa, Nov. 5.—Reports from the state show that the weather was generally pleasant, but the vote polled was up to expectations. Large Republican gains are reported from every county. One hundred precincts heard from at 10 p. m. show a net Republican gain of about 24 to the precinct. If this ratio is kept up the Republican plurality over two years ago will be upwards of 80,000.

The Republican state central committee claims a plurality for Drake of 85,000, a gain of 52,000 over that of Jackson's two years ago.

New Jersey.

Trenton, N. J., Nov. 5.—Franklin Murphy, chairman of the state Republican committee, claims to have figures from the 21 counties of the state, which give Griggs 15,000 plurality. On the other hand, Edward F. C. Young, chairman of the Democratic state committee, claims the state for McGill by from 5,000 to 10,000 plurality. It is certain, however, that the Republicans have elected four of the seven senators. This is not material, as the senate would still be Republican, even though the Democrats were to elect all seven.

Kentucky.

Louisville, K., Nov. 5.—The returns are coming in scattering from all portions of the state. It appears that Hardin leads the Democrat ticket. But it also appears that Bradley leads Hardin, or, if not, Hardin's majority is so small as to amount to a virtual defeat. Outside of Louisville, Bradley carries the county of Jefferson by 240, and Speed, the Republican candidate for the legislature, is elected, thus depriving Senator Blackburn of one vote.

Returns to midnight from 95 counties and towns, mostly incomplete, give Hardin, 32,155; Bradley, 28,536. Other returns received give Bradley a majority aggregating 2,396, leaving a net majority of 1,223 for Hardin.

Pennsylvania.

Philadelphia, Nov. 5.—Careful estimates of the vote in the 67 counties of Pennsylvania show plurality for Benjamin J. Haywod (Rep.), for state treasurer, over Benjamin K. Mayers (Dem.), of 157,919, a gain as compared with the vote of 1893, for the same office, of 22,273. It will probably require the official count to determine who is the Democratic member of the superior court.

Massachusetts.

Boston, Nov. 5.—The question in Massachusetts from the first was one of majority, since the Democratic leaders admitted the re-election of Gov. Greenhalge. How strong his indorsement would be was the point upon which the two parties differed. Results show that the claims of the Republicans made prior to the election were well grounded, since Gov. Greenhalge and the entire Republican ticket is indorsed by a plurality practically the same as that of 1894, some 65,000.

INDUSTRY AND COMMERCE.

The average of ships and sailors in the port of London every day is 1,000 ships and 9,000 men.

Fairmont, Kansas, has the largest apple orchard in the world. It covers 1,537 acres.

Crime is more common in single life than in married. In the former 33 in every 100,000 are guilty, while only 11 married men of the same number have gravely broken the law.

A rough estimate places the amount of fruit shipped from southern California this season at 8,000 car loads. For the transportation of this the growers have paid the railroads about $1,600,000.

Besides the coal yet to be brought to the surface in Europe and America, it is estimated that there are in Japan workable seams containing 700,000,000 tons, equal in commercial value to Australian coal.

Ohio has more farms than any other state. It has 251,430 farms, comprising 24,352,408 acres; Illinois is second, with 240,681 farms, and 30,498,277 acres; Missouri is third, with 238,043 farms and 30,780,290 acres.

PERILS OF THE STREET.

A Broadway Workman With Too Many Women on His String.

It was only a simple, harmless string, chalked so that all men and women could see it and avoid it, held but a couple of inches above the bed of cinders by a couple of workmen engaged in getting the sidewalk level. But it caused as much commotion for a few minutes as a five-barred gate in a hunting field. Broadway is about as lively in the vicinity of 26th and 27th streets of a nice afternoon as any other portion of that great thoroughfare.

The two workmen who were managing a chalk line over the cinder bed preparatory to laying a new sidewalk appeared to have chosen the liveliest part of the day. As the work was that of but a few seconds it wasn't worth while closing the walk.

The first second, however, saw the line swept away on the red shoes of a Broadway soubrette, who looked daggers and bowie knives at the man on the curb. He got it back in place on the tip of his thumb nail, only to lose it again the next train. Then every woman who saw it stepped on it.

They made a point of it, apparently apprehensive of some trick by which the line would be lifted before they got completely over it. The men invariably stepped over it. The woman who didn't deliberately put her foot on it, gathered up her skirts and jumped, letting out a half smothered yelp like that of a dog anticipating a club.

Sometimes a whole cluster of women would suddenly bunch on one side of the cord or the other, and then, following their leader, would go over the obstruction, skirts up, with a hop, skip and jump at least a foot high. But some one of their number would usually manage to sweep it away with them.

One woman with a firm chin and evident decision of character saw the cause of the commotion, and calmly stooped, grabbed it and jerked it out of the man's hand and threw it aside. Then she walked on as conscious of having performed a solemn duty as the man is who has just kicked a banana skin off the walk.

When the man at the curb end of the cord wound it up at the end of half an hour he had had more women on his string in ten minutes than the watering place young man has in ten years.—N. Y. Herald.

ALL IS BEAUTIFUL.

Oh, God! how beautiful is earth,
In sunbeam or in shade;
Her forests with their waving arch;
Her flowers that gem the glade;

Her hillocks white with fleecy flocks;
Her fields with grain that glow;
Her sparkling streamlets, deep and broad
That through the valleys flow;

Her crested waves that clasp the shore,
And lift their anthems loud;
Her mountains, with their solemn brows,
That woo the yielding cloud.

Oh, God! how, beautiful is life
That Thou dost lend us here:
So cheered with hopes that line the cloud,
And joys that gem the tear;

With cradle hymns of mothers young,
And tread of youthful feet,
That scarce in their elastic bound
Bow down the grass flowers sweet.

With brightness round the pilgrim's staff
Who at the setting sun
Beholds the golden gate thrown wide,
And all his work well done.

But if this earth, which changes mar,
This life, to death that leads,
Are made so beautiful by Him,
From whom all good proceeds,

How glorious must that region be
Where all the pure and blest,
From every fear and sorrow free,
Attain unbroken rest.

THE TWO CAPTAINS.

BY TOM HALL.

"To the king."

"To my king."

The toasts, though slightly different, were uttered simultaneously and a small glass of rare old port was emptied in honor of each. The scene was the broad veranda of a South Carolina plantation, not fifteen miles from the famous city of Charleston; the time was the early autumn of 1781; while the characters were a young captain of his majesty's artillery, a portion of which was guarding the city of Charleston, and a young woman in perhaps her twenty-second year. A famous beauty was this Miss Phoebe Poindexter, and a most captivating picture she made, in the eyes of the captain of artillery, as she sat thrumming the keys of her harpsichord, after replacing the empty wine glass on the table near her. The latter was a handsome young man, apparently thirty years of age, with a perfect air of good breeding and evidently of some graces, for he had just finished a solo on the flute to the accompaniment of the young lady.

"The fact is, Miss Phoebe, I hardly know what I should do with myself, were it not for the possibility of riding out here to spend an occasional afternoon with you—or should I say, both in gallantry and truth, every afternoon with you? The town is simply too dull for a soldier, now that Lord Cornwallis has taken the major part of our army with him in his chase after the rebel Greene."

"And what do you think, captain, are his chances of capturing Gen. Greene?"

"Oh, the chances are perfect, my dear lady. Why, the rebels were absolutely routed, according to our dispatches, at the battle of Guilford Court House, and so badly demoralized that they ran from the field like sheep. Indeed there was no necessity for our pursuit. Greene is starving up there in the mountains of North Carolina and will surrender at discretion in the course of a week or two. His defeat and reduced circumstances will be the excuse, but the real reason will be British gold. You remember, of course, our success with their Gen. Arnold. Well, after a man's ambition has been killed, he will not fight in any cause with neither food nor pay. And that is the dire extremity to which Greene has been forced by the glorious success of his majesty's arms. My Lord Cornwallis has turned north and in a month will have defeated and captured that little boy of a Frenchman, La Fayette. With their armies of the south and of the center defeated, he will move next spring upon the only remaining armies of the rebels, that under the miscreant Washington. It will be a short campaign, a battle, a rout, a pursuit and then peace—and with peace will come its delightful handmaiden love. And then—then, Mistress Poindexter, I shall have the honor of claiming you for a bride, of selling out my commission and living the quiet life of an English country gentleman for, I hope, the rest of my life."

"A charming arrangement of events for yourself, my dear Capt. Webb! But I must say it appears to me as though Gen. Cornwallis' movement into Virginia is more like a retreat than the advance of a victorious and conquering army. And as for Gen. Greene, they say that he is not only harassing Gen. Cornwallis at every step of his northward movement, but has detached his cavalry and a portion of his riflemen to reconquer the Carolinas and Georgia."

"On what utter nonsense do these misguided colonists feed their despairing hopes!" answered the captain. "Why, it would be no more ridiculous for you to assure me that a detachment of Marion's outlaws were here, surrounding this very house, and that I was in danger of becoming a prisoner to them, as to—what was that?" The captain jumped hurriedly from his seat and, grasping the railing of the veranda in front of him for support, looked anxiously up and down the road that ran in front of the old plantation.

"It seemed to me like the winding of a horn," said the lady, calmly.

"And, by my faith, I heard the galloping of horses and a short command," continued the captain, excitedly.

"Inside, inside, captain, as your value your liberty," said the lady; "I saw a mounted man in uniform there in the bushes just now, and I know the uniform well."

"And the wearer?"

"Yes, the wearer."

"Then it is a detachment of Marion's outlaws indeed. Ha! I will be an agreeable prize for Capt. Pickens. An interesting meeting between two rivals it will be, indeed! I must be saved, madam, or your own loyalty will be put in question."

"And, pray, what can I do?" asked the girl drawing herself up to her full height and looking at the English officer with scornful and indignant eyes.

"You can tell them that there is no one concealed in your house. He will never dare to doubt your word."

"You would have me tell a lie to save you—me, the woman you pretended to love and wish to make your wife?"

"It is a case of necessity—quick, they are approaching on both sides. They have been informed. It is a trick!"

"Where will you hide?" asked the girl, with an insulting emphasis on the word "hide."

"You will tell them that no one is concealed in the house?"

"I shall tell them nothing but the absolute truth—be quick."

"Then there is but one place where I will be safe," answered the captain, "and there only if he be a gentleman." Saying which, the captain darted up the stairs and entered Miss Poindexter's own chamber.

He had no more than closed the door when a lithe, athletic young officer in the partisan cavalry leaped over the railing of the veranda and stood, embarrassed and hat in hand, bowing before the young mistress of the mansion.

"Phoebe!" exclaimed the young soldier.

"Would it not be better to address me as your prisoner?" answered Miss Poindexter. "If I am not mistaken, you have surrounded my home with armed soldiers and have come yourself on no gentle errand."

"Prisoner Phoebe?" answered the patriot captain. "I would never wish to hold you prisoner, save in the bonds of love. My presence here needs an explanation and I will make it. I have received information that an English officer is visiting you this afternoon. It is a matter of duty. I have been ordered far in advance of the returning troops of Marion and Sumter for the express purpose of catching some of the officers at the garrison at Charleston off their guard; and I expect to appear at the very gates of that city before I am done and let them know that, far from being defeated, as they suppose, Gen. Greene's army has driven their red coats from the Carolinas and is chasing Cornwallis himself to the sea."

"What a romance!" laughed the young lady.

"I wish I had time for romance," said the officer; "there could be no more delightful opportunity. Only when this war is over will I be able to ask you to reward a love that has been faithful to you ever since we were children. But to duty. Are you harboring an English officer here?"

"Why, of course I am," she answered, laughingly.

"This is no time for joking," said the captain. "If he is not here, he cannot have been gone a very long time; and if you delay me he may yet get within the gates of Charleston."

"It seems to me that you are a trifle difficult to-day," she replied. "Do you not believe me?"

"Of course," he said, biting his lips nervously. "I shall have to search the house," he continued.

"O, we are quite used to it," she answered.

He ordered up his men and began a systematic search of the mansion and surrounding buildings. He himself, however, stood immovably in front of the door that he knew opened into her private apartments, and permitted no one to enter. The search was therefore useless.

"Well," said she, teasingly, "why do you not enter my own room?"

"If he is an officer he should be a gentleman, and could not be there," answered the captain. "You have been fooling me, Phoebe, in order to give him a start. I do not blame you. He was a guest, and you have but observed the laws of hospitality, even though he is an enemy to our country. Farewell—remember always I shall come to you when this war is finished."

"Why not come before—to-night? You will not wish to camp nearer Charleston than this, I am sure. Grandmother, who is in town to-day, shopping, will be back by tea time, and you can tell us all the news."

"And may I tell you something else?"

"Yes—without even waiting for the war to end. And I will tell you something, too." The young patriot turned about for a moment—and for a kiss. Then springing into the saddle he shouted the command: "To horse, the road to Charleston—gallop!" and was off.

As soon as he and his men were well out of sight, the English artillery captain made his appearance. "I suppose," he said, "that I am under obligations to you—and yet I thought your truthfulness would have been the ruination of me."

"And could you have admired or loved a woman who had deliberately lied?"

"Well, that is rather an odd question. If you had told an untruth it would have been in a noble cause. All is fair in love and war, you know."

"Even hiding in a woman's apartment."

"Oh, yes—when necessity compels it."

"Well, Capt. Webb," said Miss Poindexter, slowly, "will you in your turn do me a favor?"

"With the greatest pleasure, I am sure," answered the gallant captain.

"Will you please mount your horse and get safely back into your own lines," said Miss Poindexter, "and stay there."

"By Jove," said the captain to himself, as he turned away with flushed cheeks, "I never intended to marry her, but I'm blest if I don't believe she'd make a wife that any man could be proud of."

He Also Served Himself.

One winter's day the late lamented king of tramps, Harry Villier, met a woman in the streets of Bangor, loaded with a valise and evidently in a very miserable frame of mind. She looked so woe-begone that he doffed his hat and accosted her in his usual courtly fashion. She told a story of hunger, loss of position through sickness, and of eviction from her own poor room because she could not pay the rent. All that excited Harry's ready sympathy. "If I were rich, my dear madam," said he, "I would assist you in the rich man's fashion—perhaps give you a dollar, perhaps pass by on the other side. But I'm a tramp, and I'll have to help you in tramp fashion." He begged a warm corner for her in an engine room, hunted up some food at neighboring back doors, and when the poor woman was warmed and fed he shouldered her valise and told her to follow him. She did so. He marched straight into the country for half a dozen miles, then approached a farmhouse where he was known and solicited employment for the woman, giving her a glowing recommendation. She was hired and for many years was a hard-working and trusted member of the household. "And didn't I get glorious feeds when I sauntered along that way," said Harry. "My friends, the Astors, used to envy me when I told 'em about it."—Lewiston Journal.

DEATH CALLS HIM.

Eugene Field, Poet and Humorist, Passes Away—Sketch of His Life.

Chicago, Nov. 5.—Eugene Field, poet and humorist, died about 5 o'clock Monday morning of heart disease at his residence in Buena Park. Although Mr. Field has been ill for the past three days his sudden death was totally unexpected. Mr. Field's death was first discovered by his son, who occupied the room with him. The young man heard his father groan, and putting out his hand discovered that he was dead. Mr. Field retired Sunday night at the usual hour and slept soundly until daybreak. He had not complained and the brief indisposition preceding his demise had aroused so little alarm that until Sunday he had intended to leave for Kansas City, where he was to have given a reading Monday night. The announcement created the greatest surprise and sorrow, as Mr. Field was considered to be in the prime of his life. A widow and five children survive him.

(Eugene Field was the son of Roswell Martin and Frances (Reed) Field and was born in St. Louis September 2, 1850. After finishing his education in the State university of Missouri in 1871 he adopted the profession of newspaper writer, beginning with the St. Louis Journal in 1872. His next connection was with the St. Joseph (Mo.) Gazette in 1875, after which he returned to St. Louis to take an editorial position on the Times-Journal. In 1880 he was on the staff of the Kansas City Times, but left that paper in 1881 to become managing editor of the Denver Tribune. He came to Chicago August 13, 1883, to accept a position on the editorial staff of the Chicago Morning News (now the Record) and his connection with that paper continued without interruption to the day of his death. In addition to his newspaper work Mr. Field found time to perform extra labor in the literary field, and established a reputation as a graceful and clever writer of stories and verse. He was especially happy in his poems and stories of juvenile life.

Among the most popular bits of verse of which Mr. Field was the author are: "Wynken, Blynken and Nod," "Little Boy Blue," "Seein' Things," and "Christmas Treasures." Mr. Field's prose writings proved him to be gifted with delicate sentiment and rare humor, which often lies very close to tears. He drew many masterly sketches of western and New England character.

Mr. Field married October 16, 1873, Miss Julia Comstock, of St. Joseph, Mo., and had seven children. In June, 1893, Knox college conferred upon Mr. Field the honorary degree of A. M.)

NO PRIZE-FIGHT.

Chancellor Martin's Injunction—Fitz' Latest Move.

Little Rock, Ark., Nov. 2.—Corbett and Fitzsimmons will not fight in Arkansas. This proposition is settled as nearly as anything can be settled that is not an accomplished fact, and when it is added that the pugilists themselves admit that the game is up, it may be conceded that the courts and the governor are the victors. Chancellor Martin has issued a temporary injunction restraining all the pugilists, their backers and trainers, the Hot Springs Athletic club and the officers of Hot Springs from bringing off any fight. This settles any fighting in Arkansas at least for 20 days, when the writ is returnable.

Little Rock, Ark., Nov. 4.—At noon Saturday Assistant Attorney-General Hemingway appeared in the circuit court and stated that the state had received assurances that the defendants, Fitzsimmons and Julian, would abstain from any unlawful undertaking in the state. They had also agreed to leave the state.

Upon that assurance the state was willing to dismiss the peace warrant cases, with the understanding that if the defendants violated their pledge the case should be reinstated.

Mr. South, for the governor, stated that this was satisfactory.

The court said that the desired order would be entered and the cases were accordingly dismissed.

Neither Fitzsimmons nor Julian were present. The attorney general then proceeded to Chancellor Martin's court where a similar motion was made and granted as to Corbett and Brady. This leaves the pugilists free from legal restrictions except as to the injunction issued Friday, which still holds good and will be urged should there be any attempt to pull off the fight.

Shuts Down All Tanneries.

New York, Nov. 5.—The World says: "The United States Leather company, know as the leather trust, to-day shut down the 100 tanneries under its control. Not another hide will be taken from its vats for 60 days. During the 60 days the 100 tanneries are closed more than 15,000 laborers, tanners, clerks and employes generally will be without work. Several of the rivals of the combination have recently been cutting prices extensively, which is stated to be the cause of the present curtailing of the latter's operations."

Hatch Represents Hawaii.

San Francisco, Nov. 4.—Honolulu advices of October 26, per steamer Australia, say that Francis M. Hatch, minister of foreign affairs, has been appointed Hawaiian minister to Washington, in place of W. R. Castle, who recently accepted the office temporarily. Mr. Hatch will not leave for Washington until the latter part of November. His special mission is to seek closer political union between the United States and the republic of Hawaii.

Hinshaw Denied a New Trial.

Danville, Ind., Nov. 5.—Judge Hadley overruled the motion for a new trial in the Hinshaw murder case, and sentenced the prisoner to the penitentiary. His attorneys will appeal the case to the supreme court. Hinshaw is looking terribly broken in health, and it is feared he will not live long.

Football Endangers Life.

Washington, Nov. 5.—Surgeon General Tryon, in his annual report, calls attention to the number of casualties at the Naval academy resulting from the present method of playing football, and it is recommended that unless the rules be materially modified, rival games be prohibited.

SHOOK US U.

Mother Earth Shrugs Her Shoulder Rather Vigorous.

Chicago, Nov. 1.—Chicoans were alarmed a few minutes after five o'clock Thursday morning by feeling a distinct earthquake shock. The vibrations, which were felt plainly all over the city, were severe enough to shake objects on the mantels or desks in the tall buildings, and milkmen and other early risers, fearing that some of the skyscrapers might take a tumble, made haste to get on streets where there was less danger. At the 22d street police station the severity of the disturbance was such as to overturn a inkstand on the desk of the night sergeant. Reports are coming in from all over the state from persons who noticed the earthquake, and from owns as far north as Janesville, Wis.

Dispatches from many pints throughout the country repor earthquake shocks. Among the stats visited were Nebraska, Missouri, Kenucky, Tennessee, Ohio, Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Louisiana, North Carolina and Arkansas.

Charleston, Mo., Nov. 1.—An earthquake of unusual violenc occurred here at 5:08 o'clock Thursday morning. After the first shock the earth's surface continued to vibrate for fully 20 minutes. Hundreds of chimneys were toppled down and plate glass in several store fronts broken to bits. The brick Methodist church was badly shattered, and the plastering knocked from 100 or more interiors. In the country four miles south of here the crust of the earth was broken in 50 places, and from the fissures water and sand are gushing in considerable volumes. The same phenomena are reported in the district still farther south and also at Big Lake, several miles north of town. This is a part of the old volcanic region which was overwhelmed and nearly destroyed by an earthquake 80 years ago.

Fort Wayne, Ind., Nov. 1.—Just before daybreak Thursday a terrific earthquake shock was felt in Fort Wayne. Large store buildings trembled, residences were in confusion and almost the entire populace was awakened. The houses swayed perceptibly for over a minute and a trembling sensation was experienced from four to five minutes. The soundest slumberers were aroused and startled at the shock. The foundations of one or two buildings were cracked, but not materially damaged. Telephonic messages from all over northern Indiana say that the shock was plainly felt. The first shock was followed by two lighter ones.

Des Moines, Ia., Nov. 1.—Slight earthquake vibrations were felt here between four and five o'clock Thursday morning. A Cedar Rapids special reports three distinct vibrations there, waking many people and rattling furniture.

Milwaukee, Nov. 1.—There was a distinct earthquake shock felt in this city between 4:30 and five o'clock Thursday morning. A tremor seemed to pass over the city, which caused the houses to shake and awakened many people. The shock lasted for over a minute, and consternation prevailed among those who had been aroused from their slumbers.

Rome, Nov. 2.—An earthquake shock was felt here at 4:38 Friday morning. Many houses swayed badly, walls were cracked, pictures and other articles fell from the walls and other places, people ran panic-stricken into the streets and a serious disaster was for a time apprehended. So far as is known no serious damage was done.

MADE A CARDINAL.

The Pope Confers This Honor on Mgr Satolli.

Washington, Nov. 1.—Mgr. Satolli, papal delegate to the United States, has been made a cardinal by the pope. The berretta will be imposed by Cardinal Gibbons in Baltimore early in December.

Rome, Nov. 1.—It is stated here that Mgr. Satolli will probably remain in Washington for some time after he is raised to the dignity of cardinal, with the title of pro-delegate apostolic. His successor has not yet been selected.

A Town Burned.

Winona, Minn., Nov. 4.—The whole town of Walcott Mills, Rice county, with the exception of two dwellings, was wiped out by a conflagration beginning at 10:30 Sunday morning. The fire departments of both Faribault and Northfield were called out, but owing to a high wind, neither was able to check the flames to any extent. The chief loss was the mills of the Sheffield Bros., one of whom is mayor of Faribault. The mills alone were valued at $150,000, with an insurance of $81,000. Fourteen buildings were consumed. Five cars of flour standing on a spur of the Milwaukee track were also burned. The mills were the best equipped of any in southern Minnesota. They were 20,000 barrels behind in their orders and employed nearly 100 men.

Suspends Coinage.

Washington, Nov. 1.—After to-day all coinage of other than subsidiary silver is to be suspended by order of Secretary Carlisle. This will convert all the silver bullion held by the government into gold obligations, but, according to the opinions of prominent bankers, will not affect the financial system of the country. The reason for the discontinuance is supposed to be the fact that there are enough silver dollars in the treasury for all purposes.

Germans Like American Shoes.

Washington, Nov. 4.—Consul Stephan, writing from Annoberg to the state department, reports the development of a keen competition in the shoe trade of Berlin, due largely to the effort to introduce foreign goods into the market. He says a Boston manufacturer has established a house there and that the local makers find it hard to compete with the American goods.

LIFE'S RECOMPENSE.

So this is fame, this bubble which I hold,
That breaks with but a breath;
And this is fortune, this great worth of gold,
That only lasts till death.

And this is power, this knowledge which I gain
By heavy weight of years;
And this is friendship's gilded, brittle chain
Soon tarnished by my tears.

What is it worth—this all—this little life?
The struggle for it? No.
But deep beneath the struggle, rush and strife,
If aspirations grow

In spirit life, then we shall gladly say,
When we have left earth's pain,
And angels roll from graves the stones away:
"We have not lived in vain."

—Belle Shreve Nunes, in Home and Country.

THE DRUG CLERK'S STORY

He Talks of Headaches and Nervousness and Gives a Cure for Both.

From the Evening News, Newark, N. J.

It was the drug clerk's turn to tell a story of one of his experiences, and the reporter, expecting something good, as usual, settled himself comfortably in a chair, prepared to give his undivided attention to the speaker. The latter was Henry Maier, who resides with his parents on Aqueduct Street, Newark, N. J., and who hands out medicine over the counter of Dr. Andrew F. Burkhardt's drug store at 271 Orange Street, this city.

"Perhaps I can do nothing better," he began, "than to tell you the secret of my good health. It is a story that I have told to many recently, and as it resulted in good in each case, it may be worth your while to listen to it. To begin with, I was not always strong and robust, as I am now. Long hours of work and hard study had left me in a wretched condition. Frightful, lingering headaches found me a ready victim, and at times I was so nervous that the dropping of a pin would cause me to give a violent start, and then I would be seized with a fit of trembling that was, to put it mildly, exceedingly bothersome. Well, I began to doctor myself. Now I flatter myself that I know something of medicine; but with all my knowledge, I could find nothing that would cure those terrible headaches or put an end to my nervousness. When I picked up a bottle my hand would shake as though I had the chills, and if it was a powder that I was handling I stood a good chance of sprinkling it all over these black trousers. Things went from bad to worse, and I soon realized that a man of my physical condition had better not attempt to mix medicine.

"'Try a box of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills,' said Dr. Burkhardt one day; and as you know the doctor's advice is always worth following, I got the Pink Pills and began to take them. Aladdin's lamp never performed the wonders of these pills. Would you believe it? Before I had taken the contents of one box my headache began to give me a day off occasionally, and soon it left me entirely. How about my nervousness? Well, the pills put an end to that with almost startling abruptness. You see I knew enough about the business to appreciate the importance of following the prescribing physician's directions, and by paying strict attention to those given by Dr. Williams with each box of his Pink Pills, I was soon another fellow. Look at me now! A picture of health, eh? Well, that is what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills will do for a man, or a woman, either. See, I can hold this glass of water out now without spilling a drop, but I couldn't do that two months ago and—

"What is it, ma'm?" he asked as a neatly-dressed woman came up to the counter. "A box of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills." "Yes, ma'm, fifty cents, please. Thank you."

"These Pink Pills are great things," said Mr. Maier as he turned to the reporter again, and the latter, after all he had heard, thought so too.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills contain all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves. They are for sale by all druggists, or may be had by mail from Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y., for 50c. per box, or six boxes for $2.50.

A DISAPPOINTING RESULT

Which Confronts the Owners of the Iron Mines on the Missabe Range.

The owners of the Missabe iron mines in St. Louis county have fared badly for the past two years, most of the time conducting their business at a loss. Last year heavy losses were suffered by the capitalists who own the mines. They entered upon the present season with rosy hopes. The season's ore was sold in the months of April and May, as usual, at prices ranging from $1.80 to $2.50 per ton, according to the quality of the ore. The advance in price did not take place until July, August and September, long after all the season's ores had been disposed of by contract for future delivery. The miners, in contracting their ore for the season, figured on 80 cents as the cost of lake freights, but lake freights have advanced in an unprecedented way, and are now, and for some time past have been ruling at $1.50 per ton, so that much of the ore that was sold for from $1.80 to $2.50 is being delivered in vessels which cost the mines $1.50 per ton. A mine selling its ore in the early part of the season for say $2.25 to $2.50 per ton, must now pay $1.50 per ton for lake freights, leaving only 75 cents to $1 for mining and for rail freights to Duluth. As the rail freight alone is 80 cents, and the commission, insurance, interest, etc., 20 cents, it will be seen that the cost of mining is a dead loss, and the ore is given away. The rosy hopes of the spring, therefore, have met only disappointment, and the miners are now figuring with much anxiety on the net results of the year's operations.

Words of Cheer.

Words of cheer are words of help. Words of gloom are words of harm. There is a bright side and a dark side to every phase of life and to every hour of time. If we speak of the bright side we bring the brightness into prominence, if we speak of the dark side we deepen its shadows. It is in our power to help or to hinder by a word any and every person whom we are with. If we see a look of help or of hope in the face of an acquaintance when we casually meet, and we tell him so, he goes on his way with new life in his veins. If we see a look of failing strength and of heaviness of heart in one to whom we speak, and we emphasize the fact that he looks poorly, we give him a push downward as our contribution to the forces which affect his course. A look or a word can help or can harm our fellows. It is for us to give cheer or gloom as we pass on our way in life, and we are responsible for the results of our influence accordingly.—Detroit Free Press.

—Tax Collector—Really, Mr. Biggs, I can't accept this income tax return of yours as correct. You say your income is $10,000 and yet you live at the rate of $20,000 a year. Biggs—That's all right, my dear sir. This is an income tax, not an outgo tax. That extra $10,000 is an expense in my business. Tax Collector—In what way? Biggs—Supplying my wife with the pleasures of life. If that isn't the business of a married man, I don't know what is.—Harper's Bazar.

—"What do you think of this previous existence theory?" "I know it is to be supported by facts. For instance, I know a woman only twenty-seven years old who often thoughtlessly tells about things that happened thirty-five years ago."—Indianapolis Journal.

The Piso Company,
Warren, Pa.

Gentlemen:

Six years ago last Spring I took a severe cold, which settled on my lungs. I coughed and spit blood until my husband was alarmed about me. I told him to go to the drug store and get me a bottle of Piso's Cure for Consumption. He did so, and by the time I had taken its contents according to directions I was very much better. He then bought two more bottles, and they cured me.

In fact, we could hardly keep house without Piso's Cure for Consumption. My husband is subject to a cough every Winter, and he says nothing (and he has tried every cough medicine on the market) helps him as does Piso's Cure.

You may publish the above if you so desire.

Very truly yours,
Mrs. Della Lott.

National economy.

There's room for a little more of it. Too many women are wasting time and strength over a wash-board; rubbing their clothes to pieces; wasting their money. You'd be astonished if you could figure up the actual money saving in a year by the use of Pearline. Millions of women are using it now, but just suppose that all women were equally careful and thrifty, and that every one used Pearline! It's too much to hope for—but the whole country would be the richer for it.

Send it Back Peddlers and some unscrupulous grocers will tell you "this is as good as" or "the same as Pearline." IT'S FALSE—Pearline is never peddled, and if your grocer sends you something in place of Pearline, be honest—send it back. 473

Bubbles or Medals.

"Best sarsaparillas." When you think of it how contradictory that term is. For there can be only one best in anything—one best sarsaparilla, as there is one highest mountain, one longest river, one deepest ocean. And that best sarsaparilla is———?.... There's the rub! You can measure mountain height and ocean depth, but how test sarsaparilla? You could, if you were chemists. But then, do you need to test it? The World's Fair Committee tested it,—and thoroughly. They went behind the label on the bottle. What did this sarsaparilla test result in? Every make of sarsaparilla shut out of the Fair, except Ayer's. So it was that Ayer's was the only sarsaparilla admitted to the World's Fair. The committee found it the best. They had no room for anything that was not the best. And as the best, Ayer's Sarsaparilla received the medal and awards due its merits. Remember the word "best" is a bubble any breath can blow; but there are pins to prick such bubbles. Those others are blowing more "best sarsaparilla" bubbles since the World's Fair pricked the old ones. True, but Ayer's Sarsaparilla has the medal. The pin that scratches the medal proves it gold. The pin that pricks the bubble proves it wind. We point to medals, not bubbles, when we say: The best sarsaparilla is Ayer's.

KENNEDY'S MEDICAL DISCOVERY.

DONALD KENNEDY, of ROXBURY, MASS., Has discovered in one of our common pasture weeds a remedy that cures every kind of Humor, from the worst Scrofula down to a common Pimple.

He has tried it in over eleven hundred cases, and never failed except in two cases (both thunder humor.) He has now in his possession over two hundred certificates of its value, all within twenty miles of Boston. Send postal card for book.

A benefit is always experienced from the first bottle, and a perfect cure is warranted when the right quantity is taken.

When the lungs are affected it causes shooting pains, like needles passing through them; the same with the Liver or Bowels. This is caused by the ducts being stopped, and always disappears in a week after taking it. Read the label.

If the stomach is foul or bilious it will cause squeamish feelings at first.

No change of diet ever necessary. Eat the best you can get, and enough of it. Dose, one tablespoonful in water at bedtime. Sold by all Druggists.

OPIUM and WHISKY habits cured. Book sent FREE. Dr. B. M. WOOLLEY, ATLANTA, GA.

DELANO DIARY

—John Lohmiller announces that he is alive and on deck.

—Miss Frances Bauman commenced teaching in the Adickes district last Monday.

—The new Presbyterian church is to be dedicated on Sunday, Nov. 24th. Rev. Thayer the old pastor has promised to be present.

—Prof. Ed Freeman finds his bicycle quite handy and makes an easy trip to his school in the Zeibarth district and return every day.

—We are in receipt of the Morris High School Chronicle again. It starts out fresh with the school year. Such things add greatly to the interest of the school.

—Our California correspondent, Hon B. F. Christlieb, writes from Pasadena, that he is doing well there, and likes the climate, all of which will please his many frends here.

—Rev. J. L. Farber, has moved his family from Bird Island. They now occupy the Methodist manse in this place, and will preach in Montrose, Watertown and Delano the coming Conference year.

—On Tuesday evening the Modern Woodmen organized a lodge at this place. The meeting was held in the I. O. O. F. hall. Their goat must be the liveliest one in town, as it seems at least two of the aspirants for membership, were either thrown by the vicious animal in some way, or became too timid to attempt to ride him.

—The Official Board of the M. E. church met with the new pastor, Rev. J. L. Farber, at the parsonage, Wednesday evening and made arrangements to raise the preachers salary by subscription and the envelope plan. Mrs. H. V. Wilder and Prof. Charles S. Hawker were eppointed to solicit subscriptions. Professor Hawker was elected Church Secretary and Mrs. C. H. Green Church Treasurer.

—The water in the river is very low and in places scarcely runs at all, and offal from the creamery is being poured into the stream pretty close to the intake of the water works system, and needs the attention of the Board of Health. Nothing is more offensive to the offactories than slops of this kind when propper conditions arise, and the health of the village may be endangered.

—Delano High School has graduated two classes. The first a quartette of boys, the second a duet of girls. Half of each class is teaching in Wright County while the other halves are attending the State University. Roy Wilder is teaching near Annandale, Ed Freeman in the Zeibarth district, Miss Frances Bauman in the Adickes district. Emery Cunningham, Vernan Wilder, and Miss Grace O'Hair are at the U.

—Our Buffalo Correspondence came too late for publication; sorry to say.

—Thursday, Nov. 28 has been appointed as Thanksgiving day. Services are to be held in the M. E. church.

—The Hutchinson Family concert at the City Hall last night was up to standard; and well attended.

—On Tuesday, the Mrocok and Buck families west of town got into an altercation about a ditch that Bucks were trying to open through Mrocok's land and Mrs. Julia Mrocok opposed the manner of doing the work, and a fuss ensued resulting in the swearing out of a warrant for the arrest of Louis for Bock assault against Mrs. Julia Mrocok. The case was called Before Justice R. M. Walter on Wednesday. Mr. Bock plead guilty and paid a fine of $5, and costs.

County Cullings.

The Dassel Anchor has considerable to say about traveling grocerymen and crayon portrait peddlers who infest that part of the country and sell their goods for more than local dealers, who trust out their goods, ask. People should patronize home merchants when they can do as well or better than with others.

Every citizen of this great and free country should be able to read the English language; and should read at least one weekly paper every week. Very few papers but what will keep you posted on general news sufficiently to prevent your appearing wholly ignorant. You are bound to derive the worth of the subscription price, $1.00 per year, from any paper in the county. Don't fail to improve your opportunity.

Some of the county papers are still harping on the question as to who shall be appointed Clerk of district court, for the coming year, until one is elected by the people. We believe the judges will do as they think best regardless of the newspapers. The present clerk, J. C. O'Leary, is not of our political faith, but he has made a good officer, has his duties well learned, was placed there by public sentiment and we believe should stay till the public selects his successor.—Cokato Commoner.

FROM CALIFORNIA.

Hon. B. F. Christlieb.

As one saunters about Los Angeles, he finds in the business portions of the city, many large and substantial business buildings of the most modern styles, minus the sky scraping feature, their highth not exceeding four or five stories, but having the open space in the central part of the building extending from the ground floor to the roof surrounded by the balcony approaches to the apartments with elevators plying between the different floors. These buildings are constructed mostly of a superior kind of brick of a terra-cotta shade, blending well with the terra cotta ornamentations of the buildings—friezes, facings, panels, cornices, &c. Portions of the inside of these buildings especially the open space or court are floored with mosaic or terra cotta work, between walls lined with glazed and highly colored brick. In the vicinity of these completed buildings new buildings of the latest arcitecture are in the process of erection, replacing older structures which have done many years service, so the new is rapidly replacing the old. The sky scrapers are not permitted in Los Angeles.

In the superban portions of the city are unique and substantial residences of the latest style standing on grounds graded and adapted to the purpose, having terraces, driveways, walks and lawns shaded with palms, flowers and trees holding their foliage the entire year, the combination being grand indeed.

Early in 1894 the people of Los Angeles were surprised by the finding of petrolium within the limits of their city; that product being found in territory bordering on the superban next the growing business portion of the city. Since then there have upwards of 100 wells been bored and put into successful operation in that district, and they all lie in a sinuous narrow belt not exceeding one half mile in length and within territory platted and occupied and hence very valuable, estimated at its value for building purposes. This district will average at least one well to each city lot within its limits, so that an oil monopoly desiring to secure the output of Los Angelese will have to invest large sums in valuable real estate before securing the oil privilege. Borings within less than 100 feet on either side of this belt developed no petrolium, but there are other portions of the city, a mile or more distant from this locality, in which petrolium has been found, but have not been so well developed as in one district. Los Angeles petroleum is said to be better adapted for fuel purposes than that found in the east. The petroleum in Los Angeles is found at a depth ranging from 800 to 1200 feet.

The weather.—During the fore part of October, several mornings were accompanied by heavy fogs, with clods obscuring the sun for several hours being preceded by slight rains during the previous nights which a person just from the east would regard as no special phenomenon, but to the average Californian it seemed to be a mater of much importance, as in his opinion it was the beginning of the "rainy season", meaning that a seasom had commenced in which there would be occasional rains, but as yet there has been no excessive fall of moisture. The street sprinklers and irrigating arrangements are still in operation. Since then there has, however, been a change in the temperature to a cooler average, yet a very comfortable degree of warmth continues. B. F. C.

Among Our Exchanges.

T. J. McDermott, of St. Paul, was in the city over Sunday the guest of his mother. When asked concerning his gubernatorial candidacy, Mr. McD. stated positively that he was not and would not stand as a candidate for any office.—St. Peter Herald.

The long contest over the surveyor generalship has been ended by the appointment of Mr. P. H. Kerwin, who has been from the start one of the leading candidates. Mr. Kerwin is a staunch Democrat and a competent man, and his appointment will give geneaal satisfaction to the party.—Globe.

Recently a bear killed three pigs on Clifton A. Allbright's farm in Garrison township, and soon afterwards Fred Nichols, who lives over the line in Aitkin county, discovered a bear, supposed to be the same one, robbing his pigpen. He at once procured a gun and shot the animal through the heart. It weighed 200 pounds.—Brainerd Journal.

WHAT YOUR THUMB TELLS.

Square Type.

Conical. Spatulated. Philosophic. Artistic. Feminine.

The thumb is an unfailing index of character. The Square Type indicates a strong will, great energy and firmness. Closely allied is the Spatulated Type, the thumb of those of advanced ideas and business ability. Both of these types belong to the busy man or woman; and Demorest's Family Magazine prepares especially for such persons a whole volume of new topics, condensed in a small space, so that the record of the whole world's work for a month may be read in half an hour. The Conical Type indicates refinement, culture, and a love of music, poetry, and fiction. A person with this type of thumb will thoroughly enjoy the literary attractions of Demorest's Magazine. The Artistic Type indicates a love of beauty and art, which will give rare pleasure in the magnificent oil-picture of roses, 16½ x 24 inches, reproduced from the original painting by De Longpre, the most celebrated of living flower-painters, which will be given to every subscriber to Demorest's Magazine for 1895. The cost of this superb work of art was $20,000; and the reproduction cannot be distinguished from the original. Besides this, an exquisite oil or water-color picture is published in each number of the Magazine, and the articles are so profusely and superbly illustrated that the Magazine is, in reality, a portfolio of art works of the highest order. The Philosophic Type is the thumb of the thinker and inventor of ideas, who will be deeply interested in those developed monthly in Demorest's Magazine, in every one of its numerous departments, which cover the entire artistic and scientific field, embodying every fact, fancy, and fad of the day. Demorest's is simply a perfect Family Magazine, and was long ago named Queen of the Monthlies. Send in your subscription at once, it will cost only $2.00, and you will have a dozen Magazines in one. Address W. JENNINGS DEMOREST, Publisher, 15 East 14th Street, New York. Though not a fashion magazine, its perfect fashion pages and its articles on family and domestic matters, will be of superlative interest to those possessing the Feminine Type of Thumb, which indicates in its small size, slenderness, soft nail, and smooth, rounded tip, those traits which belong especially to the softer sex, every one of whom should subscribe to Demorest's Magazine. If you are unacquainted with its merits, send for a specimen copy (free), and it will admit that seeing these THUMBS has put it in the way of saving money by finding in one magazine everything to satisfy the literary wants of a whole family.

THE CALF PATH.

BY SAM FOSS.

One day through the primeval wood
A calf walked home, as good calves should;

But made a trail all bent askew,
A crooked trail as all calves do.

Since then two hundred years have fled
And, I infer the calf is dead.

But still he left behind his trail,
And thereby hangs my moral tale.

The trail was taken up next day
By a lone dog that passed that way.

And then a wise bell-weather sheep
Pursued the trail o'er vale and steep.

And drew the flock behind him too,
As good bell-weathers always do.

And from that day o'er hill and glade
Through those old woods a path was made,

And many men wound in and out,
And dodged and turned and bent about.

And uttered words of righteous wrath,
Because 'twas such a crooked path;

But still they followed—do not laugh—
The first migrations of that calf,

And through the winding wood-way stalked,
Because he wabbled when he walked.

This forest path became a lane,
That bent and turned and turned again.

This crooked lane became a road,
Where many a poor horse with his load

Toiled on beneath the burning sun,
And traveled some three miles in one.

And thus a century and a half
They trod the foot-steps of that calf.

The years passed on in swiftest fleet;
The road became a village street,

And this, before men were aware,
A city's crowded thoroughfare.

And soon the central street was this
Of a renowned metropolis.

And men two centuries and a half
Trod in the foot-steps of that calf.

Each day a hundred thousand rout
Followed the zigzag calf about;

And o'er his crooked journey went
The traffic of a continent.

A hundred thousand men were led
By one calf near three centuries dead.

They followed still his crooked way,
And lost one hundred years a day,

For thus such reverence is lent
To well-established precedent.

A moral lesson this might teach,
Were I ordained and called to preach.

For men are prone to go it blind
Along the calf paths of the mind:

And work away from sun to sun,
To do what other men have done.

They follow in the beaten track,
And out and in, and forth and back,

And still their devious course pursue,
To keep the paths that others do.

But how the wise old wood-gods laugh,
Who saw the first primeval calf.

Ah, many things this tale might teach—
But I am not ordained to preach.
—Pittsburgh Christian Advocate.

SENATOR KNUTE NELSON is in Minneapolis. He is reported to be assisting in stirring the political kettle, for next year's governor.

JOHN SHERMAN has written a book; and now there are lots of his old political friends abusing him worse even than the Democrats ever did.

C. M. LORING, Lorin Fletcher's old partner, in Minneapolis has been forced to make an assignment. He was supposed to be worth three quarters of a million, and went security for too many friends.

MOST people in this country believe President Garfield dead, before they do Senator Sherman alive, and old John will have a tough time trying to make them believe that the martyred President was a meaner man than the living Senator.

WE are in receipt of a copy of the Fargo Forum giving an excellent article on Normal Schools, and describing the one at Mayville, N. D., among the faculty of which flourishing institution appears the name of our former fellow-townsman, Professor Willis E. Johnson.

WE are in receipt of a publication called "History of Grain and the Grain Trade of the World." It is something instructive in that line. It is small but goes over lots of time and teritory. The work is nicely arranged neatly printed, and you can have one by writing to H. M. Green & Co., Rialto Building, Chicago, Ill.

BOSS DORAN isn't over half so big a man as some of our Republican exchanges try to make out. Whenever a Democrat is appointed, or fails to be appointed to an office, they hasten to inform the people that it was all owing to Mike Doran. They should hunt up the facts in the matter before announcing them to their readers. The last one is the appointment of P. H. Kerwin, as Surveyor General. Several of our exchanges have been claiming this was another Doran victory; when along comes the Monticello Times and announces to its readers: "and thus again has Mike Doran, the once invincible, been turned down, Poor Mike." Surely somebody has missed the mark; or aimed wrong. Give "Poor Mike" a rest. Everybody give him a rest.

Free Lunch.

Chauncey M. Depew is right, no doubt, in the opinion that the free lunch in the saloon is to blame for many a man's downfall. He says the free lunch is composed of food of such a character that it keeps a man thirsty, and forces him to buy liquor to keep himself comfortable. It is made up of pickled herring, corn beef, fish cakes, salted potatoes, pretzels, cheese, smoked beef, potato salad, and dozens of other dishes, the main ingredient of which is salt.—Methodist Herald.

Mr. Depew seems, from the above, to have a thorough acquaintance, not only with the formula of, but with the pathological condition produced by, and the remedy usually resorted to in cases of "free lunch." Better pay for your meals and when thirsty drink water.

Harvesting the Crops.

Miss Cora DeLaittre, daughter of W. F. DeLaittre, of Farm Island, is only twelve years old, yet she is bright beyond her years. Every available hand was pressed into the service of securing her father's bounteous crops, Miss Cora among the rest, and she records her distaste for the work in the following manner:

I thought when bean-pulling was over
That all the labor was done;
But I find myself badly mistaken,
It has only just begun.

Digging potatoes was awful,
But nothing like husking the corn;
The kernels they scratched my fingers
I wish I'd never been born.

And then comes the beets and the turnips,
Those turnips they wouldn't come up
Until you took pike-poles and grub-hoes
And pried them out by the roots.

And now comes the beets and the carrots;
Well, they were not quite as bad;
I don't know what I'd done if they had been;
I don't believe I'd been very glad.

There is nothing left now but the pumpkins,
The cabbage are all gathered in;
But we haven't any place to put them.
We have filled up our cellars and bins.

And now comes the thrashing of beans,
Oh, won't we have to rustle;
And then when you take and haul them to town
You can only get a dollar a bushel.

But now the harvest is over,
And when the snow falls thick and fast
We can sit in the house and pop corn
And listen to the cold wintry blast.
—Aitkin Republican.

Declaration of Independence.

The Sons of the Revolution, Minnesota Society, No. 32 East Fourth Street, St. Paul, has sent us the following letter for publication:

ST. PAUL, MINN. November 8, 1895
TO PRINCIPALS OF MINNESOTA HIGH SCHOOLS:

We send to every High School in the State, by express prepaid, and with our compliments and very best wishes, a framed fac simile copy of the Declaration of Independence. The conditions of the gift are:

First. That it be read to the assembled school on Friday, November 29th, 1895.

[Nov. 30 1782, the independence of the United States was acknowledged by Great Britain.]

Second. That it be hung in a conspicuous place and where it can be easily read by any scholar at any time.

Third. That it remain the property of the school and in charge of the Senior class.

The education and character formation of the rising generation is in your hands,—a noble calling,—and we know that you will rejoice that practical plans have been devised to assist you in stimulating in the young a love of Patriotism, by teaching through study and object lessons the TRUE meaning of Flag and Country, and that we will have your hearty co-operation. Hence our suggestion that your regular composition exercise be used as a Patriotic Essay contest for our Prize Medals.

Seeing to it that "Old Glory" waves over the school house; stimulating study of Patriotic history; presenting flags and portraits of Washington and Lincoln, and copies of the Declaration of Independence—grand, good, boundless work for a Patriotic Society, to keep alive within every true American the "Spirit of '76."

When acknowledging receipt, notify me of the action your school or scholars have taken regarding our Prize Essay offer as contained in our Proclamation of October 10th.

Yours truly,
RUKARD HURD,
Secretary.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

From our Regular Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 8, 1895.

Political defeat is a part and portion of the history of every political party and amounts to little when the members of the defeated party have the courage to profit by the lesson which can always be learned from defeat, by which the democratic party this week lost the states of New York, New Sersey, Maryland and Kentucky, which are naturely democratic, and allowed the republicans to pile up abnormal off year majorities in other states, is so plain that he who runs may read it, and he can run a great deal faster than some of the democratic candidates did in the states named, too. If the rank and file of the party displayes the sense and courage to profit by this lesson the democratic party has still a good fighting chance to elect the President and a majority of the House next year—there is no chance to regain control of the senate before 1899 or later; its chance for doing either may be considered infinitessimal.

Everybody knows the cause of the democratic defeat this week, as well as that at last year's Congressional elections. It is because there are not enough democrats to win when they are divided into administration and anti administration democrats. In 1892 when the party was united it won a great victory, capturing at one time the Presidency and the control of both branches of Congress. Barring the control of the Senate that victory can be duplicated in 1896, provided that the Cleveland democrats and the anti-Cleveland democrats can be made to become just plain democrats and to stop cutting each others throats. A good start might be made in that direction by those -this is no time for criminations and recrimination; therefore no names need be called—who excused their opposition, both open and secret, to the regular democratic nominees in several states on the ground that it was an off year and defeat would have no effect upon the Presidential contest. Let them come out like men and say whether they are democrats from principle, or only democrats when they can name the parties nominees, and having declared themeselves let them live up to their declarations.

In this same connection there is also a duty devolving upon the men who have manipulated the party machine. A little consideration will convince them that they are not blameless. Had they been less arrogant in displaying their power to force objectional nominations, in some instances for no better reason than a desire to force objecting democrats to eat a dish of crow by voting and working for these nominees, the party would have made a better showing. Let these men forget the injury done and endeavor to conciliate the kicking democrats and to get the party united once more.

One of the principal reasons why a united democracy will stand an excellchance of winning next year is found in the present condition of the republican party, when regards its wining next year as such a certainty that its members have already began to fight for the control of the spoils of victory, and by the time they succeeded in nominating a Presidential ticket they are likely to be hoplessly split up into fighting factions. If the democoatic party remains as it now is it will be in no condition to take advantage of such a state of affairs. It is only a question whether democrats prefer following up personal grudges and "getting even" with democrats against whom they are held and loosing, to surbordinating their personal feeling for the success of the party and winning.

Hon. Lawrence Gardner, Secretary of the Democratic National Committee, speaking of the elections said: "I do not think that our defeat means that we have no hope for '96. It was not against the principles of democracy that the people voted," and ex-Representative Coombs, of N. Y. gave an explanation of the result in his state after saying that he had none to give by adding: "But we must get together in New York. The way the democracy is divided there is astonishing."

President Cleveland and all the members of his Cabinent are setting a good example for other democrats by declining to express for publication their opinions of the partys defeat.

This is all the more creditable to them because they could, if so disposed, truthfully call attention to the fact that the most crushing defeats have occurred in the states in which the campaigns were personly managed by anti-administration democratic Senators. President Cleveland, as well as the members of his Cabinent, have some decided oppinions on this subject is certain, but it is fortunate for the party that they have the good judgment to keep them to themselves at this time, when the rank and file of the party, who are neither responsible for nor have taken any part in the bickerings, are smarting under a defeat which they believe to be underserved. It is a matter that should only be discussed in private.

Mc Gary Some More.

INDEPENDENCE Nov. 12th. 1895.

MR. EDITOR: I did not visit you last week but since then I have heard some news, that sounds like the millennium. The Republican party with their fishing tackle all baited for suckers have made a big draw, got everything that was on top of the earth from the lakes of the north to the Rio Grande. "On with the dance, let joy be unconfined." for the millennium will soon be here in the imagination of many, then how sweet it will be to commune together.

Time nor space would not allow me (Provided I had the brain of a Webster and the confidence of a Napoleon) to make mention of all the checkered work that is going on in politics, in this country, for it would create a volume larger than the five books of Moses, but, perhaps not so interesting. I suppose this fall election is a forerunner of what will come to pass a year from now, when the fence will be taken down between the sheep and the goats and we'll be one flock and under one hepherd.

We have fine fall weather, and farmers are improving it by plowing, husking corn and making other preparations for winter.

C. Vorse, of Delano, was in our town yesterday ou business.

G. N. Wright, of Wayzata, was in our town on business this week.

B. F. Remington, of Monticello, was in our town over Sunday, visiting with relatives.

President Cleveland has issued his Thanksgiving proclamation, which is to be observed on Thursday, 28th present month. Is this a farce or is it a reality? I fear it is made more a day of feasting and revalry than of Thanks giving. The President says one should remember the poor. No doubt many of us will and so will the Devil. On that day let Mr. Cleveland give one half of a year's salary, $25.000. to the poor; then we will think he has remembered them. He can do that and not deny himself one comfort.

MILKING TIME.

BY OUR OWN POET.

There are many scenes on the dear old farm
That are full of quiet rest,
But the one that has the greatest charm
And the one I love the best—

Is when the shades of evening fall
After the sun has set,
When Bossy answering to my call
Comes through the grasses wet.

Far overhead are the evening stars,
And the new moon, slim and pale,
Looks down on Bossy at the bars—
On me and my milking pail.

With a music its own, down comes each stream,
And higher the foam does rise,
While visions of butter and golden cream
Are floating before my eyes.

Old Pussy repeatedly licks her chops
As she blinks her sleepy eyes;
She is having a vision, too, perhaps,
Of sweet milk by and by.

And the calf looks through the bars at me
And with a long drawn "moo"
Says just as plain as plain can be,
"I want my supper, too."

At last with brimming pail I go
The milk to strain and set,
While out from the meadow, lying low,
The quail pipes forth "more wet."

After the creatures are fed I lay
Me down to take my rest;
Then calm Content in my heart does say,
"O, a rural life is best!"

And this the time and place of all
The burden of my rhyme:
On the dear old farm, when shadows fall
And just as milking time.
—Farm Journal

FACTS.

The poet Tennyson could take a worthless sheat of paper, and by writting a poem on it, make it worth sixty-five thousand dollars—that's genius.

Vanderbilt can write a few words on a sheat of paper and make it worth five million dollars—that's capitial.

The United States can take an ounce and a quarter of gold and stamp upon it an "eagle bird," and make it worth twenty dollars—that's money.

The mechanic can take material worth five dollars and make it into a watch worth one hundred dollars.—that's skill.

The merchant can take an article worth seventy-five cents and sell it for a dollar—that's business.

A lady can purchase a very comfortable bonnet for three dollars and seventy-five cents, but she prefers one thst costs twenty-seven dollars—that's foolishness.

The ditch digger works ten hours a day and shovels three or four tons of earth for two dollars—that's labor.

The editor of this paper could write a check for eighty million dollars, but it would not be worth a nickel—that's rough.—Ex.

The oil wells discovered there are proving so profitable that a large proportion of Pennsylvania's oil colony has gone to the Pacific slope to locate.

PEANUTS will be a very short crop this year, according to reports from all over the south, but, in face of this depressing news, it is reassuring to know that successful experiments in raising peanuts have been made in many parts of the country hitherto considered inhospitable. Washington and Oregon farmers have raised good crops this year, and a Biddeford (Me.) farmer tells of having harvested a good though small crop.

THE curious fact has been observed that while buildings generally are more liable to accidents from lightning during the first half of the year than during the last, barns form an exception to this rule. In attempting to account for this, it has been suggested that a full barn is warmer than an empty one, and that the heated and somewhat moist air rising from the straw or hay is more conductive than cooler air and "attracts" lightning.

THERE is a little paragraph printed in the newspapers every fall about this time that never loses its pathetic significance. It comes under the date of Gloucester, Mass., and gives the number of Gloucester fishermen lost at sea during the fishing season in carrying on the cod industry. The number varies year by year with the varying mood of the ocean, but the insatiate monster never relaxes altogether its demand for a tribute of human lives. This year 92 men went out and never came back.

THE revision of the Bible, which was commenced in 1870, is now completed, and the labors of the learned body of men who began their work 25 years ago are ended. While this translation is more critically exact than any that has preceded it, and has the commendation of scholars, it has not supplanted the authorized version, which has been for three centuries the pride and admiration of the English world. It is the glory of English literature, and in its pages has been found the consolation and hope of ten generations of mankind. Let us hope that the revision will prove a blessing.

JOHN PURSENIOR GRAY died recently at his home near Brosville, in Pittsylvania county, Va. He was born on the farm upon which he died in 1800. He lived there all his life and was buried there. It was his boast that he never had a fight in his life, never had a lawsuit, never went to the county courthouse but once and that was 70 years ago when he went to get his marriage license. His wife and seven out of 12 children survive him, also 84 grandchildren and 262 great-grandchildren. He was an honorable man and a highly-esteemed citizen, who lived and died without an enemy.

THE regainment of Jerusalem by the Jews is one of those historical possibilities that especially captivate the mind by their appropriate picturesqueness. For years—a fact probably not widely known among Gentiles—a systematic agitation having in view a return of the race to the home of their fathers has been going on, and the present results are surely encouraging. Dr. Selah Merrill, formerly United States consul at Jerusalem, says that of the 47,000 inhabitants of the Holy City 27,000 are Jews. The proportion of Jews will no doubt continue to increase, and more rapidly than heretofore.

A HARVEST OF DEATH.

Exploding Boilers Wreck the "Journal" Building at Detroit.

The Dead Bodies of Thirty-Three Men Exhumed from the Ruins—Fire Breaking Out Adds to Its Horrors—A Careless Engineer.

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 7.—At three minutes to nine o'clock Wednesday morning the battery of boilers in the building of the Evening Journal exploded, wrecking the buildings Nos. 45 and 47 West Larned street, killing at least 40 persons, wounding 20 others more or less seriously and causing a money loss of $60,000.

The first intimation the neighborhood got of the disaster was from the tremendous report followed by a blinding cloud of debris, smoke and steam and before this had cleared away the whole five floors and the people working upon them were in one inextricable wreck. The force of the explosion had thrown down the wall between Nos. 45 and 47 Larned street and the joists which rested on it came tumbling down, tearing themselves away from the adjoining wall.

The firemen were there in a minute from the next corner. The whole downtown division of the department followed, and willing volunteers from the crowd that collected pitched in to help dig into the ruins. Several bodies were thus rescued within a very short period of time. Then came the horrors of the calamity. As the workers dug into the debris and the air got into it the furnace fires set the mass ablaze, and the rescuers were driven back by the smoke, through which came muffled cries for help. Streams of water turned on the blaze soon checked the fire so that the work of rescue might go on, but not until at least three persons had fallen victims to the flames.

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 8.—The work of recovering the bodies of the victims of the Journal boiler explosion continued all day Thursday. By Friday noon all the debris will have been explored and the last of the bodies recovered. Up to six o'clock Thursday morning 18 bodies had been taken out of the ruins, nearly all of them frightfully burned. As the workers got into that portion of the debris into which fire had not crept the condition of the corpses recovered was found to be better. Death had come to the victims of the disaster so suddenly that many of them were found in the very attitudes in which they were at the moment of the explosion. Fifteen corpses were taken out of the ruins between six o'clock a. m. and five o'clock p. m.

Following is a revised list of the dead:

The Dead.

George G. Hiller, John Francis Derby, Joseph Bradley, Louis G. Riecher, Rosa Bretz, Emma Lichtenberg, Anna Wiedbusch, Katie Leonard, M. Rosa Morgan, John Breitenbecher, John Koerber, Ernest Parkin, Jennie Neubauer, Bertha Wiedbusch, James Ross, Henry Larivere, John Bommer, Walter P. Saxby, Lizzie Tapley, Henry Clou Walsh, John J. Reuter, George H. Soule, George Shaw, Willie Hawes, Carrie M. Bower, Hattie Hiller, Michael Ward, Minnie Liese, William W. Duniap, Adolph Schreiber, Jr., John Gordon, Catherine Hiller, Lon Fritz, Lizzie Wiedbusch, Charles Lind, Anna Ulick and John M. Thomas.

The cause of the fatality was developed Thursday, when a piece of one of the boilers was uncovered by the wreckers. The portion found disclosed to the expert engineers who examined it at once that the cause of the explosion was low water.

The city boiler inspector coincided with this view after his examination. This throws the responsibility upon the engineer and the owners of the building, the former of whom had been repeatedly warned that he was too careless by neighboring engineers, while the owners of the property had been given at least one formal notice that he was negligent. The owners of the property are the heirs of the late Congressman Newberry, who was in his lifetime the business partner of Senator McMillan.

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 9.—The walls adjoining the wrecked portion of the Journal building have been braced and the work of digging in the ruins progresses rapidly and with a greater degree of safety. Three more bodies were taken out. They were those of Lizzie Weidbusch, employed in Hiller's bindery; Charles Lind, aged 20, also an employe of the bindery; Annie Uhlik, press woman in Hiller's bindery.

Late in the evening the body of James B. Thomas, a machinist, was taken from the ruins of the Journal building. This is the 37th body recovered, and, according to the list of missing, was the last body left in the wreck.

Prosecuting Attorney Fraser ordered the arrest of Engineer Thompson, of the wrecked building.

Satolli's Successor.

New York, Nov. 11.—The Herald says: A cablegram has been received here by a high authority to the effect that Pope Leo has determined upon a successor to Mgr. Satolli, papal delegate to the United States, in the person of Mgr. Laurenzelli, at present internuncio at The Hague, and he will proceed to this country at an early day in order to be here before Mgr. Satolli takes his departure.

New Turkish Ministry.

Constantinople, Nov. 8.—Hali Rifat Pasha, the Turkish minister for the interior, has been appointed grand vizier in succession to Kiamil Pasha, resigned. A new ministry has been formed.

Socialists Make Gains.

Berlin, Nov. 11.—Fourteen members of the municipal council were voted for Friday with the result that six liberals and five socialists were elected, and in three districts a reballot will be necessary. These seats have formerly been held by eight liberals and six socialists.

Sensation Promised in Paris.

Paris, Nov. 9.—L'Intransigeant asserts that the government is about to reopen the question of the Panama canal scandals and that it will prosecute a prominent member of the parliament in connection with them.

American Set at Liberty in Mexico.

Nogales, A. T., Nov. 11.—John Schoonmaker, an American engineer, who has been held at Guaymas, Mexico, by Mexican officials for running his engine over and killing a drunken Mexican, has, by the intervention of the state department of the United States, been released. He is now on his way to his home in Nogales.

Second Hygienic Exposition.

Washington, Nov. 11.—Consul Rawyez writes to the department of state from Warsaw, Poland, that the second hygienic exposition of Poland will be held at Warsaw May 15 to July 15, 1896.

THE ARMY.

Synopsis of the Annual Report of Maj. Gen. Miles.

Washington, Nov. 12.—The report of Maj. Gen. Miles, commanding the United States army, which was made public Monday, differs in many material respects from statements in regard to its contents previously published.

Gen. Miles believes that the peaceable condition among the various Indian tribes is largely attributable to the presence of troops at suitable points, and to the admirable conduct of the experienced army officers who have been placed in charge of the principal agencies. While it is economical and desirable to have the reserve forces of the army near the great centers of communication, Gen. Miles urgently contends that these points should be selected for their strategic value, and that the tendency towards concentration should not be carried to the point of depriving the western settlements of proper protection.

Under the head of coast defenses Gen. Miles states that the condition of these defences is such as to require decided and immediate action for their improvement. Some progress has been made towards defending San Francisco, and a few modern guns and rifles have been placed. These, however, are but a small part of what is needed for the defense of the harbor, while San Diego is in the same condition as Puget Sound, entirely at the mercy of any strong naval power, which could blockade every important port on the Pacific coast within 30 days. While the railroads might transport a million brave men to the coast, they would be useless without appliances to cope with the modern engines of war, and with all our intelligence, pride, inventive genius and enterprise we are as far behind in the modern appliances of war as China or Japan. Such were the conditions, says Gen. Miles, as stated by him in his report six years ago, and such are the conditions to-day, with the exception of slight progress made at San Francisco.

The entire gulf coast and all the great cities of the Atlantic coast northward to Philadelphia are entirely without modern guns. With one exception the cities north of New York are in a similar condition to those south of it. Some guns and mortars have been constructed and some shipped to their destination, carriages for them are under construction and emplacements have been made to a limited extent.

He shows that torpedo plants are useless without protective batteries and that the water in our principal harbors is so deep that light draft war vessels might pass over torpedo mines without danger. He asserts that the recent maneuvers in England have shown that even the powerful British navy is unable to defend the British coast against a foreign fleet. Therefore he argues that the main reliance must be upon coast batteries. He strongly recommends the construction of all the high power guns and systems of defenses called for in the general plan of the board of ordnance and fortifications, and to meet in part the expense of this costly undertaking he suggests the application of the funds that might be derived from the sale of abandoned military reservations.

He approves the use of bicycles and motor wagons in the army and recommends that a force of twelve companies be equipped with these devices.

Gen. Miles argues for an increase in the strength of the army, saying that there is no reason why it should become crystallized and kept at one strength, as it has been for years. It should increase with the growth of the country and be determined by the census at a minimum of one soldier for every 2,000 population and a maximum of one in 1,000.

MORE BLOODSHED.

Turks Said to Have Attacked an English Mission.

Constantinople, Nov. 12.—The English mission near Jerusalem has been attacked by a riotous mob. The missionaries escaped but some of the servants of the mission were killed.

Hon. Mr. Herbert, the British charge d'affaires at Constantinople, as soon as he learned of the affair, made a protest to the porte, which at once instructed the vali of Jerusalem to protect the missionaries in every way.

Constantinople, Nov. 12.—The lawlessness of the Kurds in the eastern provinces has grown measurably since the demands for reforms were made upon the sultan by Great Britain, France and Russia. The sultan's very evident inclination to refuse to grant the demands, or, at least, to defer giving a definite answer to the representatives of the powers encouraged the Kurds to believe that the sultan tacitly supported them in their attacks upon the Armenians. Color has been lent to this belief by the action of the sultan in giving good service decorations to several officials who were notoriously in favor of exterminating the Armenians and who give their sanction to the massacres that have led Turkey to the verge of dismemberment. The Kurds have assumed such an attitude of disregard to all authority that it is believed here that the officials are now powerless to stop them from continuing their massacreing and pillaging.

Advices from the eastern provinces show that the condition of anarchy is such that a very strong force will have to be employed if any progress at all is to be made against the Kurds. The porte apparently understands this fact, for it is announced that 120,000 troops will be sent against the Kurds. Should the latter offer resistance, it is doubtful if even this force will be sufficiently strong to cope with the Kurds, whose intimate knowledge of the mountainous country will stand them in good stead in opposing the Turkish troops.

The Crops.

Washington, Nov. 12.—The November returns of the department of agriculture make the corn crop the largest in volume of record, with the rate of yield, however, somewhat less than that indicated by the returns for October, being 26.2 bushels per acre. This must be regarded as preliminary and not a final estimate of the yield. The average yield of buckwheat is 20.1 bushels, against 16.1 last year; the average yield of potatoes is 100.7 bushels per acre, tobacco 473 pounds and hay 1.06 tons. The crop of apples is reported as 71.1 per cent. of a full crop.

Money for Detroit Sufferers.

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 11.—At a mass meeting of citizens, held in the Auditorium Saturday night, the relief fund started to give assistance to poor and bereaved relatives of the victims of the Journal building disaster was increased to $11,700, exclusive of some independent subscription lists.

Struck by a Train.

Green Bay, Wis., Nov. 11.—The Chicago & Northwestern fast train from the south struck a carriage at West Bend, in which Edward Berins and wife were riding. The woman was killed and Mr. Berins cannot live.

Prominent Ohioan Gone.

Columbus, O., Nov. 9.—Robert Sherard, of Steubenville, a prominent capitalist, and long prominently identified with the republican organization in Ohio, died Friday morning, aged 73. He was a member of the state senate from 1862 to 1864, and was a Harrison elector in the last presidential election.

Valuable Timber in Ashes.

Veedersburg, Ind., Nov. 12.—Many thousands of dollars' worth of valuable timber was burned in this county last week. Every township reports a heavy fire caused by dry weather. It is supposed the fires were set by hunters.

LAYING ON THE LAST STRAW.

The Horse May Now Be Seen Led on the Street by a Bicycle.

The horse has been getting the "worst of it" for some time. First he was found to be edible and was made into sausage and canned and sold in steaks and his hide made into cordova. Then electricity took away the work of his old age—pulling street cars. And now the bicycle has further restricted his sphere of usefulness by depriving him of pulling the Sunday young man and his best girl on their afternoon drives. Livery, which was his exclusive field, has been adopted by the impertinent wheel, and now, in the next stall to the horse, is the glistening bicycle, which needs neither oats nor bedding. Then, too, they have shared with him and the bicycle the honorable epithet "steed," and the gaudy wheel, with its noiseless, sneaking rubber shoes, is called the "noble iron steed," etc., ad nauseam. The future of the horse is indeed dismal.

The crowning insult, however, went unresented the other day. Down Grand Avenue, says the Kansas City Star, rolled a man on a wheel, leading a fine, sturdy, middle-aged horse, in the prime of life and usefulness. The horse jogged along after the wheel with his head hanging dejectedly and shamefully. He evidently realized his degradation, but was too hopeless and heartsore to resent it. And lovers of the horse, man's intelligent friend and companion, looked after him pityingly and wished he would back up, pull the man off the wheel and dance on the machine—but he didn't.

A Story of Pluck and Sacrifice.

A Rockland (Me.) woman whose story is briefly outlined by the Courier-Gazette has particular reasons for thankfulness that the last years of her life are spent in the land that celebrates July 4. This lady, Mrs. Hanrahan by name, lived in Ireland at the time of the potato famine. At last things got so desperate with her family that they held a council to see what could be done to keep them from starvation. America was thought of, but if the husband went to the United States what would keep the mother and children? So the brave woman decided that she would go. By hard exertion and bitter sacrifice her passage money was earned, and, taking a sad farewell of her home and little ones, she crossed the ocean. She procured a situation in New York, and while the father kept the family together and earned enough to give them a scanty living the mother worked night and day in the far-off city to get the funds that would bring her dear ones to this country. At length the years of probation were over, the father and children landed in New York and the family was once more united. "Ah!" said the old lady, "it was a happy day when I saw me man and the children landing from the steamer."

A Lost State.

The United States, compared with the nations of the old world, is but a creation of yesterday, and it is seldom that one can dig up forgotten facts in its history. How many know that there was once a "State of Franklin" organized, though never admitted to the union? The present state of Tennessee was originally a part of the grant of lands made by Charles II. to the colony of North Carolina. Subsequent to the Revolutionary war, in the year 1784, the legislature of North Carolina passed an act ceding to the United States all that part of their state lying west of the mountains. Supposing this would be accepted by congress, the people of Washington, Sullivan and Green counties declared themselves independent of North Carolina and organized the "State of Franklin." In 1785, however, North Carolina repealed the act of cession of the previous year, but these counties remained out until 1788, when they again acknowledged the sovereignty of the "Old North State." This was the first secession that occurred in our country, but no fuss was made about it, and it died out quietly. In 1790 North Carolina again ceded the territory to the general government, and shortly after Tennessee was organized and admitted to the union. Since then many new states have been added in the West and Northwest, and to all the principal cities and towns of eleven of them the Burlington Route is the quickest and best means of communication. For further information about this railroad inquire of your home ticket agent, or write to W. J. C. Kenyon, Gen. Pass. Agent, St. Paul, Minn.

THERE is an awful lot of enthusiasm wasted on dead-horse projects.

KNOWLEDGE

Brings comfort and improvement and tends to personal enjoyment when rightly used. The many, who live better than others and enjoy life more, with less expenditure, by more promptly adapting the world's best products to the needs of physical being, will attest the value to health of the pure liquid laxative principles embraced in the remedy, Syrup of Figs.

Its excellence is due to its presenting in the form most acceptable and pleasant to the taste, the refreshing and truly beneficial properties of a perfect laxative; effectually cleansing the system, dispelling colds, headaches and fevers and permanently curing constipation. It has given satisfaction to millions and met with the approval of the medical profession, because it acts on the Kidneys, Liver and Bowels without weakening them and it is perfectly free from every objectionable substance.

SOMETHING ABOUT COINS.

If They Are Plugged or Worn They Have Little Special Value.

As viewed from a numismatic standpoint it is the condition of a coin which fixes its value. It is not the date or age, except in less than thirty instances, that is sought for at the big quoted premiums. Pierced, plugged, badly-worn, scratched coins, or those on which the dates are illegible, have no particular value.

A perfectly-uncirculated cent of 1799 would easily bring $100, whereas a good cent of the same date can be purchased for $10.

For gold there is but a limited numismatic demand, and the supply is greatly in excess of the demand. The double eagle of 1849 is worth about $300. All gold dollars are at a premium, and worth from $1.20 to $1.40 each. Those dated 1863, 1864 and 1865 command from $2.50 to $4 each, and 1875, $8.

Most numismatic transactions are in silver coins. A dollar of 1804 is worth $400; a half dollar of 1797 brings $40, and a quarter of 1827 commands $40. The dime of 1804 is the most valuable, being worth $10, and the half dime of 1802 easily holds the record at $63. A large copper cent of 1799 would bring $25, and a half cent of 1796 is in demand at $30.

A thin silver half dime of 1802 was bought by its present holder for $63, and has been sold at $75.

TWO BROTHERS.

There were two brotners reared together
In a low-eaved house by the fields of corn,
Who rambled among the fields and meadows,
Content and happy, though country born;
And one was a dreamer, ever listless,
As if hearing sweet whispers far away.
"The flowers are sweet in the waving meadows;
They are summer's kisses," the dreamer would say.
"The grass is better," responded the other,
"And fills the mows and stacks with hay."
But, ah! the dreamer, he loved the singing
Of the waving leaves and the wanton brook;
He loved the song of the warbling red bird,
He loved the hush of the shady nook.
"Hear the robins sing?" he would sometimes murmur.
"Hush and listen." But the other one
Cried: "Ho! they are stealing our ripest cherries!
I would that we had our father's gun."

The soul of the dreamer was filled with music,
And he sang as the thrush in the tangled briers;
And oft at eve, when the sun was setting
And the good wives builded their supper fires,
They would hear his song float over the meadows,
Sweet and clear as the chapel's bell.
The plowman stopped in the clodded furrow;
The lifted lash unheeded fell.
"God bless the child," they would softly murmur,
"With his bird-like song and angel face."
While their lips took up the mellow chanson,
While their hearts took in the saintly grace.
But still more able they reckoned the other—
The silent brother, who sturdily strode,
Quickening the pace of the lagging cattle,
And plucking the berries along the road.

To manhood grown in the busy city,
Two brothers lived, their ways apart;
For one bent low in a lonely attic,
And one strode bold in the city's mart.
The people praised the sweet-voiced singer;
The songs of his soul were on every lip;
But they cringed and bowed to the wealthy merchant,
And worshiped his hoard of gold and script.
The years passed on; in the mighty city
Death came at last alike their lot:
But one he found in a stately chamber,
And one he found in a humble cot.

Two graves there are in a country churchyard,
O'er one a mass of marble stands;
O'er the other naught but a humble rose bush,
Planted in pity by loving hands.
Strangers come where the two are lying,
Admiring they pause by the rich man's grave,
But with tears and flowers they remember the dreamer,
Who, glorified, sleeps where the roses wave.

SOCIAL INQUISITORS.

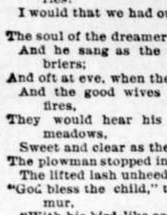
BY C. A. FASKER.



DORINDA dropped in the other day, after the free and easy and altogether delightful fashion that she has of so doing whenever she feels inclined. I should not like this custom in every one I admit, but I do like it in Dorinda, and she knows it. She would also know if I did not, and would order her ways accordingly. Derinda is a person of excellent sense. I saw at once, on this particular occasion, that she was feeling much annoyed, but I did not make any inquiries, conjecturing that they would be unwelcome, and knowing them to be unnecessary. I am very well acquainted with Dorinda.

She pulled off her gloves with a nervous gesture and tossed them on the table; her hat followed, then she unfastened her wrap and sank wearily into a comfortable chair, while I proceeded with my task of endeavoring to repair, as inconspicuously as possible, a very conspicuous rent in a diminutive pair of trousers.

Dorinda watched me absently a few moments, then inquired: "How did he accomplish it? Was there a nail in the cellar door? or did the poor child attempt to hang himself in a fit of desperation over the appalling amount of unpunishable rudeness in the world?"

I lifted my brows with an "O, that's it, is it?" expression, and asked "From what point of view has it presented itself this time?"

"The interrogation point," Dorinda replied, then taking off her wrap, announced that she would stay to tea.

"Very well," said I. "You see this basket, and Jane is away. However, if you are willing to risk it, I don't object in the least."

"I'll take the chances, I'm not very hungry," and picking up a pair of stockings, Dorinda began deftly to fill the gaping heels.

There was silence for a few moments, then she exclaimed impetuously: "Isn't it the strangest thing that people who consider themselves well-bred should ask the questions that they do, and sometimes very evidently with the idea that they are being polite and agreeable!" and she darned away with energy, which method of relieving her feelings was, I confess, quite satisfactory to me."

DORA BEGAN DEFTLY TO FILL THE GAPING HEELS.

"Who is the offender this time?" I inquired, critically inspecting at arm's length the results of my labor on the trousers aforesaid.

"There are several of her. I've been making calls all the afternoon, and I feel ready to renounce the custom forever. Now you know it is not my way to discuss in detail my own or family affairs. Some people enjoy it, and I suppose the best intentioned of the questioners take it for granted that every one does, their bumps of discrimination being but slightly developed; other well-meaning persons are thoughtlessly curious, while as for those nominal members of polite society who catechise one out of pure inquisitiveness, they, of course, cannot be expected to take into account the trivial question of acceptability. Inquisitive—inquisition," she concluded, thoughtfully.

After a short pause she continued (Dorinda is not given to unpleasant personalities, but she now and then unburdens her mind to me as on this occasion), "I always dread to go to Mrs. Bayne's; I never do go except when persuaded that it will seem decidedly rude to stay away any longer, she is so kind and friendly. To-day she asked if I were going home during vacation, and when I replied that I did not expect to do so, she looked so surprised, and then inquired, point blank: 'Why not?'

"Was I under any obligations to tell her I couldn't afford it? I didn't anyway, but gave an evasive answer, and her countenance continued to express the most exasperating surprise and interrogation, and I left as soon as possible, fully determined never to go there again.

"O, of course I shall," she added, in response to my look of disapproval—Mrs. Bayne is an excellent woman, "but it will not be for the pleasure of going, certainly.

"Mrs. George Smith inquired what wages Tom is getting now, and I did not tell her. I laughed and said that he hadn't authorized me to inform people. I know she was offended, and of course she will conclude that his salary is less than it actually is."

"Anything more?" I queried, as Dorinda paused and fished somewhat savagely from the basket a fresh needle.

She gave a rueful little laugh.

"O, yes, plenty. You think me a wretched grumbler, I dare say, but I have been unusually tried this afternoon by these petty annoyances.

"Dora Gregg quizzed me about my hat, under pretence of admiring it, until I was obliged either to lie about it or tell her that I made it myself. You know without being informed which horn of the dilemma I grasped, and numerous acquaintances will forthwith have the pleasure of passing judgment upon my taste and skill.

"Now, as I do not voluntarily proclaim myself my own milliner, what right, pray, has anyone to compel me to do so? Dora is an old friend, and a nice girl, but I do not enjoy her society because she asks so many questions that are not warranted by old friendship.

"Why, O why, will people be inquisitive? Why can't they see that it must make others afraid of them?

"There's one place where I love to go, and that is Mrs. Spalding's. She is a perfect lady. She never asks annoying questions. She makes one entirely at ease, and draws out the best that is in one also. You are comfortably conscious, too, that she will not make disagreeable remarks about you after you have gone. Ah! think what a place this world would be if it were made up of Mrs. Spaldings," Dorinda rapturously concluded, then relapsed into mournful, meditative silence.

As I prepared one of her favorite dishes for tea, hoping it might have a slightly soothing effect, I pondered over the class of offenses bewailed by my young friend, and reflected that if the attention of those who thus transgress the laws of politeness were called to this matter, some might thereby be led to take heed unto their ways, for it cannot be supposed that any right-minded person wishes to make her friends afraid of her, or desires to be numbered among them, and hold a place upon their visiting lists simply through sufferance.

But do you not perceive, beloved questioners, that as regards certain of your acquaintances, presumably, too, those whose friendship you most prize, these things will result from your thoughtless, possibly politely intentioned inquisitiveness, as surely as from the impertinent curiosity of Mrs. A. or the mischief making of Mrs. B., whose failings you deplore and whose society you avoid?

Doubtless to persons of a certain mental cast your interrogations are agreeable, but Dorinda and many another are not of these, and if it be not clearly manifest to you to which class an individual belongs, then, I beseech you, steer your conversational bark clear of all personal questions that are open to a doubt on the score of acceptability.

Let this rule, dear inquiring friends, lay, from henceforth, its restraining hand upon your lips, and many a sensitive soul shall bless instead of fear you. —Good Housekeeping.

AT ONE FELL BLOW.

Agatha Dispelled the Hopes of Algernon Herringsfield Forever.

They were sitting in a settee in a sequestered corner of the porch. The dipping moon was hanging low in the hesitating sky, but the beams scarce penetrated the mass of morning-glory and honeysuckle vines that hung down in dark, fascinating ropes before them.

He felt that the time had come, and by devious and circuitous paths proceeded to direct his conversation to the critical point.

"This reminds me of a Spanish night," he said at last. "The mellow moon and rustling vines fill one's soul with poetry."

"Yes," she answered with a soulful sigh, "I can almost imagine that I see before me a dark hidalgo and hear the notes of his soft guitar."

He thought for a moment. Her words were like burning brands to his heart. Then, leaping to his feet, he went on, with the impetuous ecstasy of a madman:

"It's no use, Agatha; I can't keep what I feel from you any longer."

If a blush or any other evidence of emotion came to the fair girl's face it could not be seen in the darkness. She remained listless as he continued:

"I am being consumed—"

It was then that she interrupted him. Turning her face toward the door leading to the hall, she called in languid though kindly tones:

"Papa, do come and smoke a cigar; these horrid mosquitoes are eating Mr. Herringsfield up."—N. Y. World.

THE NEW CAPITOL.

Cass Gilbert's Plan Accepted and He Chosen Architect.

Four Others Draw Prizes on Account of Excellency of Design—Conclusion Reached After Six Days' Discussion of Plans.

The new capitol building which the capitol commission has accepted will be built according to the plans of Cass Gilbert, of St. Paul. The winners in the contest are those suggested by Edmund M. Wheelwright, expert.

The report of Mr. Wheelwright, which the commissioners considered, commenced as follows:

Boston, Oct. 17, 1895.

To the Board of State and Capitol Commissioners of the State of Minnesota:

Gentlemen: Forty-one designs were submitted to the second competition for the state capitol building.

The average merits of these designs was much higher than in the previous competition, and in the plans of the five designs which I recommended for premiums are, in their adaptation to the special needs of the building, superior to the best plan presented in the former competition. It is evident that the study of the designs submitted in that competition, and the criticism thereon, has been of real service in the production of the designs now presented for your consideration.

While the main object of a competition is to give a comparative basis for the choice of an architect by this competition, among the designs I recommend as the best, you will find types of buildings which, with certain adjustment of plan and external treatment, would give you a capitol building well suited to your practical needs and to the chosen site.

At my request, the names of the competitors were concealed from me until I had rendered my decision to your commission.

In forming my judgment of the respective merits of the designs, I have been guided by the "instructions to architects," and by the special verbal instructions of of your board in regard to the necessity of convenience of acces between the senate and house of representatives, and between the supreme court and the state library.

After preliminary examination, I found 20 designs worthy of more careful considerations, viz: 1, 2, 5, 7, 9, 12, 13, 14, 27, 18, 19, 21, 22, 23, 24, 26, 28, 38 and 39. On more detailed examination I decided that the nine designs most worthy on account of merit in plan or exterior treatment, or both, were Nos. 2, 5, 7, 13, 14, 26, 32, 38 and 39. Of these designs, I found Nos. 13 and 24 worthy of special mention and Nos. 2, 7, 32, 38 and 29 to be the five designs to which, in my opinion, the premiums should be awarded.

Mr. Wheelwright then discussed the merits of the seven plans which he mentioned. He said of the Gilbert plans:

The legislative chambers are in the north and west wings. The arrangements of these chambers, one to the other, and of the supreme court in connection with the library, all being on the second floor, as suggested by the commission, is more satisfactorily gained in this design than in any of the others which I consider worthy of premiums. The committee rooms are conveniently adjacent to the legislative chambers, and are under control. The retiring rooms for these chambers are both placed back of the speaker's chair. This plan presents the best arrangements of supreme court and library, but, while showing ample space, in the proper location, for the convenient location of all the minor offices of the court, the reporters of the court have not been assigned this floor in conjunction with the offices of the clerk of the court, as might have been done, and as is desirable to do.

The library occupies the space to the north, and the judges' rooms, and other offices on the east and south, as is desirable for such working offices.

The corridors of the first and second story are admirably lighted, some at the end and others on the sides. The lighting of the basement could be improved, and a better staircase effect could be gained if the form of staircase shown in No. 2 were adopted. The plan readily admits of this change.

The first floor shows well arranged offices and, although the governor's reception room does not hold a very important position in the plan, its dignity is satisfactorily recognized in its treatment.

The space assigned for historical society in the basement is well concentrated, and, being placed in the same wing as the library, arrangements might be made for the common use of the two collections.

The author of this design has restricted himself to a less area (about 4,300,000 cubic feet) than any of the five which I recommend. He shows less "unassigned space" than do Nos. 2 and 7. It is apparant also that if he had not kept so safely within the limit of space advised by the commissioners (4,500,000), he might have improved his design externally. More interest of shadow effect might thus have been given, especially by the increase of the projection of the flanking pavilions on the north and south facades.

He presents a scholarly, well proportioned and refined design for the exterior. The only points of detail that I would criticize is the ornament above the central windows, and the balconies on the flanking pavilions above mentioned, both being features of insufficient dignity for such a building.

The approaches are well designed. The collonade above the main entrance, with its richly ornamented side piers capped by well-placed sculpture, would be a very fine feature.

The porte-cochere under the main entrance is well handled and has merit of great practical convenience.

As a whole, the dome is very good. Especially noteworthy is the fine proportions and beauty of outline of its mass; the coupled columns, with their pilasters, strengthen to the eye, and enrich the drum of the dome. The outline of the dome itself is very refined, and it is capped by a delicately pesigned lantern, which would give rich play of light and shade. The ornamentation of the dome is excessive, at least relatively to the character of the design of the main body of the building.

The chief defect in treatment of the dome is that it springs too suddenly from the roof of the building, with but a slightly marked plinth to break the transition.

If it were thought desirable to give the building a more varied and broken exterior, the plan leads itself to a roofing similar to that shown in No. 30.

In closing he said:

I have judged the submitted designs as preliminary and suggestive sketches, and not as working drawings. Although certain objectionable qualities in external design should preclude a design from any award of a premium, the main point upon which to judge of the capabilities of the competitors, where a meritorious external treatment is presented, is the skill shown and carried out with all the elaboration of detail and sculptural ornament that has been indicated. Where such richness of ornamentation appeared to me essential to a fitting result from any of the designs, this consideration has weighed with me in my award.

Upon the basis of the cost of the building in the East, which is somewhat higher than it is with you, as I judge from such data as I have been able to gather, a building of the accommodation you suggest in your program, solidly built, fitted externally and internally with proper, but not elaborate, detail; built of local limestone, and under an inclusive contract, which should be subject to the customary method of payment for work done, and it the building does not much exceed an area of 5,000,000 feet, it can be built for $1,500,000.

If the building is to be built under several contracts, by which the several portions of the work are constructed through a long term of years, I know of no reliable basis for making an estimate of cost.

Very respectfully yours,
—Edmund M. Wheelwright.

When the final ballot had been taken the commissioners adopted the following resolution:

Resolved, That the board, having carefully examined all of the designs submitted in this (second) competition, and having been throughly advised respect to each of them, hereby makes the following awards.

First—Design No. 38, submitted by Cass Gilbert, of St. Paul, Minn., is hereby adapted as the design of the new capitol building, subject to such revision as the board may hereafter order, and the said Cass Gilbert is hereby appointed architect of the said new capitol building provided that a satisfactory contract can be made with him

Second—For the second best design the sum of $1,000 is hereby awarded to Geo. R. Mann, of St. Louis, Mo., for design No. 2.

Third—For the third best design the sum of $800 is hereby awarded to Traphagen & Fitzpatrick, of Duluth, Minn., and E. P. Bassford, of St. Paul, Minn., for Design No. 32.

Fourth—For the fourth best design the sum of $700 is hereby awarded to Clarence H. Johnson, of St. Paul, Minn., for design No. 39.

Fifth—For the fifth best design the sum of $500 is hereby awarded to Harry W. Jones, of Minneapolis, Minn., for design No. 24.

It is understood that the building, as finally erected, will not be exactly that proposed by Mr. Gilbert. All the five winning plans became the property of the commission and they are at liberty to use features from all of them, and need not necessarily confine themselves to the Gilbert plan.

Labor Law.

The state labor bureau regards the child labor matter as the most important thing before it at present, and having a limited force of men, some of the other work, for the time beieg, is being allowed to take care of itself in order that the child labor law may be put on its feet in proper style. No systematic attempt to enforce the law has yet been made outside of Minneapolis, but the results in that city are highly encouraging. The age limit in this state is higher than in other states; it is 16 years, while elsewhere it is 14. But this fact has not interfered with the enforcement of the law, and probably will not.

A Relic.

The first delinquent personal-tax record ever used in Hennepin county, and dated 1853, was discovered a few days ago in the register of deed's office while moving the records up to the new courthouse. The volume is about nine inches square and about half an inch thick and bears the name of many prominent citizen as having been on the delinquent list for varying sums, from 20 cents up to several dollars. The assessed valuation of the county is placed at $59,353, of which $59.36 was paid as territorial tax, $148.41 as school tax and $563.95 as county tax. The total tax was $771.92.

A Disagreement.

The trial of General Manager Warren, of the Duluth Street Railway Company, on the charge of violating the law requiring that all street cars shall be vestibuled between Nov. 1 and May 1 resulted in a disagreement, the jury standing six to six. During the trial it developed that the law fails to provide for a penalty in case a fine is not paid.

WASHINGTON'S JACKASS.

It Won the First Prize at the South Carolina Fair in 1790.

The collection of colonial relics for the ladies' exhibit at the Atlanta exposition has a curiosity which seems to be proof positive that Gen. George Washington was somewhat of a stock grower, and took a hand in making exhibits at fairs himself.

This relic is a large solid silver cup with the date 1790 upon it, and by its appearance is was without doubt made about that time. It bears the following inscription in fine lettering just under the rim: "A premium from the Agricultural Society of South Carolina to Gen. Washington for raising the largest jackass."

Just under the word jackass is a picture of the animal himself engraved on the silver. Capt. Purse is now in temporary possession of this relic and proposes to secure it for the collection of colonial relics to be exhibited by the colonial dames of America. Another interesting relic, which will go in the exhibit and which Capt. Purse now has in charge, is the saddle used by Gen. Scott when he rode triumphant into the City of Mexico.

A SATISFIED MAN

Who Does Not Propose to Build a Railroad.

Henry W. Oliver, the great iron man of Pittsburg, is largely interested in mining on the Mesaba range in Minnesota. The Pittsburg Dispatch says that "when shown a telegram from St. Paul stating that he was backing the Merrits in building a rival road, Mr. Oliver said that, so far as he was concerned, there was not a single word of truth in the statement; that the relations between his interests and the Duluth, Mesaba & Northern people were not strained, that he had no disposition, no desire to encourage or assist in the building of another line of railroad, and that he thought that the lines of railroad now in the country should be encouraged by paying them a fair rate of freight, so that they could provide additional facilities for moving the heavy tonnage now pressing on the lines. Mr. Oliver stated that his treatment by the Rockefeller interests had always been fair, and that he had no reason to anticipate any change in their policy."

All a Mistake.

The reporter that had accompanied the special train to the scene of the wreck hurried down the embankment and found a man who had one arm in a sling, a bandage over one eye, his front teeth gone and his nose knocked four points to starboard, sitting on a piece of the locomotive, and surveying the horrible ruin all about him. "Can you give me some particulars of this accident?" he asked, taking out his note book. "I haven't heard of any accident, young man, replied the disfigured party, stiffly. The great success of the chocolate preparations of the house of Walter Baker & Co. (established in 1780) has led to the placing on the market many misleading and unscrupulous imitations of their name, labels, and wrappers. Walter Baker & Co. are the oldest and largest manufacturers of pure and high-grade Cocoas and Chocolates on this continent. No chemicals are used in their manufactures.

Consumers should ask for, and be sure that they get, the genuine Walter Baker & Co.'s goods.

the food for all such.

How many pale folk there are! People who have the will, but no power to bring out their vitality; people who swing like a pendulum between strength and weakness—so that one day's work causes six days' sickness! People who have no life for resisting disease—thin people, nerveless, delicate!

The food for all such men, women, or children is SCOTT'S EMULSION. The hypophosphites combined with the oil will tone up the system, give the blood new life, improve the appetite and help digestion. The sign of new life will be a fattening and reddening, which brings with it strength, comfort and good-nature.

DELANO DIARY

—Subscribe for the Gazette.

—Mr. Meister rides one of the finest horses in town.

—Several carloads of wood have been shipped to the cities from here, this week.

—Dedication services will be held at the new Presbyterian church in Delano, on Sunday, Nov. 24.

—Mrs. August Berneck has had her store papered and fixed up in fine style. John Borrel did the work.

—The lecture on Phrenology, by Prof. Zimmerman, at the City Hall, last evening was fairly well attended.

—The acting Mayor of Ashland, Wis., has been arrested for giving permits to saloons to run on Sunday.

—Don't forget the sociable and entertainment by the ladies of the Presbyterian church at the City Hall, tonight. Price ten cents.

—The town pump is the busiest place in town. And many of our citizens are glad the village council have returned to their horse senses.

—The Bruggeman building now has its windows nailed up, what there is left of them, with rough boards. It is a poor advertisement for the town.

—"God tempers the wind to the shorn lamb", and he is being good to the poor people out of wood, and to those who have no hay, not even money to pay.

—Charles Eppel is back at his old store, where he has opened up a saloon. We understand that he intends leaving his fine country residence and moving back to town.

—Now is the time to subscribe for your winters reading. Take the GAZETTE, and if you need more papers let us know what you want and we can likely save you money.

—There are as good farmers surrounding Delano as in any other place in the country for intelligence and respectability they hold their own. Many of them have raised families of children who are now holding positions of which their parents and friends are proud. These farmers would not like to see their offsprings fall from grace, would not like to see them lose their positions through drink or other evils; yet these same farmers make frequent trips to town to deposit their dimes in the coffers of men who are building much finer houses than they, who are living in luxury while they toil, and who are keeping before the young men of the land temptations to become drunkards, which are hard for many to resist. And many of the farmers vote for high license every time the opportunity presents. Most saloonkeepers would prefer to be in some other business if it paid as well; but the people prefer to pay more for drink than they would for anything else, and so keep the saloon going.

—Numerous team loads of poultry pass through here daily, on their way to the cities

—A sociable will be given by the ladies of the Presbyterian church, at the City Hall, to-night.

—Again the train loads of western cattle and sheep are passing through our town on their way toward Chicago —The Hennepin County Court House is claimed to have the largest clock duals in the world, 23feet 4 inches in diameter.

—Quite a rain occured on Wednesday, soaking the ground and making cornfodder more easily handled. We are having a fine fall after all, which will naturally shorten up the winter.

—Look at the picture of Minnesota's prospective new capitol, and read up the plans on the inside of this paper. It will probably cost more but not be so large as the Hennepin County Court house.

—If the liquor laws are not observed more closely in Delano, the probabilities are that in the near future there will be such an uprising among the natives as will overturn the whole business.

—The new preacher draws like a mustard plaster; and therefore some tender spots in the congregation that get red, and show that his arguments smart about as badly. He preaches every Sunday night.

—Nothing will learn the children English faster than one of your home papers; children like to learn what is going on about home, and they will read the items to find out. Get them the GAZETTE $1 per. year.

—The Delano High School should receive its present from the Sons of the Revolution Society in a manner worthy of the occasion, and those present will ever bear in mind the meaning of the Declaration of Independence.

—Prof. A. Zimmerman a phrenologist, will give free lectures at City Hall, Nov. 16 and 18, at 7:30 p. m. Subject: "character studies of prominent men," and "How character is read by actions and facial signs. 7-1t.

—Muskrats appear to be of the opinion that there will be no rise of water in the Crow River soon. They are building their houses in the bed of the river among the grass and reeds that have sprung up within a year or two.

—Al Hitsman is speculating in steers. He has purchased something over sixty head, and expects to arrive in Chicago soon with two car loads Al is a rustler in whatever he goes at and old Armour wants to keep his eyes open when Al gets there, and learns the ropes.

—The most chronic croakers we have are forced to keep still now-a-days about leaving Minnesota and seeking a home in the far away Sunny South. No finer weather has turned out anywhere than some we have been having lately. The thermometer occasionally gets below the freezing point at night but during the day comes up high enough to indicate comfortable weather.

—The preacher's salary at the M. E. church is to be raised by the envelope system. Small envelopes are passed around among the audience, and those desiring to contribute towards the salary place their money in an envelope. If the blank form is filled out the amounts will be placed to the donor's credit each week on the church books. The loose collections, for the present, go for incidental expenses.

—This week's papers contain a telegram from Granada, stating that a school house containing 150 scholars was burned to the ground, about 30 of the scholars and a teacher perished in the flames, it is thought a couple of boys that had been expelled from the school set the house on fire. And yet our school board has not provided fire escapes for the upper rooms in our school house, which is a first class fire trap in case of a fire in the building.

—Mr. Ferdinand Gutzwiller, of St. Michaels, was a pleasant visitor at the GAZETTE office, on Saturday. He called in to enquire about our trip to Atlanta. He was a member of Company G. of the 4th. Reg. Minn. Vol. Inf. and was with his regiment stationed at Alatoona Pass at the time of the great battle there. He says he stood guard many times on the little creek near there; that they had a narrow pole bridge constructed over the rail road track where it goes through the cut, and forts on the high grounds. We took occasion to enquire of him about where the railroad station at that place stood, at the time of the war. He said it was on the right hand side of the track coming from Atlanta, which statement agrees with the answers given by several old Southerners who were seated on the platform of the present depot when we came by, and whom we took occasion to ask, as we did not think the present building had served through the war; though some thought to make it as clear as Day, and intimated that others had neglected reading up their histories. The people who live there and the soldiers who stood guard over the prescious supplies stored at that important point during the war beat Minnesota Editors historical knowledge all to pieces for facts in such matters.

Among Our Exchanges.

With the exception of two small provinces there are no divorce laws in Canada. There a divorce can only be obtained by a special act of parliament. In the past ten years but 40 divorces have been granted.—Litchfield News-Ledger.

The Minneapolis Journal quotes John Day Smith saying that he is through voting with Wall street. The army is growing and the goldbug bosses will hear the heavy tread and rumble before next election.—Moorhead News.

Personals.

Moses Williams is home again from Morris.

John Cady drove ove from Buffalo, Sunday.

Adolph Hohl, of Rockford, attended the Fair last Saturday.

The Misses Clark and Miss Kimball visited the Cities Saturday.

Henry Grafft, of Hamlin, was in town Sunday; seeing the boys.

J. H. Oliver, late of Grove City is now day operator at the depot.

John A. Mayer spent yesterday at home. He left this morning for Willmar.

Miss Philomena Friburk, of LeSueur, is teaching in the Plattner district.

Captain Charles Cheeley, of Excelsior, spent Sunday with his sister in Delano.

William Ziebarth made a business visit to St. Paul Monday; marketing his pork.

Mrs. John Cunningham left this morning for a short visit with her children, at Minneapolis.

B. F. Herrick, the Tribune man, an J. C. Frick, of the Journal, were callers this week.

Charles McNaughton left Monday evening for Arkansas, where he expects to spend the winter.

Thomas R. Briggs, Esq., and Mr. E. C. Tuttle, of Howard Lake, were guests at Meister's Hotel last night.

Dan McCarter, of Hamline, and Miss Emily Roberts, of Buffalo, were guests of Mrs. Alice Davis, this week.

Fred G. Nott, Howard Lake's hustling traveling man was interviewing some of his Delano customers on Wednesday.

J. H. Mayer who has been spending a few days at home expects to return to his work at Great Falls, Mont., tomorrow.

Smith Lake's lumber merchant was met at the depot here, on Saturday evening by quite a contingency of young ladies.

Mrs. J. Barclett, from the old Green Mountain state, is visiting with her son Leslie and family. She may conclude to move here.

State Auditor Bob Dunn and Charlie Warner passed by our door last Friday, and never called in; they aint very neighborly printers.

Capt. John Sibel, of Montrose, and John Cunningham, of Franklin, met in the GAZETTE office last Saturday and swapped army yarns. They were comrades in the Third Minn. Inf.

County Cullings.

The County Treasurer is to call at the villages in January and February for your taxes. Have them ready.

The Cokato Observer says it would support the nominee of the republican convention no matter who he was or where he was from. The TIMES simply wouldn't.—Monticello Times.

The Howard Lake Herald says farmers in that vicinity are running their corn through threshing machines with some of the teeth removed, which husks and shells it ready for the market.

On Sunday morning while out with his two older brothers hunting, Roy Hanna a ten year old Monticello boy was left alone with a gun, and soon after found so badly wounded that he died in a short time.

Alex. Fashant was severely injured a few days since by a kicking colt. He was struck first above the heart and knocked over, then the colt kicked one of his legs, nearly breaking it, and making a third attempt barely missed his head, striking so close as to take off his cap.—Annandale Post.

District Court will convene at Buffalo on Monday, Dec. 2nd. We would advise those expecting to have business there and who are not now subscribers to at least one county paper to become so, at once. It sounds awful bad to people, especially to editors to hear so many jurors, witnesses, and others testify in court, that they do not read a single county paper, when there are nine of them in the county; any one of which can be had for one dollar per year. And several of the lawyers seem to especially enjoy asking questions to make everybody appear as green as possible, in order that their own supposedly great knowledge may, by contrast shine the more luminously.

The Buffalo Gazette used to torture its readers with awful poetry but the recents attempt at home talent illustration will certainly result in swelling the population of St. Peter if persisted in.—Howard Lake Herald.

Isn't it wonderful to contemplate? A man, an editor at that, in this age of the world has no taste for poetry, not even a little bit, and living right here in the county too; and yet when, after reading the above prosaical item, we looked through column after column of the Herald to see what style of poetry its criticising editor admired we must admit that we were surprised to find not a single line of "awful" or any other kind of poetry; not even in the patent insides; he certainly can not be considered a correct critic of poetry. He is entirely too biased.

As for the home talent illustrations, so staunch a supporter of "protecting our infant industries" ought not find too much fault with "home talent illustrations;" especially when they are so much better appreciated by the public, than are the Herald's, imported pictures of "Vest Pocket Meals" some of which, we mean meals, nearly killed a portion of Uncle Sam's army recently, while they were experimenting in the use of them.

If this editor who don't like poetry, nor pictures, should become a subject for an asylum he need not fear being shipped out of the county; Delano is likely to have a hospital for such cases in time. Perhaps he could cultivate a taste for poetry and pictures if he would give a little attention to such things; so that the next time O'Leay's shoes appear in print they want pinch onm so.

It ain't no use to grumble and complain;
It's just as cheap and easy to rejoice;
When God sorts out the weather and sends rain.
Why rains my choice. RILEY.

No Change of Cars to the Coast!

The Chicago Great Western Railway (Maple Leaf Route) runs Tourist Sleeping Cars to Los Angeles, California, via Kansas City and the Santa Fe Route, every Tuesday. The Tourist Car rate is but $6.00 ($3.00 each, if two go) from St. Paul or Minneapolis to Los Angeles California, and the trip 24 hours shorter than by other lines. No Sunday traveling is necessary. The cars are divided into sections, the same as Palace Sleepers, and are in charge of a colored porter. They are plentifully supplied with fresh clean bedding, curtains and linen, and have a little kitchen at one end for light cooking. These cars were designed to give comfort in a long journey at the lowest possible cost to the traveler.

WAITING FOR YOU.

The world is waiting for you, young man,
If your purpose be strong and true:
If out of your treasures of mind and heart,
You can bring things old and new,
If you know the truth that makes men free,
And with skill can bring it to view,
The world is waiting for you, young man,
The world is waiting for you.

There are treasures of mountain and tresures of sea,
And harvest of valley and plain,
That Industry, Knowledge and skill can secure,
While ignorance wishes in vain.
To scatter the lightning and harness the storm
Is a power that is wielded by few:
If you have the nerve and the skill, young man,
The world is waiting for you.

Of life and brainless the world has enough—
Who eat what they never have earned,
Who hate the pure stream from the fountain of truth,
And wisdom and knowledge have spurned.
But patience and purpose which know no defeat,
And genius, like gems bright and true,
Will bless all mankind with their love, life and light—
The world is waiting for you.

Then awake, O, young man, from the stupor of doubt,
And prepair for the battle of life;
Be the fire of the forge, or be anvil or sledge—
But win, or go down in the strife!
Can you stand though the world into ruin should rock?
Can you conquer with many or few?
Then the world is waiting for you, young man,
The world is waiting for you!

The melancholy days have come, the saddest of the year,
Of wailing winds and naked woods, and meadows brown and sear,
Heaped in the hollow of the grove, the autumn leaves lie dead,
They rustle to the eddying gust, and to the rabbits tread.
The robbin, and the wren are flown, and from the shrubs the jay,
And from the hill-top calls the crow, through all the gloomy day.

—William Cullen Bryant.

THE decision of the Supreme Court, written by Justice Canty, in the Harry Hayward appeal case, has been made public. The motion for a new trial was denied.

THE Toledo Blade in speaking of the recent defeat of the Democrats, says: "The Wilson-Gorman tariff did it, and nothing else." A little while ago most of the republican papers were insisting that the new tarriff bill was the McKinley bill so nearly that you couldn't tell the difference.

RUMORS are afloat that petitions to Gov. Clough to commute the sentence of Harry Hayward to life imprisonment, will be circulated; also that if that is done, a remonstrance will be carried around. The Gov. will be in hot water if this is done, and so will the people, who are asked to sign either paper.

A SAUK CENTER man is said to have invented a machine which will plow twelve feet of land at once and seed it at the same time. The machine is to be run by a gasolene engine, which will furnish power for other purposes on the farm. Surely the farmer will have more time than anyone else for talking politics when he gets all the new machinery, if he isn't kept too busy paying interest on the notes he gives for it.

ON Monday night the west bound passenger train on the Great Northern was held up, eight miles before arriving at St. Cloud, by a number, supposed to be five masked men, and an effort made to rob the express car; but owing to the evident inexperience of the would-be highwaymen, and the presence of mind of the trainmen no harm was done beyond delaying the train and frightening the passengers. The railroad officials at St. Paul were notified and speedily sent a number of men to capture the robbers.

FROM present indications there will be the worst shaking up, politically speaking, the country has seen for years, at the next Presidential election, contrary to many predictions, the silver question continues to bob up, on the shortest notice and at the slightest opportunity. Instead of being settled; it is becoming, daily, the question on which the next campaign will be carried on. Men who have all along been quietly waiting for this problem to be solved are now becoming chief disputants on one or the other side. Staid old politicians, whom everybody thought rock ribbed are getting out of the traces, others are as steadfastly adhering to the principles advocated in their platforms for years; and whether Democrat or Republican seems now to matter less than before.

The queseion is re-olving itself into "are you for a gold standard, or are you what you always have been, a bimetallist?" The leaders of the two old parties seem bound to have a gold standard; to have but one metal represent the unit of value; while, in this part of the country, it seems most of the people are satisfied to have both metals for money, and care more to have enough of it than they do whether it is yellow or white. The scare crow of a silver monometalism, cried out by some of the gold standard advocates, don't seem to frighten anyone much. They say what we have had all our lives is not going to swamp us, financially, now.

IN opening his great speach to the joint session of the two houses of the Georgia legislature, last week, Speaker Charles F. Crisp is quoted by the Atlanta Constitution as having said:

"In a government like ours, where the people rule, it is essential that we should have party government. Where all men must vote or should vote in the selection of officers it is natural that those men who agree upon essential principles should vote together, and thus form a party. Perhaps you will never find a party that represents exactly your views on all questions, but as plain, practical men you are to cooperate with the party that comes the nearest representing principles which meet the approval of your judgment.

"The democratic party was born with the government; it is identified with all the great struggles which have taken place in this country. It has advocated great principles and has had great battles. It has had its victories and it has had its defeats: but those who believe in the real principles of democracy cling as close to the great party in defeat as they do in victory, because they know that with the destruction of that party would be lost all that is valuable in the government which they love and revere. (Applause and cheers.)

"Now, the democratic party stands for certain principles. It stands for local self government. It stands for economy in the administrantion of public affairs. It stands against class legislation. It stands for equal rights to all of the citizens of the country and special privileges to none. It stands against high tariff, which is class legislation: and in my judgment, gentlemen, it stands, and has always stood, in favor of bimetallism. (Applause and cheers.) And that is the question I propose to discuss tonight.

"What is bimetallism? The equal coinage of gold and silver at the mint without discrimination against either at a ratio fixed by law. (Cheers and applause.) Anything short of the absolute equality of those metals at the mint, whatever it may be, is not bimetallism. (Applause.)

"The constitution of the United States provides that congress should coin money and regulate the value thereof.' That is no great disturbance of the hard money the exact language of the constitution.

Fourth Hospital for Insane.

The Commission for locating the Fourth Hospital for Insane surely has seen no better site than that offered by Delano. Delano expects that her offer appeard to the Commission to be the proper place to locate the Asylum: The site is about as nearly perfect as could be found.

It is high, dry and rolling; furnishing many fine building spots. It has splendid groves for shelter from northwestern storms. Good water in abundance can be had for the digging or boring. No place could have better drainage. Its meadows are of the finest. The best of crops can be raised from the fields.

The site is located adjoining Delano on the north. Is a short distance from the Great Northern depot; and a pleasant drive of a couple of miles to the Soo Line depot at Rockford station. The Crow River forms a good portion of the eastern boundry and drains the land nicely. It is a sightly place; and would make a model home.

McKinley for President.

It is the people who want McKinley for President. They believe him to be the greatest living exponent of one of the greatest fundamental principles of the Republican party, that of conducting the affairs of America in the interest of Americans by protecting both American capital and American labor. They want McKinley because they have confidence in him, both in public as well as in private life. Neither is it the rank and file of the party in Ohio who ask for McKinley. East, West, North and South are turning to him as the leader of leaders. Every treasury statement is a demand for McKinley. Every unprotected interest which has languished because of Democratic tariff tinkering is an argument for his nomination and election. He is the logical candidate because he fits the issues. Did he live in New Jersey or California he would be the logical candidate just the same.—Toledo Blade.

McKinley, the logical candidate! Hasn't his ultra-protection theory been exploded, by the people, at the ballot box several times? Haven't the mass of the voters expressed themselves, and want they continue to vote against the protection of any class of people at the expense of any other class just as often as wiley politicians and monopolistical manufacturers endeavor to saddle this unwelcome burden on to them.

THE St. Paul winter carnival is to come off in January. Perhaps we will have sufficient cold weather by that time to make it interesting.

THE game of foot ball indulged in last Saturday between the Minnesota University's and Wisconsin's teams, in Minneapolis, resulted in a victory for the Minnesota team.

C. C. WHITNEY, of Marshall, President of the Minnesota Editoral Association has been appointed State Expert Printer in place of Mr. Stevens. It seems satisfactory to prenters generally.

PROFFESOR WHARTON in his "Republican Responsibility" in the last Eagle, lays himself open to quite severe criticism. After telling of the unrest of of the people he says: "They voted the democracy into power. Responsibilty was then upon new sholders. The old time leaders of Jacksonian and Jeffersonian Democracy were dead. New men of inferior statesmanship were at the head. They all wanted to be leaders." Consequently the people have returned to Republican rule "The old party of Lincoln, Grant, Garfield, Blaine and Sherman has been asked to resume its control of national affairs. Can it do it?" Certainly not. They are all dead but the latter, and he's talking of resigning since he wrote a book.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 15, 1895

Does President Cleveland desire to be renominated? That is about the first question asked by every democrat who has arrived in Washington since it was published that Vice President Stevenson had said that Mr. Cleveland would be nominated again if he wished to be. It is probably because Mr. Stevenson has been regarded by the democrats as a probable candidate for the nomination himself that his opinion attracted such wide attention. Mr. Stevenson enjoys the reputation of being an unusually shrewd observer of events in the political would, and, although he has never had an open rupture with the administration, it is known that he has differed with it in a number of notable instances. It is because democrats know these things that they regard his words as significant, and are asking whether Mr. Cleveland wants to run again. It can be stated upon the highest authority that he does not; but the number of democrats who believe that he will accept if the convention nominates him is much larger today than it was before the recent elections.

Democratic Senators are doing very little talking for publication concerning which party will control the Senate at the session of Congress now only a little more than two weeks off. They have possession of the control of the committies and they propose to retain it until relieved of that duty by a majority of the Senate.

Men who profess to be able to name the next republican Presidential ticket can be found on every street corner, but this week a man turned up in Washington who said he was willing to bet a little money—he did not say how much—that the ticket would be Harrison, of Indiana, and Bradley of Kentucky. The name of this reckless prophet is Anson B. Price, and he says his home address is Bloomington, Illinois. If democrats have any influence with the republican convention Mr. Price will be right as to Harrison.

Nobody would be surprised if the story placing Secretary Carlisle in the vacant seat of the Supreme Court turns out to be true. President Cleveland thought enough of Secretary Carlisle as long ago as during his first administration as to make him a justice—the Chief Justice, in fact—of the Supreme Court, and would have done so had not a gossiping tongue repeated where he would be sure to hear of it a bit of scandal connected with a night's episode in the private life of Mr. Carlisle. Since that the President's admiration has been increased for Secretary Carlisle in numerous ways, not the least of which was his unqualified endorsement of the President's financial position, and it would not be strange if he carried out the intention he first had, provided, of course, that Secretary Carlisle desires it.

Col. Henry Clay Tompkins, Chairman of the Alabama State Democratic Committee, who is now in Washington, certainly knows the condition of the party in his state. He says: "There is no danger of a split in the party in our State over the silver issue or any other issue. Our people may differ on economic subjects, but when they are brought face to face with a grave problem involving a surrender of our government to an inferior element, then all the factions will unite, and bury their financial differences. When we meet in State convention everything will be settled. The National Convention will settle the silver question, and whatever the platform is all true democrats will stand thereon.

It would be interesting to know whether any politics was talked when President Cleveland went to New York to attend the marriage of ex-Secretary Whitney's daughter. It was the first time the President and his ex-Secretary of the Navy had met for several years, and there was much they might have said to each other that would have interested democrats everywhere. no man in this country is a better judge of the trend of political sentiment than William C. Whitney, and no man is better qualified to be a safe adviser of the administration.

Secretary Olney has received a letter from Rev. Dr. H. O. Dwight, whose duty it is to watch over the American missionaries in Turkish territory, highly commending the promptness and energy which have been displayed by Mr. Terrill, U. S. minister to Turkey, during the Armenian troubles. Dr. Dwight says he speaks from personal knowledge and adds to the force of what he writes by informing the Secretary that Mr. Terrell has no knowledge of his having written. This ought to be a sufficient refutation of the charges of indifference and carlessness which have been made against Mr. Terrell by his enemies in this country.

All the members of the Cabinent, except Secretary Carlisle, have completed their annual reports, and the president is daily working on his annual message to Congress. Secretary Carlisle's report, like the President's message, will not be made public until after it goes to Congress. The others will be given out in a few days.

Mc Gary Some More.

INDEPENDENCE, Minn, Nov. 1895.

MR. EDITOR: It is expedient that I now write unto thee; for everything seems to be in alliance with each other. Politics, church and state have become divorced from their former prestidge and joined in marriage with each other and the cry from the pulpit and rostrum is, money.

"England distributes annually among one hundred and seventytwo dignitaries in its church $1,735,000. The Archbishop of Canterbury's salary is $75,000. a year. Archbishop of York, $56,000. Bishop of London, $50,000. Bishop of Durham, $40,000." and so on.

Here in this country we are not quite so extravagant in that direction at present but are fast becoming that way. Who pays for this prodigal waste? Had not the overpluss better be given to the poor?

"The foregoing rates and compounding interest, semi-annually, to allow for re investment. The yearly income of the following individuals is as follows; John D Rockefeller, $7.611,550 a year, William Waldorf Astor, $8,900,000 a year, Cornelius Vanderbuilt $40.040,000 a year, and so we might continue the list but this will suffice to show where the wealth of this country is going, any man of ordinary intelligence knows it is not going into the pockets of the poor.

Now, Mr. Editor, according to the gleams around the political horizon, it looks to a man up a tree, that them other fellows are getting more than the lions share

Some fellows who claim to be democratic but talk in a foreign tongue, say a single gold standard, and a high protective tariff is all right. But they have departed from the faith of Thomas Jefferson, and their forefathers and gone into idolatry.

There seems to be a natural instinct in man to follow those of fashion and accumulated wealth, and especially in these latter days when money and fashion predominates in all countries.

Many people and also, the majority of the press are boasting over the bountiful crops of the present year; and I would say we are all very thankful for such an abundant harvest; and we give praise to none but He who rules the destinies of nations. But what is the producer getting for his products of the soil? Wheat, 46 cents per bushel; potatoes, 15 cents per bushel; cabbage, $2.50 per ton, will not pay taxes, insurance, and clothe the family, say nothing about debts that were contracted when times were good. Would a high protective tariff or a single gold standard remedy this? No; the rich will buy no more than they need, and the poor will buy only as they have means.

Now you may talk about party affiliation, and voting the straight party ticket and all that, and the more medicines of this kind you use the sicker the patient will get. "We hear that the country has been, and still is in a distressed condition on account of Democratic rule; and Republicans have been elected to office as a remedy" but they will not be able to bring back the fictitious times in speculation when three or four men could make almost a fortune apiece, in a day, on the same town lot. These good old times, as they then called them have passed by, and forever. The real estate man has more leisure time these days than any other business man. In fact the country has had the life boomed out of it; and it will take something more than electing Republicans to office, to bring around a regenesis. We confess that Cleveland and some of his followers have sold out the Democratic party for a mess of pottage; but the nest egg of these hard times was laid way back, many years ago. No doubt Cleveland has been something of an incubator in helping to hatch out this monstrosity that the people now have to swallow. And it surely has brought out an uncommon spring chicken; and the sausage grinder is being sharpened to make mince-meat out of all the ragtag and bobtail of this country and it will not take long, for the people stand ready and stripped of everything but party principle; and like willing tools will jump into the hopper at the snap of the party whip. From a Biblical stand point we can see why these things are upon us; but from a human observation it looks strange.

Now, Mr. Editor, in a business point of view we think it will make but little difference, whether a fellow votes the Democratic or Republican ticket. But if he thinks more of party than he does of honesty and sobriety vote straight for the chief apostles and mighty men will cover with their money all industries, products, and even the bone and sinew of the country. So the farmer and labor will have nothing to do but play second fiddle. Constitutional rights are now at a discount; but dishonesty and roguery is at a premium.

THE figure 9 which came into the calendar on January 1, 1889, will stay with us 111 years from that date, or until December 31, 1999. No other figure has ever had such a long consecutive run.

STATISTICS show that in British East India an average of 65 persons are killed by snakes, tigers, leopards, wolves, bears, hyenas, etc., every day—about 24,000 every year. Nice place to live, that.

THE Kansas woman is never short of expedients. Seven girls organized a suffrage association, and when suffrage was defeated they formed a matrimonial bureau, and the last of the seven was recently married.

THE average wealth throughout the world, taking its population at 1,500 millions, is about $325 per head, according to recent calculations. Russia, in spite of her natural resources, appears to be the poorest civilized nation on the face of the globe.

SOME one has found out how far a farmer has to walk to put in and attend to 40 acres of corn. To plow the ground with a 16-inch plow he walks 350 miles, to harrow it thoroughly before planting he walks 50 miles, and to cultivate it afterward he will have to travel 350 miles—making a grand total of 750 miles, besides garnering.

HARVARD has discovered that the English language is seriously neglected in that institution. The board of visitors at West Point for 1894 calls attention to the lack of facility of expression on the part of the cadets, and recommends that more than the established 210 hours in four years at the academy be given to the English language and literature.

A BOSTON mechanical engineer is said to have invented a bicycle tire which cannot be punctured by ordinary means. The merit of the invention lies in a woven tube, or jacket, and according to the accounts of a recent test a journey over a road strewn with tacks would not seriously injure it. The tire is covered with a light coating of rubber, to give it surface and make it water-proof.

THE American Bible society has distributed during the present year 47,688 Bibles and Testaments among immigrants arriving at Ellis island, New York harbor. These Bibles represented 21 different languages as follows: English, Welsh, French, Danish, Swedish, Finnish, Italian, Spanish, German, Dutch, Russian, Bulgarian, Hungarian, Bohemian, Polish, Slavic, Arabic, Greek, Armenian, Hebrew and Portuguese.

THE probable duration of a man's life may be known if the ages at death of his parents and grandparents are known. If these be added together and divided by six the quotient will be his approximate term of life. If the quotient exceeds 60 one year may be added for every five; if it falls below 60 one should be subtracted for every five. The presumption in this proposition is that with good fortune a man may equal, but he may not hope to exceed the average of his parents' and his grandparents' lives.

THE New Jersey woman who was arrested as a common scold and pleaded guilty to the charge was released under suspension of sentence. Only in the retention of the charge itself does the law of to-day display any similarity to the law of the Puritan days. In the olden times the ducking stool was the punishment for scolds, but fortunately this relic of bygone days has been dispensed with. To declare a woman a common scold ought certainly to have the needed reformatory effect, and no further punishment should be required.

THE most famous and most puzzling of all gold mines is the Mount Morgan. It appears, from one of the Sydney (Australia) papers that it contributes more precious metal to the world's treasure than any other patch of the earth's surface of the same extent. Mount Morgan is supposed to be the product of a thermal spring, and is simply a mountain of gold, but of gold that has already been treated by nature. In some far-off age the hill has been a huge natural crucible, and all the gold it contains has been already mined, chemically dissolved, and precipitated by nature herself.

PROF. L. I. BLAKE, of the Kansas university, has discovered a remedy and preventive of diphtheria if the results of experiments already tried are to be relied on. It is a mixture of salt and water, about two-thirds of the mixture being salt, through which an electric current has been passed. This current produces chloride of oxygen and ozone in an active state. The mixture is used as a gargle. The treatment has been tried in a number of ways, and has been found instantly and completely to kill microbes wherever found. Local physicians believe the discovery is a valuable one.

AT the recent session in Denver of the American Public Health association Mauel Carmona Valle, director of the national school of medicine of Mexico, announced the discovery by him of a certain cure for yellow fever, which he has already used successfully in hundreds of cases. The treatment is by inoculation by subcutaneous injection in the cellular tissue of the arm of urine taken from a patient between the fourth and fourteenth days of the fever. The fever can be guarded against also in this manner just as smallpox can be avoided by vaccination. This is a wonderful achievement.

THROUGH AN OPEN DRAW

Awful Plunge of a Trolley Car Laden with Passengers.

Drops 100 Feet from Central Viaduct Into the Cuyahoga River at Cleveland—Seventeen Persons Find Watery Graves.

Cleveland, O., Nov. 18.—A southbound Jennings avenue trolley car, packed with men, women and children, plunged through the open draw of the Central viaduct at 8 o'clock Saturday night. It shot into space with the rapidity of a bullet from a gun. For one brief moment it remained poised in the air. Then it turned over on its forward end and plunged headlong 100 feet down into the dark waters of the Cuyahoga river. One wild shriek came from the interior of the car, which was cut off as the car struck the upright piling below. There came a crash of splintering wood and shivering glass and then all was still as the shattered car, with its load of human freight, disappeared beneath the waters of the river.

Up to six o'clock Sunday evening 15 bodies had been recovered. The verified list of the dead at that time read as follows:

The Dead.

THE DEAD—James McLaughlin, baseball player, 77 Trowbridge avenue; Henry W. Mecklenburg, merchant tailor, 58 Mary street; Edward Hoffman, conductor, 121 East End avenue; Mrs. John A. Sauernheimer, 76 Professor street; Miss Bessie Davis, school-teacher in Sackett school, lived at 107 Noyes street; Harry W. Foster, clerk for Root & McBride Co., 51 Mentor avenue; Mrs. Minnie C. Brown, 10 Thurman street; Curt Clemens, pianist, 66 Jennings avenue; Mrs. A. W. Hoffman, 30 years old, 1508 Pearl street; Mrs. Martha Palmer, 44 Grant street; Marie Mettgen, 21 years old, domestic, 10 Joseph street; Augusta Sarinski, 207 Central avenue; Gertie Hoffman, three years old, 1508 Pearl street; Louis F. Huletz, mail carrier, 38 years old.

Got the Signal to Go Ahead.

Augustus Rodgers, the motorman in charge of the car, was arrested at his home and brought to the central station, where he was questioned by the coroner and police officials. He stated that Conductor Hoffman gave him the signal to go ahead. Asked as to how the conductor could have given him the "all right" signal, in the face of the fact that the red light signals, showing that the draw was open, were hung on the closed bridge gates, Rodgers replied that Hoffman probably thought that the draw was just closing instead of opening. Rodgers was released after giving bond for $5,000.

Cleveland, O., Nov. 19.—Two more of the bodies of the victims of Saturday night's bridge horror were taken from the river Monday afternoon. The total number of dead was then stated to be 18.

TRADE SITUATION.

How the R. G. Dun & Co. Agency Views It.

R. G. Dun & Co. say:

"The scare about gold exports had no real significance, and, although $2,250,000 more will go out, the stock market has been recovering. The collapse of Kaffir speculations abroad has forced many to realize on Americans held, and the impression that our government may have to borrow again also operates to our disadvantage. But there is no local disturbance of money markets, stocks are 80 cents per share stronger than a week ago, commercial loans are not large and the demand for moving crops has been remarkably small, so that on the whole the money market has shown very unusual strength and steadiness for the fall season.

"The government monthly crop report has caused, as usual, rather more uncertainty as to its interpretation than previously existed as to crops. Receipts from plantations, 25 per cent. less than last year, if of value, would indicate a crop of over 7,300,000 bales, but organization to hold back the crop renders the comparison of less use. The bottom fact is that even a smaller crop than anybody expects, with the 3,000,000 bales carried over, will assuredly prevent any famine in cotton. Meanwhile the exports decrease 36 per cent. in quantity.

"The startling fact is that the demand for products of iron and steel falls off, notwithstanding the increase in output of pig, and though only a few concerns have closed or reduced work or wages on account of lack of orders, prices are sinking, having declined 2.7 per cent. for the week and 6.4 per cent. from the highest point.

"The volume of domestic trade appears from clearing house exchanges 17 per cent larger than last year, but 11.4 per cent. smaller than in 1892. The earnings of railroads, 2.6 per cent. greater than last year for the first week of November and 2.9 per cent. less than in 1892, are better than for the previous four weeks, and tonnage movements are 12 per cent. larger than in any previous year.

"Failures for the first week of November amounted to $2,971,475, against $2,844,445 last year, and for October show liabilities of $16,637,921, against $11,127,290 last year, and $24,954,132 in 1893. For the past week failures have been 283 in the United States, against 270 last year, and 49 in Canada, against 38 last year."

A Young Negro's Diabolical Act.

Winston, N. C., Nov. 19.—Bob Scales, a young colored man bound to a farmer named John Meaders, near Madison, on Monday shot and fatally wounded the 12-year-old daughter of Thomas Belton, a tenant on Meaders' place. The negro went to Belton's house while the latter was away from home and tried to get her to go with him to a piece of woods. She refused and began screaming. Scales told her he would kill her if she declined to accompany him, and at the same time drew a pistol from his pocket and shot her above the left eye.

Death of a Jurist.

Jefferson City, Mo., Nov. 19.—Judge Andrew J. King died here Monday night, aged 83 years. He represented the St. Charles district in congress for several terms. He was a native of Virginia.

Loses 800,000 Acres.

Washington, Nov. 15. — Secretary Smith decided an important case Thursday, holding that the eastern terminus of the Northern Pacific railroad is at either Thompson, Minn., or Superior, Wis., instead of Ashland, Wis., as has always been claimed by the company. About 800,000 acres of land is involved, which is lost by the company.

Train Held Up.

Clear Lake, Minn., Nov. 19.—A Great Northern train crowded with passengers was held up four miles west of here, but the bandits were scared away without obtaining booty.

Boat Captain Murdered.

New York, Nov. 18.—John Knight, captain of the lighter Ajax, was found dead Saturday morning in the forecastle of that vessel with several ugly wounds on his head. The police have under arrest John Mitchell, mate of the Ajax, who is suspected of having committed the deed.

Shot by Burglars.

New Orleans, Nov. 18.—Robert S. Day, a well-known cotton factor and very prominent in business and social circles, was shot at his home at an early hour Saturday morning by burglars and dangerously wounded.

SCHLATTER DISAPPEARS.

The Famous Healer's Work in Denver—Goes Away Mysteriously.

Denver, Col., Nov. 15.—Quite a sensation was created here by the announcement that Francis Schlatter had mysteriously disappeared. Thursday morning a member of the Fox family, with which family he had been staying, went about eight o'clock to call him for breakfast, but his room was found vacant.

Later in the morning a note from Schlatter was found reading: "Mr. Fox, my mission is finished. The Father takes me away. (Signed) F. Schlatter."

Denver, Col., Nov. 16.—The retreat of Francis Schlatter, the healer, has been well covered. It would seem that where he is so well known he could not move far without being discovered, but this man is not like ordinary men. He has suffered privations in the Arizona deserts so severe that a few days of fasting in the Colorado hills during comparatively mild weather is no hardship. Besides he is so respected by the general public that were he to request seclusion and privacy he would be granted it without a question. Hence he may be at Rooney's ranch near the Garden of the Angels at Morrison, or he may be quietly resting near the city.

All day long people wandered over to the Fox cottage to gaze upon the scene where for 58 days Francis Schlatter stood administering the healing touch. The trains Friday brought in several hundred persons who had not learned before starting upon their long journey that he had mysteriously disappeared during the night of November 13. One woman, who seemed of more than ordinary intelligence, asked to be shown the exact spot where Schlatter had stood. She then climbed over the fence, stood in the place and declared she had faith sufficient to believe that act would be the means of effecting a cure of her bodily ills.

The disappearance of Schlatter was the main topic of conversation all over the city. The federal officers say that the case against the handkerchief fakirs will be dropped and that Schlatter may return for all they care. Few think that he will return and his disciples are divided as to the meaning his last message conveys: "My mission is ended," reads the message, and some think that that ends his earthly career. Others say that he is not far off, and will reveal himself in a few days. Others hold to the more rational conclusion that he has tramped away to avoid the crowds which would undoubtedly have followed him had he gone publicly, and such believe they will hear of him later.

It is an undoubted fact that through all these weeks of excitement many persons have been benefitted, whether their ills were imaginative or not and that a spiritual growth has been manifested in those who sought him out, though many continue to believe that he is a harmless lunatic.

How Pingree's Plan Works.

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 16.—Crops to the value of $17,997.30, present market prices, were harvested this year by Mayor Pingree's city farmers. The crop yield was as follows: Potatoes, 61,840 bushels; beans, 1,000; turnips, 3,000; beets, 1,000; corn, 400; cabbages, 4,668 head; squashes, 400; pumpkins, 500. Five thousand dollars were supplied by the city for the scheme, being spent in preparing the land and buying seed. The allotments were 1,546 this year, against 945 last year. The acreage was 455 this year, against 410 last year. The crops are shown to be four times as great as those of last year, with only one-ninth more land under cultivation.

Held for Murder.

Chicago, Nov. 18.—The inquest over the remains of Frank White, who was killed Thursday night by detectives from Berry's agency, while assisting his brother Clarence to get out of town, was reopened by the coroner Saturday afternoon. The jury sat during the entire afternoon, and at the close of its session returned a verdict holding to the grand jury without bail for murder seven of the Berry men, and as an accessory to murder Charles A. Macdonald, superintendent of the agency. Superintendent Macdonald was not present at the murder, but is held for sending his men to do murder.

Bought Up a Rival.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Nov. 19.—The Standard Oil company has acquired the Mellon Pipe Line company, a controlling interest in the Crescent Pipe Line company and the Bear Creek refinery. The sale was made to the National Transit company, the price paid being about $2,500,000. The Mellon company operates in southwestern Pennsylvania. The sale takes it out of the pipe-line business entirely.

Used for Feed.

Omaha, Neb., Nov. 19.—Much of the surplus grain supply of Nebraska will be used this year within the state for feeding purposes. The total acreage of corn was 6,564,112 acres; the total yield was 123,740,984 bushels. This is an increase of 110,000,000 bushels over last year. The total wheat acreage was 1,460,540; the yield was 17,756,794 bushels.

Arabs Whip the Turks.

Aden, Nov. 19.—The Iman of Sana, the capital city of Yemen, Arabia, at the head of 45,000 Arabs, armed with Martini-Henry rifles, has defeated the Turks in three fights. The latter are now confined to Sana, which is a walled city about five and one-half miles in circumference.

Five Killed by a Madman.

Paris, Nov. 15.—A wine merchant of this city, M. Domergue, has suddenly become violently insane. He shot his wife and mother and then opened fire upon people in the street, killing three and wounding several others. The madman then barricaded himself in his house and fired upon the gendarmes who surrounded the building.

Forty-Eight Lives Lost.

Shanghai, Nov. 16.—A steam launch belonging to the British cruiser Edgar is reported to have been lost in Japanese waters and 48 men who were on board of her are said to have been drowned.

Burglars Rob a Post Office.

Rochester, N. H., Nov. 18.—Early Saturday morning burglars entered the post office at East Rochester. The safe was blown open and $500 in stamps and $300 in cash were taken, besides other valuables. The office is in a general store, which was also ransacked.

Castellane a Heavy Loser.

London, Nov. 15.—Vanity Fair has a dispatch from Paris referring to the recent losses on the bourse there, in which the statement is made that Count de Castellane, who married Miss Anna, daughter of the late Jay Gould, was one of the heavy losers.

HELD UP.

Express Train on the Great Northern in the Hands of Robbers.

The Deed Was Committed Near St. Cloud—The Thieves Fail to Secure the Big Sum that Was in the Strong Box

St. Cloud, Minn., Nov. 19.—Last night when four miles west of Clear Lake and about 12 miles east of St. Cloud at about 10 o'clock the train men on the Great Northern passenger train had an experience. The fireman had just turned around for a shovel of coal when he saw the gleam of a gun barrel and he was ordered to "let up." He did and as he stopped the man at the end of the gun climbed up over the tender and covered him fairly.

At the same moment a man with a Winchester came up over the other side of the tender and covered the engineer. He yelled to the engineer "Stop her," and the engineer, aided by the rifle, understood what was demanded and stopped her.

The leader of the gang demanded of the engineer that he cut loose the engine and express car. This he done, and under orders from the robbers began to prepare to pull out for St. Cloud, leaving the rest of the train standing.

The conductor and some of the brakemen began to show a little curiosity at this point as to the cause of stopping at Clear Lake. The robbers, in order to frighten off the officials of the train, began to fire some shots, and this was the first intimation the trainmen had that a real holdup was in progress.

The conductor went back through the passenger coaches and notified the passengers of the situation and advised them to prepare to protect themselves, as a robbery was in progress.

Some difficulty was experienced in getting into the express car. The express agent was finally persuaded to open the car and let them in. This car contained the through express safe and the express agent, William Woods, did not have the combination of the safe. The robbers demanded this but were finally persuaded that the agent's declaration that he did not have the combination was true.

They opened several express packages but obtained nothing of value. The engine and car were now nearing St. Cloud, the engineer having put on speed with the idea of running the robbers right into the city. They evidently saw his design and just as they passed the reformatory gave him an order to stop. They dropped off the engine and car and disappeared in the darkness.

The express cars at this time of the year carry on an average from $75,000 to $100,000.

Six men are under arrest on suspicion of being, implicated in the attempted holdup.

It is now belived that only two men were engaged in the hold-up. Otto Sparland, the man arrested last night near the scene, says his home is in Fergus Falls. He says that at Elk River he met two men waiting around for a train. Sparland wanted to take a freight, but the other two men said that the freight cars were all sealed and they had better get on the blind baggage or passenger.

"We got on," says Sparland, "on the first baggage and express car just back of the tender. A little way out of Clear Lake one of the two men climbed over the tender. I asked the other man, "Where's your partner going?" He replied, "To see the engineer."

"Soon we stopped, and, looking at the man beside me, I was he had a mask on. The train stopped and I ran back, telling the brakeman, whom I met, that the train was being held up. At Elk River I noticed the men had something wrapped in a blanket, but never thought it was guns."

Minneapolis, Nov. 20.—An inspector of police attached to the Minneapolis department, furnished what may prove to be a valuable clue to the unraveling of the train robbery at St. Cloud Monday.

The clue referred to concerns the identity of the men who did the deed. A detective connected with the Minneapolis police department has informed the Great Northern officials that it might not be time lost to keep a lookout for two well known desperadoes who have been in St. Cloud recently. These men are George and James Bell, two Montana toughs and professional highwaymen. The Bell brothers were seen in St. Cloud by the Minneapolis detective referred to but a few weeks ago.

The Bell brothers are well known among the sheriffs of Montana. Each has a record of many men killed. They started their career as cowboys on a ranch at the junction of the Potter and Yellowstone rivers and for years were the terrors of the whole county. They committed constant depredations and ran off horses and cattles from other ranches. From this pastime they graduated into the stage robbing business, and from their record it appears that they were highly successful. Soon after a Montana train robbery, in which they were thought to be implicated, they came East, and were arrested on suspicion by Minneapolis detectives two years ago, and forced to leave the city. The officers lost sight of them until a few weeks ago, when the Minneapolis detective mentioned saw George Bell, the older one in St. Cloud.

AN ENERGETIC NEW WOMAN.

She Can Make Her Way in the World and Look Out for Herself.

"I don't take much stock in these new woman ideas," remarked a man from south Georgia the other day, according to the Atlanta Constitution, "but I saw one to-day I would like to have in my corn field in fodder season to pull fodder. Say, that woman was a James D. She saw a street car about a block and a half away and made up her mind to catch it; and she did begosh. She made a plunge for it and whistled for the conductor to stop the concern. The conductor didn't think she would ever reach the car and consequently did not stop. But that woman was one of the up-to-daters, and she had different notions from those of the conductor. She ran like a rabbit, and it wasn't long before she had planted her tiny foot upon the step of the retreating car.

"I felt disposed to applaud her for this feat, but about that time she reached up and pulled the bell cord and stopped the car herself.

"The conductor and motorman looked up in astonishment. 'I simply want to wait for my dog to catch up,' she replied, to their inquisitive glances.

"Now, all I have to say is this—that if that woman is a new woman, we need more of them to run this country. We need them particularly in the corn fields."

KENNEDY'S MEDICAL DISCOVERY.

DONALD KENNEDY, of ROXBURY, MASS.,

Has discovered in one of our common pasture weeds a remedy that cures every kind of Humor, from the worst Scrofula down to a common Pimple.

He has tried it in over eleven hundred cases, and never failed except in two cases (both thunder humor.) He has now in his possession over two hundred certificates of its value, all within twenty miles of Boston. Send postal card for book.

A benefit is always experienced from the first bottle, and a perfect cure is warranted when the right quantity is taken.

When the lungs are affected it causes shooting pains, like needles passing through them; the same with the Liver or Bowels. This is caused by the ducts being stopped, and always disappears in a week after taking it. Read the label.

If the stomach is foul or bilious it will cause squeamish feelings at first.

No change of diet ever necessary. Eat the best you can get, and enough of it. Dose, one tablespoonful in water at bedtime. Sold by all Druggists.

A SONG OF PRAISE.

WHEN winter clothes the earth in white,
When coldest winds are blowing,
When shortest day brings longest night,
When icy streams are flowing—
Then in the shelter of the home
We know the joy of living,
And in the cheerful fireside glow
Find cause for true thanksgiving.

When spring returns with sweetest breath,
When birds are gayly singing,
When life prevails where once was death,
Relief and gladness bringing—
Then in the leafing of the trees,
In verdure new and tender,
We see the work of Providence,
And hearty praise we render.

When summer's dreamy days are ours,
And in the vales and mountains
We view the beauty of the flowers,
The gleaming of the fountains—
Then from the glory of the hills,
From splendors wide abounding,
From all things warm and bright and fair
A call of praise is sounding.

But chiefly when the autumn comes,
With all its weight of treasure,
And rich reward of care and toil
Bestows in fullest measure—
A myriad orchards, fields, and vines
Proclaim to all the living:
"A loving God supplies your need;
Oh, praise Him with thanksgiving!"
—Mary Joanna Porter, in Harper's Bazar.

MARTHA GATES'S THANKSGIVING

YES," said Mrs. Gates, decidedly, "I'm goin' to do it!"

Her husband looked at her transfixed with horror. "But listen to reason, Marthy," he said, pleadingly. "You mean all right enough, but it's a turrible resky experiment. You'll spile the hull day for them and us too."

"Jest wait and see, 'Bijah."

"A nice Thanksgivin' we'll hev!" groaned Farmer Gates. "It's jest reedikerlus the way ye're goin' to act. I'll go and tell Jane about it, and stop her comin'."

"Now see here, 'Bijah Gates," said his wife, turning around upon him quickly. "If there's any reedikerlusness about this hull business, I reckon it'll all be owin' to you. Here's Jane and John Roberts hain't spoke to each other for fifteen year—own brother and sister, too—all on account of nothin', as ye might say. She's livin' on the old farm all alone with old Jehu, growin' crankier an' bitterer ev'ry day. As fur him, he's got a pretty little wife an' baby, an' yet I'll bet his heart keeps a hankerin' after the sister that was alwuz a mother to him. An' I say it's a shame, an' I'm jest a goin' to bring 'em together!"

He shook his head. "It can't be done, Marthy," he said. "If you bring 'em together in this house it'll make it onpleasant for ev'ry one. Besides, it'll be a queer Thanksgivin' for poor Tom and Susy, fur we've alwuz had sech good jolly times on this day. We'll all be like chunks o' ice."

Tom and Susy were as blue as their father over their mother's decision. "Lots of fun we'll have," complained Tom. "I don't see what mother can find in Aunt Jane, a regular straight-laced old maid. Her very looks would turn sweet milk sour."

"I know I shall laugh at her," said Susy. "I do just love to do something a little bit improper, just to see how shocked she looks. She thinks I'm the boldest, worst-mannered girl she ever met, I know she does. And she thinks Tom's the sulkiest."

"Susy," said Tom, scornfully, "I do wish you'd be a little more particular about your grammar. One would suppose I was the sulkiest girl she ever met. Don't underrate my dignity any more than necessary. It'll be crushed enough when Aunt Jane comes. She isn't our aunt, either—only our second cousin, thank goodness!"

"Oh, mother," tauntingly cried Susy, "here's Tom talking about losing his dignity because my grammar made him out a girl. My goodness! I reckon there isn't any such thing as dignity unless it's connected with b-o-y, boy."

"Now do stop your quarreling," exclaimed Mrs. Gates. "It's very strange that you two can't talk without saying somethin' hateful to each other. I don't see why you can't behave and treat each other politely as you do other people's brothers and sisters."

"But Susy is so unladylike," grumbled Tom.

"And Tom is so dignified," sarcastically retorted Susy, 'that even his own sister can't touch him with a ten-foot pole!"

"Besides," said Mrs. Gates, severely, "Aunt Jane's had enough to make her stern and unloving. She was a pretty girl when her mother died and left John, only three years old. She was goin' to be married, but gave that and everything all up, to make a home for her father and John. Then her father got sick with old-fashioned consumption, and for long, weary years she took care of him and managed the farm, and took care of John, till her health give out an' her nerves got all unstrung. Then she grew awful fretty, an' ev'rything bothered her. An' John, he never understood how it was. An' after their father died they had a few words, which led to bigger ones, and John called her a mean, hateful old maid, that the world would be better off if she was out of it, and she retorted that that was all the thanks she got for givin' up ev'rythin' for him. So they parted. She give John half of what the place was worth, an' he bought another in Stamford. An' they've never spoke sence. But I know she's most broke her heart over it, an' it's a shame."

"But how in the world, Marthy," said Mr. Gates, "kin you reconcile two people if they won't be reconciled?"

"That's jest what I'm goin' to try to find out, father," said his wife, "I reely don't know nothin' about it, but it does seem to me as if they two couldn't be in the same house together, an' at a Thanksgivin' dinner, too, without thinkin' of the past an' kinder meltin'. An' there's the baby, too! I s'pose it will be kinder embarrassin' at first, but if we use tact, an' be reel keerful—"

The unsuspecting brother and sister both accepted their cousin's urgent invitation to spend Thanksgivin' with her family. Poor 'Bijah's heart misgave him more and more as the time passed on. He didn't have the heart to speak his discouraging thoughts to his troubled wife, and he felt that it would not be loyal to her to appear to blame her to Tom and Susy, so he made a frequent confidant of old Sorrel, the horse, to whom he would shake his head and say: "I never looked for'ard with dread to Thanksgivin' day before, Sorrel, an' I hope I never will ag'in."

"THAT CHILD HAS GOT THE MEMBRANOUS CROUP."

On Thanksgiving eve, 'Bijah Gates and his wife were at the depot to meet their guests. The train from the east came in and deposited John and his pretty young wife, and his wonderful baby. Then the train puffed away westward. 'Bijah placed the three newcomers on the back seat, then they waited a few minutes before starting, ostensibly for the purpose of talking. Then the train from the west slid in.

Now Mrs. Gates' heart gave a great jump, and 'Bijah became very nervous and uneasy. What would Jane say when they brought her to the carriage, and she saw who were there?

Mrs. Gates slipped away to meet Jane. "Thank heaven, it's too dark for her to see! Now if the train'll only start before she finds it out! Then she can't do nothin', but come with us to-night, anyway, 'cause there isn't another train till to-morrow morning."

This train also puffed off. Mrs. Gates began to feel a little shaky, as she escorted Jane to the carriage. What would Jane and John do?

"Wall, Jane," said Mr. Gates, heartily; "glad ye've come. Step right in on the front seat with Marthy and me." Then, with a fast-beating heart, to let her know who was in the back seat, he called out: "Now, John, I'll take care of Jane, an' leave you to take care of your wife an' baby."

They felt Jane suddenly start and then grow rigid, and then felt more and more sure, as the miserable time passed on, that she could never forgive them for their good-intentioned deception. She would not speak one word on the way home, but sat upright and motionless. The others talked to "keep up appearances," but a strange wall of ice seemed to have frozen up between each one there.

Tom and Susy met them at the door, filled with mingled humor and apprehension. They were too young and inexperienced and thoughtless to feel the tragedy in the scene before them. Their bright, inquisitive, laughing faces filled the lonely, middle-aged woman's heart with new bitterness. Then, when they entered the warm room, everybody crowded around the baby and John's pretty young wife. They tried to include Aunt Jane in the brightness, but she kept herself persistently aloof. She wouldn't even take off her hat and cloak, nor wait to warm her hands, but marching straight up to Mrs. Gates, said: "Martha, please tell me which room I'm to have." She added, sternly: "I'll never, never forgive you, Martha Gates!"

Poor Mrs. Gates showed her the room and left her. Then she went into the kitchen. 'Bijah was there alone. "Oh, Marthy, Marthy," he said, "I wouldn't have had this happen for the world."

"She's a-goin' off on the six o'clock train in the mornin'," half sobbed his wife, "an' she won't eat no supper nor breakfast, an' she says she'll never forgive me. Oh, 'Bijah, I did it all for the best! Surely, God'll help us out. He alwuz did before when we did the best we could."

It was only about six o'clock in the evening when they reached home from the train. The day had been very mild and the heavy snow of the day before had rapidly disappeared in the warm sunshine. Suddenly, however, a keen, fierce wind arose, and when John and his wife went to bed their panes were covered with a thick frost in spite of the fire in the little stove, which on this night proved inadequate to keep the large room warm.

John, too, was considerably annoyed at Martha Gates' deception. He would have done anything to spare his wife the unpleasantness of this ill-advised Thanksgiving gathering.

"I hope ma's satisfied now," said Tom, sulkily, as he and his sister were getting ready to go to their rooms.

"She probably is," tittered Susy.

"I think it's so silly for a girl to be giggling all the time," said Tom.

"And I think it's just delightful to have a dear brother find so much fault all the time," said Susy.

And even far into the night Mrs. Gates lay wakeful and restless beside her sleeping husband. Her strong, resolute spirit was completely humbled. "Oh, dear Lord," she whispered, "I meant it all for the best! Ain't there no way to bring 'em together? Oh, make a way!" At last a feeling of sweet peace stole over her troubled senses and she slept.

She awoke very suddenly. Some one was moving about in the kitchen. She could hear the stove covers rattling and other sounds, then startled voices. She lit a lamp, half dressed herself and entered the kitchen. There were John and his wife, also half dressed, trying to give the baby a warm drink.

Everything was confusion for a little while. The only thing definitely known and understood was that the baby was dangerously ill.

Then 'Bijah was aroused and started off posthaste for the doctor. In the meantime the baby grew less and less able to breathe.

The young mother was crying piteously as she held the baby to her breast. John walked about the kitchen in a perfectly frenzied condition and Martha looked on helplessly.

Suddenly a gaunt, stiff form appeared in the doorway. It was Jane.

"Don't any of you people know anything?" she exclaimed, vigorously. "That child's got the membraneous croup. Give him to me this minute. I saved a baby's life once before the doctor came, and I reckon I can do it again. Martha, I want steam. Set the kettles on boiling and give me steam."

How she did fly around! She made a little bed some way and raised over it a blanket tent. Then under cover of the blanket she slipped the spout of the teakettle, meanwhile ordering them to place the baby in the bed. Very soon the little tent was filled with warm, moist air, and a hot poultice was placed on the child's throat. When the doctor came the little one was breathing easily. Jane told him what had been the condition of the child and just what she had done and he said, very emphatically and respectfully: "Madam, you have undoubtedly saved the child's life. I should have come too late."

He remained a short time, then left, and there was a deep silence amid the little company. The pretty young mother went up to the stern, lonely old maid, put her arms around her neck and sobbed on her breast. "Jane," she said, "dear sister Jane!"

And John? John was crying like a big baby, and Martha's eyes shone, and Martha's lips said: "Oh, Lord, I thank thee!"—Rodney Blake, in American Agriculturist.

HOW NOT TO PROSPER.

An Object Lesson From Practical Business Life.

[From the St. Cloud Daily Journal-Press.]

The pecularities of human nature have a forcible illustration in the business development of St. Louis county, Minnesota. Three or four years ago several brothers named Merrit, who had followed the business of timber exploring for many years, discovered through their employes valuable iron deposits in the swamps and dense woods of Northern Minnesota. They were without means but succeeded in enlisting sufficient Minnesota capital to partially construct a railroad and to begin mining developments at one or two points. Every one wished them well, and no legislative or other obstacle was placed in their path.

Business circumstances changed and the railroad and some of the mining companies organized under the Merritt auspices were upon the point of bankruptcy in the panic of 1893. Knives were drawn and bloodshed threatened by their unpaid miners. The employes of the railroad were on the point of riot. Contractors were attacked and knocked down. Attachments and lines were numerously filed, while the paper of the railroad and of its promoters was going to protest on every hand and their properties covered with judgments. In these depressing circumstances, they turned towards outside capital for relief, and although, according to their own statements, they visited all the principal cities of the country, no single capitalist was willing to turn to their relief except Rockefeller of New York. Rockefeller loaned them money for their personal relief and advanced great sums for their various enterprises, saving them from impending ruin and making their bankrupt stocks valuable. Finally he bought them out. It appears that Rockefeller soon had some three millions invested in Minnesota, and has ever since been adding to these investments in the development of these costly properties.

The riotous employees of the railroad and mines, threatened with starvation, were paid in full. The contractors were honorably settled with. The mammoth dock under construction at Duluth was completed. Branch railroad lines were extended. New mining properties were opened. The city of Duluth was saved from utter wreck, employment given to thousands of men at an expense of hundreds of thousands of dollars. While banks were failing everywhere else, not a bank in Duluth failed. On the contrary their clearances showed positive increase. All this at a time when the industries of the country were paralyzed and men most needed work.

Under these circumstances, it would seem natural that Rockefeller should be treated with ordinary fairness. But here is where the perversity of human nature comes in. Rockefeller is rich. Because he is rich he is marked as fair game. Last winter a powerful lobby was organized and the legislature implored to drive him from the state and practically confiscate his property. The newspapers of the state have been flooded with hostile articles, the aim of which has been to create adverse public sentiment so that he should not have fair play. Every possible scheme which cunning could advise has been worked to prevent justice being done. Apart from all other considerations, this is bad policy. Hostility of this kind against capital seeking investment in our state will serve only as a warning to other capitalists and an invitation to make their investments elsewhere. It tends to drive the capital which employs labor out of the state and to keep it out. It is a sure way not to prosper.

POSY RINGS.

Some of These Posies Are Very Quaint and Curious.

When posies inside of wedding rings were first introduced does not seem to be knewn, says Chambers' Journal. Time has covered that, as he does so many things, with the mosses of oblivion, but we know that from the sixteenth century until the middle of the eighteenth it was customary to have them engraved on rings. These posies or mottoes are seldom to be found with more than two lines of verse, and often with only one, but there are few instances known where three lines are used. Some of these posies are very quaint and curious, and a few reach a high standard of poetic beauty.

In 1642 a small collection of rhymes was published with the title of "Love's Garland; or Posies for Rings, Handkerchiefs and Gloves, and Such Pretty Tokens That Lovers Send Their Loves." It contains some posies that are not to be met with elsewhere, and is a very interesting work, though but few people seem to have heard of it. The South Kensington museum has a good collection of posy rings, and among them we find the following: "United hearts death only parts," "Let us share in joy and care," "Love and live happily." There is a story to the effect that Dr. John Thomas, who was bishop of Lincoln in 1753, caused to be inscribed inside his fourth wife's wedding ring:

"If I survive
I'll make them five."

If this be true, and not the fable it appears, we can only judge that the lady who wore the ring meant to outlive her spouse. How the story arose is not known, but most likely it is all imagination, for we find the same thing said about Lady Cathcart and her fourth husband in 1713.

GAINED HIS FREEDOM.

The Fetters of Pain Were Broken.

A Marvelous Change—How a Future of Gloom Was Averted—The Present Full of Joy and Hope.

From the Herald, Helena, Mont.

As rugged and hardy as one of the pines which grow in the rocky mountain region is G. E. Ticknor, of Helena, Montana. For twenty-four years he has resided in the mountain country, but his vigor is not due altogether to the bracing air of Montana. Last fall Mr. Ticknor was what might well be termed a physical wreck. For eight weeks he lay on his bed suffering from a severe attack of sciatic rheumatism in one of his hips. Physicians and medicines gave him no relief and the future looked gloomy. Added to his troubles was the anxiety concerning the care of a large family. By chance one day Mr. Ticknor saw an account of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. He said to a Herald reporter that he was not in favor of proprietary remedies, but in this instance something in the article caught his attention and he determined to give the pills a trial. In the interview with the Herald representative the other day, Mr. Ticknor spoke in the most emphatic terms of the marvelous change in his condition. "Before a week had gone by," he said, "I was able to get out of bed and move about. I had hardly used one box of the pills. By the time I had taken three boxes I felt twenty years younger. In fact I was a new man and have been perfectly well ever since. I can't say too much for Pink Pills and I never miss an opportunity to praise them."

When the Herald representative saw Mr. Ticknor he was making some repairs on the school building on Boulder Avenue. He swung his carpenter's hammer with all the vigor of a lusty young man and looked as hale and hearty as any man of his years to be found in the entire rocky mountain country. He is fifty-nine years old and is able to do a day's work at his trade of carpenter. Pink Pills can always be found in his house. Mr. Ticknor lives at 1419 Boulder Avenue, near the American Biscuit Manufacturing Company's plant, w e he will be glad to see anyone who w s to verify this account of his experience with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills contain, in a condensed form, all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves. They are also a specific for troubles peculiar to females, such as suppressions, irregularities and all forms of weakness. They build up the blood, and restore the glow of health to pale and sallow cheeks. In men they effect a radical cure in all cases arising from mental worry, overwork or excesses of whatever nature. Pink Pills are sold in boxes (never in loose bulk) at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50, and may be had of all druggists, or direct by mail from Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

DON'T SHOOT SOLID SHOT.

Artillery Has Abandoned the Use of That Projectile.

The use of solid shot in warfare has been practically given up. The projectile of to-day is a conical shell of steel and sometimes loaded with powder so as to explode, or by a time fuse. It is wonderfully different from the shell of twenty-five years ago, says the Washington Star. In those days one could watch the projectile as it sailed through the air in a graceful curve, at length bursting. There was even time to get out of the way, under favorable circumstances. But the new style of shell moves at the rate of a little more than half a mile a second. In striking a metal target, its energy being transformed instantaneously into heat, it becomes red-hot, and a flame is actually seen to burst from the point struck. Such a projectile moves, one might say, in a straight line, and its impact at a distance of a mile seems almost simultaneous with the discharge of a gun.

Such a shell, passing near a man, will tear his clothes off, merely from the windage. If it comes very near, though without hitting him, it will kill him. He drops dead without a sign of a wound. Whereas an old-style shell would burst into a few pieces, the modern projectile flies into a myriad of small fragments, each of them moving with tremendous velocity. It may easily be imagined that half a dozen six-pound Hotchkiss shells finding their way into a vessel would scatter death and destruction in every direction. Protective armor, owing to its great weight, can be placed only over the ship's vitals—that is to say, along the middle part of the hull, near the water line, so as to cover the machinery. In future battles gunners will direct their fire against the unarmored ends of an opposing vessel.

Pestiferous Leeches.

In India and Ceylon certain land leeches are apt to become perfect pests to man. They are no bigger than a knitting needle, are an inch in length, and when feeding stretch with great power. Horses are driven wild by them, and stamp the ground in fury to shake them from their fetlocks, to which they cling like bloody tassels. The structure is so flexible they can make their way through the meshes of the finest goods. The bare legs of the palanquin-bearers and coolies are a favorite resort, and it is asserted that a battalion of soldiers in India were put to flight by these small bloodsuckers.

Drs. Maybe and Mustbe.

You choose the old doctor before the young one. Why? Because you don't want to entrust your life in inexperienced hands. True, the young doctor may be experienced. But the old doctor must be. You take no chances with Dr. Maybe, when Dr. Mustbe is in reach. Same with medicines as with medicine makers—the long-tried remedy has your confidence. You prefer experience to experiment—when you are concerned. The new remedy may be good—but let somebody else prove it. The old remedy must be good—judged on its record of cures. Just one more reason for choosing AYER'S Sarsaparilla in preference to any other. It has been the standard household sarsaparilla for half a century. Its record inspires confidence—50 years of cures. If others may be good, Ayer's Sarsaparilla must be. You take no chances when you take AYER'S Sarsaparilla.

DELANO DIARY

—The M. E. services are held at the church at 7:45 P. M. every Sunday.

—Typhoid Fever does not relax it's hold at Watertown; but seems to be on the increase.

—In last week's GAZETTE we had "Ferdinand" in place of "Emil" Gutzwiller. It was a mistake. We meant Emil.

—Most of Delano's representatives at the State University are expected home to assist in observing Thanksgiving Day.

—The railroad people have repaired their new water tank, so that there will not be so much water to pump in future as there has been recently.

—The Presbyterians have postponed their dedication ceremonies until Sunday, Dec. 1. The chairs having not arrived was the cause of the appointment of another day.

—Just what the Village of Delano with $3,500 saloon license this year, wants to levy a $300. tax on the village for most people outslde the village wonder.

—The monthly examinations have been had at the Public School, and some pupils' markings are higher than others, showing that some study harder or learn more easily than others. It is ever thus in the battles of life, "Learn to Labor and to wait."

—Thursday, Nov. 28, has been set apart by President Cleveland and Governor Clough as Thanksgiving Day. People in Wright County have many reasons to be thankful. God in his infinite wisdom, has sent us an abundant harvest. Granaries and cellars are well filled. There is plenty and to spare of most of the necessities of life. We should not forget to render thanks to the Giver of all good for these blessings.

—Prof. Zimmerman closed his course of lectures on Phrenology, at the City Hall, Monday evening. He gave Mr. Drake a splendid recommend as a first class business man; I. Donnelly would have been quite a leader had his bump of cautiousnness been better developed: denounced the Coxey character; while he held Debs up as an honest man: Henry Watterson had a good head: Mayor Eustice, Col. Kelfer, and Knute Nelson were among the noted men of our State: The Haywards, Blixt and Miss Ging were exactly calculated by nature for the parts they played in life's great drama: though the Hayward boys might have been better men had they been brought up differently. Bob Ingersoll he gave a great great character, in his way, and said Bob laid all his unbeliefs to the fact that his mother read Tom Payne's works befor he was born. In case Bob is correct in this does he ever consider how he is scattering his doctrines for generations yet unborn?

—The street on the west side needs a few loads of gravel to level it up and prevent the numerous holes so derogatory to sleighing.

—Dr. Walter now has the pedigrees of the five valuable canines from Minneapolis, residing at his hostelry, the Wright County Kennels.

—The opera chairs sor the new Presbyterian church have arrived and will soon be in place. The dedication has been postponed until Sunday, Dec. 1.

—Austin Cooper was in town Wednesday with bobsleighs, the first of the season. There is not snow enough yet for good sledding but it will do to help scour the shoes.

—Rev. Tabor Davies will lecture at the Presbyterian church in Rockford, on Tuesday, Nov 26, at 7:30, P. M. Subject, India, Illustrations with magic lantern will be used to illistrate the lecture.

—Tuesday morning found the ground covered with a mantel of snow, giving things the appearance of winter, while a stiff Nor'wester still further reminded one that "Chill November's surly blast" was here.

—The Lyndale creamery, we understand had the mistortune to break some machinery again this week, and cannot run for a few davs. The Delano creamery will accomodate some of their customers until repairs are made.

—Charley Cunningham, an old Delano boy, has left Minneapolis, and gone to Duluth where he has a years job at his trade putting in patent fire sprinklers. He has become an expert workman. Good foor Charley.

—Is the Delano Village Council afraid that county option will carry, and Wright county go dry, and there will be no money in the Delano treasury so they vote a village tax of $300, to be sure of their own salaries?

—On Wednesday, Charles Kammer received a nice gold medal handsomely engraved, from the Chicago Produce for the best butter sent in the month of September from Minnesota to that place. Who says Delano's creamery isn't in the front and Charley the boss buttermaker of the Northwest?

—Monday morning, Nov. 18, was as fine as any clime can furnish; a heavy white frost sparkled, and glistened in warm sun light, and the pure, fresh air invigorated all the animal creation. The verdict of everybody was that "if this kind of weather would only last there would be no need of going south."

—We received a neatly printed invitation to attend a Thanksgiving Ball at Buffalo. Flannigan's Orchestra to furnish the music. The ladies of the Catholic church to furnish the supper. This combination was calculated to draw a crowd. They doubtless had it. We are no dancer but, could, have done justice to the supper.

—The bicycle craze has about collapsed. Horses are liable to be worth more, in the near future, than they have for a long time, unless some new motor machines supercede them as a means of travel, and of performing work. Bicycles, it is claimed get out of repair too easily, and cost too much to keep them in running order to be satisfactory for ordinary, everyday use.

—Delano has had six saloons all summer and a new one was recently set up and yet we have it from a man in a position to know, that he don't believe there is a saloon in town, with perhaps a possible exception, that has made $300 this year, clear of expenses. This is different from what it used to be when there were more saloons and all made more than now.

—The road that has for about a quarter of a century crossed the river at Lysle's Ford has, recently, been fenced up on the west side. This has been a favorite place for people coming to town from that direction, whose teams are afraid of the cars, to get into the business portion of the village without driving between the piling under the railroad bridge. Now that the only way in is under the bridge the Village Council should have that street made as safe as possible before the Village is obliged to settle a damage suit.

Among Our Exchanges.

"Put His Feet in It."

W. L. Haggerty, our Station Agent, enjoyed (?) a sweet time two or three evenings since. In the freight room stood a barrel of sorghum belonging to H. K. Kelly. In some way the sorghum had commenced to ferment, and unknown to anyone, had blown out the bung and nearly half of it was on the floor near the entrance to the telegraph office. Sometime during the evening the aforesaid Haggerty stepped into the freight room and as his footing seemed to give way he grabbed hold of boxes and barrels on either side and yelled lustily for help. He was soon extricated from his perilous (?) position and then the atmosphere suddenly took on that thick, sulphurous condition which was not due to coal gas, but which indicated that he was rapidly recovering his normal condition. We advise the next shipper of sorghum to buy an accident insurance ticket.—Annandale Post.

Gov. Altgeld now denies that he refused to appear in procession at Atlanta with federal troops, but the Chicago Tribune avers that the story is true. It says that Altgeld sent word to Atlanta before he started that he would not march with the soldiers. Perhaps if the Georgians had turned out a company of ex Confederate troops the governor would have had "no kick coming."—Minneapolis Tribune.—St. Paul Dispatch.

If the Governor denies the charge why don't these Republican papers prove it on him, or forever hold their peace.

Uncle Ben Parmeter, of North Rockford was a GAZETTE caller Monday. He says his son Jack is preaching, through an interpreter, to the Indians, in Washington.

County Cullings.

Dr. Cassel won his case against Roy F. Case, of Dassel, for posting a notice concerning him in his drug store. Damage $75.

N. D. Vandergoon, of Maple Lake in the Waverly Tribune appeals to the people to organize a People's Party League in every neighborhood.

We are credibly informed that the County Attorney was notified of the death of Mrs. Riley, in Rockford, last week, from hemorrhage after childbirth, while being attended by a woman who is attending cases without lisence to do so. If things are as stated the County Attorney should see that no more such cases occur.

The laws governing the practicing of midwifery are not much observed in this county. Several old ladies below the average of intelligence are allowed, unmolested, to follow the occupation. The law requiring a license to act in this capacity should either be lived up to or abolished. As things are intelligent and consciencious persons, having no license keep away, while those of opposite characters are called upon to take the responsibilities assumed with fear and trembling by many of the most eminent accoucheurs in the land. Many lives are, undoubtedly, sacrificed yearly, upon this altar of ignorance. Of course in emergency cases the means at band must be made use of. But such cases deserve the best attention obtainable.

We wish that the Buffalo Gazette would explain what is intended by the patches of ink in it that some people allege are intended to be pictures.—Annandale Post, Nov. 14.

Certainly, we will endeavor to make plainer the meaning of the cut in the GAZETTE of the 8th inst., since you have asked for an explanation We supposed you were acquainted with the fact that the last Republican Legislative convention was held in Annandale; that the Delano delegation wanted C. H. Vorse nominated, and came home mad as wet hens because they did not succeed. It seemed for awhile that this part of the county would not contribute its share of votes for the Republican ticket, at the election then coming on. But the ticket was elected just the same. And owing to a change in law the Clerk of Court office will be vacant soon; and Mr. Vorse the "might have been" Legislator, aspires to Mr. O'Leary's position. Mr. French appears to hunger about that much himself for the first "fat take" on the hook. Ex-Senator Eaton seems from the tone of his remarks to expect to be in a position to make friends by having all the aspirants for political honors enter the race on the same footing at the next nominating convention. The Judges of the District Court are to make the appointment before January. If you will just put this and that together perhaps our illustration will appear plainer to you.

November Literary Note.

A complete and immediate revolution of transportation methods, involving a reduction of freight charges on grain from the west to New York of from 50 to 60 per cent., is what is predicted in the November Cosmopolitan. The plan proposes using light and inexpensive corrugated iron cylinders, hung on a slight rail supported on poles from a cross-arm—the whole system involving an expense of not more than fifteen hundred dollars a mile for construction. The rolling stock is equally simple and comparatively inexpensive. Continuous lines of cylinders, moving with no interval to speak of, would carry more grain in a day than a quadruple track railway. This would constitute a sort of grain-pipe line. The Cosmopolitan also points out the probable abolition of street-cars before the coming horseless carriage, which can be operated by a boy on asphalt pavements at a total expense for labor, oil, and interest, of not more than one dollar a day.

As a Democrat.

ALBANY, N. Y., November 8.—James C. Matthews, colored, Recorder of deeds at Washington in President Cleveland's first Administration, has been elected judge of the Recorder's court of this city, which office carries with it powers of a Supreme Court Judge. His majority is over 2,000. He was nominated and elected on the regular Democritic ticket. It is the highest judicial office ever held by a man of his race in this country.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

DELANO - MINN.

The thumb is an unfailing index of character. The Square Type indicates a strong will, great energy and firmness. Closely allied to the Spatulated Type, the thumb of those of advanced ideas and business ability. Both of these types belong to the busy man or woman; and Demorest's Family Magazine supplies especially for such persons a whole volume of new ideas, condensed in a small space, so that the record of the whole world's work for a month may be read in half an hour. The Conical Type indicates refinement, culture, and a love of music, poetry, and fiction. A person with this type of thumb will thoroughly enjoy the literary attractions of Demorest's Magazine. The Artistic Type indicates a love of beauty and art, which will find rare pleasure in the magnificent oil-picture of roses, 16½ x 24 inches, reproduced from the original painting by De Longpré, the most celebrated of living flower-painters, which will be given to every subscriber to Demorest's Magazine for 1895. The cost of this superb work of art alone $5.00 or; and the reproduction cannot be distinguished from the original. Besides this, an exquisite oil or water-color picture is published in each number of the Magazine, and the articles are so profusely and superbly illustrated that the Magazine is, in reality, a portfolio of art works of the highest order. The Philosophic Type is the thumb of the thinker and inventor of ideas, who will be deeply interested in those developed monthly in Demorest's Magazine. In every one of its numerous departments, which cover the entire artistic and scientific field, choicest flowers of fact, fancy, and [illegible] Demorest's Family Magazine, and are kept in the crowned Queen of the Monthlies. Send in your subscription; it will cost only $2.00, and you will have a dozen Magazines in one. Address W. JENNINGS DEMOREST, Publisher, 15 East 14th Street, New York. Though not a fashion magazine, its perfect fashion page, and its articles on family and domestic matters, will be of superlative interest to those possessing the Feminine Type of Thumb, which indicates in its small size, slenderness, soft nail, and smooth, rounded tip, those traits which belong essentially to the gentler sex, every one of whom should subscribe to Demorest's Magazine. If you are unacquainted with its merits, send for a specimen copy (free), and you will admit that seeing these THUMBS has been a saving in the way of saving money by finding in one magazine everything to satisfy the literary wants of a whole family.

SISTER'S CAKE.

I'd not complain of Sister Jane, for she was good and kind.
Combining with rare comeliness distinctive gifts of mind;
Nay, I'll admit it were most fit that, worn by social cares,
She'd crave a change from parlor life to that below the stairs,
And that eschewing needlework and music,
she should take
Herself to the substantial art of manufacturing cake.

At breakfast, then, it would befall that Sister
Jane would say:
"Mother, if you have got the things, I'll make some cake to-day!"
Poor mother'd cast a timid glance at father, like as not—
For father hinted sister's cooking cost a frightful lot—
But neither SHE nor HE presumed to signify dissent,
Accepting it for gospel truth that what she wanted went!

No matter what the rest of 'em might chance to have in hand,
The whole machinery of the house came to a sudden stand;
The pots were hustled off the stove, the fire
built up anew,
With every damper set just so to heat the oven through;
The kitchen table was relieved of everything to make
That ample space which Jane required when she compounded cake.

And, oh! the bustling here and there, the flying to and fro;
The click of forks that whipped the eggs to lather white as snow—
And what a wealth of sugar melted swiftly out of sight—
And butter? Mother said such waste would ruin father, quite!
But sister Jane preserved a mien no pleading could confound
As she utilized the raisins and the citron by the pound.

Oh, hours of chaos, tumult, heat, vexatious din and whirl!
Of deep humiliation for the sullen hired girl:
Of grief for mother hating to see things wasted so,
And of fortune for the little boy who pined to taste that dough!
It looked so sweet and yellow—sure, to taste it were no sin—
But oh! how sister scolded if he stuck his finger in!

The chances were as ten to one, before the job was through,
That sister'd think of something else she'd great deal rather do!
So, then, she'd softly steal away, as Arabs in the night,
Leaving the girl and ma to finish up as best they might;
These tactics (artful Sister Jane) enabled her to take
Or shift the credit or the blame of that too treacherous cake!

And yet, unhappy is the man who has no Sister Jane—
For he who has no sister seems to me to live in vain.
I never had a sister—may be that is why to-day
I'm wizened and dyspeptic, instead of blithe and gay;
A boy who's only forty should be full of romp and mirth,
But I (because I'm sisterless) am the oldest man on earth!

Had I a little sister—oh, how happy I should be!
I'd never let her cast her eyes on any chap but me;
I'd love her and I'd cherish her for better and for worse—
I'd buy her gowns and bonnets, and sing her praise in verse:
And—yes, what's more and vastly more—I tell you what I'd do;
I'd let her make her wondrous cake, and I would eat it, too!

I have a high opinion of the sisters, as you see—
Another fellow's sister is so very dear to me!
I love to work anear her when she's making over frocks,
When she patches little trousers or darns prosaic socks;
But I draw the line at one thing—yes I don my hat and take
A three hours' walk when she is moved to try her hand at cake! E. F.

DAVID BENNET HILL, of New York, lectured Wednesday night at Minneapolis, and is to talk to a St. Paul audience to night. He is looking up the Presidential fences.

DEMOCRATS are a little slow, as compared with Republicans, in putting out a ticket for next fall; they have not yet got further than T. J. McDermott, Chairman of the State Central Committee, for Governor.

SHOULD Gov. Clough commute the sentence of Harry Hayward to imprisonment for life, it would destroy the financial speculations of those detectives threatening to publish, after the hanging, his full confession.

SEVERAL Republicans in town say, quite firmly that if Governor Clough is renominated they will vote the Democratic ticket for governor next time; others like the Cokato editor, propose to vote the Republican ticket, no matter whose name it contains.

IT has been announced by Mr. Benedict a personal friend or Grover Cleveland, that it is the determination of the President to accept no nomination for a third term; not under any circumstances. This will, doubtless, clear the atmosphere considerably, for those willing to take a first term.

THE newest exchange we have is the Twin City Guardian, published in Minneapolis. It's motto is "The strength of a nation lies in the prosperity of the masses. Centralization destroys small industries and impoverishes both employer and employe. It is making war on the department stores of the city, claming they are drowing out of business the smaller establishedments throughout the cities.

A Bicycle Blow.

Mrs. T. M. Shaw tells a good story she herd at conference at the expense of Rev Kenneston, an M. E. minister formerly of Annandale, but now in the northern part of the state. An Indian saw the new minister on a bicycle, and very expressively relelved himself of the following soliloquy: "Humph, white man heap lazier than Indian, he sits down to walk."

Thanksgiving Day.

It has grown into a custom, in this country to observe one day in the year as Thanksgiving Day. The President of the United States appointed a Thursday toward the last of November and the Governors of the states usually appoint the same day, requesting the people to render thanks unto the Giver of all good for the manifold blessings showered upon us during the year. This particular year, in our locality has been abundantly blessed. No severe storms, nor unusual droughts or floods have materially injured our bountiful harvests: but barns, granaries and cellars are filled with the products of the soil. No epidemics of fatal diseases have visited our people. Peace prevails throughout the country, and although the rumbling of political discord are faintly heard confidence in statesmenship to suppress them in their incipiency is felt. Surley we have much to be thankful for.

While we read of the murdering of Missionaries and Christians in foreign lands we are thankful to a Supreme Ruler that we live in a land where all can worship God according to the dictates of his conscience without fear of molestation.

It is customary for all churches to hold special services on Thanksgiving Day: or unite with neighboring churches in holding union meetings, church members and church goers are hereby brought nearer together, and become better acquainted, and feel themselves in greater harmony with each other.

Family reunions are held, and father and mother, sister and brother and children, and aunts and uncles, cousins and all are invited to the comes of relatives to help eat the traditional turkey. People go from one end of the country to the other to attend these family reunions, which were it not for custom would doubtless drift away from friends and relatives living so far apart.

Everybody enjoys the Thanksgiving dinner when their nearst friends are present.

Nothing is too good for a thanks giving dinner' nor is anything too trivial to be remembered for the occasion. Turkey and cranberry sauce seems to be in the lead in the way of edibles: though chickens, ducks and geese, are chosen by some, either by their being more convenient for them to get or as a matter of preferance. The whitest and lightest bread good butter, fine potatoes, mince and pumpkin pies, milk, tea and coffee, cakes of all kinds, doughnuts, cookies, pound and fruit cakes, all find their admirers.

Crisp Currency.

In his speech, before the Georgia Legislature, on the currency question, Judge Charles F. Crisp is reported, in the Atlanta Constitution, among other things to have said:

"In 1792 was passed the first coinage law. That law provided that every fifteen pounds weight of pure silver should be of equal value in all payments with one pounds weight of gold, and all the gold and silver coin which has been struck at one issue from the mint shall be a lawful tender in all payments whatsoever. This is bimetallism. There is nothing abont a unit of value, but it fixed a ratio between the two metals and provided by law that either of them at that ratio should be a lawful tender for all debts, public and private."

"The people of that day believed that there was such a thing as bimetallism and they believed that on bimetallism depended the interest and prosperity of the people of the United States."

"But in 1873 silver was demonetized. It was not demonetized, my friends, because it was cheap, for at the time of the passage of the act, the bullion value of the silver dollar was worth 3 cents more than the bullion value of a gold dollar."

"Now why was it demonetized? There can be but one reason. It was to increase the value of a gold dollar." He further says: "That act was passed without knowledge on the part of the people, or of the people's representatives, and I never heard that questioned in democratic circles until within the last year or two." He then cites in support of this statement, Mr. Thurman, of Ohio, the noblest Roman of them all; Mr. Allison, a representative from Iowa, and a distinguished candidate for the republican nomination for the presidency; Beck, of Ky., Senator Herlford, of West Va.; President Garfield, then a member: Kelly of Pennsylvania; Blaine and Voorhees. And says: "President Grant who signed the bill did not know it."

He claims the demonitization of silver was a Republican measure and has never met with the approval of the majority of the democratic party.

"Now, there is what you call a hard money system and a fiat money system. The objection to the fiat money system has been that it left it to the legislatures and congresses to determine how much money should be issued. The great advantage that has always been claimed for the bunetallic standard is that it was a supply of the precious metal furnished by nature itself, and that the labor of thousands of years has not produced very much more of one of these metals in value than the other.

"In the early days it was never denied that ceasing to coin one metal would make the other unduly valuable. The first effort to demonetize either was after the gold discoveries in California. Then you found people in Europe clamoring for the demonization of gold. There was not much discussion of that sort in this country, but in Europe they clamored for the demonetization of gold. Fabulous stories were told of the amount of gold that would be fonnd in California that was to be obtained by simply gathering it up, and there was a party in Europe which advocated the demonetization of gold. That period passed away and it is admitted now by all who have examined into the question that the gold discoveries of California conferred more real and lasting benefit, not only upon the people of the United States, but upon the people of the whole world, than any discovery of modern times. It gave a sufficient amount of money to answer the purposes of trade and commerce.

"I hope that is plain. All things else being equal the value of every dollar is regulated by the number of dollars in circulation." "the latest estimate from the director of the mint is that there is in the world $3,965.000,000 in gold and $3,455,000,000 of silver, so you see they nearly run together—$500,000,000 more of gold than of silver. Now what are you afraid of?

"Our creditors should be paid according to contract, in gold or silver, as suits the convenience of the United States—and who has the right to object. That is the contract. Mr. Carlisle himself says that there would have been no trouble about it if that plan had been inaugurated at the start. There is no trouble about it in France. France has a great deal more money than we have; a great deal more gold; and France does not pay goly when inconvenient. If when these gentlemen go to Washington and demand gold the secretary would simply say to them: "Sir, this paper you have calls for coin. It is more convenient to the United States to pay you in silver than gold. You would find those men friends of the treasury, rather than its enemies. (Applause.) You would find those men the friends of silver rather than its enemies."

"I think I represent the majority of those who favor free coinage when I say we are opposed to the issuing of another bond in time of peace to redeem currency. (Great applause and cheering.) We are opposed to the issuing of another bond to get gold to pay our moneyed obligations so long as we have got silver piled up in the treasury enough to pay them."

WASHINGTON LETTER.

From our Regular Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 22, 1895.

Not another bond will be issued by the administration, until the republican Congress has had an opportunity to extricate the Treasury from the embarrasment into which it was forced by republican legislation. This can be accepted as absolutely authentic, even should the demand for gold become much greated than it has for the last few days. It may not be true that republicans are trying to force another bond issue before Congress meets, but it is true that they would be glad to see one—a big one—, as it would at the same time relieve them of the responsibility of providing for the needs of the Treasury and furnish them with a new peg upon which to hang fresh abuse of the administration. It is not a subject for smiles, but it would not be strange if President Cleveland indulges in a few grim smiles as he pens that portion of his message to Congress calling attention to the needs of the Treasury. If such language were permissible in so dignified a document as a President's message he might be imagined as writing: "Your party put the Treasury in a hole; now the country expects you to at least lend a helping hand towards pulling it out."

It is not a pleasant thing for democrats to read, but as nothing is ever gained by dodging the truth it must be said that the spirit of concession which was expected would exist among prominent members of the party at at the beginning of Congress is as yet conspicious by its absence. "Ephraim is wedded to his idols," and unless the rank and file of the party shall take the bit between their teeth and get together regardless of leaders, there is little prospect of a united democracy in the next Presidential campaign and nothing but a united democracy can have even a fighting chance to win Perhaps some of those who are trying to make harmony inpossible will on sober second thought change their tactics.

Mr. Frederick C. Wait, of the Agricultural department read a paper befor a meeting of the National Statistical Association, held in Washington this week, which contained some startling figures on the stay-at-home vote in this country. According to those figures, the stay-at-home vote in the State of Pennsylvania, at the Presidential election of 1888 was only 70,000, while this year it was 610,000; in New York it was 75,000 in '88, 185,000 in '92, 425,000 in '94, and 510,000 this year; in Kentucky it was 55,000 in '88, and 100,000 this year; in Massachusets it was 80,000 in '88, 100,000 in '92, and 180,000 this year, and in Ohio it was 40,000 in '88, 115,000 in '92, and 180,000 this year.

Hon. Carroll D. Wright, U. S. Commissioner of Labor, said in the course of a lecture on "The industrial development of the New South," at Columbian University: "We will have to be content to keep the negro with us, and we should try to have the best negro possible. This can only be accomplished by education. The whole negro question must be considered on the industrial line. When educated the negroes will be inclined to enter into the industries."

Secretary Morton has written the following letter which explains itself: "I hasten to respond to your letter of inquiry inclosing newspaper clipping relative to the abuse of the franking privilege. No one who knows the Hon. Tom L Johnson will for a moment beleive him capable of premeditated misuse of the franking privilege. He is a gentleman of the higest personal integrity, and his public career precludes the possibility of his knowingly doing a wrong thing with public documents or franks. How the bookseller secured the frank of Mr. Johnson I am unable to state, but I am confident that Mr. Johnson himself never authorized any one except his private secretary or clerk to use the said frank. It is true that the book with the frank was bought by an employe of this department at a second-hand book store in this city, but the purchase was made for the particular purpose of showing that the promiscous and gratuitous distributation of books at the public expense is a fraud upon the Treasury, upon the department which prints the documents and upon the Post Office Department which carries them. The particular person whose frank was placed upon the paid-for public document was a matter of no consequence or significance, except as an illustration of how the franking privilege may be abused if those who have them are permitted to grant powers of attorney for their use."

It seems as though every republican member of the House who arrives brings a different opinion as to what the republicans ought to do at the session of Congress about to open. All of which shows that the term "wild horses" which Mr. Harrison used to describe the democrat House of the last Congress, is intirely too mild for the menagerie which Mr. Reed if expected to control with one hand, while he uses the other to push his Presidential boom.

INDEPENDENCE INCIDENTS.

One more day and then comes thanksgiving, a feast of fat things, more than a day of thanks. Turkey and wine on the leaf will be served up to satisfy the apetite of those who never knew hunger, but many of the poor will not have enough to hardly keep them above ground.

We have been having quite a winter for the month of November. Just a little more snow and we would have good sleighing.

There are bushels of corn to husk yet, many fields have not been touched

This morning, G. N. Elliot and family started on their long journey to Middle Tennessee, near Nashville their many friends wish them a pleasant and safe journey, they have gone down there to keep house during natural life if they like the country and all things being equal.

Mrs. E. W. Mills, teacher of school, District 81, Armstrong, will have an entertainment this evening, all are invited.

Quite a number from our town was in Minneapolis this week.

The Lyndale creamery was shut down part of last week for repairs, but will be better than new when she starts up.

Every body is getting ready for Thanks Giving, and there is not much news.

There will be an auction sale at G. W. Hoisington's, on next Saturday, 30th. of the present month

All of the threshing crews have returned from the west.

Times are about the same with us mumb head clod hopper farmers as they were a year ago or more. Death and taxes are abroad in the land and we can not bribe either if the Jews allow the Gentiles to live is all we expect.

Rabbit hunting is good now, just enough snow to follow their tracks.

Hog killing time has come and we farmers will be fatter than a Jew Banker for a while, but unless things mend, I fear we will all go down hill together, both Jew and Gentile.

No Change of Cars to the Coast!

The Chicago Great Western Railway (Maple Leaf Route) runs Tourist Sleeping Cars to Los Angeles, California, via Kansas City and the Santa Fe Route, every Tuesday. The Tourist Car rate is but $6.00 ($3.00 each, if two go) from St. Paul or Minneapolis to Los Angeles California, and the trip 24 hours shorter than by other lines. No Sunday traveling is necessary. The cars are divided into sections, the same as Palace Sleepers, and are in charge of a colored porter. They are pleatifully supplied with fresh clean bedding, curtains and linen, and have a little kitchen at one end for light cooking. These cars were designed to give comfort in a long journey at the lowest possible cost to the traveler.

A SMALL planet, the tenth discovered this year and the 408th in the list, was recently discovered by Prof. Max Wolf, of Heidelberg.

AMONG Uncle Sam's exports this year is $25,000,000 worth of our rich American girls. They have taken their gold with them and more will follow.

RHODE ISLAND is shown by a recent census bulletin to have 10,000 more women than men, and a woman suffrage movement is very aggressive.

THE British dukes', barons' and earls' attention is called to the fact that a Philadelphia girl has just inherited $15,000,000 from an Australian relative.

A FRENCHWOMAN confesses to having attended 722 balls to catch a husband, and only to have caught instead bronchitis fourteen times, pleurisy thrice and 120 colds in the head.

THE wettest place in this country is Neah Bay in Washington; over 123 inches of rain fall there every year. The dryest place in the United States, at any point where regular observations are taken, is Fort Garland, Col.; less than six inches of rain fell there during the year.

"A NEW comet, with an unusually short tail," has been discovered. Whose boom it foretells or whose doom it forebodes is not yet determined, but superstitious people are always a little bit shaky upon the appearance of a new comet, and this "short-tail" fellow only emphasizes the fear.

FOOLSCAP paper takes its name from the watermarks introduced by the paper makers during the English commonwealth. Previous to that time this size of paper had borne as a water mark a crown, but after the overthrow and execution of Charles I., the parliament, in contempt and derision, ordered the crown to be removed and a fool's cap and bells to be substituted.

A SPANISH gentleman of prominence, lately visiting in Philadelphia, in conversation with an American formerly occupying a diplomatic position, said that Spain, being greatly in need of money, had been negotiating with England for the sale of Cuba, and had received assurances that if the island could be delivered without trouble with the United States the sale could be effected.

THREE years ago Prof. J. J. McCook, a writer on social questions, estimated, after a careful study of statistics, that there were 45,545 tramps in the United States, and that their direct annual cost to the country was $9,000,000. He now states that in January, 1895, the number of tramps had increased to 85,768, and their annual cost to the country $17,000,000, not counting the loss sustained by their failure to produce anything.

RETURNS to the government indicate that during the last fiscal year the beer consumption in the United States aggregated 33,469,661 barrels, an increase of 191,000 barrels over the total for the previous year. This is at the rate of more than 15 gallons for each man, woman and child in the country. As a large proportion do not drink beer, it follows that some of the people must have been victims of a remarkable thirst. No attempt is made to account for the large increase.

THE Philadelphia common council has been debating the question of employing a chaplain to open the meeting with prayer. One of the members, Thomas Mehan, the well-known gardener and writer, said: "I am opposed to the resolution, because I think that every member should pray for himself, and not shuffle the awful responsibility off on some other man, praying at the public expense. Let us take five minutes at the opening of each session and every fellow pray for himself."

THE whaling season now closed has been the worst ever experienced by the arctic fleet. The total catch was 26 whales, the smallest in a number of years, and compared with the number of vessels in the fleet the smallest ever known. The steam whaler Orca caught only one whale, and was out the whole season. Only 40,000 pounds of whalebone was secured, and the price of the article is expected to double before the sale of this year's product begins. At present it sells for $2.75 a pound.

RETURNS from the internal revenue office show a rather astonishing state of affairs with regard to the popularity of playing cards and cigarettes in the United States. Last year cards produced a revenue of $382,402.50, which was derived from the sale of 38,240,250 packs, or a pack apiece for more than half the men, women and babies in the country. The tax on cigarettes netted $1,666,923 during the year, an increase of $74,511 over last year. The total number of cigarettes taxed was 3,328,477,677, or over half a hundred for every man, woman and child in the country.

A MERIDEN (Conn.) man has rigged an ingenious device to break one of his horses of the habit of pawing and keeping the men who sleep in the stable awake at night. He has placed a movable board on the door of the stall in such a position that when the horse strikes out with his foot he moves the board. From this board runs a rod that passes over the horse, and to the end of the rod is fastened a whip. Every time the board is moved the rod descends upon the horses's back. After one or two disturbances the animal settled down and kept still. Those Connecticut people have great heads.

AT a reception given to Mr. Peary in New York by the American Geographical society the explorer pointed out that Arctic exploration must, like everything else, be made a business and carried on from year to year, profiting from each added item of experience. He said that his experience in the last two years had accentuated his previous belief in small parties for Arctic work. Thrown upon the resources of the country, the members of large parties would only starve. This dangerous work in the direction of the pole can never cease to be interesting so long as business methods go hand in hand with heroism.

WITH OPEN ARMS.

Eugene V. Debs Warmly Welcomed on His Release.

Enthusiastic Demonstrations at Woodstock and Chicago—The Labor Leader Delivers an Address in the Latter City.

Chicago, Nov. 23.—Eugene V. Debs for five minutes Friday afternoon was literally "in the hands of his friends." It was just after the arrival of the trainload of enthusiastic admirers of the great strike leader at the little town of Woodstock where he again breathed the air of freedom for the first time in half a year. They had marched from the railroad depot to the jail, and Debs stood on the steps awaiting them. There was a preliminary thunder of hurrahs and then the storm of bottled-up admiration broke, and there was a scene which has hardly ever been duplicated in the annals of labor affairs.

Without giving him a chance to speak the crowd rushed upon their hero, dragged him from the steps and in a few moments had him high in the air. Those who had the good fortune to reach him first were not long allowed the privilege of holding him, and he was passed from hand to hand while all the while others struggled to get near him. Meanwhile the crowd kept up a constant yelling and the band played on, selecting as their theme: "See, the Conquering Hero Comes." Debs took it all in the good-natured spirit in which it was meant, and when he was put down began a hand-shaking soiree that lasted until the train was nearly ready to start.

Demonstration in Chicago.

When the delegation reached Chicago another crowd was waiting at the depot and the scene at Woodstock was duplicated in milder colors. From the depot the line of march was taken up to Battery D, and although a miserable drizzle was dropping, the streets were all along filled with spectators, who joined the marchers. At Battery D Mr. Debs spoke for about two hours on topics which have become familiar to all labor advocates. He denied emphatically that ex-Mayor Hopkins had anything whatever to do with aiding or abetting the big railroad strike, and said if there was either shame or glory attached to it, he wanted to bear it himself and have nobody else dragged in.

At Battery D the audience numbered about 4,000. In addition to the address by Mr. Debs, short speeches were made by Henry D. Lloyd, of Chicago; ex-Gov. Waite, of Colorado, and others.

Celebrated in Other Cities.

Omaha, Neb., Nov. 23.—The release of Eugene V. Debs from prison was celebrated by members of the American Railway union at Washington hall Friday night. The dancing programme was interspersed by speeches by labor leaders.

Bloomington, Ill., Nov. 23.—A mass-meeting was held Friday night at Turner hall, celebrating the release of Eugene V. Debs from the Woodstock jail. The attendance was large and the meeting was full of enthusiasm.

Birmingham, Ala., Nov. 23.—Eugene V. Debs' release from the Woodstock (Ill.) jail was celebrated here Friday night by a mass-meeting in the Winnie Davis wigwam under the auspices of the Birmingham Trades council. Fifteen hundred men and women attended.

Judge Woods Defied.

Terre Haute, Ind., Nov. 25.—"When Judge Woods says the courts do not in effect restrain men from striking, I charge that he utters knowingly and willfully a falsehood. If this be contempt of his contemptible court, let him make the most of it. I propose to assert my rights, to speak the truth and arraign iniquity in high places, if I end my career in a hangman's noose."

Eugene V. Debs made the foregoing statement with emphasis Saturday night at a meeting in the armory given by his friends on his return from Woodstock jail. He was alluding to an alleged interview with the federal judge. The audience cheered the defi heartily and assured Mr. Debs that he was not born to stretch hemp.

PLAN TO GET GOLD.

Secretary Carlisle Adopts an Unusual Expedient.

Washington, Nov. 25.—An important order was on Saturday issued by the treasury department, with the purpose of giving the banks and people throughout the country an opportunity to replenish the gold reserve. The order requires subtreasurers to pay the express charges both ways on deposits of gold in exchange for notes, and also modifies the existing regulations concerning under-weight and mutilated coins Heretofore depositors of such coins have been compelled to pay express charges on the money, which was treated as bullion, and to wait until the mints had ascertained the exact value thereof before they could get their payment. Now the subtreasurers will immediately weigh such coins, deduct four cents for each troy grain of shortage and promptly pay the depositors the full value thus ascertained.

Blodgett Resigns.

Washington, Nov. 26.—William H. Blodgett, of Wisconsin, principal examiner in the patent office, interior department, has resigned.

Killed in a Runaway Accident.

Green Bay, Wis., Nov. 26.—In a runaway in the Polish settlement in the town of Pittsfield the three young sons of John Kaskoski were thrown from the wagon. The oldest, a lad of 13, had his skull crushed and was almost instantly killed. Of the younger brothers one had his right arm broken and the other his nose, and both were otherwise severely bruised.

Commanders for Spanish Troops.

Madrid, Nov. 26.—Gens. Pando and Marin will sail for Cuba at once to take command of the Spanish troops recently sent to that island.

OPERATIONS OF THE MINTS.

Director Preston Presents His Report on the Year's Coinage.

Washington, Nov. 25.—The director of the mint has submitted his report to the secretary of the treasury, covering the operations of the mints and assay offices of the United States during the fiscal year 1895 together with the statistics of foreign countries relative to the production and coinage of gold and silver and the monetary condition of each country.

The value of the gold and silver estimated to have been used in the industrial arts during the calendar year 1894 was, approximately, $21,541,652, of which $10,658,604 was gold and $10,883,048 was silver. The estimated metallic stock in the United States on July 1, 1895, was: Gold, $636,229,825; silver, $625,853,949: a total of $1,262,084,774.

The estimated product of gold and silver in the United States during the calendar year, 1894, was gold, 1,910,813 fine ounces, of the value of $39,500,000: silver, 49,590,000 fine ounces, of the commercial value of $31,422,000, and of the coinage value of $64,000,000. The estimated production of the world for the calendar year was, gold, 8,737,788 fine ounces, of the value of $180,626,100: silver, 167,752,565 fine ounces of the coining value of $216,892,200—commercial value, $106,522,900.

He reviews in his report the monetary legislation and monetary system of the United States, commencing with the 'coinage scheme," submitted to congress by Robert Morris, superintendent of finance, January 15, 1782, making an analysis of the report of Alexander Hamilton, secretary of the treasury, upon the establishment of a mint, submitted to the house of representatives in 1791, and upon which the act of April 2, 1792, estblishing a mint and coinage system was based. Mr. Preston states that the real demonetization of silver took place in 1853, when the weight of the divisional coins was reduced about seven per cent. This was not an accident or oversight. It was expressly declared in the house of representatives that the intention was "to make gold the sole standard of value" in large transactions, and silver subservient to it, for small ones. The act of 1873 was only nominal, and conformed the law to the actual monetary condition, as far as the metallic currency of the United States was concerned, that had existed for nearly a quarter of a century.

He states that the currency laws of the United States since 1873 are not only inconsistent, but contradictory, obstructive of each other's operation and mutually destructive. He says that on January 1, 1879, the date of the resumption of specie payments, the only currency, except coin certificates required to be redeemed in gold coin, was the $346,681,016 legal tender notes then outstanding, which the then secretary of the treasury was of the opinion that a gold reserve of $100,000,000 would be sufficient to maintain so long as there was no increase; but the paper currency redeemable on presentation has been increased to the extent of $155,930,000, issued in payment of the silver bullion purchased under the act of July 14, 1890. Of these notes there were outstanding on the 1st inst. $141,092,280, making the total government obligations as money $487,773,296, redeemable on presentation. Aside from these there were outstanding November 1, 1895, $323,456,236 in silver certificates, and as the act of July 14, 1890, declared it "to be the established policy of the United States to maintain the two metals at parity with each other upon the present legal ratio, or such ratio as may be provided by law," there was a total of $821,229,532, resting on the basis of the gold reserve of $100,000,000, and in order to maintain the parity between the two metals the government has been compelled to borrow $162,000,000 in gold within the past two years.

EARNINGS OF RAILROADS.

Figures and Comparisons Given by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Washington, Nov. 25.—The interstate commerce commission has just issued a preliminary report on the income and expenditures of railways in the United States for the year ended June 30, 1895, prepared by the statistician. The report includes the returns from 650 roads, whose reports were filed on or before November 9, 1895, and covers the operations of 164,529 miles of line, or 92 per cent of the mileage in the United States. The gross earnings were $1,003,022,853, of which $293,465,792 were from passenger service, $683,022,985 were from freight service, and $26,217,595 were other earnings from operation, covering earnings from telegraph, car, mileage balances, switching charges, etc. The operating expenses were $677,677,635, leaving net earnings of $325,355,218, as compared with net earnings of $320,137,670 for the same roads in 1894. Income from sources outside of the operations of the roads was $33,057,243, making total income available for the payment of fixed charges and dividends $358,412,461. Total deductions from income, including fixed charges, were $336,351,946, and dividends paid were $53,135,545, leaving a deficit from the operations of the year of $31,075,030. The dividends paid by the same roads the preceding year were $61,504,785.

Washington, Nov. 25.—The report of James White, superintendent of railway mail service, shows that during the year 497 accidents occurred to railway post offices in which seven clerks were killed and 178 injured while on duty. It is shown that the service is becoming more and more efficient. Of the 10,377,875,000 pieces distributed and redistributed but 1,166,682 errors occurred, being one error for each 8,895 pieces handled.

STATE FAIRS.

An Association Formed and a Schedule of Dates Fixed.

Columbus, O., Nov. 22.—Assistant Secretary Fleming, of the state board of agriculture, has returned from Chicago, where he went to attend a meeting of representatives of the state fairs of the eastern and western circuits to arrange a schedule of the fairs. The representatives formed an association, with R. T. Furnas, of Nebraska, president, and J. T. Fleming, of Wisconsin, secretary; J. W. Fleming, of Ohio; W. C. Gerrard, of Illinois, and J. T. Fleming, of Wisconsin, were made a committee to prepare a constitution. The following schedule was agreed upon: New York, August 19-24; Ohio, August 31 to September 5; Nebraska, same dates; Iowa, September 7-12; Michigan, same dates; Minnesota, September 14-19; Indiana, same dates; Wisconsin, September 21-26; Illinois, September 28 to October 3; St. Louis, October 5-10.

HEAVY SHIPMENTS OF GOLD.

New York Bankers About to Send $5,000,000 to Europe.

New York, Nov. 23.—The recent withdrawals of gold have reduced the free coin in the treasury here to a little over $33,000,000, and as further withdrawals might inconvenience the treasury the secretary Thursday night authorized the sale of United States gold bars to exporters at a premium of one-tenth of one per cent. The bankers, however, said they could not afford to pay more than one-sixteenth of one cent premium, and, after some discussion, the secretary of the treasury authorized the assistant treasurer here and the superintendent of the assay office to let exporters have bars at a premium of one-sixteenth of one per cent. Accordingly about $2,500,000 in bars was engaged by 11 o'clock. The total shipments of gold to-day will be about $5,000,000.

Resolutions Are Presented.

Washington, Nov. 26.—In accordance with the request of the meeting of the bar of the supreme court of the United States held last week, Attorney-General Harmon Monday presented to the court the resolutions adopted by the meeting in respect of the late Associate Justice Jackson and asked that they be spread upon the minutes.

HEATING THE HOUSE.

A Large Furnace Just as Economical as a Small One.

Heating the house, if one has a furnace, is by many persons considered a very great problem. Just why this is so it is easy to understand. In the first place, the care of the furnace is usually left to man or maid. The former looks at it once or twice in the course of the day; the latter hates it, and therefore takes no interest in it. Then the householder complains that the furnace is no good, and forthwith denounces this system of heating as unreliable and unsatisfactory.

In putting in a furnace, the one thing of prime importance is to see that it is large enough. A thirty-eight furnace is none too large for a six or eight room house. If of this size, it is safer, more easily managed, more economical and works far better than a smaller one. Many people think it is a much greater consumer of coal, but this is not true, if the furnace is properly managed. It is out of the question to maintain a good degree of heat in cold weather without the use of a fair amount of fuel, and it is much better to burn a furnace with a moderate degree of draft and a good supply of coal rather than have a small firepot that needs constant crowding and refilling and have the rise and fall of temperature incident upon putting on fresh coal when the fire is low and turning on the drafts to heat up again, a process always attended with an extra consumption of fuel.

A furnace with a large firepot needs filling but twice in the day, morning and night. The grates should be thoroughly cleared out and the ashes removed. Special care should be taken that there are no clinkers or slag to fill up the grate bars, and thereby shut off the current of air that is isdispensable to the proper burning of the coal. The best furnaces have a large pipe draft so arranged that there is but little draft from below, but a circulatory current that, after the gas is well consumed, keeps the fire at a steady pitch for hours. When a furnace fire is built it should be done with an abundance of wood. There is no economy in using a little kindling. The coal falls upon the grate all around, is not consumed, and shuts off the draft as soon as it becomes covered with ashes, which takes but a little while. It is almost impossible to grind this unused coal up with the ordinary shaker, and there it remains, holding the ashes and clinkers and making a first-class, bright, effective fire out of the question, until the whole thing is turned out, and often the coal must be cleaned out by hand. If a sufficient amount of wood is put in to fill the bottom of the pot, then the coal put on in proper quantities until the fire is well under way, there will scarcely be a scrap of unburned coal left. Additions to the fire should be made, one or two shovelfuls at a time, until the requisite amount is put in. Once started, it will burn for a week or more without any trouble. A great many householders think it wise and economical to turn out the fire once in a week or two, clear the grates thoroughly and start in fresh. Furnaces conducted on this system are thought to work more satisfactorily and to keep a much more even heat.

To heat up a house quickly, especially after the rooms have been cold for some hours, is is necessary to have the doors open, so that there can be a circulation of air. A current of hot air pouring into a room against a stagnant body of cold air has hard work to warm the atmosphere thoroughly. If all of the doors are opened, and one window on an upper floor is down at the top for about an inch, a lively current is established, and the house will be warmer, more comfortable and more healthful than if the doors were kept closed.

For between seasons, when it is still too early to heat up a furnace, and yet there is a certain amount of warmth required, the oil stove and the gas stove are of great value. A very good oil stove may be bought for four or five dollars. But these stoves are tremendous consumers of oil, and cost more to run than an ordinary stove. As a compensation, there is neither dirt not work, save the filling of the lamp; and that they are a great comfort in rooms where there is no provision for heat is attested by thousands of people who have used them.—N. Y. Ledger.

A Steamboat on Wheels.

Sweden can boast of a steamboat on wheels. This unique vehicle makes regular trips overland from one lake to another near by. To leave the lake it approaches the shore with a full head of steam on, rushes over the rails of the connecting road to the top of the eminence midway, shoots down to the other lake, and then its screw propellers merrily churn the waters again.

KNOWLEDGE

Brings comfort and improvement and tends to personal enjoyment when rightly used. The many, who live better than others and enjoy life more, with less expenditure, by more promptly adapting the world's best products to the needs of physical being, will attest the value to health of the pure liquid laxative principles embraced in the remedy, Syrup of Figs.

Its excellence is due to its presenting in the form most acceptable and pleasant to the taste, the refreshing and truly beneficial properties of a perfect laxative; effectually cleansing the system, dispelling colds, headaches and fevers and permanently curing constipation. It has given satisfaction to millions and met with the approval of the medical profession, because it acts on the Kidneys, Liver and Bowels without weakening them and it is perfectly free from every objectionable substance.

Syrup of Figs is for sale by all druggists in 50c and $1 bottles, but it is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only, whose name is printed on every package, also the name, Syrup of Figs, and being well informed, you will not accept any substitute if offered.

THE DUAL-DOSAGE SYSTEM.

The case of Thomas Cutter, of Red Dog, Calaveras county, was a puzzle to the doctors. He had such a variety of peculiar symptoms that medical opinion inclined to the belief that he suffered from a complication of diseases. To one doctor the liver seemed to be the chief organ at fault; to another, the great trouble appeared to be in the kidneys; while a third would say that intestinal indigestion was the main difficulty. And yet Mr. Cutter had been advised that his stomach was chronically disordered, and still another diagnosis found grave derangement of the heart's action.

What added to the troubles of the patient was his inconstancy with regard to treatment. He had such a distrust of medical science that he would not long adhere to the advice of any physician. He consulted doctor after doctor and each expressed dissatisfaction with the previous treatment and diagnosis. There seemed to be so many things wrong with his internal organs that there was room for a great diversity of opinion, and yet none of the doctors need be wholly astray.

If Mr. Cutter did not get well it was not because he had failed to take medicine. He had a morbid delight in drugs. After completing the rounds of the doctors' offices in his town he would sometimes take a course of patent medicines of his own account. He spent hours in reading the advertisements of the various nostrums, and occasionally he would find a recital of symptoms that appeared to coincide with his own. Then he would rush to the nearest drug store, buy a bottle of the much-wanted remedy and faithfully take the dose prescribed. By the time he had exhausted the bottle his fickle thirst for medication had found some fresh object of attraction, or he had repaired to some practicing physician, regular or irregular.

The wonder was, in view of the quantities of medicine he took, that he continued well enough to attend to his official duties as treasurer of Calaveras county. Moreover, he drank more whisky than he could well carry with entire equilibrium. Another failing was a fondness for faro, which gossips said had often cost him more than he could afford to lose. His drinking and gambling were the only things that served to divert his attention from his real or imaginary ailments. Were it not for cards and liquor, as he expressed it, his stomach would have been constantly upon his mind. But some of his cronies declared that there was nothing in reality the matter with him; that his maladies were imaginary, the truth being that he had become a hypochondriac, and had deceived all the doctors by describing symptoms which had no existence in fact.

In his restless search for novelty, Mr. Cutter originated what he called a dual system of treatment. In its application to his own case this consisted in dosing himself for one ailment while following a medical prescription for another. He had a theory that the doctors failed to give him relief because they did not make their prescriptions sufficiently comprehensive, having an eye to only one disorder, while he was the victim of a number of diseases at the same time. It was shortly after the adoption of this new doctrine that Mr. Cutter called one day upon Dr. Silex for a consultation.

The doctor listened with the utmost professional gravity to the recital of a long train of distressing symptoms.

"I think your troubles," he said, at last, "may all be attributed to the liver. It needs stirring up."

Mr. Cutter was secretly convinced that the fault was chiefly in the lungs, but he dutifully took the prescription which the doctor handed him, paid the fee and went to the Red Dog druggist to have the medicine compounded. When the prescription had been filled he decided that he would take some glycerin for the benefit of his lungs, and so he purchased a bottle of that substance from the sympathetic apothecary, who never failed to recommend whatever Mr. Cutter was disposed to try.

Mr. Cutter was a widower, and the only other occupant of his isolated dwelling, on the outskirts of the town of Red Dog, was an aged housekeeper. Her chief virtue, in his eyes, was that she never meddled with the medicine closet, whose shelves were filled with a wonderful accumulation of bottles, every form and size being represented. Despite the enormous consumption by the owner, the stock of medicines remaining, in quantity as well as in variety, would have sufficed for a ship's crew on a voyage around the world or for the supply of a county hospital.

His latest acquisitions were now added to this curious collection. And each time that he took a dose of the medicine prescribed by Dr. Silex he followed it up with a spoonful of glycerin. He began to feel some rather curious effects from this combination treatment after a few days. But, as the sensations he experienced were rather agreeable than other wise, he concluded that the dual system was working well and he persevered in it. In the course of another week he was conscious of a peculiar sort of exhilaration, and when he walked out of doors he seemed to be treading on air. This aroused his curiosity, and he made a second call on Dr. Silex.

"I am feeling much better, doctor," said the patient. "Do you mind telling me what was in that prescription you gave me?"

"That," said the doctor, much pleased to find his prescription so efficacious, "called for nothing more than nitric acid in solution. It is a very powerful remedy, and you must be careful not to exceed the dose prescribed."

"I didn't know whether it was your medicine or the glycerin that was doing me so much good," remarked Mr. Cutter, abstractedly, as if speaking to himself.

"Glycerin?" queried the doctor, whose quick ear had caught the word. "What glycerin?"

"I've been taking some along with the medicine," Mr. Cutter explained, in confusion, knowing how medical men dislike any departure from the treatment they order.

There was a momentary twinkle in the doctor's eye. It might have passed for amusement, but there was every appearance of consternation in his manner as he jumped to his feet and exclaimed:

"What? Glycerin and nitric acid! Great heavens, man, do you know what you have done? Thank God, I cannot be held responsible for the consequences, no matter what may happen!"

"Why," cried his patient, in alarmed surprise, "what's the matter?"

"Matter? Why, man, you have saturated your system with nitroglycerin. That's what's the matter. Don't jump like that! The least shock may make you go off in a twinkling. You must avoid a jar as you would poison. Couldn't you see that the acid and the glycerin would chemically unite and make you explosive? How much glycerin have you taken?"

"About two ounces, I think," was the dismayed answer.

"Is it possible? You are positively dangerous to be at large. You must practice the utmost caution. Don't ride on the cars; the least concussion might be fatal. You must get rubber soles put on your shoes immediately. Be careful not to jump, even off a doorstep. Of course, you must not shoot, or expose yourself in any way to shocks or explosions of any kind. Even the snapping of a cap might make you vanish in a second, and there would be nothing but a loud report to tell the tale of your disappearance."

"But, doctor," implored the trembling patient, "can your science do nothing for me? Cannot you get this dreadful explosive out of my system?"

"Possibly I might render it less dangerous, at least," responded the doctor, thoughtfully. "It's a case without precedent, but I'll do what I can for you. The first step will be to change the nitroglycerin into dynamite. That, you know, is far less apt to explode by concussion. In fact, it is nothing more than nitroglycerin held in a solid form by an absorbent substance. I shall prescribe for you a little infusorial earth, to be taken three times a day. That will gradually draw out the nitroglycerin from your circulation, change it into dynamite, and in the course of a few weeks you may be safe."

This assurance alleviated the fears of Mr. Cutter to some extent, but he repaired to the Red Dog druggist in an anxious frame of mind. The rumbling of a passing dray filled him with apprehension, and he made a long detour to avoid passing a new building where the carpenters were still busy with their hammers. His alarm was excited when the druggist began to pound up something in a mortar, and so his critical condition was explained to the pharmacist. Mr. Cutter went home by a devious route in order that he might not be exposed to any jar from the anvils of a blacksmith shop which he was accustomed to pass every day.

On the evening of the same day Dr. Silex attended a meeting of the Red Dog Medical society. It was a private gathering, as usual, and sounds of unwonted hilarity were heard before the assemblage dispersed.

No one knew how the strange condition of Mr. Cutter became known, but the next day it was the talk of Red Dog. He noticed that everybody avoided him as though he were a pestilence, and even the clerks in his office shuddered whenever they had occasion to be near him. He cautioned them against sudden closing of the doors of the huge safe that contained the public moneys, and with his own hands he pinned upon the outer door of the office a placard reading: "Do not slam."

As the days went by Mr. Cutter became more and more despondent. It was evident, Dr. Silex assured him, that the nitroglycerin was as yet imperfectly converted into dynamite. He began taking long and solitary walks over the hills near the town of Red Dog, partly to distract his mind and partly to escape the dangers incident to human companionship to a man who was loaded with nitroglycerin.

One afternoon he was walking over the hill in which the Ground Hog Quartz Mining company was boring a tunnel. There can be no doubt about the fact that Mr. Cutter was seen walking over the brow of the hill just before a blast was fired in the depths below. It was only a "shot," and did nothing to disturb the surface of the hill, although, of course, much rock was loosened in the tunnel. But the sound of the blast in the tunnel was followed by a peculiar muffled detonation from the hill. It was noticed particularly at the time, because the miners feared that some of the blast had been "slow in going off."

But the next day it was found that Mr. Cutter was missing. The clerks in his office waited vainly for him to appear and open the vault, of which he alone knew the combination. Days passed, and he did not come. He never came.

It is still whispered in the town of Red Dog that at the next meeting of the Calaveras County Medical society Dr. Silex read an elaborate technical therapeutical and pharmaceutical paper which indicated so dreadful an ending to Thomas Cutter that men yet speak of it with bated breath. It was only a theory, for there was nothing palpable to support it upon. There was no tangible evidence. There were no remains. Yet Dr. Silex's theory was believed.

Whether it was true or false, Thomas Cutter was never again seen in the flesh, living or dead. He had vanished into the void.—San Francisco Argonaut.

—The Magna Charta was written with ordinary black ink on very heavy parchment. It is a curious fact, as stated by an eminent English historian, that of all the barons who signed that most important document, not one could write other than his signature, and only two were able to write even that.

HAYWARD MUST HANG.

The Supreme Court Refuses to Grant Him a New Trial.

When Informed of the Decision Hayward Said It Was What He Expected—He Must Now Pay Full Penalty for His Crime.

Minneapolis, Nov. 20.—This morning the long looked for decision in the Hayward murder case was filed with the clerk of the supreme court, the lengthy document bearing the signature of Judge Thomas Canty.

The action of the lower court is affirmed in every particular, and there is no appeal from this decision. There are ten days in which to ask for a rehearing, which will most certainly be denied, and it is practically assured that upon Dec. 6, or at the latest, Friday, Dec. 13, Hayward will hang.

Upon the insanity point, upon which the attorneys for Hayward hung their faith, the court decided as follows:

After a witness for the state had testified at considerable length and was to all appearances perfectly sane and rational, the defense objected to his competency on the ground that he was insane, but made no offer to prove that he was.

Held, under all the circumstances, it was not error for the judge to assert that he did not see that the witness was at that time any more insane than the attorney was.

When insanity of a permanent type is once shown it is presumed to continue until it appears that the person has again become sane. But this presumption only applies to habitual insanity which has continued so long as to raise a presumption that it is permanent. Temporary insanity or temporary delusion or aberration are not presumed to continue, and evidence of the same standing alone is not evidence that the person is insane at a later period.

Evidence of insanity of a person's ancestors and relatives is not alone competent or sufficient to prove that he is insane, and such evidence can only be used to corroborate further evidence of his insanity.

Whether when insanity is a direct issue in the case evidence of prior temporary delusion or mental aberration, and evidence of insanity of ancestors and relatives, is together sufficient without more to go to the jury as evidence of the person's insanity at a later period. Query.

But held such evidence without more is not sufficient to go to the jury when insanity is merely a collateral issue as where an attempt is made to impeach the competency or credibility of a witness by proving that he is insane.

Distinction between insanity as a direct issue and as a collateral issue noted.

When an attempt is thus made to impeach the credibility of a witness the court may in its discretion refuse to receive evidence of the insanity of his ancestors and evidence of his prior temporary delusion and aberration until some other evidence is first given of his insanity at time of the transaction testified to at the time of the trial. Order affirmed.

Attorney Frank Nye felt vindicated as he stood at the telephone and listened to the words which came to him over the 'phone, to the effect that the Hayward decision had been affirmed. The message came through the sheriff's office, which had been informed through the office of the attorney general in St. Paul. As soon as he had been told, Nye immediately called up the attorney general's office and the report was verified. He immediately went to the sheriff's office, where he found Phil McGaarden. The sheriff left for Omaha last night, and as soon as Phil had dropped him a message regarding the decision, he put on his coat and hat and started with Deputy Sheriff Algate Anderson for the jail, to take the news to Hayward, who as yet had not been informed of the result.

When the jail was reached, Jailor West and Turnkey Sandberg were taken to one side and held a hurried consultation in the old Barrett room.

"We'll have to change his quarters," said Megaarden. "Anderson, as soon as he is taken out of his cell I want you to go in and make an examination. Take all the time you want and make it thorough. Don't miss a place and probe everything."

"All right," said he to Phil after their talk, "let me go now." And with that he disappeared inside the jail.

Proceeding immediately to Harry's cell, the jailer said: "Well, Harry, it's gone against you. The supreme court has refused you a new trial."

Harry turned several shades paler as he rose to receive his death message. "Well," said he slowly, "I've been expecting it."

That was all his comment. "There are some men down stairs who want to see you," said West, and with that Harry started down the steps from the bath room. There he found Deputy Anderson waiting him with clean and new underwear, a clean blue and white striped shirt, very different from the immaculate shirts he was wont to wear. His old clothes were quickly taken off, Harry asking those in the bath room to vacate while he made the change. The water for his bath was not hot, and while it was heating Dr. Weston, city physician, waited to make the final examination after his bath should be taken. In the meantime ex-Turnkey Wheeler went through the new cell in the same tier on the second floor that he is to occupy till the execution.

The governor has left the date of the execution in the hands of Frank Nye, and Dec. 6 is announced as the time.

In searching Hayward's cell, Deputy Algate Anderson and his assistants found the missing $500 bill, which Harry had accused Mike Kierce of appropriating for his own uses, and in addition $300 which was not accounted for. This makes in all $3,350 which the officers have found on Harry's person or in his cell.

The $300 was found in one of the slats of the bed where Harry has been sleeping. In the heel of one of his shoes on the inside a small square had been cut out, and in the cavity the missing $500 was found.

BLOWS A BLIZZARD.

Wind, Snow, Sleet and Rain Throughout the West—Storms in Europe.

Chicago, Nov. 26.—The heaviest November snowstorm Chicago has experienced in recent years began at a late hour Sunday night and continued intermittingly throughout Monday and Monday night. At nine o'clock Monday evening the weather bureau reported the total fall at six inches. The snow was very heavy and moist and played havoc with the wires of the telegraph and telephone companies. All trains were from half an hour to three hours late. Lake Michigan bears the brunt of the storm, but notwithstanding the display of the danger signal several steamers sailed. Street car traffic, including horse, cable and electric lines, was greatly impeded throughout the day.

Milwaukee, Nov. 26.—A snowstorm—a regular blizzard—swept over the city Monday night and is now raging. Street car traffic is stopped on nearly all the lines, and midwinter scenes are the rule.

Sioux City, Ia., Nov. 26.—Nearly four inches of snow have fallen here within 24 hours, and in some places the drifts are so deep as to seriously interfere with street railway traffic.

Kansas City, Mo., Nov. 26.—Kansas City awoke Monday morning to find a half inch of snow as a gloss to the covering of ice on the ground, caused by the sleetstorm of Sunday. The asphalt streets were as slippery as skating ponds and traffic and travel were generally impeded. At noon snow began falling in earnest and was driven by a gale from the north. It continued to fall all afternoon and up to a late hour at night. The storm is general all over Kansas and Oklahoma. Reports from the former indicate a regular blizzard at Emporia and west and south from that point.

Guthrie, O. T., reports a remarkable snowstorm, a thing heretofore unknown at this season in that country.

Denison, Tex., Nov. 26.—A brisk norther arrived here about noon Monday and the thermometer is below the freezing point. All afternoon a light snow fell, which melted rapidly. Reports from the Indian territory show that the storm was general over the Choctaw and Chickasaw nations. The Red river belt was also visited by snow, being much heavier in the pan-handle. In northern Texas rain was general, which is greatly welcomed by stock feeders.

Omaha, Neb., Nov. 26.—Trains on all the roads reaching Omaha Monday were from one to five hours late on account of the snowstorm. From five to ten inches of snow covered Nebraska Monday. All the country within 100 mines of Omaha has experienced the same storm, while from Chadron and along the lower line between the report tells of a heavy fall of snow, continuing for at least 12 hours.

Evansville, Ind., Nov. 26.—Rain has been falling steadily since last Thursday night and the river is just beginning to show the results. All summer there has been a sand bar in front of the city and all boats have been laid up for several months. There is now two feet shown on the gauge, and the river is rising an inch an hour, with a heavy rise coming from above. The rain is still falling steadily and the steamboat owners will get their boats down from Green river this week.

Yarmouth, Nov. 26.—The Norwegian bark Isbaaden, Capt. Isaksen, has been wrecked off this port during the gale and 12 of the crew have been drowned.

Rome, Nov. 26.—Heavy snowstorms are prevailing throughout the provinces of Piedmont and Liguria. Railway traffic is completely blocked and trains are embedded in huge snow drifts.

COST FIVE LIVES.

Big Building in Chicago Burns—Firemen Buried by Falling Walls.

Chicago, Nov. 23.—A fire, disastrous to life and property, swept through the dry goods and woolen exchange Friday morning, a terrible sequel to the Canal street conflagration Thursday night, which by a curious coincidence were separated only by the river and almost opposite each other. Five firemen, while in the active discharge of their duty, under orders and totally unconscious of danger, were carried through a floor and buried under tons of wreckage from the five floors above. Four of the men lie dead and the fifth was not seriously injured. One girl fell from a window and received injuries from which she died. A dozen other men, women and girls were hurt or overcome by smoke and many were rescued from imminent death. The property loss to the building at 215-217 Van Buren street and 276-278 Franklin street and contents is estimated at $400,000.

The dead are:

Patrick J. O'Donnell, lieutenant of engine company No. 2, 2840 Wallace street.

Lynching in Kentucky.

Paducah, Ky., Nov. 26.—The news of a lynching near Oaks, Marshall county, last Saturday reached the city Monday. A negro tramp was caught trying to wreck a train near Calvert City Saturday and he was pursued by a mob into the woods. He was overtaken and riddled with bullets and then hanged to a tree. The locality is surrounded with a wilderness and the people countenance no lawlessness from strangers. The name of the negro is unknown.

Mechanic's Lien Law Unconstitutional.

Toledo, O., Nov. 26.—The mechanics' lien law, which cut such a figure in the last Ohio legislature and regarding the passage of which ex-Gov. Campbell made his sensational bribery charges during the recent campaign, has been declared practically unconstitutional by Judges Sevey, Price and Day, of the Third district of Ohio, in a Putnam county case.

Will Pray for Ingersoll.

Cleveland, O., Nov. 26.—Arrangements have been completed by which 3,000 Christian Endeavorers are to unitedly pray for Ingersoll's conversion.

Grace before Meat.

There's a difference between being full of thanksgiving, and being full of Thanksgiving dainties. But the one thing generally leads to the other. How can it be helped when the turkey is so good, and the pie so enticing? Here's a helpful hint. For that full feeling after Thanksgiving — take a pill. Not any pill, mind you. There are pills that won't help you. Take the pill that will. It's known as Ayer's Pill — and it's perfect. It is sugar-coated, pleasant to the palate, and its operation, like that of nature, is effective and without violence. Scott's Emulsion makes cod-liver oil taking next thing to a pleasure. You hardly taste it. The stomach knows nothing about it—it does not trouble you there. You feel it first in the strength that it brings: it shows in the color of the cheek, the rounding of the angles, the smoothing of the wrinkles.

It is cod-liver oil digested for you, slipping as easily into the blood and losing itself there as rain-drops lose themselves in the ocean.

What a satisfactory thing this is—to hide the odious taste of cod-liver oil, evade the tax on the stomach, take health by surprise.

There is no secret of what it is made of—the fish-fat taste is lost, but nothing is lost but the taste.

DELANO DIARY

—Subscribe for the GAZETTE.

—The Thanksgiving ball at the City Hall, Wednesday night, was largely attended and was quite a success.

—A movement is on foot to have a literary this winter. Let all interested be present at the first meeting and assist in organizing it.

—A few friends gathered at the M. E. Manse, and surprised the pastor, J. L. Farber, ann family, with a pound party, Wednesday evening.

—William Gent and son Della and Pat Greer, of Greenwood, arrived last Sunday from out west, with eight deer. Pat claims to have killed a buck which weighed 241 pounds.

—Dedication services will be held in the new Presbyterian church on Sunday, Dec. 1. The dedication was postponed from last Sunday, so that the chairs might be put into position. Things are now all ready.

—On Sunday evening Rev. J. L. Farber preached to his usually good-sized audience from the text found in part of the 6th verse, chapter IV, of Nehemiah, "So built we the wall; * * for the people had a mind to work." The preacher compared the Church of Jesus Christ to the building of the walls of Jerusalem. A leader was found necessary; and it was essential, also, that the people have a mind to work.

—A meeting was held at the City Hall, last Friday afternoon, to make arrangement for holding an entertainment just before Christmas, to procure funds to present to Delano's deserving poor. The undertaking is a laudable one and deserves the hearty co-operation of everybody. If people who have abundance provisions and little money to spare would contribute of their plenty; it could be taken care of by the committee, and those in kneed supplied. Wheat can be exchanged for flour, at the mill; potatoes, onions, beans, wood, anything is acceptable. An admission fee will be charged at the door.

The laws governing the practicing of midwifery are not much observed in this county. Several old ladies below the average of intelligence are allowed, unmolested, to follow the occupation. The law requiring a license to act in this capacity should either be lived up to or abolished. As things are intelligent and conscieucious persons, having no license keep away, while those of opposite characters are called upon to take the responsibilities assumed with fear and trembling by many of the most eminent accoucheurs in the land. Many lives are, undoubtedly, sacrificed yearly, upon this altar of ignorance. Of course in emergency cases the means at band must be made use of. But such cases deserve the best attention obtainable.

—George P. Schaffer did quite a business in poultry for Thanksgiving, not only in sales, but sent turkeys to several deserving families.

—The pupils of the Montrose public school gave an entertainment at the school house at that place, Wednesday afternoon. The program was a good one, consisting of songs and recitations relating to Thanksgiving.

Personals.

Miss Ellen Clark visited the Cities Wednesday.

I. Gutzwiller, Jr., took a trip to Twincite, on Tuesday.

Mr. M McCormic of Maple Plain was a Delano visitor Wednesday.

Arthur E. Powell went to Montrose, to see the folks, Tuesday.

Rev. and Mrs. Tabor Davies visited Minneapolis on Wednesday.

Dr. P. O'Hair, of Waverly, made Delano a visit Tuesday morning.

William Stacy and wife transacted business in Delano on Wednesday.

E. W. Ferrell, of Montrose, patronized the Delano Roller Mills Wednesday.

C. J. Buckley and family spent Thanksgiving Day among Delano friends.

John Cunningham, of Greenwood, was a Delano visitor Thanksgiving Day.

Sherman Stacy and wife, of Montrose, did business in Delano, Wednesday.

Vernie Wilder, came up from the "U" to spend Thanksgiving with the folks.

Joseph P. Berneck, returned Sunday from the west where he has been working.

Mrs. A. F. Corey, returned Monday morning from a visit to the West, a short distance.

County Commissioner Bugbee and wife, of Rockford, were doing business in Delano, Tuesday.

Martin Conzet and wife, of Greenwood, took Thanksgiving turkey with their son Charles M. and family here.

A. R. Chaffee, a former resident of Independence, arived in town Tuesday, from Illinois, where he has been living for a couple of years.

Among Our Exchanges.

An impression prevails among a number of our readers that the Times was about to be removed from Clear Lake. To such we would say that the paper is still published at the old stand and will continue to be so, reports to the contrary notwithstanding. Sherburne County Times,

A paper on "Death" was read at the Hennepin Avenue M. E. Church this morning by Rev. J. R. Davies, of Brooklyn Center, in which he combatted the old Wesleyan doctrine that death is the result of sin. The paper stirred up a lively discussion among adherents of the old school of Methodist thought.—Minneapolis Tribune.

Sick of its Party Corruption.

Anoka Union (Rep.)

Oh, for the good old days of Pillsbury and McGill, when the Republican state central committee expended less than a thousand dollars in the campaigns, and didn't need anymore. Last year it cost the candidate for the most unimportant office on the state ticket twice that sum.—St. Cloud Times.

November Literary Note.

A complete and immediate revolution of transportation methods, involving a reduction of freight charges on grain from the west to New York of from 50 to 60 per cent., is what is predicted in the November Cosmopolitan. The plan proposes using light and inexpensive corrugated iron cylinders, hung on a slight rail supported on poles from a cross-arm—the whole system involving an expense of not more than fifteen hundred dollars a mile for construction. The rolling stock is equally simple and comparatively inexpensive. Continuous lines of cylinders, moving with no interval to speak of, would carry more grain in a day than a quadruple track railway. This would constitute a sort of grain-pipe line. The Cosmopolitan also points out the probable abolition of street-cars before the coming horseless carriage, which can be operated by a boy on asphalt pavements at a total expense for labor, oil, and interest, of not more than one dollar a day.

THE THREE WISHES.

Three girls sat idly on the beach;
One like a lilie tall and fair.
One brilliant with her raven hair,
One sweet and shy of speech.

"I wish for fame," the lily said,
"And I for wealth and courtly life,"
Then gently spoke the third: "As wife,
I ask for love instead."

Years passed. Again beside the sea,
Three women sat with whitening hair,
Still graceful, lovable, and fair,
And told their destiny.

"Fame is not all," the lily sighed.
"Wealth futile if the heart be dead."
"I have been loved," one sweetly said,
"And I am satisfied."

SARAH K. BOLTON.

County Cullings.

District Court convenes at Buffalo, Monday, Dec. 2.

S. M. Owens will speak at the Populist convention, at Waverly, at 2 P. M. Dec. 7; so says the Tribune.

The American Thanksgiving Day is one of our National holidays that has a warm place in the hearts of our countrymen and is usually faithfully observed and enjoyed by all.

It is just bearly possible there will be a resignation and an election of a Senator for the 38th district next fall. As it is already hinted that the present incumbent has scented higher game.

High School Inspector Geo. B. Aiton, of Minneapolis, made the Delano Schools a visit on Tuesday. He speaks very highly of our school, and seems to think our scholars are on the road to lives of usefulness and honor. Mr. A. is a keen observer, and a very zealous advocate of education for all.

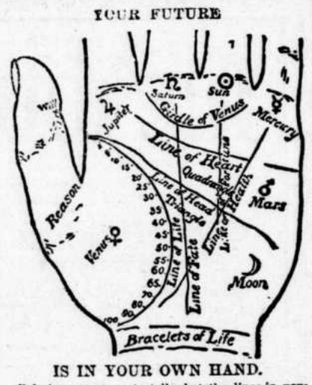
The Annandale Post claims to have been already conversant with "a lot of stuff about politics" found in last weeks GAZETTE; and after thanking us for our kindness says "but fail to see any connection between the pictures and politics—unless the former are intended to illustrate the "mud slinging" so frequently connected with the latter." Why, even the Eagle could see a connection as plain as O'Leary's shoes.

County politics are still a simmering. Every party appears to have its mess of pottage ready to trade for the birthright of some other. It looks a good deal as if it would be a kind of a shake up the bag and see who comes out first. Unless honest voters, with party principles, look to it there will, doubtless be the usual amount of bitter pills, for every voter in Wright County to take. So long as party leaders connive and dicker with each other, so long must the rank and file be dissatisfied. Honesty is the best policy; even in politics.

The political string seems to be getting tied together from the White House at Washington on down to our county seat, Buffalo, so far as our Republican friends are particularly concerned. There is Mc'Kinley for protection and the Presidency; Merriam for gold money and the tail of the ticket; Clough has a cinch on the governorship; Bob Dunn has been to Buffalo and is pronounced a good State Auditor; Berg has superceded the State expert printer, Stevens, by the appointment of C. C, Whitney, and with the craft has raised himself a few per cents; Senator A. Y. Eaton, always a stanch Merriam man, and hailing from Ohio, Mc'Kinley's, is solid for Congressman, as against the full silverite, Towne.

The smaller offices dont seem to have cropped out quite so clearly, just yet; but it looks like there would be a few Democrats in the deal, unless the party keeps its eyes open.

YOUR FUTURE



IS IN YOUR OWN HAND.

Palmistry assumes to tell what the lines in your hand indicate. It will amuse you, if nothing more. The above diagram almost explains itself. The length of the LINE OF LIFE indicates probable age to which you will live. Each BRACELET gives you thirty years. Well-marked LINE OF HEAD denotes brain power; clear LINE OF FORTUNE, fame or riches. Both combined mean success in life; but you must keep up with modern ideas to win it. You will find plenty of these in Demorest's Family Magazine, so attractively presented that every member of the family is entertained. It is a dozen magazines in one. A CLEAR LINE OF HEART bespeaks tenderness; a straight LINE OF FATE, peaceful life; the reverse if crooked. A well-defined LINE OF HEALTH spares you doctors' bills; so will the health hints in Demorest's. No other magazine publishes so many. Will interest the home circle. You will be subject to extremes of high spirits or despondency if you have the GIRDLE OF VENUS well marked. Keep up your spirits by having Demorest's Magazine to read. By subscribing to it for 1896 you will receive a gallery of exquisite works of art of great value, besides the superb premium picture, 17x21 inches, "I'm a Daisy!" which is almost a real baby, and equal to the original oil painting which cost $300; and you will have a magazine that cannot be equaled by any in the world for its beautiful illustrations and subject matter, that will keep you posted on all the topics of the day, and all the fads, and different items of interest about the household, besides furnishing interesting reading matter, both grave and gay, for the whole family; and while Demorest's is not a fashion magazine, its fashion pages are perfect, and you get with it, free of cost, all the patterns you wish to use during the year, and in any size you choose. Send in your subscription at once, only $2.00, and you will really get over $25.00 in value. Address the publisher, W. Jennings Demorest, 15 East 14th St., New York. If you are unacquainted with the Magazine, send for a specimen copy. A large QUADRANGLE means honesty; a large TRIANGLE, generosity; long FIRST DIVISION OF THUMB, strong will; LONG SECOND DIVISION, reasoning faculty. The MOUNT OF JUPITER betokens ambition; that of SATURN, prudence; the SUN, love of splendor; MARS, courage; MOON, imagination; VENUS, love of pleasure; and MERCURY, intelligence. Take our advice as above and you will be sure to possess the last and most valuable quality.

The thumb is an unfailing index of character. The Square Type indicates a strong will, great energy and firmness. Closely allied is the Spatulated Type, the thumb of those of advanced ideas and business ability. Both of these types belong to the busy man or woman; and Demorest's Family Magazine prepares especially for such persons a whole volume of new ideas, condensed in a small space, so that the record of the whole world's work for a month may be read in half an hour. The Conical Type indicates refinement, culture, and a love of music, poetry, and fiction. A person with this type of thumb will thoroughly enjoy the literary attractions of Demorest's Magazine. The Artistic Type indicates a love of beauty and art, which will find rare pleasure in the magnificent oil-picture of roses, 16½ x 24 inches, reproduced from the original painting by De Longpré, the most celebrated of living flower-painters, which will be given to every subscriber to Demorest's Magazine for 1895. The cost of this superb work of art was $350.00; and the reproduction cannot be distinguished from the original. Besides this, an exquisite oil or water-color picture is published in each number of the Magazine, and the articles are so profusely and superbly illustrated that the Magazine is, in reality, a portfolio of art works of the highest order. The Philosophic Type is the thumb of the thinker and inventor of ideas, who will be deeply interested in those developed monthly in Demorest's Magazine, in every one of its numerous departments, which cover the entire artistic and scientific field, chronicling every fact, fancy, and fad of the day. Demorest's is simply a perfect Family Magazine, and was long ago crowned Queen of the Monthlies. Send in your subscription; it will cost only $2.00, and you will have a dozen Magazines in one. Address W. JENNINGS DEMOREST, Publisher, 15 East 14th Street, New York. Though not a fashion magazine, its perfect fashion pages, and its articles on family and domestic matters, will be of superlative interest to those possessing the Feminine Type of Thumb, which indicates in its small size, slenderness, soft nail, and smooth, rounded tip, those traits which belong essentially to the other sex, every one of whom should subscribe to Demorest's Magazine. If you are unacquainted with its merits, send for a specimen copy often, and it will admit that seeing these THUMBS has put a in the way of saving money by finding in one agazine everything to satisfy the literary wants of e whole family.

PLEASANTRIES.

He criticised her puddings, and found fault with her cake;
He wished she'd make such biscuit as his mother used to make.
She didn't wash her dishes, and she didn't make a stew,
Nor even mend his stockings, as his mother used to do.
His mother had six children, but by night her work was done;
His wife seemed drudging always, yet she only had the one.
His mother was always well dressed, his wife would be so too,
If she would only manage as his mother used to do.
Ah, well! She was not perfect, though she tried to do her best,
Until at length she thought her time had come to have a rest;
So, when one day he went the same old rigmarole all through,
She turned and boxed his ears, just as his mother used to do.
—New York Evening Sun.

DAVID B HILL is evidently looking for the Nomination of President, and holding himself in readiness to accept it; whether it be tendered on a gold or silver salver.

MAJOR BALDWIN is reported as happy over having succeeded in inducing Secretary Smith to accept his recommendation for the opening up to settlement the agricultural lands on Red Lake Reservation.

EVEN though the Republicans have control of Congress, now in session, and have placed Tom Reed in the Speakers chair again' the price of farm products dont appear to get any higher, and money continues scarce and hard to get hold of, and harder to hang on to.

THE vacancy on the Supreme Court bench, occasioned by the death of Howell P. Jackson, has been filled by the appointment of Rufus W. Peckham of New York, a brother of Wheeler Peckham, whose nomination the Senate refused to confirm on account of Senator Hill's objection.

QUITE a commotion was produced in St. Paul courts by the refusal of Editor Paradis, of the Midway News, to answer questions asked before the Grand Jury. It seems a friend of his was about to be indicted for selling liquors without a license, and Mr. P. prefered to go to jail than to give away his friend. After a few hours in jail and a few more at liberty Mr. P. returned and answered "yes" when he was asked if he had bought liquors within certain times of the druggist.

IT seems the Minneapolis Millers have recently held a meeting and resolved to boycot the E. P. Allis Co. of Milwaukee, because that firm in entering into competition with them "by the indiscriminate building of new mills through the Northwest. This is on a par with the recent Minneapolis boycott against city merchants handling flour made in country mills. Things are coming to a pretty pass when the great mills under the English control in Minneapolis can say to people that they must buy flour made at our mills; and to the farmer, you must take what you can get for your wheat and send it to OUR mills to be ground. WE GUESS THIS WONT LAST LONG!

NO 1. VOL. 1, of the Maple Lake messenger arrived on our exchange table last Saturday. It is edited by Frank T. Hamilton, at the thriving village of Maple Lake, every Thursday. The first number is dated Thursday November 28. This was a fitting expression of thankfulness, by the citizens of that village and vicinity for the bountiful harvests received, and will doubtless be remembered for years as the Thanksgiving Day when Maple Lake saw the first newspaper of her own. The editor in his salutatory expresses his idea of how the paper should be conducted and promises independence in politics. Mr. Hamilton has certainly shown pluck in starting up now, and if he does not meet with success it surely can't be through any fault of his, on that line.

THE Wright County Times editorially says:

"The decision of Judge Kelly in the Great Northern Railroad case will be hailed with delight all over the north west. Public opinion will prevent the state supreme court from reversing it. It would be monstrous to think that the state could so tie its hands that they never could be loosed."

Although the first sentence of this article and the last may be correct, it seems to us in the second sentence, "Public opinion will prevent the state supreme court from reversing it" Mr. French is off his base, so to speak. The supreme court of the state is supposed to decide legal questions according to the laws of the land and not according to public opinion, and should they decide questions in opposition to public opinion the people have their remedy only at the polls.

PRESIDENT CLEVELAND has sent his annual message to Congress. It is quite a lengthy affair He says that France has not yet produced the evidence given at the Walker trial. He leans a little too much to the retaliatory tariff to suit us. The Behring Sea trouble remains too open a question. Meanwhile our seals are being slaughtered. England is being allowed considerable time in which to say whether or not she will submit the Venezuela boundary question to arbitration. It appears to us that the Monroe Doctrine did not provide that England should be allowed from July till December to say what she will do about such things. Spanish authorities are taking too much liberties with American shipping around Cuba. All is being done that can be to relieve Missionaries and other American citizens in Armenia. The financial question is called "a subject of domestic concern more important than any other that can engage our attention, and one at present in such a perplexing and delicate predicament as to require prompt and wise treatment." It is handled at great length. The retirement of Greenbacks and Treasury Notes is advised. "The important question is not the quantity of money received in revenue payments, but the kind of money we maintain and our ability to continue in sound financial conditions." The gold standard is advocated while "free coinage" is spoken of as a menace to the country,

Presidential Aspirant Hill.

As, is well known throughout the length, and breadth of this land David Bennett Hill, of New York, who has been Lieutenant Governor, Governor for two terms, and United States Senator of the Empire state, has, for several years, aspired to the Presidential chair of our land. He has accepted an offer to take the lecture platform, and is visiting several of the principle cities in each of the states, and making a tour of this section, which he has never before seen, ostensibly to accumulate wealth, but really, no doubt, to get acquainted and make himself safe with the leading wire pulling politicians of the party, with ever an eye out for the White House, at Washington. On Wednesday evening he lectured in Minneapolis on Liberty; on Friday evening in St. Paul, his subject was Old Land Marks. To the latter it was our privilege to listen, and by courtesy of Alderman Montgomery, to have a good seat, near the platform, Mr. Hill appeared in the pulpit of the People's Church; in full dress suit, accompanied by Gen. George L Becker, who, in a brief but appropriate speech, introduced the Senator to his audience, which filled the church well, there being few empty seats, notwithstanding the fact that Joe Jefferson was in town and Melba at Minneapolis, at the same time.

Mr. Hill is a medium sized man, not nearly so large as Gen. Becker. He is bald headed, fairly good looking, is said to have blue eyes; has a fringe of dark hair, a slight indication of Burnsides, and a moustache; he is about 58 years old and an old bachelor, he wants a western wife; but prefers the presidency. On the platform he might pass for a brother of the noted Taylor brothers, Alf and Bob; of Tenn.

He reads his lectures; but being a good reader, using emphasis and force succeeds in interesting his hearers for a longer time than the average lecturer. His speech is clear and distinct, though he suffered from a severe coryza. He has a happy way of introducing and telling an occasional story. His subject was a good one; his topics well arranged and exhaustively handled. Mr. Hill shows his lawyer training and appears to talk, for a brief period, directly at each individual in the audience, much as Bill Erwin does to a jury. The speaker frequently expressed opinions of his own, boldly taking the responsibility for the impressions they might make on his hearers. The lecture, to us was quite a treat, and we enjoyed it.

Old Land Marks.

On Friday evening last Senator David B. Hill, of New York, lectured in the People's Church, St. Paul. He said he had spoken in the east, in school house,s court houses, city halls and in the Legislative Halls in the Capitol of our country but never before had he spoken in a church.

The subject of his lecture, Old Land Marks, was ably handled. He spoke of the Declaration of Independance, the Constitution of the United States, and the Monroe Doctrine as old land marks that should be preserved.

The speaker said an eastern orator, more noted for the number of his speeches than their correctness, had, in referring to great men to be remembered in history for their deeds, enumerated among others Alexander Hamilton, while he left out Thomas Jefferson; this Mr. Hill objected to. Surely none deserved remembering more than the author of the Declaration of independance.

The Senator said there were other land marks that had served their purpose and should be relegated to the past, among them a set of rules, under which the Senate has been run since the days of Thomds H. Benton and Henry Clay. These rules provide for no way of stopping long winded orators from talking a bill to death if they see fit. This Mr. Hill objects to, and had introduced a bill in the Senate to abolish these rules. The effects of them could be seen in the last Congress on the discussion of the tariff and financial questions.

David favored hard money, coin of the constitution. No paper money. There is a difference between money and currency. He claims money should have intrinsic value, while currency may not have this quality. He would not express himself as favoring either gold or silver, but thought possibly the recent discovery of South African gold fields would solve that question satisfactorily.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

From our Regular Correspondent.
WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 29, 1895.

President Cleveland has completed his annual message to Congress and today that interesting document was submitted to the Cabinent and discussed. Its contents will, of course, remain secret till it goes to Congress, which will probably not be untill next Tuesday, as the session of the House on Monday will be taken up by the election of Speaker and the other officers of that body.

Mr. Reed must be more Czar-like than ever in his rule over the republicans of the House, if he really thinks he can prevent all legislation except that of passing the regular appropriation bills, as those frendly to him and his aspirations for the republican Presidential nomination say he does Other candidates for that nomination have followers in the House who may have something to say about that. In this connection a suggestion has been made, by a business man of prominence, which might be turned to good account by President Cleveland a little later on, if he were disposed to accept it. Although there are a considerable number of republicans in the House who are in favor of sinking partisanship and legislating for the relief of the Treasury, and consequently of the country, they are keeping very quiet now and will speak their minds. It is the idea of the business man before mentioned that if properly managed a compromise could be brought about by which some financial legislation that would be of benefit to the country could be secured. He thinks that if President Cleveland would invite some of these men to a personal conference at which both sides should frankly state their opinions that by each side giving up a little a bill could be drawn that would prevent further bond issues and that would pass both House and Senate and be signed by the President The idea is at least unique.

Representative Downing, the only Illinois democrat who will sit in the present House, and he only got in by a majority of 40 votes, takes a cheerful view of democratic prospects in that state. He says: "I think the friction that has heretofore existed among the democrats of Illinois on the subject of silver will disappear, and that all the factions will be found fighting together in the utmost harmony in 1896. Col. Wm. R. Morrison is the choice of our people for the Presidency, and he will be supported just as stanchly by the free silver men as by the advocates of sound money. The people know and admire him, and he has never disappointed them. His unspotted record is his highest eulogium."

There are many democrats both in and out of Congress, who are in favor of the building of the Nicaragua canal, either directly by the U. S. government or by guaranteeing the bonds of the canal company, but there will not be so many of them if the republicans are to continue their present abuse of the President who appointed a commission to examine the canal and report thereon, as directed by the last Congress, and of the three gentlemen, one army engineer, one naval engineer and one civil engineer, who composed that commission, because its report has shown that the difficulties of building the canal are much greater than the canal company's officials had represented them to be, and because the report estimates the cost to be nearly double what the canal company does. No matter whether a man favors or opposes the idea of government aid in building the canal there is no sense in his objecting to the truth and the whole truth being put before Congress before final action is taken. If the friends of the canal are wise they will try to muzzle those republicans who are making use of abuse instead of arguments.

Sir Julian Pauncefote will be sorry he so forgot himself as to abuse Senator Morgan, in an official paper, for the opinions he expressed on the floor of the Senate concerning those claims for the seizure of illegal sealers in Behring Sea. Senator Morgan is a fighter. Just now he merely says of Sir Julian's abuse; "I think it is a piece of presumptive arrogrance on his part," but just wait until he tackles the subject on the floor of the Senate.

From California.

BY HON. B. F. CHRISTLIEB.

The city of Los Angeles is situated at the inland edge of a plain extending from 20 to 30 miles from the Pacific Ocean. This plain is flanked on the north east by a range of hills and mountains, known here as the coast range or Foot Hills, which opposite the city become modified to hills of considerable heighth The city is built partially on both, the hills and the plain, and it is extending in all directions The Los Angeles River flows through these hills, and along the river and one of its tributaries a narrow valley extends northward to the city of Pasadena, a distance of nine miles. The two cities are connected by three railroads and one electric line. Two of the R R lines and the electric line pass through this narrow valley, and in consequence the latter is occupied by many inhabitants, whose settlements consist of several villages whose limits border on each other and which are gradually becoming superban portions of Los Angeles. The names of some of these villages are, Highland Park, Seco, Garvanea, Lincoln Park &c.

On approaching Pasadena the narrow valley widens and blends with a portion of the San Gabriel Valley on which the site of Pasadena is located. The R. R. and electric lines between Los Angeles and Pasadena are similar to, and render to the public about the same accommodations as the R. R. and electrict lines between the Twin Cities of Minnesota. The electric cars run every 15 minutes, while the R. R run about six trains each way, daily. The fare is the same on all of the lines: twentyfive cents for the round trip.

The San Gabriel Valley lies between the coast range and the Sierra Madre Range of mountains, and at a greater elevation than the plain next the ocean. The Siera Madre Range rises on the north side of the valley to elevations varying with its different peaks, from 5000 to 9000 feet. Mt. Baldy, Wilson's peak and Mt. Lowe belong to this range. The city of Pasadena with its environments extend to the foot of Mt. Lowe and is connected with the latter by R. R. and street car lines which in turn connect with the Mt. Lowe Electric Cable Line, by which combination of lines, tourists are conveyed from the cities of Los Angeles and Pasadena to, and up the steep sides of Mt. Lowe to the Mt. Lowe Hotel and Observatory (an elevation of 3500 feet) and to the summit of Mt. Lowe (an elevation of 8000 feet) The observatory and hotel are two different buildings. The one is conducted in the interest of science and the other is devoted to the entertainment of the tourists. The ascent from the valley to the hotel and observatory, a distance of 3000 feet is made by an incline railway, ascending the mountain at a grade of 60 feet. heighth, to 100 feet of distance, which is similar to ascending a mammoth roof of more than one third pitch. Beyond the hotel to a distance of about four miles the tourist is conveyed up the mountain by electric cars, from where the ascent to the top of Mt. Lowe is completed by donkeys. Your correspondent has not as yet made a visit to Mt. Lowe and its observatory and hotel but obtained the foregoing items from visits of others and consequently there may be many objects of interest about Mt. Lowe omitted in the foregoing allusion to that interesting place.

The weather here through November averaged a lower temperature than in October. There were times that the weather was quite warm, which were offset by periods of what we would call in Minnesota mild fall days in which an overcoat came in very good mornings or evenings in driving. About the 18, 19 and 20 the temperature rose, daily, to 90 degrees and upward, but since a cool r period set in when the highest temperature did not reach 65 and the lowest was below 40. the latter seemed to precede a storm period that extended from Utah across Arizonia, New Mexico, Colorado, Kansas, &c., from the 24th and later, which was attended with extreme cold weather snow, according to newspaper reports of the last few days, this being the 27th. Here there was a slight rain fall in the valleys following snow was observable on the crests of the high mountains at an elevation of about 8000 feet,

Fred Barker drove over from Monticello, Sunday.

Walter and Frances Oakley came up from Macalester College, Wednesday evening and stayed until Sunday.

L. W. Dudley spent Thanksgiving at home.

Charley Walden enjoyed a visit from his cousin a few days last week.

Dr. Lowe, Lew Williams and the Misses Ponsford, McGuire and Bartholemew, attended the I. O. O. F. Ball here Tuesday evening.

E. J Cutts, of Howard, was in town a few days last the guest of C. E. Ookley and family.

Jo. Guthire is at home again for the winter.

Dean Dudley is visiting his parents Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Eudley.

Willie Mc Knight, Stuart Walker, and Charley Fogarty spent Thanksgiving at home.

Miss Helen Knight, who is teaching in Minneapolis spent several days of last week at home.

J. D. Cady visited Delano, Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Cooper, old friends of Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Bunce, spent last Saturday with them.

INDEPENDENCE INCIDENTS.

We are having quite a winter to start in with. Sleighing will be good with two or three inches more snow.

Fred Anderson is buying up quite a good many hogs for the market.

The Odd Fellows of Maple Plain are talking of building a new hall.

W. W. Mills went to Minneapolis Monday, on business.

Wm. Hoisington expects to start for the South in a few days.

Holsington's auction sale was well patronized last Saturday, and all the articles sold brought a fair price.

R. R. Hoisington is moving onto his father's farm this week.

The Armstrong A. C. Church had a business meeting last evening for the purpose of deciding what action to take in regard to a pastor for said church.

There is quite a good deal of cordwood and hay being shipped from Maple Plain and Armstrong.

Thanksgiving and Turkey are over. not Turkey over the waters but the largest of domestic fowls, and now comes the hog, not Vanderbilt and Rothchilds but the quadruped that the Devil went into and they drowned in the depths of the sea. Some of the farmers are now killing for their own use, but are not anxious to sell at present prices.

John Nelson has just returned from Mo., does not like the weather as well as in Minnesota.

Hard times are still at the threshold and will be likely to remain there for sometime to come.

Some of the gold worshipers through ignorance or for a selfish motive try to make the people believe that silver dollars are not a legal tender. In 1878 silver was remonetized; nevertheless President Hayes vetoed the bill, but Congress passed it over his head. And silver dollars are now a legal tender except when there is a contract to the contrary. J. H. McGARY.

WHAT YOUR THUMB TELLS.
Square Type.

The thumb is an unfailing index of character. The Square Type indicates a strong will, great energy and firmness. Closely allied is the Spatulated Type, the thumb of those of advanced ideas and business ability. Both of these types belong to the busy man or woman; and Demorest's Family Ma. azine prepares especially for such persons a whole volume of new ideas, condensed in a small space, so that the cond of the whole world's work for a month may be read in half an hour. The Conical Type indicates refinement, culture, and a love of music, poetry, and fiction. A person with this type of thumb will thoroughly enjoy the literary attractions of Demorest's Magazine. The Artistic Type indicates a love of beauty and art, which will find rare pleasure in the magnificent oil-picture of roses, 16½ x 24 inches, reproduced from the original painting by De Longpre, the most celebrated of living flower-painters, which will be given to every subscriber to Demorest's Magazine for 1896. The cost of this superb work of art was $350.00; and the reproduction cannot be distinguished from the original. Besides this, an exquisite oil or water-color picture is published in each number of the Magazine, and the articles are so prefusely and superbly illustrated that the Magazine is, in reality, a portfolio of art works of the highest order. The Philosophic Type is the thumb of the thinker and inventor of ideas, who will be deeply interested in those developed monthly in Demorest's Magazine. In every one of its numerous departments, which cover the entire artistic and scientific field, chronicling every fact, fancy, and fad of the day. Demorest's is simply a perfect Family Magazine, and was long ago crowned Queen of the Monthlies. Send in your subscription; it will cost only $2.00, and you will have a dozen Magazines in one. Address W. JENNINGS DEMOREST, Publisher, 15 East 14th Street, New York. Though not a fashion magazine, its perfect fashion pages, and its articles on family and domestic matters, will be of superlative interest to those possessing the Feminine Type of Thumb, which is later in its small size, slenderness, soft tail, and smooth, rounded tip, those traits which belong essentially to the other sex, every one of whom should subscribe to Demorest's Magazine. If you are unacquainted with its merits, send for a specimen copy (free), and you will admit that seeing these THUMBS has put you in the way of saving money by finding in one magazine everything to satisfy the literary wants of a whole family.

A SMALL planet, the tenth discovered this year and the 408th in the list, was recently discovered by Prof. Max Wolf, of Heidelberg.

TWENTYmillions of meteors are said to fall upon the earth every day, their aggregate weight amounting to something like two tons.

RHODE ISLAND is shown by a recent census bulletin to have 10,000 more women than men, and a woman suffrage movement is very aggressive.

IN case of a war Uncle Sam has a pretty long line of sea coast to guard. The facts are, the enemy would probably be allowed to land! Then Uncle Sam's boys would proceed to make them permanent citizens.

SHOES are now made of lace—the thick guipure description—very dainty and yet strong. Good leather shoes and boots are ventilated in such a manner as not to expose the foot to wet or damp. This is an excellent move, as thick leather is apt to heat the foot unduly, causing discomfort to the wearer.

TO ASK the legislatures of the land to pass a law closing the factories and the shops on election day, to make it a punishable offense for business men to keep their offices and places of business open on that day, to cause the wheels and machinery of industry to stop on that day, is a suggestion made by political and patriotic men in Chicago.

IN a recent lecture on the progress of the telephone in Germany, State Secretary Dr. Stephan said that the number of towns joined by telephone has now reached 434, with 109,960 subscribers. This year telephonic communication with Vienna and Copenhagen was opened. The former line is 418 miles in length, the other about 500 miles, with 18 miles of submarine cable.

A SPANISH gentleman of prominence, lately visiting in Philadelphia, in conversation with an American formerly occupying a diplomatic position, said that Spain, being greatly in need of money, had been negotiating with England for the sale of Cuba, and had received assurances that if the island could be delivered without trouble with the United States the sale could be effected.

THREE years ago Prof. J. J. McCook, a writer on social questions, estimated, after a careful study of statistics, that there were 45,545 tramps in the United States, and that their direct annual cost to the country was $9,000,000. He now states that in January, 1895, the number of tramps had increased to 85,768, and their annual cost to the country $17,000,000, not counting the loss sustained by their failure to produce anything.

JUDGE RINER, of the United States circuit court at Cheyenne, has decided that the treaty with the Bannock Indians, giving them the right to hunt on the unoccupied government lands in Wyoming, is of full force and effect and is superior to the game laws of the state. Secretary of the Interior Smith in his annual report commends the peaceful course of the Indians at Jackson Hole under circumstances so extremely aggravating on the part of the whites.

THE whaling season now closed has been the worst ever experienced by the arctic fleet. The total catch was 26 whales, the smallest in a number of years, and compared with the number of vessels in the fleet the smallest ever known. The steam whaler Orca caught only one whale, and was out the whole season. Only 40,000 pounds of whalebone was secured, and the price of the article is expected to double before the sale of this year's product begins. At present it sells for $2.75 a pound.

RETURNS from the internal revenue office show a rather astonishing state of affairs with regard to the popularity of playing cards and cigarettes in the United States. Last year cards produced a revenue of $382,402.50, which was derived from the sale of 38,240,250 packs, or a pack apiece for more than half the men, women and babies in the country. The tax on cigarettes netted $1,666,923 during the year, an increase of $74,511 over last year. The total number of cigarettes taxed was 3,328,477,677, or over half a hundred for every man, woman and child in the country.

A FOREIGN nobleman who advertises in a New York paper makes an announcement which should afford much satisfaction to those American citizens who have a hankering for title. The advertiser assures the American public that owing to his intimate relations with several foreign courts he will be able to secure, for a money consideration, titles for all who have wealth enough to pay for them. How this will simplify matters! Titles can now be bought without having to purchase an expensive son-in-law at the same time. This news should be spread far and wide.

THE South Carolina constitutional convention adopted drastic measures to put an end to lynchings in the state. It passed an amendment providing that any officer who permits a prisoner under his care to be lynched shall be removed from office and be ineligible to holding office in the state. The amendment further provides that in all cases of lynching where death ensues the county where the lynching takes place shall, without regard to the conduct of the officer, be liable to exemplary damages of not less than $2,000 to the legal representative of the person lynched.

CAUSE AND CURE OF BOND ISSUES.

Treasury Notes Should Be Retired—Evils Threatened by Free Coinage—Neutrality with Reference to Cuban Revolt—Armenian Outrages.

Washington, Dec. 3.—The following is President Cleveland's annual message to congress:

TO THE CONGRESS OF THE UNITED STATES: The present assemblage of the legislative branch of our government occurs at a time when the interests of our people and the needs of the country give especial prominence to the condition of our foreign relations and the exigencies of our national finances. The reports of the needs of the several administrative departments of the government fully and plainly exhibit what has been accomplished within the scope of their respective duties, and present such recommendations for the the betterment of our country's condition as patriotic and intelligent labor and observation suggests.

I therefore deem my executive duty adequately performed at this time by presenting to congress the important phases of our situation as related to our intercourse with foreign nations, and a statement of the financial problems which confront us, omitting, except as they are related to these topics, any reference to departmental operations.

FOREIGN RELATIONS.

Neutrality with Reference to Cuba—Armenian Outrages—Venezuelan Dispute.

By amendatory tariff legislation in January last the Argentine Republic, recognizing the value of the large market opened to the free importation of its wool under our last tariff act, has admitted certain products of the United States to entry at reduced duties

Decided in Brazil's Favor.

The missions boundary dispute between the Argentine Republic and Brazil, referred to the president of the United States as arbitrator during the term of my predecessor, and which was submitted to me for determination, resulted in an award in favor of Brazil upon the historical and documentary evidence.

Specie Resumption by Chili.

The resumption of specie payments by Chili is a step of great interest and importance, both in its direct consequences upon her own welfare and as convincing the ascendency of sound financial principles in one of the most influential of the South American republics.

Serious Domestic Condition in China.

Either as a result of a weak control by the central government over the provincial administrations, following a diminution of traditional governmental authority under the stress of an overwhelming national disaster, or as a manifestation upon good opportunity of the aversion of the Chinese population to all foreign ways and undertakings, there have occurred in widely-separated provinces of China serious outbreaks of the old fanatical spirit against foreigners, which, unchecked by the local authorities, if not actually connived at by them, have culminated in mob attacks on foreign missionary stations, causing much destruction of property and attended with personal injuries as well as loss of life.

The demands of the United States and other powers for the degradation and punishment of the responsible officials of the respective cities and provinces, who, by neglect or otherwise, had permitted uprisings, and for the adoption of stern measures by the emperor's government for the protection of the life and property of foreigners are followed by the disgrace and dismissal of certain provincial officials found derelict in duty, and the punishment by death of a number of those adjudged guilty of actual participation in the outrages.

Good Effect of the American Commission.

This government also insisted that a special American commission should visit the province where the first disturbances occurred, for the purpose of investigation. This latter commission, formed after much opposition, has gone overland from Tien-Tsin, accompanied by a suitable Chinese escort, and by its demonstration of the readiness and ability of our government to protect its citizens will act, it is believed, as a most influential deterrent of any similar outbreaks. The energetic steps we have thus taken are all the more likely to result in future safety to our citizens in China because the imperial government is, I am persuaded, entirely convinced that we desire only the liberty and protection of our citizens and redress for any wrongs they may have suffered, and that we have no ulterior designs or objects, political or otherwise

Victor and Vanquished Grateful.

The governments of both China and Japan have in dispatches transmitted through their respective diplomatic representatives expressed in a most pleasing manner their grateful appreciation of our assistance to their citizens during the unhappy struggle and of the value of our aid in paving the way to their resumption of peaceful relations.

The Waller Incident.

The customary cordial relations between this country and France have been undisturbed, with the exception that a full explanation of the treatment of John L. Waller by the expeditionary military authorities of France still remains to be given.

Following the course justified by abundant precedents, this government requested from that of France the record of the proceedings of the French tribunal which resulted in Mr. Waller's condemnation. This request has been complied with to the extent of supplying a copy of the official record, from which appear the constitution and organization of the court, the charges as formulated, and the general course and result of the trial, by which it is shown that the accused was tried in open court and was defended by counsel. But the evidence adduced in support of the charges, which was not received by the French minister for foreign affairs till the first week in October—has thus far been withheld, the French government taking the ground that its introduction in response to our demand would establish a precedent. The efforts of our ambassador to procure it, however, though impeded by recent changes in the French ministry, have not been relaxed, and it is confidently expected that some satisfactory solution of the matter will shortly be reached.

An invitation has been extended by France to the government and people of the United States to participate in a great international exposition at Paris in 1900 as a suitable commemoration of the close of this, the world's marvellous century of progress. I heartily recommend its acceptance, together with such legislation as will adequately provide for a due representation of this government and its people on the occasion.

Injures Our Interests in Germany.

Our relation with the states of the German empire are, in some aspects, typical of a condition of things elsewhere found in countries whose productions and trade are similar to our own. The close rivalries of competing industries; the influence of the delusive doctrine that the internal development of a nation is promoted and its wealth increased by a policy, in undertaking to reserve its home markets for the exclusive use of its own producers, necessarily obstructs their sales in foreign markets and prevents free access to the products of the world; the desire to retain trade in time-worn ruts, regardless of the inexorable laws of new needs and changed conditions of demand and supply, and our own halting tardiness in inviting a freer exchange of commodities, and by this means imperiling our footing in the external markets naturally open to us, have created a situation somewhat injurious to American export interests, not only in Germany, where they are most noticeable, but in adjacent countries.

Interests Affected.

The exports affected are largely American cattle and other food products, the reason assigned for unfavorable discrimination being that their consumption is deleterious to the public health. This is all the more irritating in view of the fact that no European state is as jealous of the excellence and wholesomeness of its exported food supplies as the United States nor so easily able on account of inherent soundness to guarantee those qualities.

Hints at Retaliation.

It is not to be forgotten that international trade cannot be one-sided. Its currents are alternating and its movements should be honestly reciprocal. Without this it almost necessarily degenerates into a device to gain advantage or a contrivance to secure benefits with only the semblance of a return. In our dealings with other nations we ought to be open-handed and scrupulously fair. This should be our policy as a producing nation, and it plainly becomes us as a people who love generosity and the moral aspects of national good faith and reciprocal forbearance. These considerations should not, however, constrain us to submit to unfair discrimination nor to silently acquiesce in vexatious hindrances to the enjoyment of our share of the legitimate advantages of proper trade relations.

Behring Sea Affairs Unsatisfactory.

Our relations with Great Britain, always intimate and important, have demanded during the past year even a greater share of consideration than is usual. Several vexatious questions were left undetermined by the decision of the Behring sea arbitration tribunal. The application of the principles laid down by that august body has not been followed by the results they were intended to accomplish, either because the principles themselves lacked in breadth and definiteness or because their execution has been more or less imperfect. Much correspondence has been exchanged between the two governments on the subject of preventing the exterminating slaughter of seals. The insufficiency of the British patrol of Behring sea, under the regulations agreed on by the two governments, has been pointed out, and yet only two British ships have been on police duty during this season in those waters The need of a more effective enforcement of existing regulations, as well as the adoption of such additional regulations as experience has shown to be absolutely necessary to carry out the intent of the award, have been earnestly urged upon the British government, but thus far without effective results.

A Judicious Arrangement.

The understanding by which the United States was to pay, and Great Britain to receive, a lump sum of $425,000 in full settlement of all British claims for damages arising from our seizure of British sealing vessels unauthorized under the award of the Paris tribunal of arbitration, was not confirmed by the last congress, which declined to make the necessary appropriation. I am still of the opinion that this arrangement was a judicious and advantageous one for the government, and I earnestly recommend that it be again considered and sanctioned. If, however, this does not meet with the favor of congress, it certainly will hardly dissent from the proposition that the government is bound by every consideration of honor and good faith to provide for the speedy adjustment of these claims by arbitration as the only other alternative.

The Alaskan Boundary.

The completion of the preliminary survey of that Alaskan boundary which follows the contour of the coast from the southernmost point of Prince of Wales island until it strikes the 141st meridian at or near the summit of Mount St. Elias, awaits further necessary appropriation, which is urgently recommended. This survey was undertaken under the provisions of the convention entered into by this country and Great Britain July 22, 1892, and the supplementary convention of February 3, 1894. As to the remaining section of the Alaskan boundary, which follows the 141st meridian northwardly from Mount St. Elias to the Frozen ocean, the settlement of which involves the physical location of the meridian mentioned, no conventional agreement has yet been made.

The ascertainment of a given meridian at a particular point is a work requiring much time and careful observations and surveys. Such observations and surveys were undertaken by the United States coast and goedetic survey in 1890 and 1891, while similar work in the same quarters under British auspices are believed to give nearly coincident results; but these surveys have been independently conducted, and no international agreement to mark these or any other parts of the 141st meridian by permanent monuments has yet been made. In the meantime, the valley of the Yukon is becoming a highway through the hitherto unexplored wilds of Alaska, and abundant mineral wealth has been discovered in that region, especially at or near the junction of the boundary meridian with the Yukon and its tributaries. In these circumstances, it is expedient, and, indeed, imperative, that the jurisdictional limits of the respective governments in this new region be speedily determined. Her Britannic majesty's government has proposed a joint delimitation of the 141st meridian by an international commission of experts, which, if congress will authorize it and make the provisions therefor, can be accomplished with no unreasonable delay

Venezuelan Dispute.

It being apparent that the boundary dispute between Great Britain and the republic of Venezuela concerning the limits of British Guiana was approaching an acute stage, a definite statement of the interest and policy of the United States as regards the controversy seemed to be required both on its own account and in view of its relations with the friendly powers directly concerned. In July last, therefore, a dispatch was addressed to our ambassador at London for communication to the British government, in which the attitude of the United States was fully and distinctly set forth.

Monroe Doctrine Upheld.

The general conclusions therein reached and formulated are in substance that the traditional and established policy of this government is firmly opposed to a forcible increase by any European power of its territorial possessions on this continent; that this policy is as well founded in principle as it is strongly supported by numerous precedents; that as a consequence the United States is bound to protest against the enlargement of the area of British Guiana in derogation of the rights and against the will of Venezuela; that, considering the disparity in strength of Great Britain and Venezuela, the territorial dispute between these can be reasonably settled by friendly and impartial arbitration, and that the resort to such an arbitration should include the whole controversy

In view of these conclusions, the dispatch in question called upon the British government for a definite answer to the question whether or not it would submit the territorial controversy between itself and Venezuela in its entirety to impartial arbitration. The answer of the British government has not yet been received, but is expected shortly, when further communication on the subject will probably be made to the congress.

Relations with Hawaii.

Early in January last an uprising against the government of Hawaii was promptly suppressed. Martial-law was forthwith proclaimed and numerous arrests were made of persons suspected of being in sympathy with the royalist party. Among these were several citizens of the United States, who were either convicted by a military court and sentenced to death, imprisonment, or fine, or were deported without trial. The United States, while denying protection to such as had taken the Hawaiian oath of allegiance, insisted that martial-law though altering the forms of justice could not supersede justice itself and demanded stay of execution until the proceedings had been submitted to this government and knowledge obtained therefrom that our citizens had received fair trial.

The death sentences were subsequently commuted or were remitted on condition of leaving the islands. The cases of certain Americans arrested and expelled by arbitrary order without formal charge or trial have had attention, and in some instances have been found to justify remonstrance and a claim for indemnity which Hawaii has not thus far conceded

Padrone System Should Be Uprooted.

The deplorable lynching of several Italian laborers in Louisiana was naturally followed by international representations, and I am happy to say that the best efforts of the state in which the outrages occurred have been put forth to discover and punish the authors of this atrocious crime. The dependent families of some of the unfortunate victims invite special and deplorable condition gracious provision for their needs. These manifestations against helpless aliens may be traced through successive stages to the vicious padrone system, which, unchecked by our immigration and contract labor statutes, controls these workers from the moment of landing on our shores, and farms them out in distant and often rude regions, where their cheapening competition in the fields of breadwinning toil brings them into collision with other labor interests.

Japan Eulogized.

Japan has furnished abundant evidence of her vast gain in every trait and characteristic that constitutes a nation's greatness. We have reason for congratulations in the fact that the government of the United States, by the exchange of liberal treaty stipulations with the new Japan, was first to recognize her wonderful advance and to extend to her the consideration and confidence due to her national enlightenment and progressive character.

The Mosquito Affair.

In last year's message, I narrated at some length the jurisdictional questions then freshly arisen in the Mosquito Indian strip of Nicaragua. Since that time, by the voluntary act of the Mosquito nation, the territory reserved to them has been incorporated with Nicaragua, the Indians formally subjecting themselves to be governed by the general laws and regulations of the republic instead of by their own customs and regulations, and thus availing themselves of a privilege secured to them by the treaty between Nicaragua and Great Britain of January 28, 1889.

After this extension of uniform Nicaraguan administration to the Mosquito strip, the case of the British vice consul, Hatch, and of several of his countrymen, who had been summarily expelled from Nicaragua and treated with considerable indignity, provoked a claim by Great Britain upon Nicaragua for pecuniary indemnity, which, upon Nicaragua's refusal to admit liability, was enforced by Great Britain. While the sovereignity and jurisdiction of Nicaragua was in no way questioned by Great Britain, the former's arbitrary conduct in regard to British subjects furnished the ground for this proceeding. A British naval force occupied without resistance the Pacific seaport of Corinto, but was soon after withdrawn upon the promise that the sum demanded would be paid.

Relations with Russia.

The coronation of the czar of Russia at Moscow in May next invites the ceremonial participation of the United States, and in accordance with usage and diplomatic propriety our minister to the imperial court has been directed to represent our government on the occasion.

Correspondence is on foot touching the practice of Russian consuls within the jurisdiction of the United States to interrogate citizens as to their race and religious faith, and upon ascertainment thereof to deny to Jews authentication of passports or legal documents for use in Russia. Inasmuch as such a proceeding imposes a disability, which in the case of succession to property in Russia may be found to infringe the treaty rights of our citizens and which is an obnoxious invasion of our territorial jurisdiction, it has elicited fitting remonstrance, the result of which it is hoped will remove the cause of complaint.

An Inconsistent Position.

In my last two annual messages I called the attention of the congress to the position we occupied as one of the parties to a treaty or agreement by which we became jointly bound with England and Germany to so interfere with the government and control of Samoa as in effect to assume the management of its affairs. On the 9th day of May, 1894, I transmitted to the senate a special message with accompanying documents giving information on the subject and emphasizing the opinion I have at all times entertained, that our situation in this matter was inconsistent with the mission and traditions of our government, in violation of the principles we profess, and in all its phases mischievous and vexatious. I again press this subject upon the attention of the congress and ask for such legislative action or expression as will lead the way to our relief from obligations both irksome and unnatural.

The Revolution in Cuba.

Cuba is again gravely disturbed. An insurrection, in some respects more active than the last preceding revolt, which continued from 1868 to 1878, now exists in a large part of the eastern interior of the island, menacing even some populations on the coast. Besides deranging the commercial exchanges of the island, of which our country takes the predominant share, this flagrant condition of hostilities, by arousing sentimental sympathy and inciting adventurous support among our people, has entailed earnest effort on the part of this government to enforce obedience to our neutrality laws and to prevent the territory of the United States from being abused as a vantage ground from which to aid those in arms against Spanish sovereignty.

Must Maintain a Position of Neutrality.

Whatever may be the traditional sympathy of our countrymen as individuals with a people who seem to be struggling for larger autonomy and greater freedom, deepened as such sympathy naturally must be in behalf of our neighbors, yet the plain duty of their government is to observe in good faith the recognized obligations of international relationship. The performance of this duty should not be made more difficult by a disregard on the part of our citizens of the obligations growing out of their allegiance to their country, which should restrain them from violating as individuals the neutrality which the nation of which they are members is bound to observe in its relation to friendly sovereign states.

The Allianca Incident.

One notable instance of interference by Spain with passing American ships has occurred. On March 8, last, the Allianca, while bound from Colon to New York, and following the customary track for vessels near the Cuban shore, but inside the three-mile limit, was fired upon by a Spanish gunboat. Protest was promptly made by the United States against this act as not being justified by a state of war, nor permissible in respect of vessels on the usual paths of commerce, nor tolerable in view of the wanton peril occasioned to innocent life and property. The act was disavowed, with full expression of regret and assurance of nonconcurrence of such just cause of complaint, while the offending officer was relieved of his command.

Military arrests of citizens of the United States in Cuba have occasioned frequent reclamations. Where held on criminal charges, their delivery to the ordinary civil jurisdiction for trial has been demanded and obtained, in conformity with treaty provisions, and where merely detained by way of military precaution under a proclaimed state of siege, without formulating accusation, their release or trial has been insisted upon.

The long-standing demand of Antonic Maximo Mora against Spain has at last been settled by the payment, on the 14th of September last, of the sum originally agreed upon in liquidation of the claim.

The Armenian Massacres.

Occurrences in Turkey have continued to excite concern. The reported massacres of Christians in Armenia, and the development there and in other districts of a spirit of fanatic hostility to Christian influences, naturally excited apprehension for the safety of the devoted men and women, who as dependents of the foreign missionary societies in the United States, reside in Turkey under the guarantee of law and usage, and in the legitimate performance of their educational and religious mission. No efforts have been spared in their behalf and their protection in person and property has been earnestly and vigorously enforced by every means within our power.

Will Keep a Watchful Eye.

The Ottoman government has lately issued an imperial irade exempting forever from taxation an American college for girls at Scutari. Repeated assurances have also been obtained by our envoy at Constantinople that similar institutions maintained and administered by our countrymen shall be secured in the enjoyment of all rights, and that our citizens throughout the empire shall be protected. The government, however, in view of existing facts, is far from relying upon such assurances as the limit of its duty. Our minister has been vigilant and alert in affording all possible protection in individual cases where danger threatened or safety was imperiled. We have sent ships as far toward the points of actual disturbance as it is possible for them to go, where they offer refuge to those obliged to flee, and we have the promise of other powers which have ships in the neighborhood that our citizens as well as theirs will be received and protected on board those ships. On the demand of our minister orders have been issued by the sultan that Turkish soldiers shall guard and escort to the coast American refugees.

By treaty several of the most powerful European powers have secured a right and have assumed a duty, not only in behalf of their own citizens and in furtherance of their own interests, but as agents of the Christian world. Their right is to enforce such conduct of Turkish government as will restrain fanatical brutality, and if this fails their duty is to so interfere as to insure against such dreadful occurrences in Turkey as have lately shocked civilization. The powers declare this right and this duty to be theirs alone, and it is earnestly hoped that prompt and effective action on their part will not be delayed.

Needed Improvement in Consular Service.

In view of the growth of our interests in foreign countries and the encouraging prospects for a general expansion of our commerce, the question of an improvement in the consular service has increased in importance and urgency. Though there is no doubt that the great body of our consular officers are rendering valuable services to the trade and industries of the country, the needs of some plan of appointment and control which would tend to secure a higher average of efficiency is not denied. The importance of the subject has led the executive to consider what steps might properly be taken without additional legislation, to answer the need of a better system of consular appointments. The matter having been committed to the consideration of the secretary of state, in pursuance of his recommendations, an executive order was issued on the 20th of September, 1895, by the terms of which it is provided that after that date any vacancy in a consulate or commercial agency, with an annual salary or compensation from official fees of not more than $2,500 or less than $1,000, should be filled either by transfer or promotion from some other position under the department of state of a character tending to qualify the incumbent for the position to be filled; or by the appointment of a person not under the department of state, but having previously served thereunder and shown his capacity and fitness for consular duty; or by the appointment of a person who, having been selected by the president and sent to a board for examination, is found, upon such examination, to be qualified for the position. Posts which pay less than $1,000 being usually, on account of their small compensation, filled by selection from residents of the locality, it was not deemed practicable to put them under the new system.

Official Residences for Diplomats.

I am thoroughly convinced that in addition to their salaries our ambassadors and ministers at foreign courts should be provided by the government with official residences. The salaries of these officers is comparatively small, and in most cases insufficient to pay, with other necessary expenses, the cost of maintaining household establishments in keeping with their important and delicate functions. The usefulness of a nation's diplomatic representative undeniably depends much upon the appropriateness of his surroundings, and a country like ours, while avoiding unnecessary glitter and show, should be certain that it does not suffer in its relations with foreign nations through parsimony and shabbiness in its diplomatic outfit

NATIONAL FINANCES.

Cause and Cure of Bond Issues—Dire Effect of Free Coinage.

As we turn from a review of our foreign relations to the contemplation of our national financial situation we are immediately aware that we approach a subject of domestic concern more important than any other that can engage our attention, and one at present in such a perplexing and delicate predicament as to require prompt and wise treatment.

The compulsory purchase and coinage of silver by the government unchecked and unregulated by business conditions and heedless of our currency needs, which for more than 15 years diluted our circulating medium, undermined confidence abroad in our financial ability, and at last culminated in distress and panic at home, has been

COLORING SOUPS.

Culinary Idea That Helps in Giving Artistic Luncheons and Dinners.

The harmony of the color scheme is all essential for true elegance in table decoration. Even meats and entrements, as well as fruits and vegetables, should be arranged with the proper china and in harmony with the prevailing tone of color. The following recipes—some from a famous Philadelphia authority, others from a Virginia cuisine—may be of use:

Amber Soup.—One soup bone, a slice of ham, a chicken, an onion, half a carrot, half a parsnip, a stalk of celery, two tablespoonfuls of butter, four cloves, and whites and shells of two eggs. Brown the bone or two pounds of beef in the butter, brown the onion and put the cloves in it. Add one gallon of cold water and boil all together for four hours. Take out the chicken when tender. Strain in a jar and put away until next day. Then remove the fat and bring all to boiling point again. Strain through a jelly bag and reheat when you wish to serve. If you wish a brown soup, brown a tablespoonful of brown sugar in a saucepan, let it boil with a little water, and strain into the soup. The whites of eggs and shells are better beaten into a spoonful of water and added at the second boiling.

Red Soup—One quart of starch, half an onion, half a can of tomatoes. Boil three-quarters of an hour, strain, add a teaspoonful of sugar, a cup of milk, a piece of butter, and pepper and salt. Thicken with two tablespoonfuls of flour rubbed into a smooth paste with a little cold water or milk. Parsley may be used for flavoring, but must be removed before serving.

Green Pea Soup—Boil one quart of peas in two quarts of water, strain through a potato-masher, return to the same water, adding a teaspoonful of butter rolled in flour, pepper, and salt. Boil two hours and serve hot.

White Soup—Boil one quart of very rich milk, or add either one cup of cream or a large piece of butter. If boiled with chicken bones it will have a nice flavor. Season with minced onion, pepper and salt, and garnish with parsley. You may use a little flour creamed with the butter to thicken. Instead of chicken bones or onion the white parts of celery may be used, chopped fine.

Another Green Soup—Boil three pounds of veal in four quarts of cold water, skimming carefully. Add three bunches of asparagus, except the heads. Add salt and pepper and a sprig of parsley. Boil four hours, remove the grease, strain and boil again half an hour, after adding the asparagus heads. Dissolve a tablespoonful of cornstarch in a little cold water and stir it in a cup of boiling milk. Pour into the soup, let it boil one minute and serve.—Philadelphia Press.

Heaven

recently stopped by the repeal of the laws which forced this reckless scheme upon the country.

Review of Financial Legislation.

The currency denominated United States notes, and commonly known as greenbacks, was issued in large volume during the late civil war and was intended originally to meet the exigencies of that period. It will be seen by a reference to the debates in congress at the time the laws were passed authorizing the issue of these notes that their advocates declared they were intended for only temporary use and to meet the emergency of war. In almost, if not all, the laws relating to them some provision was made contemplating their voluntary or compulsory retirement. A large quantity of them, however, were kept on foot and mingled with the currency of the country, so that at the close of the year 1874 they amounted to $381,999,073.

Immediately after that date, and in January, 1875, a law was passed providing for the resumption of specie payments, by which the secretary of the treasury was required, whenever additional circulation was issued to national banks, to retire United States notes equal in amount to 80 per cent. of such additional national bank circulation until such notes were reduced to $300,000,000. This law further provided that on and after the 1st day of January, 1879, the United States notes then outstanding should be redeemed in coin, and in order to provide and prepare for such redemption, the secretary of the treasury was authorized not only to use any surplus revenues of the government, but to issue bonds of the United States and dispose of them for coin, and to use the proceeds for the purposes contemplated by the statute.

In May, 1878, and before the date thus appointed for the redemption and retirement of these notes, another statute was passed forbidding their future cancellation and retirement. Some of them had, however, been previously redeemed and cancelled upon the issue of additional national bank circulation, as permitted by the law of 1875, so that the amount outstanding at the time of the passage of the act forbidding further retirement was $346,681,016.

Creation of the Reserve.

This was the condition of affairs on the 1st day of January, 1879, which had been fixed upon four years before as the date for entering upon the redemption and retirement of all these notes, and for which such abundant means had been provided. The government was put in the anomalous situation of owing to the holders of its notes, debts payable in gold on demand which could neither be retired by receiving such notes in discharge of obligations due the government, nor canceled by actual payment in gold. It was forced to redeem without redemption and to pay without acquittance.

In the meantime, and in July, 1890, an act had been passed directing larger governmental monthly purchases of silver than had been required under previous laws, and providing that in payment for such silver treasury notes of the United States should be issued, payable on demand in gold or silver coin, at the discretion of the secretary of the treasury. It was, however, declared in the act to be "The established policy of the United States to maintain the two metals on a parity with each other upon the present legal ratio, or such ratio as may be provided by law." In view of this declaration it was not deemed permissible for the secretary of the treasury to exercise the discretion in terms conferred upon him by refusing to pay gold on these notes when demanded, because by such discrimination in favor of the gold dollar the so-called parity of the two metals would be destroyed and grave and dangerous consequences would be precipitated by affirming or accentuating the constantly-widening disparity between their actual values under the existing ratio.

Cause of Depletion of the Reserve.

It thus resulted that the treasury notes issued in payment of silver purchases under the law of 1890 were necessarily treated as gold obligations, at the option of the holder. These notes on the 1st day of November, 1893, when the law compelling the monthly purchase of silver was repealed amounted to more than $155,000,000. The notes of this description now outstanding, added to the United States notes still undiminished by redemption or cancellation, constitute a volume of gold obligations amounting to nearly $500,000,000. These obligations are the instruments which, ever since we have had a gold reserve, have been used to deplete it.

Among the causes for this constant and uniform shrinkage in this fund may be mentioned the great falling off of exports under the operation of the tariff law until recently in force, which crippled our exchange of commodities with foreign nations and necessitated to some extent the payment of our balances in gold; the unnatural infusion of silver into our currency and the increasing agitation for its free and unlimited coinage, which have created apprehension as to our disposition or ability to continue gold payments; the consequent hoarding of gold at home and the stoppage of investments of foreign capital, as well as the return of our securities sold abroad; and the high rate of foreign exchange, which induced the shipment of our gold to be drawn against, as a matter of speculation.

Bond Issues Necessitated.

In consequence of these conditions, the gold reserve on the 1st day of February, 1894, was reduced to $65,438,377, having lost more than $31,000,000 during the preceding nine months, or since April, 1893. Its replenishment being necessary, and no other manner of accomplishing it being possible, resort was had to the issue and sale of bonds provided for by the redemption act of 1875. Fifty millions of these bonds were sold, yielding $58,632,295.71, which was added to the reserve fund of gold then on hand. As a result of this operation this reserve, which had suffered constant and large withdrawals in the meantime, stood on the 6th day of March, 1894, at the sum of $107,446,802. Its depletion was, however, immediately thereafter so accelerated that on the 30th day of June, 1894, it had fallen to $84,873,025, thus losing by withdrawals more than $42,000,000 in five months, and dropping slightly below its situation when the sale of $50,000,000 in bonds was effected for its replenishment.

This depressed condition grew worse, and on the 24th day of November, 1894, our gold reserve being reduced to $57,669,701, it became necessary to again strengthen it. This was done by another sale of bonds, amounting to $50,000,000, for which there was realized $58,538,500, with which the fund was increased to $111,142,021 on the 4th day of December, 1894.

Congress Refused to Act.

Again disappointment awaited the anxious hope for relief. In anticipation of impending trouble, I had on the 28th day of January, 1895, addressed a communication to the congress fully setting forth our difficulties and dangerous position, and earnestly recommending that authority be given the secretary of the treasury to issue bonds bearing a low rate of interest payable by their terms in gold, for the purpose of maintaining a sufficient gold reserve, and also for the redemption and cancellation of outstanding United States notes and the treasury notes issued for the purchase of silver under the law of 1890. This recommendation did not, however, meet with legislative approval.

Another Emergency.

In February, 1895, therefore, the situation was exceedingly critical. With a reserve perilously low and a refusal of congressional aid, everything indicated that the end of gold payments by the government was imminent. The results of prior bond issues had been exceedingly unsatisfactory and the large withdrawals of gold immediately succeeding their public sale in open market gave rise to a reasonable suspicion that a large part of the gold paid into the treasury upon such sales was promptly drawn out again by the presentation of United States notes or treasury notes and found its way to the hands of those who had only temporarily parted with it in the purchase of bonds. In this emergency, and in view of its surrounding perplexities, it became entirely apparent to those upon whom the struggle for safety was devolved not only that our gold reserve must, for the third time in less than 13 months, be restored by another issue and sale of bonds bearing a high rate of interest and badly suited to the purpose, but that a plan must be adopted for their disposition promising better results than those realized on previous sales.

The Syndicate Agreement.

An agreement was therefore made with a number of financiers and bankers whereby it was stipulated that bonds described in the resumption act of 1875 payable in coin 30 years after their date, bearing interest at the rate of four per cent. per annum, and amounting to about $62,000,000, should be exchanged for gold, receivable by weight, amounting to a little more than $65,000,000.

Thinks Disaster Was Averted.

On the day this contract was made its terms were communicated to congress by a special executive message, in which it was stated that more than $16,000,000 would be saved to the government if gold-bearing bonds bearing three per cent. interest were authorized to be substituted for those mentioned in the contract. The congress having declined to grant the necessary authority to secure this saving, the contract, unmodified, was carried out, resulting in a gold reserve amounting to $107,571,230 on the 8th day of July, 1895. The performance of this contract not only restored the reserve, but checked for a time the withdrawals of gold and brought on a period of restored confidence and such peace and quiet in business circles as were of the greatest possible value to every interest that affects our people.

Good Results Not Permanent.

Though the contract mentioned stayed for a time the tide of gold withdrawal, its good results could not be permanent. Recent withdrawals have reduced the reserve from $107,571,230 on the 8th day of July, 1895, to $79,323,968. How long it will remain large enough to render its increase unnecessary is only matter of conjecture, though quite large withdrawals for shipment in the immediate future are predicted in well-informed quarters. About $16,000,000 has been withdrawn during the month of November.

Situation Still Critical.

The foregoing statement of events and conditions develops the fact that after increasing our interest-bearing bonded indebtedness more than $162,000,000 to save our gold reserve, we are nearly where we started, having now in such reserve $79,333,968, as against $65,438,377 in February, 1894, when the first bonds were issued.

On the 28th of January, 1895, it was reported by the secretary of the treasury that more than $172,000,000 of gold had been withdrawn for hoarding or shipment during the year preceding. He now reports that from January 1, 1879, to July 14, 1890, a period of more than 11 years, only a little over $28,000,000 was withdrawn, and that between July 14, 1890, the date of the passage of the law for an increased purchase of silver, and the 1st day of December, 1895, or within less than 5½ years, there was withdrawn nearly $375,000,000, making a total of more than $403,000,000 drawn from the treasury in gold since January 1, 1879, the date fixed in 1875 for the retirement of the United States notes. Nearly $327,000,000 of the gold thus withdrawn has been paid out on these United States notes; and yet every one of the $346,000,000 is still uncanceled and ready to do service in future gold depletions. More than $76,000,000 in gold has since their creation in 1890 been paid out from the treasury upon the notes given on the purchase of silver by the government, and yet the whole, amounting to $155,000,000, except a little more than $16,000,000 which have been retired by exchanges for silver at the request of the holders, remains outstanding and prepared to join their older and more experienced allies in future raids upon the treasury's gold reserve.

In other words, the government has paid in gold more than nine-tenths of its United States notes and still owes them all. It has paid in gold about one-half of its notes given for silver purchases without extinguishing by such payment one dollar of these notes. When added to all this we are reminded that to carry on this astounding financial scheme the government has incurred a bonded indebtedness of $95,500,000 in establishing a gold reserve, and of $162,315,400 in efforts to maintain it; that the annual interest charge on such bonded indebtedness is more than $11,000,000; that a continuance in our present course may result in further bond issues, and that we have suffered or are threatened with all this for the sake of supplying gold for foreign shipment or facilitating its hoarding at home, a situation is exhibited which certainly ought to arrest attention and provoke immediate legislative relief.

Notes Should Be Retired.

I am convinced the only thorough and practicable remedy for our troubles is found in the retirement and cancellation of our United States notes, commonly called greenbacks, and the outstanding treasury notes issued by the government in payment of silver purchases under the act of 1890. I believe this could be quite readily accomplished by the exchange of these notes for United States bonds of small as well as large denominations, bearing a low rate of interest. They should be long-term bonds, thus increasing their desirability as investments, and because their payment could be well postponed to a period far removed from present financial burdens and perplexities, when with increased prosperity and resources they would be more easily met

Would Restore Confidence.

The increase of our bonded debt involved in this plan would be amply compensated by renewed activity and enterprise in all business circles, the restored confidence at home, the reinstated faith in our monetary strength abroad, and the stimulation of every interest and industry that would follow the cancellation of the gold-demand obligations now afflicting us.

How to Fill the Void.

The currency withdrawn by the retirement of the United States notes and treasury notes, amounting to probably less than $486,000,000, might be supplied by such gold as would be used on their retirement or by an increase in the circulation of our national banks. Though the aggregate capital of those now in existence amounts to more $664,000,000, their outstanding circulation, based on bond security, amounts to only about $190,000,000. They are authorized to issue notes amounting to 90 per cent. of the bonds deposited to secure their circulation, but in no event beyond the amount of their capital stock, and they are obliged to pay one per cent. tax on the circulation they issue.

I think they should be allowed to issue circulation equal to the par value of the bonds they deposit to secure it, and that the tax on their circulation should be reduced to one-fourth of one per cent., which would undoubtedly meet all the expense the government incurs on their account. In addition, they should be allowed to substitute or deposit in lieu of the bonds now required as security for their circulation those which would be issued for the purpose of retiring the United States notes and treasury notes. The banks already existing, if they desired to avail themselves of the provisions of law thus modified, could issue circulation in addition to that already outstanding, amounting to $478,000,000, which would nearly or quite equal the currency proposed to be canceled

Necessity May Not Arise.

But there might not be the necessity for such an addition to the currency by new issues of bank circulation as at first glance is indicated. If we should be relieved from maintaining a gold reserve under conditions that constitute it the barometer of our solvency, and if our treasury should no longer be the foolish purveyor of gold for nations abroad or for speculation and hoarding by our citizens at home, I should expect to see gold resume its natural and normal functions in the business affairs of the country and cease to be an object attracting the timid watch of our people and exciting their sensitive imaginations.

Question of Quality. Not Quantity.

In the present stage of our difficulty it is not easy to understand how the amount of our revenue receipts directly affects it. The important question is not the quantity of money received in revenue payments, but the kind of money we maintain and our ability to continue in sound financial conditions. We are considering the government's holdings of gold as related to the soundness of our money and as affecting our national credit and monetary strength. If our gold reserve had never been impaired, or if no bonds had ever been issued to replenish it; if there had been no fear and timidity concerning our ability to continue gold payments; if any part of our revenues were not paid in gold, and if we could look to our gold receipts as a means of maintaining a safe reserve, the amount of our revenues would be an influential factor in the problem. But unfortunately all the circumstances that might lend weight to this consideration are entirely lacking. In our present predicament no gold is received by the government in payment of revenue charges, nor would there be if the revenues were increased. The receipts of the treasury, when not in silver certificates, consist of United States notes and treasury notes issued for silver purchases. These forms of money are only useful to the government in paying its current ordinary expenses, and its quantity in government possession does not in the least contribute toward giving us that kind of safe financial standing or condition which is built on gold alone.

Would Destroy the Parity.

If it is said that these notes if held by the government can be used to obtain gold for our reserve, the answer is easy. The people draw gold from the treasury on demand upon United States notes and treasury notes, but the proposition that the treasury can on demand draw gold from the people upon them would be regarded in these days with wonder and amusement. And even if this could be done, there is nothing to prevent those thus parting with their gold from regaining it the next day or the next hour by the presentation of the notes they received in exchange for it. The secretary of the treasury might use such not taken from a surplus revenue to buy gold in the market. Of course, he could not do this without paying a premium. Private holders of gold, unlike the government, having no parity to maintain, would not be restrained from making the best bargain possible when they furnished gold for —Freight trains have been running with two engines apiece, lately.

DELANO DIARY

—Fair Day tomorrow, Dec. 7. The first Saturday after the first Monday, each month, is Delano Fair Day.

—Now is the time to watch out for your horses; they feel frisky frosty mornings and will rtn away if they get the chance.

—Although winter has set in in earnest, hay is cheaper than it was a few weeks ago; other feeds, and wood, do not seem to rise in price.

—M. E. quarterly meeting will be held at Delano, Monday, Dec. 9; Presiding Elder Chaffee will preach Monday evening, at 7:30 Give him a good audience.

—The St. Anthony's Benevolent Society will give a theatrical entertainment for the benefit of the "orphans", at the City Hall, tomorrow, Saturday evening, Dec. 7.

—On Wednesday an engine ran off the track near the Third Street crossing delayed the freight train and caused the teams to drive around to the River St. crossing for an hour or so.

—Our High School Graduating Class should keep up the record of former years and furnish us the customary school notes. For some reason they have, so far, been dilatory in this matter.

—On Saturday evening the alumni and the seniors of the Delano High School met with Miss Viola Cunningham, a member of the senior class, at the farm home of her parents, and had a pleasant evening's entertainment.

—Delano was well represented at entertainments in the Twin Cities Friday evening. Rev. and Mrs Davies and Misses Kimball and O'Hair heard Melba sing at the exposition building Minneapolis. Miss Alta Clark attended "Rip Van Winkle," Joe Jefferson; and Dr. Catlin heard David B. Hill, at the Peoples Church, in St. Paul.

—On Wednesday as W. H. Frazee was at Fred Adickes, west of town some horses came toward his team, frightening them. Mr. F. got hold of the bits of one of his horses and tried to hold them but failed to do so; they knocked him down and ran over him, bruising him consideably; then ran away, smashing his light bobs to pieces.

—On Sunday the Presbyterian church was dedicated. Rev. Thayer who was pastor for seven years and who was present 24 years ago at the dedication of the church recently burned, preached, and, in prayer, dedicated the new edifice to the Lord. From the trustee's report read by Rev. Tabor Davies, the present pastor, the church is financially well fixed, all debts having been paid, and about $40. remaining to credit in the bank. Rev. Davies will preach Sunday mornings.

—Geo. Blackwell has gone to Winona to serve as a juror in the U. S. Court.—Litchfield Review.

—If all the team loads of big fat hogs that have passed through town from the western part of the county on their way to Minneapolis, could be stopped here, and with those raised in this vicinity, put through a packing house, it would furnish work for several men, and add considerably to the wealth of our village. Hogs are getting to be among the chief products of the county.

—Delano has offered as fine a site, as beautifully located, and with as many advantages as any in the state for a Hospital fo. the insane. The site is convenient to the cities, lying between the G. N. and the Soo Line of Rockford. Neither is near enough to be an element of danger to patients, or an inconvenience to anyone; while either is near enough for traveling to and from the cities or westward. The commission to locate the new institution, appointed by Gov. Clough has, with the exception of Dr. Smith, been over the grounds and are aware of the justness of our claims. With them now rests the locating of the future home of hundreds of unfortunates.

County Cullings.

Judge Elliott presides in District Court, at Buffalo, this week.

The Eagle has, long since, established a reputation for antipathy to Professors, and other men of learning; but recently she has taken to her bosom and established in her editorial chair a real, genuine, live "professor" who apparently, in order to ingratiate himself into the good wishes of the "boss" has been almost weekly, criticising the columns of cotemporaries. this is, in a measure, commendable. But, we would suggest that the Professor-Editor, before he gets to severe on the blunders of his neighbors learns to "edit" the report of a church dedication, right here in town, without depriving the congregation of the use of their old church, for thirty days; cheating an old minister like Mr. Thayer out of a whole month of connubial bliss, and postponing his silver wedding, and consequently, requiring him to wait another moon for his golden wedding day, which he so happily expected would occurr Nov. 24, 1896. Professor use the Eagle eye on her own columns just a little more carefully.

Querries.

If silver is only a commodity why use it for dollars? There are many other cheaper things that would do.

If silver is only currency, and not money, why use it at all? Paper is cheaper.

If gold has not appreciated in value how is it wheat, oats, corn, potatoes and even silver are sold for so much less than they were a year or so ago?

If silver has been demonetized how is it five silver dollars will buy as much as a five dollar gold piece will?

The citizens of Delano feel quite confident that the new insane asylum will be located at that place. Several prominent Minneapolis gentleman having interested themselves in Delano's behalf, and as the village has made the commission a liberal offer, it will not be at all surprising if they secure the asylum. ### Late Literary Note.

It is difficult to predict the future work in the magazine field. No one would have conceived, ten years ago, that a thirty-five-cent magazine would ever contemplate the use of the expensive lithographic processes in printing. But a ten cent magazine has put in a large and complete lithographic plant with the avowed purpose of furnishing a certain amount of color-work every month. The first result is the reproduction of a water color, drawn by Rossi for The Cosmopolitan, and redrawn upon stone by The Cosmopolitan lithographic artists, and printed upon The Cosmopolitan lithographic presses. Work upon even a more extended scale is premised for the January number.

November Literary Note.

from a cross-arm—the whole system involving an expense of not more than fifteen hundred dollars a mile for construction. The rolling stock is equally simple and comparatively inexpensive. Continuous lines of cylinders, moving with no interval to speak of, would carry more grain in a day than a quadruple track railway. This would constitute a sort of grain-pipe line. The Cosmopolitan also points out the probable abolition of street-cars before the coming horseless carriage, which can be operated by a boy on asphalt pavements at a total expense for labor, oil, and interest, of not more than one dollar a day.

THE Kalispiel Jury pronounced the leader of the strike on the G. N. a few weeks ago, Roy Goodwin, not guilty.

THE Sherburne County Star News comes out with a new head and other improvements, this week; an indication of prosperity. Good.

THE heartbroken, aged parents of Harry Hayward, who are well known to many of our readers, have the sympathy of all, in this, the hour of their great bereavement.

ALLEN G. THURMAN, "the noblest Roman of them all," died at his residence in Columbus, Ohio, Thursday, Dec. 12. He was considered one of the purest men in politics.

THE Atwater Republican closes an article on the Harry Hayward case as follows:

"It seems to be a frantic joy for some editors to roll the approaching hanging under their tongues, as a precious morsel. Let the law take its course, with dignity, and not as a ghastly joke."

OUR Republican friends evidently believe "to the victors belong the spoils," we understand Capt. Reed of Glencoe, Editor Joubert, of the News-Ledger, Litchfield, and Capt. Luther Osborne, of the Glydon News, have been appointed to lucrative positions at Washington. Go in boys while you have a chance, we are glad to know that the power of the press is appreciated.

THE Jury in the case of Editor Hoskins, of the Henning News, against C. D. Wright and the First National Bank, disagreed. Mr. Hoskins is the man that was pronounced insane about a year ago, and is sueing for damage, claiming a conspiracy was gotten up to incarcerate him in the asylum and so get rid of his denunciations and criticisms. The case comes up again this month.

MORE than the usual number of wrecks have been occurring on the G. N. lines lately. It is charged to the new men taken on the road lately, in the places of those discharged. It is reported that firemen will now be promoted to engineers' places and that several of the new arrivals have already been superseded by the old hands on the road.

WE are in receipt of a circular, issued by the Minnesota State Immigration Association, which has headquaters in the Hale Block, 309 Jackson Street, St. Paul, where they invite interested people to call and visit them. It is proposed to organizs in each county throughout the state, and make an effort to direct immigration to Minnesota.

THE Republican Committee has concluded to hold its National Convention at St. Louis. This looks like a victory for the western portion of the party and may result in the selection of a candidate for President who holds the free silver views of their Chairman and of our Congressman Towne. Just what the gold bugs of the g. o. p. in Minnesota, the Merriam men, will do remains to be seen: possibly crawl up onto the gold plank, (if there is one) of the Democratic platform.

LAST week Editor Paradis, of the Midway News, was sent to jail for 30 days for contempt of court for refusing to answer as to whether or not he had bought intoxicating liquors of a druggist, his neighbor and friend. He was, after a few hours, released and soon returned and answered "yes," after which the Grand Jury failed to indict. The Minneapolis Times in a lengthy article in answer to some comments on a former article by other papers, says: "Is it not more culpable for the Grand Jury to refuse to indict than it was for Paradis to refuse to answer? Query: Was there not some secret understanding that he should thus go before the grand jury and no indictment should follow, and if so whence the source? Did this solution of the problem originate with the law-enforcing or the law-breaking parties?

Hayward Hanged.

On Wednesday, at 2:08 A. M. Harry Hayward, who was convicted of the murder of Miss Catherine Ging, was hung in the Hennepin County jail by Sheriff Holmberg, in the presence of a few spectators and officials. One year ago the 3rd of this month a young man, returning from work in the evening, discovered the body of a woman lying in the road in the suburbs of Minneapolis. She was carried to the morgue, where it was learned that she had been shot in the back of the head, the ball lodging near the eye, and that her name was Ging, from marks on her clothing. Harry Hayward began talking about the case and insisted that she had been murdered for her money. He was well acquainted with her, she lived in the Ozark Flats, which he had charge of, and he had loaned her $7,000, taking insurance on her life for $10,000, as security, and she was to enlarge her dressmaking business. He was taken into custody by Mayor Eustis and put in the "sweat-box from 10 A. M. the 4th, till about 2 A. M. the 5th, then slept in the Mayor's private office, on a lounge. He was given his liberty next day but kept track of by the police. He attended the funeral of Miss Ging, and wanted to accompany the remains east where friends took them for burial; slept at home that night, the next morning came to the Mayor and told about his gambling relations with the dead girl; she having furnished him money to bet with. Assistant County Attorney Hall received a letter from the Hayward family lawyer. Elder Stewart, saying that Adry Hayward had several days previously told him the entire plot of how his brother Harry had planned to have the engineer of the Ozark Flats, Claus Blixt, kill a dressmaker for the insurance money he would get; how Mr. Stewart took no stock in the story.

W. W. Hayward hired W. W. Erwin and John Day Smith and Mr. Switzer to defend his favorite son: Frank Nye and assistant A. P. Hall prosecuted one of the longest and hardest fought legal contests ever had in the state before Judge Seagrave Smith and a Jury of twelve citizens of Hennepin County. The verdict of the jury was "guilty of murder in the first degree and Judge Smith sentenced the prisoner to hang. W. W. Erwin tried to get a new trial but was refused. An appeal was taken to the Supreme Court but the lower court was sustained, Judge Canty writing the decision. Hayward was sentenced to hang June 21, but, on account of the appeal, got a longer lease of life.

Harry Hayward was one of the most remarkable criminals ever imprisoned. He was cool and calculating, with but brief intervals, apparently indifferent as to his hereafter, vindictive to all who opposed him, especially so to his brother Adry, whom he blamed for having testified against him. He was a graduate of the state university, possessed of means, but had an uncommon passion for gambling. He seems to have had his own way too much from his youth up, and grew worse until he was caught in the fearful crime of procuring the murder of an innocent woman, who confided in him, for her money.

Blixt is in the penitentiary at Stillwater, for life and Hayward has been hanged as a punishment for one of the most shocking, premeditated, murders ever committed.

Woman's Column.

BY WRIGHT COUNTY W. C. T. U.

The absence from the state for a year of the state W. C. T. U. president Mrs. S. M. D. Fry, who will occupy the Union Signal editorial chair at Chicago, for that time, retards the public work of the union, as Mrs. Fry is by far the most gifted and scholarly speaker in W. C. T. U. ranks in the state. The editorials of the Signal, always excellent in style and matter, show Mrs Fry's breadth of thought, and are sure to maintain a high standard in every respect, under her management.

Meantime Minnesota W. C. T. U. mourns her absence, and also the feebleness of Mrs. Hobart, the former efficient and active and well beloved, president.

A Plea for the Forgotten.

To the Union Signal:—I have this visited the Florence Crittenton Anchorage for Girls, on Wabash avenue, founded some years ago by the Central W. C. T. U.

I found there thirty-five, some of them pitifully young, and twelve with babies in their armes. It was a sight to make careless hearts thought full and steady eyes dim. The poor child who was deceived, betrayed and robbed a few days ago by the man she trusted, was there at last she had found those whom she could trust, and who told told her they would do all in their power to help her to build her wrecked young life anew on the fondations of industry, purity and honor.

All money for the aid of this very important institution should be sent to Miss Alice Bond, Evanston, Ill., or to Mrs. M. E. Kline, treaiurer of the Mission, The Temple, Chicago, Ill.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 6, 1895.

President Cleveland's statment of what the administration had done to maintain the Monroe doctrine and his intimation of what it was prepared to do in that line was no play to the grandstand. The paragraph in his message which contained the statement has not a line or sentence of spreadeagleism; it merely notifies the world in dignified and diplomatic language that the Monroe Doctrine is not a fantasy, but a fixed fact behind which is all the strength of the United States. There is a clue for President Cleveland in the unanimous support of that portion of his message by democrats in the House and Senate. It shows the possibility of uniting the democrats, notwithstanding radical differences of opinion on the financial question, and of the party putting up a stiff fight in the Presidential campaign. Not only are the democrats all pleased with the President's Monroe doctrine talk, but some of the republicans have not hesitated to openly commend it nine-tenths of them are committed to the support of the monroe doctrine. For instance Senator Hale, of Me., said: "His treatment of our foreign affairs seems to be conservative and satisfactory," and Senator Lodge, of Mass., a radical of radicals, said: "In regard to Venezuela, I am happy to say, the President has taken an excellent and sound position."

While President Cleveland's views on Cuban affairs are not popular with those who allow their sentiment and enthusiasm to sway their judgement there are many level-headed people, in and out of Congress, who believe that he is correct, but probably not enough to prevent the adoption of resolutions in both House and Senate declaring in favor of the recognition of the belligerency of the Cuban revolutionists. At least that's the way it looks now. Two such resolutions have alaeady been introduced in the Senate and similar ones will be introduced in the House. There will be some sky-rocket speeches made on these resolations, and unless something now unexpected shall prevent one will be adopted.

It seems to be disturbing some people because the President devoted his message exclusively to foreign affairs and national finances leaving the routine affairs of the government to the various executive departments. The innovation is an excellent one and ought to be kept up. Why should the President go over the same ground in his message that is covered by the annual reports of the members of his cabinet, some of which are made public in advance of his message?

The President evidently did not expect Congress to accept his recommendation for the retirement of the greenbacks and Treasury notes and the issue of long time, low interest bonds upon which National bank notes might be issued, to redeem them. That is why he said after making the recommendation: "I have suggested a remedy which my judgment approves. I desire, however, to assure the Congress that I am prepared to cooperate with them in perfecting any other measure promising thorough and practical relief." Now let Congress devote the time it is giving to jumping on the President's plan to the production of a better one. That's the way to convince the country that is more interested in our national prosperity than in trying to elect the next President.

The republicans in Congress will probably have an early opportunity to show how sincere their recent shouting for the Monroe doctrine has been. England's reply to the demand of this goverment for a specific answer as to whether its demands for the territory claimed by Venezuela, would be submitted to arbitration, is now on its way to Washington. Should it be a refusal to arbitrate, as it is said to be, President Cleveland will at once send a special message to Congress, and the Republicans will have a chance to show what they are willing to do for the maintenance of the Monroe doctrine.

It seems that at last President Cleveland has succeeded in nominating a man sor a seat on the bench of the U. S. Supreme Court who is satisfactory to everybody and whose nomination will be unanimously confirmed by the Senate. The lucky man is Judge Rufus W. Peckham, now a member of the Appellate Court of New York, a lifelong Democrat, and a brother of W. H Peckham, whose nomination to be justice of the Supreme Court by President Cleveland was rejected by the Senate because of the opposition of Senators Hill and Murphy.

Among the numerous bills introduced in the House and Senate this week were a number providing for the erection of public buildings in various places at an aggregate cost of more than eight millions of dollars. If that sort of thing is going to be kept up, and the bills passed, it will certainly become necessary for Congress te provide some additionil revenue for the government.

Among Our Exchanges.

President Cleveland did not play to the galleries in his annual message—it wasn't a jingo document.—Evening Tribune.

Rumor has it that Waverly will this year in the district court share doubtful honors with Cokato.—Waverly Tribune.

A water famine is threatened in our village, a number of wells having failed and some of the others showing a like disposition.—Sherburne County Times.

The Delano Eagle presents a fine appearance in its elegant new dress and under its new management is taking long strides in advancement.—Pioneer Press.

Congress is in session, but do not let the fact delude us in the belief that the country will receive any benefit therefrom for a time at least.—Sherburne Couty Times.

Teams crossed the Missouri river on the ice Plattsmouth on Dec. 2nd. This is about the earliest ice crossing on record at that point.—Weeping Water Republican, Neb.

Meeker county has fourteen cream eries—and residents of the adjoining counties are commencing to move over the border so they will be near the institutions. This is significant.—Swift County Monitor.

The question of who is to be appointed clerk of the district court still disturbs the dreams of some of the editors of the county. Wharton says it will be Vorse; he knows, and he knows he knows.—Cokato Commoner.

The head of the American Cigarette Co. of Canada, died on the 1st of cancer of the lungs. He has proved that a short and sure way to end our days on earth is to smoke plenty of cigarettes.—Weeping Water Republican.

The United States Senate is not a "New Senate," as the papers call it—more's the pity. It is the same old jobbing lot that has done more to injure the credit and retard the prosperity of this country than all other influences combined.—St. Paul Globe.

The Presidents message to congress has been given to the public. To those who are patriotic enough to rise above partisanship, it will pass as an able document, and to those who refuse to do this it would be a poor paper if it was the best ever written. A trifle verbose it is still a good paper.—St. Peter Herald.

Advocates of "sound" money declare that it is impossible to legislate one hundred cents into a fifty-cent dollar. Why more difficult than to legislate one hundred cents worth of property into fifty cents worth? That this has been done within two years all men of intelligence and candor must admit.—Moorhead News.

State Auditor Dunn has decorated his office wall with a number of sample ears of corn grown on the farm of I. S. Mudgett, at Princeton, that give the lie to the statement that corn cannot be grown in Minnesota. The corn is as fine a sample as could be found in a long days travel through a more southern region, and Mr. Mudgett has a quantity of it.—St Paul Globe.

Congresswan Towne was interviewed in Washington the other day regarding his opinion as to the best method this congress can pursue to increase the revennes of the government and replied: I "believe that the needed revenue should be raised by increasing the customs duties. I am especially in favor of increasing the duties on wool and other farm products."—Aitkin Republican.

The fifty-fourth congress of the United States opened in Washington last Monday. President Cleveland's message was read on Tuesday. It is a lengthy document, dealing largely with the financial questions that are prominent in the affairs of the country. The President firmly opposes the free coinage of silver, recommends the retirement of the greenbacks, and supports the single gold standard of value.—Brainerd Journal.

President Cleveland's reasoning faculties must be sadly out of gear. He attributes, in his message, all our financial embarrassments to the silver men. Is that a fact? Could there be a more monumental falsehood uttered by anybody? Dosn't he know that the management of the treasury and all the legislation of this country, from 1870 to the present time, has been the work of gold men—the gold gamblers—not only in the United States but in Europe? The silver men have never had control of the treasury or the law making power, and the present conditions are the result of gold legislation and gold administration, and how, in the name of truth and decency, can the silver men be held responsible for the present condition of affairs? Such monumental lying, as the gold men resort to, is astonishing even to the liars themselves. How long can people be fooled by such mendacity?—Waseca County Herald.

INDEPENDENCE INCIDENTS.

A good many people say (and some of them are democrats, too) that Cleveland is a better man than his party. If that be the case then the Democratic party needs a good deal of praying for.

There is not much news in this neck of woods just now. Every body is too busy to talk politics or religion and hard times still has hold of the latch string.

Once in a while can be seen a group of men at the Post Office, or some crossroads, holding a council of war in regard to Cuba, Turkey and the Dardinelles, but it is not thought the belligerants will break out here very soon.

Mr. Clevelands message to Congress was quite a savory dish for bankers and bond holders, but to common people smelt like limburger cheese.

It is estimated that this country has 4,700 millionaires, 3,000,000 people out of work, 500,000 tramps, 60,000 ex union soldiers in the poor house, and then talk of a millennium and a thousand years of peace.

We have in circulation nine kinds of money; gold coin, silver dollars, gold certificates, silver certificates, greenbacks, Treasury notes, National bank notes, subsidary silver—halves' quarters and dimes. Minor coins—nickels and copper. And yet we do not have plenty of money.

On the 23d ultimo the steamship Campania, which sailed for Liverpool, carried the largest shipment of gold ever sent from New York port. There was $4,000,000 in gold bars and $670,000 in gold coin. Cleveland will soon call for a new bond issue.

Some of our good neighbors still have it in their minds to go south if they can dispose of their property here. They are seeking a more congenial climate; want to go where they can grow sweet potatoes and opossums.

There is lots of corn in the fields yet.

Mrs. Smith, of Montana, is visiting with William Fogleman's folks this week.

Mrs. Taylor, of Minneapolis, is visiting with Wm. Mills and family.

Our sick list for this week we will call blank.

Frank Lucas has moved from West Rockford to Armstrong.

We do not hear Christmas much talked of yet.

THE Kalispiel Jury pronounced the leader of the strike on the G. N. a few weeks ago, Roy Goodwin, not guilty.

THE Sherburne County Star-News comes out with a new head and other improvements, this week: an indication of prosperity. Good.

THE heartbroken, aged parents of Harry Hayward, who are well known to many of our readers, have the sympathy of all, in this, the hour of their great bereavement.

ALLEN G. THURMAN, "the noblest Roman of them all," died at his residence in Columbus, Ohio, Thursday, Dec. 12. He was considered one of the purest men in politics.

THE Atwater Republican closes an article on the Harry Hayward case as follows:

"It seems to be a frantic joy for some editors to roll the approaching hanging under their tongues, as a precious morsel. Let the law take its course, with dignity, and not as a ghastly joke."

OUR Republican friends evidently believe "to the victors belong the spoils," we understand Capt. Reed of Glencoe, Editor Joubert, of the News-Ledger, Litchfield, and Capt. Luther Osborne, of the Glydon News, have been appointed to lucrative positions at Washington. Go in boys while you have a chance, we are glad to know that the power of the press is appreciated.

THE Jury in the case of Editor Hoskins, of the Henning News, against C. D. Wright and the First National Bank, disagreed. Mr. Hoskins is the man that was pronounced insane about a year ago, and is sueing for damage, claiming a conspiracy was gotten up to incarcerate him in the asylum and so get rid of his denunciations and criticisms. The case comes up again this month.

MORE than the usual number of wrecks have been occurring on the G. N. lines lately. It is charged to the new men taken on the road lately, in the places of those discharged. It is reported that firemen will now be promoted to engineers' places and that several of the new arrivals have already been superseded by the old hands on the road.

WE are in receipt of a circular, issued by the Minnesota State Immigration Association, which has headquaters in the Hale Block, 309 Jackson Street, St. Paul, where they invite interested people to call and visit them. It is proposed to organize in each county throughout the state, and make an effort to direct immigration to Minnesota.

THE Republican Committee has concluded to hold its National Convention at St. Louis. This looks like a victory for the western portion of the party and may result in the selection of a candidate for President who holds the free silver views of their Chairman and of our Congressman Towne. Just what the gold bugs of the g. o. p. in Minnesota, the Merriam men, will do remains to be seen: possibly crawl up onto the gold plank, (if there is one) of the Democratic platform.

LAST week Editor Paradis, of the Midway News, was sent to jail for 30 days for contempt of court for refusing to answer as to whether or not he had bought intoxicating liquors of a druggist, his neighbor and friend. He was, after a few hours, released and soon returned and answered "yes," after which the Grand Jury failed to indict. The Minneapolis Times in a lengthy article in answer to some comments on a former article by other papers, says: "Is it not more culpable for the Grand Jury to refuse to indict than it was for Paradis to refuse to answer? Query: Was there not some secret understanding that he should thus go before the grand jury and no indictment should follow, and if so whence the source? Did this solution of the problem originate with the law-enforcing or the law-breaking parties?

Hayward Hanged.

On Wednesday, at 2:08 A. M. Harry Hayward, who was convicted of the murder of Miss Catherine Ging, was hung in the Hennepin County jail by Sheriff Holmberg, in the presence of a few spectators and officials. One year ago the 3rd of this month a young man, returning from work in the evening, discovered the body of a woman lying in the road in the suburbs of Minneapolis. She was carried to the morgue, where it was learned that she had been shot in the back of the head, the ball lodging near the eye, and that her name was Ging, from marks on her clothing. Harry Hayward began talking about the case and insisted that she had been murdered for her money. He was well acquainted with her, she lived in the Ozark Flats, which he had charge of, and he had loaned her $7,000, taking insurance on her life for $10,000, as security, and she was to enlarge her dressmaking business. He was taken into custody by Mayor Eustis and put in the "sweat-box from 10 A. M. the 4th, till about 2 A. M. the 5th, then slept in the Mayor's private office, on a lounge. He was given his liberty next day but kept track of by the police. He attended the funeral of Miss Ging, and wanted to accompany the remains east where friends took them for burial; slept at home that night, the next morning came to the Mayor and told about his gambling relations with the dead girl; she having furnished him money to bet with. Assistant County Attorney Hall received a letter from the Hayward family lawyer, Elder Stewart, saying that Adry Hayward had several days previously told him the entire plot of how his brother Harry had planned to have the engineer of the Ozark Flats, Claus Blixt, kill a dressmaker for the insurance money he would get; how Mr. Stewart took no stock in the story.

W. W. Hayward hired W. W. Erwin and John Day Smith and Mr. Switzer to defend his favorite son: Frank Nye and assistant A. P. Hall prosecuted one of the longest and hardest fought legal contests ever had in the state before Judge Seagrave Smith and a Jury of twelve citizens of Hennepin County. The verdict of the jury was "guilty of murder in the first degree and Judge Smith sentenced the prisoner to hang. W. W. Erwin tried to get a new trial but was refused. An appeal was taken to the Supreme Court but the lower court was sustained, Judge Canty writing the decision. Hayward was sentenced to hang June 21, but, on account of the appeal, got a longer lease of life.

Harry Hayward was one of the most remarkable criminals ever imprisoned. He was cool and calculating, with but brief intervals, apparently indifferent as to his hereafter, vindictive to all who opposed him, especially so to his brother Adry, whom he blamed for having testified against him. He was a graduate of the state university, possessed of means, but had an uncommon passion for gambling. He seems to have had his own way too much from his youth up, and grew worse until he was caught in the fearful crime of procuring the murder of an innocent woman, who confided in him, for her money.

Blixt is in the penitentiary at Stillwater, for life and Hayward has been hanged as a punishment for one of the most shocking, premeditated, murders ever committed.

Woman's Column.

BY WRIGHT COUNTY W. C. T. U.

The absence from the state for a year of the state W. C. T. U. president Mrs. S. M. D. Fry, who will occupy the Union Signal editorial chair at Chicago, for that time, retards the public work of the union, as Mrs. Fry is by far the most gifted and scholarly speaker in W. C. T. U. ranks in the state. The editorials of the Signal, always excellent in style and matter, show Mrs Fry's breadth of thought, and are sure to maintain a high standard in every respect, under her management.

Meantime Minnesota W. C. T. U. mourns her absence, and also the feebleness of Mrs. Hobart, the former efficient and active and well beloved, president.

A Plea for the Forgotten.

To the Union Signal:—I have this visited the Florence Crittenton Anchorage for Girls, on Wabash avenue, founded some years ago by the Central W. C. T. U.

I found there thirty-five, some of them pitifully young, and twelve with babies in their armes. It was a sight to make careless hearts thoughtfull and steady eyes dim. The poor child who was deceived, betrayed and robbed a few days ago by the man she trusted, and who tried to take her young life, was there at last she had found those whom she could trust, and who told told her they would do all in their power to help her to build her wrecked young life anew on the fondations of industry, purity and honor.

All money for the aid of this very important institution should be sent to Miss Alice Bond, Evanston, Ill., or to Mrs. M. E. Kline, treaiurer of the Mission, The Temple, Chicago, Ill.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

From our Regular Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 6, 1895.

President Cleveland's statment of what the administration had done to maintain the Monroe doctrine and his intimation of what it was prepared to do in that line was no play to the grandstand. The paragraph in his message which contained the statement has not a line or sentence of spreadeagleism; it merely notifies the world in dignified and diplomatic language that the Monroe Doctrine is not a fantasy, but a fixed fact behind which is all the strength of the United States. There is a clue for President Cleveland in the unanimous support of that portion of his message by democrats in the House and Senate. It shows the possibility of uniting the democrats, notwithstanding radical differences of opinion on the financial question, and of the party putting up a stiff fight in the Presidential campaign. Not only are the democrats all pleased with the President's Monroe doctrine talk, but some of the republicans have not hesitated to openly commend it nine-tenths of them are committed to the support of the monroe doctrine. For instance Senator Hale, of Me., said: "His treatment of our foreign affairs seems to be conservative and satisfactory," and Senator Lodge, of Mass., a radical of radicals, said: "In regard to Venezuela, I am happy to say, the President has taken an excellent and sound position."

While President Cleveland's views on Cuban affairs are not popular with those who allow their sentiment and enthusiasm to sway their judgement there are many level-headed people, in and out of Congress, who believe that he is correct, but probably not enough to prevent the adoption of resolutions in both House and Senate declaring in favor of the recognition of the belligerency of the Cuban revolutionists. At least that's the way it looks now. Two such resolutions have already been introduced in the Senate and similar ones will be introduced in the House. There will be some sky-rocket speeches made on these resolutions, and unless something now unexpected shall prevent one will be adopted.

It seems to be disturbing some people because the President devoted his message exclusively to foreign affairs and national finances leaving the routine affairs of the government to the various executive departments. The innovation is an excellent one and ought to be kept up. Why should the President go over the same ground in his message that is covered by the annual reports of the members of his cabinet, some of which are made public in advance of his message?

The President evidently did not expect Congress to accept his recommendation for the retirement of the greenbacks and Treasury notes and the issue of long time, low interest bonds upon which National bank notes might be issued, to redeem them. That is why he said after making the recommendation: "I have suggested a remedy which my judgment approves. I desire, however, to assure the Congress that I am prepared to cooperate with them in perfecting any other measure promising thorough and practical relief." Now let Congress devote the time it is giving to jumping on the President's plan to the production of a better one. That's the way to convince the country that is more interested in our national prosperity than in trying to elect the next President.

The republicans in Congress will probably have an early opportunity to show how sincere their recent shouting for the Monroe doctrine has been. England's reply to the demand of this government for a specific answer as to whether its demands for the territory claimed by Venezuela, would be submitted to arbitration, is now on its way to Washington. Should it be a refusal to arbitrate, as it is said to be, President Cleveland will at once send a special message to Congress, and the Republicans will have a chance to show what they are willing to do for the maintenance of the Monroe doctrine.

It seems that at last President Cleveland has succeeded in nominating a man sor a seat on the bench of the U. S. Supreme Court who is satisfactory to everybody and whose nomination will be unanimously confirmed by the Senate. The lucky man is Judge Rufus W. Peckham, now a member of the Appellate Court of New York, a lifelong Democrat, and a brother of W. H. Peckham, whose nomination to be justice of the Supreme Court by President Cleveland was rejected by the Senate because of the opposition of Senators Hill and Murphy.

Among the numerous bills introduced in the House and Senate this week were a number providing for the erection of public buildings in various places at an aggregate cost of more than eight millions of dollars. If that sort of thing is going to be kept up, and the bills passed, it will certainly become necessary for Congress to provide some additionil revenue for the government.

Among Our Exchanges.

President Cleveland did not play to the galleries in his annual message—it wasn't a jingo document.—Evening Tribune.

Rumor has it that Waverly will this year in the district court share doubtful honours with Cokato.—Waverly Tribune.

A water famine is threatened in our village, a number of wells having failed and some of the others showing a like disposition.—Sherburne County Times.

Teams crossed the Missouri river on the ice Plattsmouth on Dec. 2nd. This is about the earliest ice crossing on record at that point.—Weeping Water Republican, Neb.

Meeker county has fourteen cream eries—and residents of the adjoining counties are commencing to move over the border so they will be near the institutions. This is significant.—Swift County Monitor.

The question of who is to be appointed clerk of the district court still disturbs the dreams of some of the editors of the county. Wharton says it will be Vorse; he knows, and he knows he knows.—Cokato Commoner.

The head of the American Cigarette Co. of Canada, died on the 1st of cancer of the lungs. He has proved that a short and sure way to end our days on earth is to smoke plenty of cigarettes.—Weeping Water Republican.

The United States Senate is not a "New Senate," as the papers call it—more's the pity. It is the same old job lot that has done more to injure the credit and retard the prosperity of this country than all other influences combined.—St. Paul Globe.

The Presidents message to congress has been given to the public. To those who are patiotic enough to rise above partisanship, it will pass as an able document, and to those who refuse to do this it would be a poor paper if it was the best ever written. Congresswan Towne was interviewed in Washington the other day regarding his opinion as to the best method this congress can pursue to increase the revenues of the government and replied: I "believe that the needed revenue should be raised by increasing the customs duties. I am especially in favor of increasing the duties on wool and other farm products."—Aitkin Republican.

The fifty-fourth congress of the United States opened in Washington last Monday. President Cleveland's message was read on Tuesday. It is a lengthy document, dealing largely with the financial questions that are prominent in the affairs of the country. The President firmly opposes the free coinage of silver, recommends the retirement of the greenbacks, and supports the single gold standard of value.—Brainerd Journal.

President Cleveland's reasoning faculties must be sadly out of gear. He attributes, in his message, all our financial embarrassments to the silver men. Is that a fact? Could there be a more monumental falsehood uttered by anybody? Does't he know that the management of the treasury and all the legislation of this country, from 1870 to the present time, has been the work of gold men—the gold gamblers—not only in the United States but in Europe? The silver men have never had control of the treasury or the law making power, and the present conditions are the result of gold legislation and gold administration, and how, in the name of truth and decency, can the silver men be held responsible for the present condition of affairs? Such monumental lying, as the gold men resort to, is astonishing even to the liars themselves. How long can people be fooled by such mendacity?—Waseca County Herald.

INDEPENDENCE INCIDENTS.

A good many people say (and some of them are democrats, too) that Cleveland is a better man than his party. If that be the case then the Democratic party needs a good deal of praying for.

There is not much news in this neck of woods just now. Every body is too busy to talk politics or religion and hard times still has hold of the latch string.

Once in a while can be seen a group of men at the Post Office, or some cross-roads, holding a council of war in regard to Cuba, Turkey and the Dardinelles, but it is not thought the belligerants will break out here very soon.

Mr. Clevelands message to Congress was quite a savory dish for bankers and bond holders, but to common people smelt like limburger cheese.

It is estimated that this country has 4,700 millionaires, 3,000,000 people out of work, 500,000 tramps, 60,000 ex union soldiers in the poor house, and then talk of a millennium and a thousand years of peace.

We have in circulation nine kinds of money; gold coin, silver dollars, gold certificates, silver certificates, greenbacks, Treasury notes, National bank notes, subsidary silver—halves' quarters and dimes. Minor coins—nickels and copper. And yet we do not have plenty of money.

On the 23d ultimo the steamship Campania, which sailed for Liverpool, carried the largest shipment of gold ever sent from New York port. There was $4,000,000 in gold bars and $670,000 in gold coin. Cleveland will soon call for a new bond issue.

Some of our good neighbors still have it in their minds to go south if they can dispose of their property here. They are seeking a more congenial climate; want to go where they can grow sweet potatoes and opossums.

There is lots of corn in the fields yet.

Mrs. Smith, of Montana, is visiting with William Fogleman's folks this week.

Mrs. Taylor, of Minneapolis, is visiting with Wm. Mills and family.

Our sick list for this week we will call blank.

THE steady growth of cities while most country districts remain at a standstill so far as population is concerned has been deplored as evidence of a wrong condition of things, and commonly has been commented on as a situation peculiar to America. ENGLAND is buying largely our American draft horses. This year three times as many have been shipped to England as in any former year. The prices for horses in the United States are such that they can be shipped to England cheaper than they can be raised there; and they are better stock. The average price received recently for a large shipment was $155 per head.

AN old Russian merchant who died recently left a will bequeathing 100,000,000 rubles to each of his four nieces, provided they put in 15 months continuously as chambermaids, cooks, or laborers. # HAYWARD HANGED.

Catherine Ging's Murderer Executed at an Early Hour the 11th.

His Last Hours Spent in Wakefulness and Expectancy—His Courage or Nerve Stayed with Him Until the Last Moment.

Minneapolis, Dec. 11.—Harry T. Hayward was hanged in the Hennepin County jail this morning for the murder of Catherine Ging, Dec. 3, 1894.

The trap was sprung at exactly 2:05 a. m. The position of the body and the frightful swelling of the neck caused every one to think that the neck had been broken. At 2:10 Dr. Burton put his ear to Hayward's heart and listened intently. At the same moment the black robe showed glistening drops of blood that trickled down and formed a pool on the floor. The head hung far forward, and the knot was directly between the ears. The murderer's feet were within 18 inches of the floor.

Hayward's dying statement made on the gallows was as follows:

The Sheriff—Mr. Hayward, have you any statement to make?

Hayward—Yes. Well, you all—there has been a good deal of curiosity, and some of you think I am a regular devil, and I have no doubt, if you knew my whole past life you would be finnly convinced of that fact. I have dictated a shorthand statement to my cousin Edward Goodsell, Joseph T. Mannix and Court Stenographer Mabey, which is all true to the best of my recollection.

Mr. Mannix—Well, you haven't anything more to say. As you stated a moment ago, my dear sir, you made a solemn, final statement to your cousin and others, which is your last, and your last moments should be dignified, as dignified as your statement, and as dignified as your conduct for the last 48 hours. You are going to meet your God. Do it quietly, manfully, nervely, with your father and your mother in your mind, and with only good wishes and good will for all, forgiving all who have sinned, that testified against you, or did aught against you, and speak in the manner that you spoke of to the county attorney in his presence today, and to Adry and that splended reconciliation. Pardon me for suggesting it, but say nothing more, and get ready for the awful finale.

Mr. Hayward: "Now, I will tell you, Mr. Manix. In regard to my brother, I have freely forgiven him for any imaginary wrong, anything that his conscience may smite him with, and leads him to think he has done me wrong. Well, he has done me no wrong. I have done him a great injustice and wrong, and I have asked his forgiveness, and received it, and he forgave me everything, and tried to put everything right between his father and himself.

"Now I wish to say that FatherCleary, Father Timothy and Father Christie, have each and all, taken a great interest; called on me and expressed a disappointment because I am not able or do not look at the spiritual world or hereafter as they do, but I have the greatest respect for each of them. My attorney, John Day Smith, I have also for him great respect, for he is a religious man, as well as an attorney, and I told him I would pledge him what he asked of me to say. I pledged it to him, although if I honestly believed it, I would say it, and satisfy myself, and it was this: "Oh, God for Christ's sake forgive me all my sins."

"Now, Megaarden, go ahead. Keep up your courage, gentlemen. You bet I will stand pat. Please pull it tight, and let it go under the right ear; no, the other ear."

Hayward spent the time until midnight with Edward Goodsell his brother Adry and a stenographer. Supper was served at midnight, and the visitors departed. Hayward ate a most hearty supper, and appeared to greatly enjoy this, his last meal.

At 1 o'clock Father Timothy of the East Side and Rev. William Wilkinson visited Hayward. Hayward had been apprised of their presence in the jail and of their desire to see him. He accordingly invited them in, and they stayed 15 minutes.

Hayward's nerve served him to the last. Those who prophesied that he would weaken and be carried to the gibbet were forced to admit that the murderer of Catherine Ging was possessed of more nerve and sand than they believed any human being was blessed with.

SALA IS DEAD.

The Well-Known Author Expires at Brighton, England.

London, Dec. 9.—George Augustus Sala, the well-known journalist and author, died Sunday at Brighton, where he had been ill for a long time. Mr. Sala's death was caused by a complication of disorders. He suffered from cancer of the liver, diseased kidneys and shattered nerves.

George Augustus Henry Sala was the son of an Italian gentleman who married a favorite English singer of West Indian extraction. He was born in London in 1828, was brought up with a view of following art as a profession, but quitted it for literature and became a constant contributor to household works. He was an extensive and regular contributor to the Welcome Guest, the founder and first editor of the Temple Bar Magazine, for which he wrote the stories of "The Seven Sons of Mammon" and "Capt. Dangerous," afterwards republished as separate works; wrote for several years in the Illustrated London News, the "Hogarth Papers" in the Cornhill Magazine, and a story entitled "Quite Alone" for All the Year Round, which appeared in a separate form in November, 1864. He went as special correspondent of the Daily Telegraph to the United States in 1863, and on his return, at the close of 1864, published the result of his observations under the title of "America in the Midst of War." He wrote, in 1864, a series of graphic letters for the Daily Telegraph from Algeria and revisited Algeria and Morocco in 1875. In 1870 Mr. Sala was at Metz and in eastern France as war correspondent for the Daily Telegraph.

His best known works, in addition to those already mentioned, are "How I Tamed Mrs. Cruiser," published in 1858; "Twice Round the Clock" and Journey Due North;" "A Residence in Russia" in 1859; "The Baddington Peerage," "Looking at Life" and "Make Your Game, a Narrative of the Rhine," in 1860; "Dutch Pictures, with some Sketches in the Flemish Manner," in 1861; "Accepted Addresses," "Ship Chandler, and Other Tales" and "Two Prima Donnas and the Dumb Poor Porter," in 1862; "Breakfast in Bed" and "Strange Adventures of Capt. Dangerous" in 1863; "After Breakfast, or, Pictures Done with a Quill" and "Quite Alone," in 1864; "Trip to Barbary by a Roundabout Route," in 1865; "From Waterloo to the Peninsula," in 1866; "Notes and Sketches of the Paris Exhibition," in 1868; "Rome and Venice" and Wat Tyler, M. P., a Burlesque," in 1869; "Under the Sun," "Essays Mainly Written in Hot Countries," in 1872; "Paris Herself Again" and "America Revisited," in 1882.

OUR RELATIONS WITH GERMANY

The Tariff Situation Is Discussed in the Reichstag.

Berlin, Dec. 10.—In the reichstag Monday, Baron Marschal von Bieberstein, minister of foreign affairs, in reply to Herr Fritzen's remarks, concerning the tariff situation between Germany and the United States, said that the American congress had some time since adopted a differential duty upon sugar, Germany protested against this and Mr. Cleveland did loyally all that he had the power to do in the matter, but congress refused to modify its previous action. Germany, he declared, maintains that the differential duty adopted by the American congress is a violation of the existing treaty. President Cleveland's message charging Germany with applying differential treatment to certain American exports was a great surprise. He then proceeded to show that the charges made by the president were devoid of foundation. The presence of Texas fever in cattle proved that prohibition of importation of American meats into Germany was necessary, but the same measures were in existence against other states than America.

Concerning the cancellation of the licenses of the American companies, he said that certain American insurance companies doing business in Prussia had had their licenses revoked because they would not conform to the laws, which were the same for German companies and foreign companies. If the American companies would undertake to conform to the laws nothing could prevent them from reopening their business. The matter, he said, was purely a German concern, over which he could not admit the criticism of a foreign government. Germany, he declared, would loyally continue to adhere to her treaties, not allowing herself to be frightened by threats.

FOR THE SUPREME BENCH.

Senate Confirms the Nomination of Rufus W. Peckham.

Washington, Dec. 10.—The United States senate on Monday confirmed the following nominations:

Rufus W. Peckham, of New York, to be associate justice of the supreme court of the United States, vice Howell E. Jackson, deceased.

JUSTICE RUFUS W. PECKHAM.

Walter E. Faison, of North Carolina, solicitor for the department of state.

Elmer B. Adams, United States judge for the eastern district of Missouri.

Rebels Defeated.

Havana, Dec. 6.—On December 2 the Spanish columns under the command of Gens. Suarez Valdez and Navarro, numbering 1,250 men combined, had an engagement with the united insurgent forces of Maximo Gomez and Maceo, which have formed a junction in Riforma, between Las Villas and Camaguey. The rebels, who were 4,000 strong, lost a large number of killed and wounded. The Spanish troops captured rebel camp and pursued the insurgents to Trilladeros.

France Concludes to Yield.

Paris, Dec. 9.—The Journal des Debats says the French government consents to communicate to the United States the contents of the documents in the case of John L. Waller, ex-United States consul to Madagascar, who is now serving a term of imprisonment in France. This action, the Journal says, is taken as a mark of courtesy to the United States. The paper denies that the latter government is entitled to demand the documents.

Tug Founders and Crew Perish.

Duluth, Minn., Dec. 10.—News has been received here of the foundering of the tug Pearl S. Campbell, of the Inman line, of this city, off Huron island, about 40 miles from L'Anse, Mich., on Saturday morning. The lost are: Capt. W. L. McGilvra, master; John Lloyd, first mate; George McCort, chief engineer; Fred England, second engineer; cook, name unknown; two firemen, names unknown.

TO CLEAN CARPETS.

A Preparation That is Said to Be Excellent.

A clean barrel that will hold twelve gallons is required. Put into the barrel three gallons of lukewarm water (soft water is best), then add half a pint of ammonia. Take an iron kettle and put in three pints of water and six ounces of soap bark, which you will find at a druggist's; boil twenty minutes, then strain into the barrel. Shave very thin five bars of good soap and put in a boiler with one gallon of water, and boil until soap is all dissolved, then add one pound of pulverized borax and boil ten minutes, stirring all the time, then pour it into the boiler and add eight gallons of soft water, stir well and let it stand until cool and it is then ready for use. Brussels carpets can be cleaned nicely with this soap, also ingrain carpets which are soiled, if they have no dust under them. Take two pails of water; with a brush put on a little of this soap, and scrub with warm water, one breadth, not over one yard in length at one time, then with another brush and the clean water, scrub it over to rinse it, then proceed with the rest until you have cleaned the whole. It should be done on a sunny day, unless you have heat in the room.

An excellent scheme for cleaning ingrain carpets and art squares is to shake the carpets free from dust, then spread them on the bare floor, make a good suds with this soap, and with a stiff brush scrub the carpet, one breadth at a time, after you have cleaned a place, have a pail of clean water and scrub it well to get the suds out. This takes out grease and dirt. It is equally good for cleaning children's and men's clothing. Lay the garment on a clean board and scrub with a small brush, which you can purchase for a dime, then rinse.—Detroit Free Press.

WORK to which a man should give his whole heart—courtship.—N. Y. Journal.

KNOWLEDGE

Brings comfort and improvement and tends to personal enjoyment when rightly used. The many, who live better than others and enjoy life more, with less expenditure, by more promptly adapting the world's best products to the needs of physical being, will attest the value to health of the pure liquid laxative principles embraced in the remedy, Syrup of Figs.

Its excellence is due to its presenting in the form most acceptable and pleasant to the taste, the refreshing and truly beneficial properties of a perfect laxative; effectually cleansing the system, dispelling colds, headaches and fevers and permanently curing constipation. It has given satisfaction to millions and met with the approval of the medical profession, because it acts on the Kidneys, Liver and Bowels without weakening them and it is perfectly free from every objectionable substance.

Syrup of Figs is for sale by all druggists in 50c and $1 bottles, but it is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only, whose name is printed on every package, also the name, Syrup of Figs, and being well informed, you will not accept any substitute if offered.

Justifiable.

"There is some excuse," said the police judge, "for a man becoming exasperated by the strains of a hand organ, but to rush out and attack the musician with an ax is carrying things with a little too high a hand." "I know it is, jedge," pleaded the man who had never been in a police court before, "but when a blame Dago comes and stops in front of the house just after a man has had an argument with his wife about whether he gits an overcoat or her a cloak, and begins playin' 'Home, Sweet Home,' it is more than flesh an' blood kin stand!"—Indianapolis Journal.

DARE TO STAND ALONE.

The pulse of the world is becoming so weak
We'll never have anything new
While every one waits for his neighbor to speak,
Or to see what his neighbor will do.
And paths that we tread are so beaten and grooved,
That little for progress is done;
The mind of the millions too often has proved
The biased opinion of one.

Then down with the rule that retards and enslaves,
And the wrong that is reckoned a right;
For fashions and customs have often been graves
Where the soul has been buried from sight;
Where lives full of promise to chaos are hurled,
And talents are laid on the shelf;
But the man who is fitted to think for the world
Is the man who can think for himself.

Then dare to be honestly just what you are,
And dare to be voted a crank;
For anything, surely, is better by far
Than being an impotent blank.
And join in some noble unpopular cause,
And let your opinion be known;
For some, who are seeking the world's vain applause,
Will gain it by losing their own.
—Isabella F. Darling, in Christian News.

A WOMAN'S SAVING HAND.

BY EMILY BARTON.

He was ruined. As he left the gambling house on Kearney street, San Francisco, and wandered out into Golden Gate park he had absolutely not a dollar in his pockets wherewith to purchase a lodging or a meal. The downcast profile was clear-cut and firm, arguing powerful individuality in its owner, and yet a mania had seized him as it had seized many a weaker man, and he had staked his all and lost.

The moonlight touched his bowed head softly, silvered the outlines of his figure and revealed his haggard whiteness.

It fell on something else—something that glittered in his hands like steel.

"Stop! Don't do that!"

It was a woman's voice that spoke, a woman's touch that rested lightly on his sleeve, a woman's great dusky eyes, set in a face such as one sees but seldom in a lifetime, which were raised to his. She had strolled out to enjoy the beauty of the evening, and, absorbed in meditation, had wandered farther than she knew.

The man's arm dropped to his side. He looked at her in silence, wondering, admiring, perhaps a little ashamed.

"Why did you want to do it?" pursued the gentle voice. "Does life seem so evil a thing to you?"

"I have been a fool—a madman! I am ruined!"

"But you are a man. You can work. You can regain all that you have lost."

He shook his head.

"I cannot find employment here, and I haven't the means to return to my home, in Chicago."

Her hand slipped into her pocket and out again. Adroitly she drew the pistol away from him and pressed something into his hand in its place.

"See, I have bought this thing of you," she said, hurriedly. "You need not feel too grateful. Christians should help each other. If you want to repay me, swear to yourself that you will never do—what you attempted just now. I must leave you now. Good-by."

And she was gone before he could stay or thank her—swallowed up and lost in the shadow of the trees.

"Miss Ferris, allow me to introduce you to Mr. Fergus Landeck."

The first time they had met alone under the stars, in San Francisco; now they were amid a fashionable gathering in the home of one of the railroad magnates in New York. She was in evening dress, with diamonds sparkling on her throat and in her hair.

For an instant she returned his gaze, questioning, perplexed; then there was a flash of recognition, and he saw she knew.

"Will you take me into the conservatory, Mr. Landeck? It is so warm here."

They left the ballroom and strolled under the domed glasshouse where the palms and lilies grew.

"You have not forgotten, then?"

It was his voice, low and tremulous, which broke the silence.

"No; nor you, it seems."

"There are moments in a man's life which he never forgets. That was one of them. Do you know I have often wondered whether we should ever meet again, and I dared not indulge a hope until this evening, when for the first time I learned your name. Miss Ferris, shall we sit down for awhile? I am very grateful for this opportunity of speaking to you alone. I want—I want to return to you, with many thanks, the—the gift you gave me five years ago. Ah, don't say no. The obligation under which you placed me will none the less exist, and—and I shall always keep the little purse, always—in remembrance of that night—and you."

"Fortune has evidently favored you since," she said, after a pause.

"Yes, fortune has indeed favored me, Miss Ferris. Your gift was like the enchanted purses in the children's fairy tales—bottomless. It enabled me to reach the home of my parents in Chicago. I became a reformed man, and soon secured employment as secretary to the manager of a car construction company in Detroit. By industry and thrift I saved a little money. With it I bought land in a rising town of North Dakota. The starting of a big factory there gave the town a boom, and the land I had bought for a few hundred dollars I was able to dispose of for $55,000. I engaged in other speculations, exercising my best judgment, and everything I touched seemed to turn to gold; whatever I did was right. Money came to me in tens of thousands. I am to-day worth $200,000, and if it had not been for you I should be lying in a suicide's grave."

Something glistened on her lashes. She drooped her eyes and toyed with the feathers of her fan.

"I am glad, very glad, you have succeeded."

He gazed lingeringly on the graceful outlines of her figure, the curve of her full white throat and cheek, the brown hair which waved and curved about her brow and neck.

"And you"—his voice sank lower still—"you have not married?"

"No, as you see. But it is probable that I shall lose my freedom soon."

"Does that mean you are engaged?"

"It means that Mr. Harold McCormick the noted stock operator proposed to me by letter this morning, and that I am to give him his answer to-night."

"And is it to be 'yes?'"

She laughed a little.

"Do you know that is a very strange question to put on so short an acquaintance, and that our conversation is becoming unusual in the extreme? Mr. Landeck, you seem to forget that we were introduced only half an hour ago."

"You were present at the most solemn moment of my existence. Let me a little behind the scenes of your own life," he urged.

She hesitated, and cast a rapid glance at him. Her lips, quivering as with some hidden emotion, strove to smile.

"We seem fated to have strange confidences, you and I," she said, and laughed uncertainly. "If you are very curious to know, it is 'yes.' I shall accept him."

Perhaps it was only fancy or the flickering of the gas lights, but it seemed as though a sudden spasm crossed his face, born of disappointment or of pain.

"You care for him, of course?"

An uncontrollable impulse moved the woman to dash aside the barrier of conventionality and give expression to what she felt. She raised her eyes to his. They met, and the anguish in them touched him to the heart. She shook her head merely, then turned her face away.

"Then tell me why you are going to marry him."

"Because he is rich, and my father's property is heavily mortgaged. I may as well tell you the reason; everybody will know."

"You intend to sacrifice yourself for your family's sake?"

"Sacrifice! What an ugly way of putting it! I am going to make a 'marriage of convenience.' Other women are doing the same thing every day."

There was silence, save for the subdued sound of distant music.

They were alone.

In the dim light of the conservatory the man was blind to all but the white-clad form against the mass of foliage. The heavy perfume of the exotics seemed to rise and stifle him; the woman's beauty intoxicated his senses; the consciousness of her presence thrilled his very soul.

He leaned over and touched her gently on the arm.

"Sylvia, we are scarcely more than strangers, you and I. Perhaps you'll tell me I am mad. But I love you—Heaven knows I love you. I believe I loved you—then. Sylvia, will you—oh, for pity's sake, take me instead of him?"

"A most romantic affair," said the society papers when they were married. "He proposed to her the first time they met."—N. Y. Weekly.

FOR THE SICK ROOM.

Suggestions for the Woman Who Wishes to Be Valuable.

"When pain and sickness rend the brow" the woman who has not had some slight training in the rudimentary principles of nursing will prove a very inefficient ministering angel. She may wear noisy shoes; she may have the curtains up so high that the light shines into her patient's eyes; she may not draw the sheets smooth and tight, and discomfort will be the result. If she follows these rules, however, she will be more or less of the success.

The room should be kept exclusively neat. Especially should all soiled garments and utensils be removed, the towels and napkins be fresh, and the food offered arranged to please the eye as well as the palate. Never let curtains, rugs and table covers hang askew, or the invalid will have to straighten them mentally over and over again, one of the most distracting processes of an illness. To keep a patient from watching every line on the wall paper or wearing the mind with observations of all the defects in the furniture, bring a fresh bouquet of flowers or some other pleasing object on which the eye will love to linger. The bed should be kept orderly. Straighten the covers and smooth the pillows quietly whenever they get disordered, and in making the bed at the regular intervals do it thoroughly and with care. If it is not possible to change the bed linen daily, have two sets and alternate their use, so that each set may be well aired before using again.

Do not question invalids when you can avoid it, and let the work of the room be done quietly and unostentatiously, so as not to jar or rack the patient's sharpened nerves.

Carry the physician's orders out carefully and without criticism. Say nothing about the medicine until you have prepared it neatly, and afterwards put cups, spoons and towels out of sight.

In giving baths—a very necessary care—be gentle—but so firm of touch that the patient will understand that you are thoroughly self-possessed and need feel no concern. Nothing is so fatal as an invalid's lack of confidence in your physical strength.

If you know what healthful dishes will please your patient prepare them promptly without consulting the sick, and observe the utmost daintiness in detail. Never season an invalid's food highly, and avoid melted butter as much as possible, using cream on toast and roasted potatoes. It is hard for a sick person to wait long for a meal when hungry, therefore never let her do so. When sitting with the sick don't rattle a newspaper or creak your chair; speak gently and distinctly, but don't talk too much. Never discuss diseases.

Wear soft garments and light shoes, so as to avoid a nerve-searching rustle or a heavy, jarring step. A nurse's garments should be changed often, and should be neat and fresh. A crooked collar or dropping pin is tantalizing to sick nerves.

Do your best to keep long-faced visitors away, and, in fact, visitors of every kind; strangers often serve to excite a sick person. Tolerate no whispering in the room or just outside the door. When permissible, have the room cool, quiet and dark at night, and look out for ventilation, and let in all the fresh air you can without injury to the occupant of the bed.—N. Y. World.

Their Different Opinions.

"The little dear is lost again," she said, as soon as he got home.

"Oh, that pug!"

"Yes, that pug, if you must talk like a brute, and I want you to advertise for him."

MINNESOTA NEWS.

Insurance Matters.

Secretary Hemphill, of the Minneapolis Board of Trade, is mailing copies of a call for a meeting of business men and others interested in fire insurance, to be held in that city Dec. 17, at the Board of Trade rooms.

In the language of the circular, "It has been deemed wise to call a representative state convention of all those who buy insurance, to carefully consider and simplify of good insurance." All users of insurance are urged to be present and participate in the discussion. Among the topics to be discussed are the present methods of fixing insurance rates, necessity of co-operating among the assured, the other matters of vital interest.

The Board of Trade hopes to accomplish much in the way of securing concessions from insurance companies at the coming convention. It is claimed by many that rates are exorbitantly high in some quarters, and that instances will be cited where manufacturing plants have refused to enter the state because of the excessive premiums demanded by fire insurance companies. President Crocker, from the interest already manifested, expects that the attendance at the convention will be large and representative.

Coasting Accident.

Three boys who were coasting on Sims street, St. Paul, between Arcane street and Payne avenue collided with a northbound electric car at Greenbriar avenue. All were injured. They were:

Henry Wunderlich, aged 11, of 842 Case street, left leg crushed.

Georgie Buck, aged 11, of 749 Sims street, skull crushed.

Willie Quillan, aged 10, of Sims and Arcade streets, right arm broken.

It is thought that all the boys will recover. Wunderlich was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital, where his leg was amputated a few inches below the knee. He will recover unless another amputation is found to be necessary. Buck was taken home and treated by Dr. S. W. Robillard. His skull was trephined and a bone which had been crowded into the brain matter was raised to its place. Quillan escaped with a plain fracture.

Fruits.

The 29th annual meeting of the Minnesota State Horticultural society opened in the new court house at Minneapolis amid much enthusiasm and confronted by much hard work. The attendance was excellent, being larger than was anticipated. It was the largest meeting that the society has held for some years, and fully 100 representatives of fruit culture all over the state were present at the opening session. Fruit culture has come to be a large industry in Minnesota, and although few people are aware of it, the North Star state is developing a reputation for fine apples and grapes and small fruit that promises to make Minnesota an envied name at future meetings of the great national bodies. In one of the rooms at the court house was one of the finest displays of apples and grapes ever witnessed anywhere in the northwestern country.

Must Pay.

The supreme court rendered a decision that will be of interest to all savings and loan and kindred institutions. The case is that of the state against the Pioneer Savings and Loan company, of Minneapolis, and the decision affirms that of the lower court, which held that money in bank and undivided profits of the company were subject to taxation. The syllabus is as follows:

First—Held that section 35, chapter 236, laws 1889, and sections 34, 35, chapter 131, laws 1891, are unconstitutional for they exempt from taxation in this state a substantial portion of the personal property of building and loan associations doing business within and without this state, contrary to the provisions of section 3, article IX., of the constitution. Order affirmed.

Close Call.

C. T. Pointer, a colored man, employed by Engineer T. M. McGuire to to repair the elevator in S. E. Olson's store, Minneapolis, while at work in the attic lost his balance and fell 100 feet down the shaft. The only thing that saved his life was the screening in the top of the elevator; this broke the force of the fall. He was picked up unconscious, and Dr. S. S. Kilvington was summoned. An examination of the injured man showed no bones broken and no internal injuries.

Ready for Business.

P. B. Groat, secretary and treasurer of the Minnesota State Immigration association, has opened an office in the Hale black, 309 Jackson street, opposite the Merchants Hotel, St. Paul. It will be a convenient place for the citizens of the state to meet and confer upon measures to promote settlement in the state. Mr. Groat is also prepared to distribute advertising matter in answer to letters of inquiry.

HOME HINTS AND HELPS.

—Baked Apple Sauce.—One quart of apples, quartered; put them in a pudding dish and cover them over with sugar; then pour on one-half cupful of water. Cover with an earthen dish, and bake one hour.—Chicago Chronicle.

—Stewed Kidneys.—Cut the kidneys into small dice and throw into boiling water and cook one hour; one dozen will be enough for five persons. Lambs' kidneys are used. Put on the fire one-half pint of milk and when it comes to boil add one heaping teaspoonful of flour and one heaping teaspoonful of butter. Season with salt and pepper and stew the kidneys in this sauce for ten minutes.—Chicago Record.

—Stockings.—A good way of preserving the color of black stockings is to wash them in soap free from soda, and in the last rinsing water add a teaspoonful of vinegar. Never iron black stockings. Dry them in the shade.

—Boston Brown Bread.—For one large loaf use three pints of sifted cornmeal, three pints of rye flour, one cup of hop yeast and one cup of molasses. Mix very soft with warm water, pour the mixture into a round pudding tin and allow it to stand until light. Bake with a steady fire for three hours.—Ladies' Home Journal.

—Brown Cake.—One-half cup sugar; one cup molasses, one-half cup butter, one teaspoon each of cinnamon, cloves and allspice; two teaspoons of soda in one cup boiling water; two and one-half cups of flour; two well-beaten eggs, the last thing. Bake in layers and put together with white icing very thick between the layers.—Womankind.

—Potatoes in the Pan.—Steam sweet potatoes until they are soft, but not broken. Peel and slice them. Boil two cups of sugar and one and one-half cups of water into a thick sirup. Stir it into one-half cup of butter. Put the sliced potatoes into a deep baking dish, and pour the sirup over them. Sprinkle bits of butter over them and bake from one and a half to two hours.—Detroit Free Press.

—Dutch Ramakins.—Scrape a quarter of a pound of good Cheshire or Gloucester cheese, mix with it about one and one-half ounces of butter and the yolks of two hard-boiled eggs. Put it into a mortar and pound it to a smooth paste. Toast some slices of bread, butter them and cut them into square pieces, spread the mixture thickly over them, brown them in a quick oven, and serve as hot as possible. A little cayenne added to the paste is an improvement.—Boston Budget.

—How to Cook Meat.—Take care the fire is made up thoroughly, and all the various cooking utensils required are ready for use, clean, and at hand. The joint should be overhauled and cleansed where necessary. Baked meat should always be placed upon a trivet, and that in a baking tin, care being taken that the joint is placed in the center of the dish, and does not touch the sides of the oven. Ventilate the oven. Boiled fresh meat should be immersed in boiling water, as the heat draws out the substance which forms a coating that retains the juice of the joint. Broiling wants special care, such as a clear fire and warm gridiron. Coke is better than coal. Frying: Pan should be warmed first and then fat thoroughly boiling. Meat or fish should not be put on till fat boils. Stewing: The joint in this case is placed in cold water, and should simmer only, never really boil. This takes a much longer time than either boiling or roasting.—Liverpool Mercury.

WASTE OF CORNFIELDS.

Husks and Stalks Have a Nutritive Value Hitherto Unknown.

It is interesting to learn from the experiment stations that corn husks contain more nutritive value than we have imagined in the past. The very name "husks" is synonymous with unnutritious and poor stuff, but names are misapplied. Next to the grain, the dried husks of corn are the most nutritious and digestible of the corn plant. In the north we have been wasting them largely in the past. When the corn was husked the husks were frequently torn from the stalks and left to blow about the field. We have consequently been throwing away the husks and feeding the stalks.

Another part of the corn that is wasted, even to-day, is the stubble. This uncut part is usually left in the field over winter. In the spring the stubbles are harrowed out and the larger ones carted away to be thrown in the nearest waste pile. Some of them are plowed under and go to help fertilize the soil. Now, the fact is the digestibleness of the corn stubble is very high, standing next in importance to the husks. An acre of stubble will yield about 600 pounds of digestible, nutritious matter. It is estimated that they are worth 25 per cent. more than the tops and contain much more nutriment than the stalks.

These two facts, brought out by scientific investigation at the stations, show how very apt farmers are to be mistaken and how many of our so-called wastes can be disposed of profitably. The corn crop cannot be properly utilized until the whole part of the corn plant can be ground up together, including the stalks, tops, husks and stubble. When these can be ground up and grain mixed with the mass we will have the ideal method of cattle feeding. Such a machine could be easily devised and should not be expensive. The thick butts of the stalks are generally wasted by the cows, for they are so large, clumsy and hard that it is hard work for them to bite through. But these thick butts and husks contain 1,000 pounds of digestible matter per acre if they can be cut up and shredded properly. Moreover, the cows enjoy the food, and when cut up for them eat it engerly. Furthermore, the total digestible matter in the ears per acre is put at about 1,500 pounds, and all of the fodder at 1,630. In other words, we have been wasting the best part of the corn crop.—Chicago Tribune.

The Cause of Idiocy.

Several eminent Georgia physicians are agreed that in about ten per cent. of the cases of supposed idiocy among children the affliction is caused by an abnormal growth in the canal back of the nose. This growth, seldom visible, is indicated by the nasal speech and defective hearing of those afflicted; the mouth is kept nearly always open, and the little sufferer makes scant or no progress in school. Nothing but an operation by a skillful surgeon will effect a cure, but then a cure is assured.—Chicago Chronicle.

MACKEREL BRINE.

How It Cured an Indiana Justice of Rheumatism.

Once upon a time, says the Peru (Ind.) Chronicle, there lived at Huntington a German potentate of the name of Louis Hitzfield, who from time immemorial was a justice of the peace. The squire grew into influence, wealth, gout, corpulency and sciatica simultaneously. The older he became the goutier, more dogmatic and rheumatic, until at length his sufferings were intolerable and relief was imperative to postpone the inevitable foreclosure on the tenure of his existence. He was advised to go to Mount Clemens, and went and took a course of treatment and returned greatly relieved.

He had not only bathed in the pools, but tasted the waters. In the course of time the affliction returned in all the various forms and degrees of torture, and he resolved, having, as he believed, fully analyzed the water and become acquainted with its composite qualities, to prepare a bathing solution for himself. He purchased a number of half barrels of mackerel, took the fish out for family consumption and reserved the salt brine for bathing his rheumatic limbs. His experience, after testing both Mount Clemens brine and the mackerel solution, was that the latter was equally effective as the former, and he never went to Mount Clemens again.

Does Farming Pay?

This question is frequently asked and discussed. That it does pay when the right man is farming there can be no doubt. An instance of double success on the same farm was so pointedly brought out by A. M. Powell, of Devils Lake, N. D., in his address before the recent Immigration convention in St. Paul, that we reproduce the entire paragraph. Mr. Powell said:

"As an illustration, let me refer to the success of Elder John W. Hartsock, a Dunkard, formerly from Knox, Ind., who last April came to Ramsey county, bought an improved farm of 320 acres for $4,000 on the 'crop payment plan,' and was able the first year to pay $1,350 of the purchase price out of the proceeds of his grain, after reserving enough for seed for next year and living expenses until another harvest—and has hundreds of yellow-legged poultry for the visiting brethren. This payment of $1,350 represents 10 per cent on $13,500, or 33⅓ per cent on the cost of the farm, which averaged $12.50 per acre. Mr. Hartsock knows a good thing when he sees it, and as evidence of that fact has since bought on the 'crop payment plan' 160 acres of wild land adjoining his farm. He is now on his way to Indiana to induce some of his old time friends to come to North Dakota and share his success, which is not at all exceptional. I might add that Mr. Welsh, who had sold this farm to the good elder, has, in his twelve years farming in our country, accrued the modest cash sum of $13,000 from an original capital of $250. He has just returned to his old home in Canada and will do immigration work for 'a pastime' this winter, and return to North Dakota with the spring birds."

Disastrous Failure!

We can mention no failure more disastrous than that of physical energy. It involves the partial suspension of the digestive and assimilative processes, and entails the retirement from business of the liver and kidneys. Only through the good offices of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters can the restoration of its former vigorous status be hoped for. When this aid has been secured, a resumption of activity in the stomach, liver and bowels may be relied upon. The Bitters conquers malaria and kidney troubles.

DELANO DIARY

—The event of the season. The Georgia University Graduates. City Hall, Monday next.

—On Wednesday morning a fire alarm called numerous of the most active citizens to the city hall, to learn that a chimney on Young's Hotel was burning out. No further harm done.

—The newsboy on the westbound train Wednesday morning, reaped quite a harvest of nickels. Lots of people who would not squander their money in such a manner if the governor had died, bought papers to read of the hanging of Harry Hayward.

—A petition has been drawn up and numerously signed to be presented to the Board of County Commissioners asking that a county road be established from near Frank Crolley's farm, in Woodland, to the bridge at Wright's ford. This will straighten up a road to Woodland from that part of the town, and accommodate quite a number of people.

—The M. E. Quarterly Conference was held in the church on Monday evening. After an interesting sermon by Presiding Elder Chaffee business matters were attended to. Reports were read and the preacher's salary discussed, and re-adjusted. The Ladies' Aid Society was voted permission to paper and fix up the church. The next quarterly meeting was voted to be held in Delano.

—On Sunday afternoon the fire alarm called the citizens out to find smoke pouring from the new Presbyterian Church in large volumes. More people went to church on short notice than have been there for some time. The fire apparatus was soon brought into use and a stream turned on. Most of the movable objects were removed. The fire was finally extinguished without doing very serious damage. The insurance companies will make good the loss.

—Last Fair Day was a disgrace to the village. In the evening one man got his leg broke, and it is reported got hold of a gun and threatened to shoot someone, until the gun was taken away from him. Things were so bad that a couple of the leading saloons and at least one general store shut up early in the evening. Our decapitated village council don't seem competent to cope with such cases. They have had $3,500. of license money, and have levied $300. tax for next year, and yet they can't afford a cage in the jail; not even a stove, to keep the room warm, and but one policeman for day and night service. If the city fathers insisted that the contracts made with saloon keepers were kept, (that is, if they are made according to law,) there would be no need for these disgraceful occurrences.

GAZETTE $1.00 per year.

—Seats are now on sale at Wittman's Drug Store for the Georgia University Graduates.

—Notice Conzet, Darrow & Son in their great act of cutting down prices, in another column.

—Delano's fire companies seem to be in need of a re-organization. To do the best work there should be a head to things.

—Preparations for the grand Cantata before Christmas, are being made. It is expected to be the biggest thing of the season.

—Peruse the pupils paragraphs in another column. They have been a little dilatory about starting in, but will doubtless make amends now.

—Have you guessed on the jar of beans in Mealey's jewelry store? If you have not don't miss the chance of receiving a nice Silver Tea Set, Free!

—Last weeks GAZETTE contains the President's Message to Congress. Read it if you have not done so. There is nothing like being posted in public matters.

—The Pioneer Press says the Delano Eagle "under its new management is taking long strides in advancement." Isn't that rather a hard thrust at the Eagles old management?

—Martin Conzet, of Greenwood, was a GAZETTE caller one day this week. He watches things political quite closely, and remarked that Czar Reed was again in the Speaker's chair but wheat had not yet come up to a dollar a bushel.

—Some steps should be taken by the Board of Education to provide a safe means of egress from the school buildings in case of fire. A gong could be fixed which should be rung in time of a conflagration and the students could practice until the discipline was such as to insure safety. The accidents in case of a fire might prove very serious as it would be next to impossible to conduct a large body of children out of doors safely. Such drills are given in all large sized schools and it is but another advance in modern education. The fire the other day in the east side school, if it had gained any headway, would probably have proved serious. —The High School Chronicle, Morris.

This coming from the school now under the superintendency of Professor Dewey, our former Principal, which it seems has been having some experience, will be of interest to some of our readers, and possibly our Board of Education may receive a ray of light in regard to the necessity of their providing some avenue of escape for the occupants of our fine school building in case of a fire. A six room two story school house with but one door to get out at is unsafe in case a fire should occur. And when small boys carry matches and smoke cigaretts and when older people, for instance members of the School Board, some of whom are edicted to the vile habit of smoking, occasionally pay a visit to the premises there is danger of mysterious fires, and it would be a wise plan to provide a way out, in case of necessity, for those in the upper rooms, other than the front door.

School Notes.

We have only one more week of school before vacation.

The English Literature class does not always recite the full period; a very convenient way of doing as every few minutes for studying, helps.

The class in History of Greece and Rome have finished the work in the book and are now taking up special topics, preparatory to the examination in January

The pupils of the eighth grade have been placed in the grammar room as there is a lack of seats in the high school department.

Some of the high school students had a pleasant time coasting Tuesday evening.

One of our high school girls has the "blues" a great deal notwithstanding the fact that she is near the Mills so much.

The new music books have arrived and the result seems to be that the music lessons are discontinued.

Several new pupils have entered the high school room lately and our enrollment now numbers thirty-one.

Miss Viola Cunningham and Miss Nellie Vorse were absent from school several day this week on account of bad colds.

Miss Kimball will visit her home Saturday and Sunday.

A member of the physics class attempted to take too great a shock from the electrical machine and the result was the machine was shocked instead. The force pump suffered in the same way.

Several very necessary articles were lost while coasting Tuesday night. For further particulars inquire of the President of the class of '96.

One of the gentleman members of the Physics class, who had been studying adhesion, cohesion, affinity, etc., while walking down the street not long ago, became attached to a baby carriage and was with great difficulty released from his un-wished-for position by the young ladies who were with him. He gave the cause of the accident as natural affinity.

Personals.

Dr. E. E. Shrader, of Watertown, was a Delano visitor Tuesday.

Charley Cunningham visited Minneapolis, the fore part of the week.

J. C. and J. W. McDonald and crew have gone west to build depots.

Professor and Mrs. Pryor, of Montrose, did business in Delano, Saturday.

John A. Mayer came home from St. Cloud for a brief visit during the week.

Dr. J. S. Shrader and family returned home from the cities, Monday morning.

John Cameron, who has been at Benson for some time, has returned home, looking well.

Chairman of County Commissioners Kemper, of Victor, was seen in town Wednesday morning.

J. W. Mounts, of Rockford, was a GAZETTE caller, Saturday. He claims to have belonged to the "immortal seven" and been a "standing delgate" for years, to Democratic State Conventions.

County Cullings.

A good staunch Republican of Delano said, immediately on hearing that Harry Hayward was hung, "If Clough runs for Governor again I will vote for him."

Rev. Jack Parmeter writes us from Evanson, Wash., "Yes, I not only preach to the Nooksack Indian Mission, through an interpreter; but heve also the Sumas charge, two preaching places among white folks" He says it keeps him busy and all are well. Rev. Jack has lots of friends in Wright County who will be glad to hear of his prosperity.

The County Commissioners at their meeting this week resolved to receive bids for next years printing at the January meeting. The board seems to have got its eye teeth cut, and have concluded to have all type set solid.

The claims of Louis Buck and Joe Bauman for taking Frank Dusa, insane, to Buffalo, were not allowed.

Justice Court claims were laid over till next meeting. Such claims should meet with as prompt attention as claims of the Commitsioners themselves. If claims need laying over why don't they lay over some of their own occasionally?

Wm. Cochrane was appointed to investigate the Register of Deeds affairs for '94, at a cost of not to exceed $3. per day for six days.

Action on the Grand Jury's instruction that they order an investigation the records of Justices of the Peace, was deferred to next meeting.

Coming Next Monday Night

The Georgia Univesity Graduates in all their Mirth and Glory. This company is composod of 15 celebrated Colored Artists, including the best singers dancers and musicians of the University, also including the famous Suannee River Quartette. This Company will, no doubt receive a packed house, as they come highly recommended. The prices for this engagement will be—15, 25, and 35 cents.

COTTON STATE EXPOSITION.

Atlanta, Ga., Sept. 18, Dec. 31, 1895.

The schedule printed below is a comprehensive guide to the best and most desirable route to Atlanta from the North and Northwest, Chicago, Indianapolis, Cincinnati, Louisville, St. Louis Terre Haute, and Evansville.

Palace Day Coaches and Pullman Sleeping Cars are attached to all trains shown in this schedule.

Extremely low rates have been made to Atlanta and return via the Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis railway. All trains run solid between Nashville and Atlanta, except train in last column. The train in third column, which leaves Cincinnati at 4:30 p. m. runs solid to Atlanta. This is the route of the famous "Dixie Flyer," through "all the year round" sleeping car line between Nashville, Tenn., and Jacksonville, Fla.

The thumb is an unfailing index of character. The Square Type indicates a strong will, great energy and firmness. Closely allied is the Spatulated Type, the distinguishing mark of advanced ideas and business ability. Both of these types belong to the busy men or women; and Demorest's Family Magazine prepares especially for such persons a whole volume of new ideas, condensed in a small space, so that the record of the whole world's work for a month may be read in half an hour. The Conical Type indicates refinement, talent, and a love of music, poetry, and fashion. A person with this type of thumb will thoroughly enjoy the literary attractions of Demorest's Magazine. The Artistic Type indicates a love of beauty and art, which will find rare pleasure in the magnificent oil-picture of roses, 10½ x 22 inches, reproduced from the original painting by De Longpre, the most celebrated of living flower-painters, which will be given to every subscriber to Demorest's Magazine for 1896. The cost of such a work of art as this would be $5.00; and it cannot be distinguished from the original. Besides this, an exquisite oil or water-color picture is published in each number of the Magazine, and the articles are so profusely and superbly illustrated that the Magazine is, in reality, a portfolio of art works of the highest order. The Philosophic Type is the thumb of the thinker and inventor of life's, who will be deeply interested in these developed features in Demorest's Magazine. In every one of its numerous departments, which range the entire artistic and scientific field, there is every fact, fancy, and fashion of the day presented in the most entertaining manner. Demorest's Family Magazine, and especially its fashion department, is the recognized Queen of the Monthlies. Send in your subscription; it will cost only $2.00, and you will have a dozen Magazines to read. Address W. JENNINGS DEMOREST, 15 East 16th Street, New York. Though not a fashion magazine, its perfect fashion papers, and its articles on family and domestic matters, will be of superlative interest to those for whom fashion is a principal part of the home. Premium Department, which is to be sent free, and speedily, to every subscriber, while being second to the other set, every one of which should subscribe to Demorest's Magazine. If you do not subscribe with the rest, send for a specimen copy free, and it will admit that seeing these THUMBS has put a finish to the way of saving money by finding in one magazine everything to satisfy the literary wants of a whole family.

DELANO DIARY

—The event of the season. The Georgia University Graduates. City Hall, Monday next.

—On Wednesday morning a fire alarm called numerous of the most active citizens to the city hall, to learn that a chimney on Young's Hotel was burning out. No further harm done.

—The newsboy on the westbound train Wednesday morning, reaped quite a harvest of nickels. Lots of people who would not squander their money in such a manner if the governor had died, bought papers to read of the hanging of Harry Hayward.

—A petition has been drawn up and numerously signed to be presented to the Board of County Commissioners asking that a county road be established from near Frank Crolley's farm, in Woodland, to the bridge at Wright's ford. This will straighten up a road to Woodland from that part of the town, and accommodate quite a number of people.

—The M. E. Quarterly Conference was held in the church on Monday evening. After an interesting sermon by Presiding Elder Chaffee business matters were attended to. Reports were read and the preacher's salary discussed, and re-adjusted. The Ladies' Aid Society was voted permission to paper and fix up the church. The next quarterly meeting was voted to be held in Delano.

—On Sunday afternoon the fire alarm called the citizens out to find smoke pouring from the new Presbyterian Church in large volumes. More people went to church on short notice than have been there for some time. The fire apparatus was soon brought into use and a stream turned on. Most of the moyable objects were removed. The fire was finally extinguished without doing very serious damage. The insurance companies will make good the loss.

—Last Fair Day was a disgrace to the village. In the evening one man got his leg broke, and it is reported got hold of a gun and threatened to shoot someone, until the gun was taken away from him. Things were so bad that a couple of the leading saloons and at least one general store shut up early in the evening. Our decapitated village council don't seem competent to cope with such cases. They have had $3,500. of license money, and have levied $300. tax for next year, and yet they can't afford a cage in the jail; not even a stove, to keep the room warm, and but one policeman for day and night service. If the city fathers insisted that the contracts made with saloon keepers were kept, (that is, if they are made according to law,) there would be no need for these disgraceful occurrences.

GAZETTE $1.00 per year.

—Seats are now on sale at Wittman's Drug Store for the Georgia University Graduates.

—Notice Conzet, Darrow & Son in their great act of cutting down prices, in another column.

—Delano's fire companies seem to be in need of a re-organization. To do the best work there should be a head to things.

—Preparations for the grand Cantata before Christmas, are being made. It is expected to be the biggest thing of the season.

—Peruse the pupils paragraphs in another column. They have been a little dilatory about starting in, but will doubtless make amends now.

—Have you guessed on the jar of beans in Mealey's jewelry store? If you have not don't miss the chance of receiving a nice Silver Tea Set, Free!

—Last weeks GAZETTE contains the President's Message to Congress. Read it if you have not done so. There is nothing like being posted in public matters.

—The Pioneer Press says the Delano Eagle "under its new management is taking long strides in advancement." Isn't that rather a hard thrust at the Eagles old management?

—Martin Conzet, of Greenwood, was a GAZETTE caller one day this week. He watches things political quite closely, and remarked that Czar Reed was again in the Speaker's chair but wheat had not yet come up to a dollar a bushel.

—Some steps should be taken by the Board of Education to provide a safe means of egress from the school buildings in case of fire. A gong could be fixed which should be rung in time of a conflagration and the students could practice until the discipline was such as to insure safety. The accidents in case of a fire might prove very serious as it would be next to impossible to conduct a large body of children out of doors safely. Such drills are given in all large sized schools and it is but another advance in modern education. The fire the other day in the east side school, if it had gained any headway, would probably have proved serious. —The High School Chronicle, Morris.

This coming from the school now under the superintendency of Professor Dewey, our former Principal, which it seems has been having some experience, will be of interest to some of our readers, and possibly our Board of Education may receive a ray of light in regard to the necessity of their providing some avenue of escape for the occupants of our fine school building in case of a fire. A six room two story school house with but one door to get out at is unsafe in case a fire should occur. And when small boys carry matches and smoke cigaretts and when older people, for instance members of the School Board, some of whom are edicted to the vile habit of smoking, occasionally pay a visit to the premises there is danger of mysterious fires, and it would be a wise plan to provide a way out, in case of necessity, for those in the upper rooms, other than the front door.

School Notes.

We have only one more week of school before vacation.

The English Literature class does not always recite the full period; a very convenient way of doing as every few minutes for studying, helps.

The class in History of Greece and Rome have finished the work in the book and are now taking up special topics, preparatory to the examination in January

The pupils of the eighth grade have been placed in the grammar room as there is a lack of seats in the high school department.

Some of the high school students had a pleasant time coasting Tuesday evening.

One of our high school girls has the "blues" a great deal notwithstanding the fact that she is near the Mills so much.

The new music books have arrived and the result seems to be that the music lessons are discontinued.

Several new pupils have entered the high school room lately and our enrollment now numbers thirty-one.

Miss Viola Cunningham and Miss Nellie Yorse were absent from school several day this week on account of bad colds.

Miss Kimball will visit her home Saturday and Sunday.

A member of the physics class attempted to take too great a shock from the electrical machine and the result was the machine was shocked instead. The force pump suffered in the same way.

Several very necessary articles were lost while coasting Tuesday night. For further particulars inquire of the President of the class of '96.

One of the gentleman members of the Physics class, who had been studying adhesion, cohesion, affinity, etc., while walking down the street not long ago, became attached to a baby carriage and was with great difficulty released from his un-wished-for position by the young ladies who were with him. He gave the cause of the accident as natural affinity.

The following are the officers of the Senior class: President, Geo. Kurtz; vice-president, Stella Davis; Secy. and Treas., John Steffes: Class rogidy, D. Boy Sutton; class historian, Viola B. Cunningham; class poet, Erma B. Wilder. The class yell is—Zip, boom, bah; Delano rah; '96, '96, Ha. ha, ha. The motto is -"Ex scholae vita, in vitae scholam." CLASS '96

Personals.

Dr. E. E. Shrader, of Watertown, was a Delano visitor Tuesday.

Charley Cunningham visited Minneapolis, the fore part of the week.

J. C. and J. W. McDonald and crew have gone west to build depots.

Professor and Mrs Pryor, of Montrose, did business in Delano, Saturday.

John A. Mayer came home from St. Cloud for a brief visit during the week.

Dr. J. S. Shrader and family returned home from the cities, Monday morning.

John Cameron, who has been at Benson for some time, has returned home, looking well.

Chairman of County Commissioners Kemper, of Victor, was seen in town Wednesday morning.

J. W. Mounts, of Rockford, was a GAZETTE caller, Saturday. He claims to have belonged to the "immortal seven" and been a "standing delgate" for years, to Democratic State Conventions.

County Cullings.

A good staunch Republican of Delano said, immediately on hearing that Harry Hayward was hung, "If Clough runs for Governor again I will vote for him."

Rev. Jack Parmeter writes us from Evanson, Wash., "Yes, I not only preach to the Nooksack Indian Mission, through an interpreter; but heve also the Sumas charge, two preaching places among white folks" He says it keeps him busy and all are well. Rev. Jack has lots of friends in Wright County who will be glad to hear of his prosperity.

The County Commissioners at their meeting this week resolved to receive bids for next years printing at the January meeting. The board seems to have got its eye teeth cut, and have concluded to have all type set solid.

The claims of Louis Buck and Joe Bauman for taking Frank Dusa, insane, to Buffalo, were not allowed.

Justice Court claims were laid over till next meeting. Such claims should meet with as prompt attention as claims of the Commitsioners themselves. If claims need laying over why don't they lay over some of their own occasionally?

Wm. Cochrane was appointed to investigate the Register of Deeds affairs for '94, at a cost of not to exceed $3. per day for six days.

Action on the Grand Jury's instruction that they order an investigation the records of Justices of the Peace, was deferred to next meeting.

Coming Next Monday Night

The Georgia University Graduates in all their Mirth and Glory. This company is composod of 15 celebrated Colored Artists, including the best singers dancers and musicians of the University, also including the famous Suannee River Quartette. This Company will, no doubt receive a packed house, as they come highly recommended. The prices for this engagement will be—15, 25, and 35 cents.

MY PHILOSOFY.

I shut, ner don't p'tend to be,
Much posted on philosofy:
But there is times, when all alone,
I work out ideas of my own
And of these same there is a few
I'd like to jest refer to you—
Percyidin' that you don't object
To listen clos't and pick elect.

I allus argy that the man
Who does about the best he can,
Is plenty good enough to suit
This lower mundane institute—
No matter of his daily walk
Is subject for his neighbor's talk,
And critic minds of ev'ry whim
Jest all git up and go fer him!

It's natchural enough, I guess,
When some gits more and some gits less,
For them-uns on the slimmest side
To claim it aint a fair deviide:
And I've knowed some to lay and wait,
And git up soon and set up late,
To ketch some feller they could hate
Fer gain' at a faster gait.

The signs is bad when folks commence
A findin' fault with Providence,
And balkin' 'cause the earth don't shake
At ev'ry prancin' step they take.
No man is great till he can see
How less than little he would be Ef stripped to self, and stark and bare
He hung his sign out anywhere.

My doctern is to lay aside
Contentions and be satisfied:
Jest do your best, and praise or blame
That follers that, counts jest the same.
I've allus made it separate success
Is mixed with troubles, more or less,
And it's the man who does the best
That gits more kicks than all the rest.

JAMES WHITCOMB RILEY.

SAMPLE copies of "The Fourth Estate" have reached our exchange table. This is a newspaper for the makers of newspapers and contains much valuable news and information for the average editor.

EDITOR JOUBERT, of Litchfield, is writing home from our country's Capitol some very interesting letters to his paper, the News Ledger. Among other things he says of our Congressman, "in Mr. Towne, the Duluth district has ore that will assay way above the congressional standard." Silver ore, of course.

HAMLINE UNIVERSITY has taken another long stride toward perfection in the University line and has added three new Departments, Liberal Arts, Theology and Medicine, The Minneapolis School of Physicians and Surgeons has become a part of the great University; this school has long been known as a hard working institution of learning and will be an addition to the University while it will itself receive benefit in many ways.

PHILADELPHIA on Tuesday had a strike on its street car lines. Everybody had to find other means of travel than by street cars, or go afoot. It is reported that the populace sympathize with the strikers; but that hundreds of men are applying for work and new men will be hired. There ought to be some way of adjusting difficulties between employer and employee besides having such great inconveniences to the general public occur. Where is the Statesman that will solve the difficulty?

OWATONNA has recently had one of those disgraceful whiskey rows with which most Minnesota towns, under the existing license laws, are familiar. The marshal, named Stewart, attempted to arrest a man named Kipner, who had been drinking and had started for his home in the country. The marshal received several bullets from a small revolver in the hands of the man, and afterwards shot Kipner in the back. A coroner's inquest was held and the jury returned a verdict that the marshal overstepped his authority in making the arrest. It is wrong for village authorities to sit by and see the law violated time again, until some poor fellow gets wild, and then resort to heroic means for his capture. An ounce of prevention would be better than a pound of cure, in these cases.

PRESIDENT CLEVELAND has sent to Congress a message on the Venezuela boundary dispute. He has also turned over the correspondence between Great Britain and Uncle Sam on the subject. It appears that for the past twenty-five years the boundary between Venezuela and British Guiana, in South America, has been a subject of controversy. Secretary Olney sent a communication to the English authorities asking them to submit the subject to arbitration, and claiming, under the Monroe Doctrine, the right to do so. Lord Salsbury has finally replied to this invitation, that they will do nothing of the sort, or words to that effect. It looks now as if there might have to be an arbitration of some kind between Great Britain and the United States, as to whether or not Uncle Sam has the right to, or will enforce the Monroe Doctrine.

DR. BRIDGEMAN made a point when he remarked that Hamline had not made so good a record as some in foot-ball, but now that she has a Medical Department she hopes to be able to set the broken noses of foot-ball players.

THE Litchfield Independent this week contained a lengthy report of the Dairy Convention held in Litchfield last week. It was a grand success. There are about 160 members, most of whom were present. Such meetings tend to create an interest in business, and are beneficial to those who take part in them.

THE committee for locating the Fourth Hospital for Insane have settled on Hastings as the proper place. We were not on the committee and have never visited the Hastings site and don't feel like disputing but that their site is a good one. But we do believe we have about as good a right to claim that the Delano site, which is a fine one, is superior to the Hastings site, as has the part of the Commission which failed to visit the Delano site. Hastings is in the southern part of the state, is on the edge of the state. Is as far from Minneapolis as Delano is from St. Paul by cars. Is it not a scheme to make all people pass through the two cities. Politicians claimed from the first that either Hastings or Anoka woule get the Hospital. Hastings has.

Harrison Opposed.

George L. Angell, in Our Dumb Animals says: „So when we find a nominally Christian man standing so prominent as Ex President Harrison, setting so bad an example to the million members of our "Bands if Mercy," and the many millions we want to join them, as he has done by absolutely refusing to become a member of "The Indiana Society for the Prevention of Cruelty," and spending his summer in the Adirondacks shooting harmless deer simply for the fun of killing them, we deem it our duty to oppose his receiving another nomination to the high and influencial office of President of the United States.

Unwilling Witnesses.

Quite a commotion has been stirred up by the refusal of Editor Ed Paradis of the Midway News, having been incarcerated in jail for refusing to testify in a jail breaking case. Editors throughout the state are discussing whether or not "unwilling witnesses" should be made to give testimony in courts of justice against their friends. If "unwilling witnesses" do not testify, who will? Are there witnesses who would gladly testify? People who do not assist in breaking license laws do not like to go in and hunt up evidence.

Those who break the laws themselves should not be excused from testifying in a case of this kind more than an accomplice in any crime should be excused. People knowing of the blind pig business in a community, where worthy citizens have succeeded in eradicating saloons and in having no license voted, and are trying to raise families without its baneful influence, should be made to testify if Blixt and Amy Hayward should have been made to testify against the instigator of the murder of Catherine Ging. The result of this instigation, so far as known, was the incarceration for life of Blixt, and the death of Miss Ging and the instigator himself. May not the influence of blind pigs in Midway Park be even more deadly? Why then excuse "unwilling witnesses?"

WASHINGTON LETTER.

From our Regular Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec 13, 1895.

Democrats have every reason to be perfectly satisfied with the Congressional outlook. If the republicans adopt the policy of introducing fake impeachment resolutions for the purpose of abusing democratic officials, instead of doing something to relieve the distress which they had so much to say about during the last Congressional campaign, there will certainly be a general reaction in favor of the democratic party. And that reaction will be equally certain to come if the republicans do any tariff tinkering along the lines of the McKinley Bill.

The democrats are not responsible for legislation in either House or Senate: they will occupy a position which will enable them to accentuate republican mistakes and to profit thereby.

Senator Hill has reintroduced his resolution for a cloture rule in the Senate and has announced his intention to make a fight for it, and the large number of new Senators—men who are not bound hand and foot by tradition—makes him believe he will succeed.

Senator Gorman didn't let the report that he would not be a candidate for re election get well started before he called it down. He will be a candidate, and he is confident that he will be able to pull Maryland back into democratic lines and be re-elected to the Senate.

Senator Cameron's announcement that he would retire from public life at the close of his present term, was a case of "must." Quay had served notice on him that his place was wanted. Cameron has also stopped putting his good money into the Presidential tar-hole.

The stories about the winning and losing of votes between the ballots taken by the Republican National Committee to decide upon the city which was to get the convention, doubtless make good reading for those who do not know the facts. The only one of the competing cities that never was in it was San Francisco, notwithstanding its standing second when the convention was knocked down to St. Louis—the orders had been given out by the Platt Quay-Reed combine that the Pacific coast must be jollified by giving San Francisco a large vote, but not large enough to carry the convention there. The convention was sold There is no doubt about that, and either Chicago, Pittsburg or New York could have secured it by raising the bid of St. Louis. In fact some of the gentleman representing Chicago were told after the ballot, in which Chicago only got eight votes, had been taken, that Chicago could have the convention if the price—$100,000—was put up. The Chicago committee after a consultation refused to pay that much, and after three more ballots the convention was given to St. Louis simply because it had payed more for it than any other city would pay. The setting of June 16th as the date for the republican convention will make the democratic convention unusually early, if the usual custom of the party in power holding its convention first, be followed.

The democratic steering committee, consisting of Senators Gorman, Cockrell, Harris, Blackburn, Brice, Walthall, Murphy, White, and Jones of Ark.; at a meeting held to discuss Senate reorganization, decided that no obstructions should be placed in the way of the republicans reorganizing the Senate as soon as they can produce the votes, but that no move should be made by the democrats to voluntarily give up what they now have. Reorganization will be easy for the republicans if they can agree upon a slate for president pro tem, and chairmen of committees that will command the full republican votes, as the populists have agreed to absent themselves when the vote is taken. For all practical purposes this will be just the same as their voting with the republicans, and it will probably be just as beneficial to the populists, and still they can go home and pull the wool over the eyes of their constituents by producing the Congressional Record showing that they did not vote to help the republicans reorganize the Senate.

The man who is willing to make a monkey of himself can always start a sensation in Congress that will bring him a temporary notoriety. The first to do so this session was Representative Barrett, of Boston, who offered a resolution impeaching Ambassador Bayard because he had dared to exercise the right of free speech and to criticise the doctrine of protection. Of course Barrett knows as well as everybody else does that his resolution was a new Congressman's bid for notoriety pure and simple, and that it will never be reported back to the House by the committee on Foreign Affairs, to which it was referred. In the short debate which preceded the reference of the resolution, Ex-Speaker Crisp showed himself to be in good fighting trim. His taunting the republicans with being afraid to put a protective tariff bill through the House, notwithstanding their immense majority, was a hit, and no republican dared to reply to it; it was so true it couldn't be replied to. The resolution is buncombe. Mr. Bayard has done nothing but what he had a perfect right to do, if he saw fit.

Strikes in the United States and Europe.

We have before us the first number of the Bulletin of the Department of Labor, which is to be issued bimonthly in accordance with the law of March 2, 1895. In the preface the editor, Commissioner Carroll D. Wright, sets forth the aim and scope of this publication, as compared with the already existing Annual and Special Reports. It will contain "such matters as cannot in the nature of things find a place in the Annual or Special Reports; but it is confidently expected that, through the Bulletin, the department will be able to bring much of its work closer home to the people." Its aim will be "to furnish to the public" current "facts and information relating to industrial affairs which cannot readily be secured in any other way."

The first number, among other topics, deals statistically with the question of strikes and lockouts in the United States and in certain European countries.

These statistics cover a period of thirteen and one half years, from 1881 to 1894. During this time there occurred 14,390 strikes, involving 69,167 establishments, and throwing out of employment no less than 3,714,456 employes. The quietest year was 1884, when there were 443 strikes affecting 2,367 establishments and 147,054 employes; the most disturbed year was 1886, when 10,053 establishments were involved and 508,044 employes thrown out of work as the result of 1,432 strikes.

The greatest number of strikes, 18,787 occurred in New York State; then comes Illinois, with 12,828, and Pennsylvania, with 10,661.

Out of 69,167 establishments affected, about 90 per cent were in the following industries: Building trades, 26,860; coal and coke, 8,018; tobacco, 5,465; clothing, 4,769; food preparations, 3,817; metals 3,454; transportation 2,805; stone quarrying and cutting 2,461; and five others in proportions under 1,000.

During these thirteen and one-half years, 32 percent of the whole number of people thrown out of employment by strikes succeeded in gaining what they asked; 12·46 per cent only partly succeeded; and 55 50 failed altogether.

From the table marked "Leading causes of strikes" we learn that 42·32 per cent struck for increase of wages; 19·48 per cent for reduction of hours; 7 77 against reduction of wages; 7 59 for increase of wages and reduction of hours; the remaining 22 per cent of the strikes occuring for minor and very varied causes.

The tables from which the above figures are taken are very startling and they will come as a revelation to many but the most substantial figures are those which deal with actual losses incurred during these thirteen and one-half years of strikes and lockouts. The actual wage loss of employees was $163,807,866. It cost the various labor organizations to assist the strikers $10,914,406. The loss to employers was $82,790,386. The corresponding losses due to lockouts were: Employees, $26,685,516; assistance by labor organizations, $2,524,298; employers, $12,235,451.

Summing up these figures, we find that the various labor disputes of the past thirteen and one-half years have cost the country no less than $298,757,923!

Statistics may be dry reading; but they are often, as in this case, very eloquent.

It is pretty well understood, both by capitol and labor, that strikes and lockouts are a crude and costly means for the adjustment of employer's profit and employe's wage—but just how costly can only be realized when we look at the appalling loss that is spelled out by the nine figures given above.

The statistics for Great Britain and Ireland cover the five years from 1889 to 1893 inclusive. Of the 4,526 strikes which occurred, 3,428 were reported in detail. They affected 1,852,193 persons. The successful strikes affected 44.5 percent of this total number; the partially successful 32 9 per cent and the unsuccessful 20 7 per cent. These figures would seem to indicate either that labor is less under the control of capital or that its organization is stronger in those countries than it is in the United States. This would seem to be further proved by the fact that in the three years 1891 to 1893 there were only 35 lockouts, as against 4,526 strikes in the five years 1889 to 1893.

In France during the years 1890 to 1894 there were 1,866 strikes, affecting 7,698 establishments and 560,175 employes. The average of successful strikes was 25 24 per cent; of partly successful, 29 29; and of failures, 44 64 per cent.

In Italy from 1878 to 1891 there were 1,075 strikes, affecting 254,668 employes. Of these 24 per cent were successful; 47 per cent partly successful, and 29 per cent failed.

In Austria, during the year 1891 there were 101 strikes, affecting 1,916 establishments and 40,486 employes. Of the 104 strikes, 23 succeeded; 26 succeeded partly; and 51 failed.—Scientific American.

"Awful"

Verse still goes with feet bare,
Though official shoes he'd wear;
While Eaton and French "rear" and "tear,"
Scratch, and pull each other's hair.

District Judges get the blues;
County papers give the news;
Oh, it does just beat the Jews!
Still O'Leary wears the shoes.

The Shaker Medicine Company are billing a weeks engagement here.

A. Oberg received the sad news of his brother and left Sunday for Minneapolis his place as janiotr of the School House is occupied by H. J. Durfee during his absence.

The following are the elected officers of Eastern Star for the next year: Mrs. Thomas Hellier, Worthy Matron; Miss Ella Dean, Assistant Matron; H. B Griffing, Worthy Patron; Mrs. W. W. Thompson, Secretary; Mrs. James Sturges, Treasurer; Mrs. J. H. Wendell, Conductress; Mrs. H. B. Cady, Assistant Conductress.

The Temperance meeting last Sunday was well attended and a very able address was delivered by Rev. Fletcher.

Rol Bryant, H. C. Kries, C. A. French and S. J. Mealey of Monticello attended Court last Monday as witnesses in the case of State vs. Riggs.

ROCKFORD NEWS.

Dr. C. B. Ames, of Delano, was seen on our streets on Saturday, of last week.

Mrs. F. J. Benner gave a party at her residence last Friday evening in honor of Miss Tillie Becker. All report having had a very pleasant time.

County Surveyor Noland was doing business in town Thursday.

August Biskey's little girl is on the sick list.

J. Benner and Son have just received a fine supply of crockery and glass ware for the holiday trade.

Dr. J. S. Shrader was in town on Monday and informed us that he is about leaving Delano for Sheboygan, Wis.

Post Master Ames has just purchased a new cabinet for his office which is a great improvement over the old one and looks as if he was trying to please the patrons of the office.

W. H. Guptil, collector for the monitor Manufacturing Co., Sundayed at home.

Rev. Hayes, of Minneapolis, preached in the Presbyterian church Sunday evening.

Ernest Darrow has moved his family to Pulaski Lake, where his wife will spend the winter. Ernest will go to the pinery.

Geo. Pagenkopf, of Independence, lost his barns and out buildings by fire last Monday night.

Assistant P. M. Sales of Lake Sarah, P. O. has put in a stock of confectionery, cigars and tobacco in connection with his office.

J. H. McLean and wife Sundayed in Minneapolis.

John Teny and Jim Thompson were busy this week putting up wind mills.

BALKY.

INDEPENDENCE INCIDENTS.

Fine weather for this time of year, We have lost our snow and everybody is going on wheels; but then there is plenty of time for snow yet.

Some of the farmers are husking corn this beautiful weather.

Delmont Gould is putting in a camp and instead of going into the pineries this winter will hire a crew of men and get out cord-wood. His place of business will be on Sec. 5, this town.

Rev. A. E. Hatch, the blind preacher from Ill. will preach at the A. C. Church, Armstrong, tonight and also Thursday and Friday evenings, and next Sunday at Rockford in the forenoon. Will take for his subject the 20th chapter of Rev. Come out and hear him, it may do you good.

Rev. A. W. Wright of Minneapolis, will lecture on the battles of Fort Donaldson and Shiloh in School-house Hall, Maple Plain, on Friday evening Dec. 20. No doubt it will be a good lecture. Come!

The letters in the GAZETTE from Hon. B F. Christlieb, now in Pasadena, Cal., are quite interesting. Hope he will come often.

B. R. Hoisington has gone to Lake Calhoun, near Minneapolis, to cut ice for the ice company. He will use a steam engine for that purpose.

Dr. O. R. Fassett, B. Gould and Gordon Ewing attended church at Armstrong last Sunday.

Think our weather prognosticators must have got into dispute in the weateer bureau office, and I move that their license as weather prophets be revoked. Not much news since the meeting of Congress and the hanging of Harry T. Hayward. Congress is deliberating and Hayward has gone to that bourne from whence no traveler returns. He is asleep with kings and princes of the earth, and in God's own time will come forth and receive his final reward. But this question is hardly debateable just at this present time, so we leave it and let busy minds only conjecture as to the final result. While I am not much in favor of capital punishment yet I think my judgement is overruled by quite a large majority.

The President in his message pulled the latch string clear on the inside and with him nobody stands the ghost of a chance but monopoly, trusts, combines, and national banks; and he who sittith in the uppermost seat in the synagogue did not as much as compliment the farmer by even saying he was a good fellow. But my ammunition is running low and I will write no more on this subject for I expect to see bigger game before going much farther.

Christmas is almost here yet we do not hear much about it. We believe there is to be an entertainment in one of the churches at Armstrong on Christmas eve. It will soon be time to settle all accounts and make new resolves.

JOHN H. McGARY.

THE new woman movement has reached its height in Oklahoma. A Pawnee man has sued for divorce and the restoration of his bachelor name.

IN the present congress there are 27 editors. Nine other members were formerly in that profession and four others learned the printer's trade and followed it in their younger days.

"IT is an astonishing fact," says the Troy Telegram, "that there is not in the United States a town, city, county, or post office that bears the name of Shakespeare." Perhaps there is none that could live up to it.

THAT man in Lexington, Ky., who claims to be the original George Harris of "Uncle Tom's Cabin," has been summarily squelched by Mrs. Stowe. The exposure comes just in time, probably, to head off a swarm of original Topsys.

TENNYSON wrote "Better 50 years of Europe than a cycle of Cathay," but it wasn't the bicycle of Europe that he preferred and which moved him in that line. He didn't write machine poetry, nor did he have any wheels in his head.

A COTERIE of gamblers in California have secured a concession from Mexico for the island of Tiburon, in the Gulf inhabited by a band of savage Indians, the Ceris tribe. The gamblers propose to slaughter the Indians and establish a great sporting resort. The Ceris are good fighters, and people will wish them great luck when the fighting begins.

THERE are 13,176 miles of street railway lines now in operation in the United States, according to the statistics in Poor's directory—an increase of 5,514 miles over 1891. Of the total mileage 10,238 miles are operated by electricity, 578 miles by cable, 409 miles by steam dummy engines, and there are still 1,950 miles operated by horse or mule power.

THE steamboats of the country carried between 600,000,000 to 700,000,000 passengers during the year 1895 and only 394 lives were lost out of the whole number. People who think the railroads have killed off the steamboat passenger traffic will, no doubt, be astonished at these figures. The railroads will never be able to kill off steamboating on our lakes, sounds and rivers.

THE United States will have to make great improvements in country roads before the horseless carriage will take the place of the faithful horse. The horseless carriage on a dirt road will prove a failure. If its introduction will help the people to better country roads, as the bicycle is doing, it will be a blessing. Not more railroads, but better country roads is the crying need of these times.

ESTIMATES are to be made by the war department to ascertain the cost of constructing dams at Buffalo, the Soo and at the end of Lake Huron, to maintain the level of the lakes. The water in Lake Erie is three feet lower than usual. This low water is, no doubt, due to the deficient rainfall of the past two years; but Lake Erie, it is known, has been shoaling for the last 20 years from causes other than drought.

IN the matter of fast time on railroads America beats the world. The record runs thus:

| | Miles per hour. |
|---|---|
| United States | 53.33 |
| England | 49.75 |
| Germany | 51.25 |
| France | 49.88 |
| Belgium | 45.04 |
| Holland | 44.73 |
| Italy | 42.34 |
| Austria-Hungary | 41.75 |

If any other country beats this record America will again put in the spurs and make the iron horse quicken his speed. We do not propose in this grand race to take the dust of any competitor.

A STATEMENT published by the French government shows the railroad mileage in each country in Europe at the close of last year and the increase during the twelve months. The total was 152,209 miles, and the gain 4,212 miles. The greatest increase was in Russia, where 1,212 miles were added in 1894, mostly on its trans-Siberian line. It may be observed that 1894 was the first one of many years in which the railroad building in the United States did not much exceed the aggregate of construction in all other countries, while last year the difference was wide in the other direction.

THE new congressional directory says the house of the 54th congress is composed of 223 lawyers, 24 farmers, 18 newspaper men, 16 merchants, 15 manufacturers, 9 physicians, 6 bankers, 5 lumbermen, 3 brokers, 4 railroad men, 3 college professors, 2 clergymen, 2 ship owners, 2 miners, 2 builders, 1 printer, 1 architect, 1 druggist, 1 theatrical manager, 1 school-teacher, 1 music teacher, and 16 with no other business than politics. The senate contains 60 lawyers, 6 merchants, 3 newspaper men, 3 farmers, 3 railroad men, 2 clergymen, 2 miners, 1 physician, 1 manufacturer, 1 banker, 1 ship builder, 5 politicians.

THERE are 208,388 retail liquor dealers in the United States holding licenses from the commissioner of internal revenue and 4,555 wholesale liquor dealers. There are 10,486 others who deal only in malt liquors at retail and 5,655 who sell only malt liquors by wholesale, making a total of 229,084. In addition to these there are 1,440 rectifiers and 1,771 brewers, making a grand total of 232,295 persons or firms who hold licenses from the government of the United States to make and sell intoxicating drinks. Assuming the population to be 65,000,000, there is one liquor dealer to every 280 persons.

FIFTY-FOURTH CONGRESS.

The Proceedings of the First Session.

Washington, Dec. 12.—In the senate Senator Cockrell presented the memorial of the Kansas City board of trade asking congress to grant belligerent rights to Cuba. Senator Hill offered his resolution of last session for the amendment of the rules, by providing for cloture and the counting of quorums. The house was not in session.

Washington, Dec. 13.—Bills were introduced in the senate yesterday to increase all pensions 25 per cent., and to establish a school of forestry in connection with the department of agriculture. A resolution was passed calling upon the secretary of agriculture for information as to whether he had expended all or any part of the last appropriation for the purchase and distribution of seeds. Adjourned to the 16th. In the house ex-Speaker Grow (rep., Pa.) spoke on the portion of the president's message referring to the tariff and said that the new law up to December 1 had produced a deficiency of $131,000,000, while, under protective measures, from 1880 to 1893, the revenues had exceeded the expenditures by $1,310,000,000. Bills were introduced to restore the duty on salt and increase the duty on willow, and to restore the McKinley rates on importations and manufactures of wool. Adjourned to the 16th.

Washington, Dec. 17.—In the senate yesterday petitions were presented for a restoration of the wool schedule of the McKinley tariff act, and for one cent letter postage. Bills were introduced to exclude aliens from public employment; to protect public forest reservations, and for a railroad bridge across the Detroit river at Detroit. In the house Mr. Flynn (O. T.) severely arraigned Secretary Smith for the delay in the appointment of the allotting agents to allot lands to the Wichita Indians. A bill was introduced to reenact the provisions of the McKinley tariff law that cover agricultural products and provisions, wool and manufactures of wool, and silk and silk goods.

FROM WASHINGTON.

On January 16 the democratic national committee will meet in Washington to select the time and place for holding the next democratic national convention.

The president returned to Washington from his duck hunting trip in the vicinity of Cape Hatteras.

Estimates by Secretary Carlisle show that it will cost $418,091,073.17 to run this government during the next fiscal year. The appropriations for the present year made by the last congress amount to $412,753,264.81.

In the United States the visible supply of grain on the 16th was: Wheat, 66,835,000 buhsels; corn, 5,227,000 bushels; oats, 6,134,000 bushels; rye, 1,555,000 bushels; barley, 4,475 bushels.

The annual report of Secretary Carlisle shows that the revenues of the government from all sources during the last fiscal year amounted to $390,373,203. The expenditures during the same period aggregated $433,178,426, leaving a deficit for the year of $42,805,223. The revenues for the current fiscal year are estimated upon the basis of existing laws at $431,907,407, and the expenditures at $448,907,407, which will leave a deficit of $17,000,000. The burden of the report is a plea for the retirement of the greenbacks.

A BOLD STAND.

The President Sends a Message to Congress on the Venezuelan Question.

He Strongly Indorses the Monroe Doctrine---Declares It International Law.

England Must Be Brought to Terms—Boundary Line to Be Determined.

President Asks for Power to Appoint a Commission to Settle the Boundary Line at Once.

Washington, Dec. 17.—The president sent to congress Tuesday the Venezuelan correspondence, accompanied by the following significant message:

TO THE CONGRESS: In my annual message addressed to the congress on the third instant, I called attention to the pending boundary controversy between Great Britain and th republic of Venezuela and recited the substance of a representation made by this government to her Britannic majesty's government, suggesting reasons why such dispute should be submitted to arbitration for settlement and inquiring whether it would be so submitted.

The answer of the British government, which was then awaited, but has since been received, together with the dispatch to which it is a reply, is hereto appended.

Such reply is embodied in two communications addressed by the British minister to Sir Julian Pauncefote, the British ambassador at this capital. It will be seen that one of these communications is devoted exclusively to observations upon the Monroe doctrine, and claims that in the present instance a new and strange extension and development of this doctrine is insisted on by the United States; that the reasons justifying an appeal to the doctrine enunciated by President Monroe are generally inapplicable "to the state of things in which we live at the present day," and especially inapplicable to a controversy involving the boundary line between Great Britain and Venezuela.

The Monroe Doctrine Strong and Sound.

Without attempting extended argument in reply to these positions, it may not be amiss to suggest that the doctrine upon which we stand is strong and sound because its enforcement is important to our peace and safety as a nation and is essential to the integrity of our free institutions and the tranquil maintenance of our distinctive form of government. It was intended to apply to every stage of our national life and cannot become obsolete while our republic endures. If the balance of power is justly a cause for jealous anxiety among the governments of the old world, and a subject for our absolute non-interference, none the less is an observance of the Monroe doctrine of vital concern to our people and their government.

Assuming, therefore, that we may properly insist upon this doctrine without regard to "the state of things in which we live," or any changed conditions here or elsewhere, it is not apparent why its application may not be invoked in the present controversy.

If a European power, by an extension of its boundaries, takes possession of the territory of one of our neighboring republics, against its will and in derogation of its rights, it is difficult to see why, to that extent, such European power does not thereby attempt to extend its system of government to that portion of this continent which is thus taken. This is the precise action which President Monroe declared to be "dangerous to our peace and safety," and it can make no difference whether the European system is extended by an advance of frontier or otherwise.

It is also suggested in the British reply that we should not seek to apply the Monroe doctrine to the pending dispute, because it does not embody any principle of international law which is founded on the general consent of nations, and that "no statesman, however eminent, and no nation, however powerful, are competent to insert into the code of international law a novel principle which was never recognzed before, and which has not since been accepted by the government of any other country."

A Place in International Law.

Practically the principle for which we contend has peculiar if not exclusive relation to the United States. It may not have been admitted in so many words to the code of international law, but since in international counsels every nation is entitled to the rights belonging to it, if the enforcement of the Monroe doctrine is something we may justly claim it has its place in the code of international law as certainly and as securely as if it were specifically mentioned, and when the United States is a suitor before the high tribunal that administers international law the question to be determined is whether or not we present claims which the justice of that code of law can find to be right and valid.

The Monroe doctrine finds its recognition in those principles of international law which are based upon the theory that every nation shall have its rights protected and its just claims enforced.

Of course this government is entirely confident that under the sanction of this doctrine we have clear rights and undebted claims. Nor is this ignored in the British reply. The prime minister, while not admitting that the Monroe doctrine is applicable to present conditions, states: "In declaring that the United States would resist any such enterprise if it was contemplated, President Monroe adopted a policy which received the entire sympathy of the English government of that date." He further declares: "Though the language of President Monroe is directed to the attainment of objects which most Englishmen would agree to be salutary, it is impossible to admit that it has been inscribed by any adequate authority in the code of international law." Again he says: "They (her majesty's government) fully concur with the view which President Monroe apparently entertained, that any disturbance of the existing territorial distribution in that hemisphere by any fresh acquisitions on the part of any European state, would be a highly inexpedient change."

The Proposition to Arbitrate.

In the belief that the doctrine for which we contend was clear and definite, that it was founded upon substantial considerations and involved our safety and welfare, that it was fully applicable to our present conditions and to the state of the world's progress, and that it was directly related to the pending controversy, and without any conviction as to the final merits of the dispute, but anxious to learn in a satisfactory and conclusive manner whether Great Britain sought, under a claim of boundary, to extend her possessions on this continent without right, or whether she merely sought possession of the territory fairly included within her lines of ownership, this government proposed to the government of Great Britain a resort to arbitration as the proper means of settling the question, to the end that a vexatious boundary dispute between the two contestants might be determined and our exact standing and relation in respect to the controversy might be made clear.

It will be seen from the correspondence herewith submitted that this proposition has been declined by the British government upon grounds which in the circumstances seem to me to be far from satisfactory. It is deeply disappointing that such an appeal actuated by the most friendly feeling towards both nations directly concerned, addressed to the sense of justice and to the magnanimity of one of the great powers of the world and touching its relations to one comparatively weak and small, should have produced no better results.

The Course to Be Pursued.

The course to be pursued by this government in view of the present condition does not appear to admit of serious doubt. Having labored faithfully for many years to induce Great Britain to submit this dispute to impartial arbitration, and having been now finally apprised of her refusal to do so, nothing remains but to accept the situation, to recognize its plain requirements and deal with it accordingly. Great Britain's present proposition has never thus far been regarded as admissible by Venezuela, though any adjustment of the boundary which that country may deem for her advantage and may enter into of her own free will cannot of course be objected to by the United States.

Assuming, however, that the attitude of Venezuela will remain unchanged, the dispute has reached such a stage as to make it now incumbent upon the United States to take measures to determine with sufficient certainty for its justification what is the true divisional line between the republic of Venezuela and British Guiana. The inquiry to that end should of course be conducted carefully and judicially, and due weight would be given to an available evidence, records and facts in support of the claims of both parties.

Asks for a Commission.

In order that such an examination should be prosecuted in a thorough and satisfactory manner, I suggest that the congress make an adequate appropriation for the expenses of a commission, to be appointed by the executive, who shall make the necessary investigation and report upon the matter with the least possible delay. When such report is made and accepted it will in my opinion be the duty of the United States to resist by every means in its power as a willful aggression upon its rights and interests the appropriation by Great Britain of any lands or the exercise of governmental jurisdiction over any territory which after investigation we have determined of right belong to Venezuela.

In making these recommendations I am fully alive to the responsibility incurred and keenly realize all the consequences that may follow.

I am nevertheless firm in my conviction that while it is a grievous thing to contemplate the two great English speaking peoples of the world as being otherwise than friendly competitors in the onward march of civilization and strenuous and worthy rivals in all the acts of peace, there is no calamity which a great nation can invite which equals that which follows a supine submission to wrong and injustice and the consequent loss of national respect and honor beneath which is shielded and defended a people's safety and greatness.

GROVER CLEVELAND.

Executive Mansion, December 17, 1895.

THE CORRESPONDENCE.

Important Extracts from the Voluminous Diplomatic Notes.

Although the matter submitted to congress in connection with the foregoing message consists of three diplomatic notes only, they are very voluminous. Mr. Olney's note to Mr. Bayard concerning the threatening aspect of affairs between Great Britain and Venezuela is first in the correspondence. It is dated July 20 last and deals with the boundary question "at great length." Beginning at the very inception of the dispute which has now assumed so serious an aspect, Mr. Olney carries his argument of the American claim for arbitration based on the Monroe doctrine down to the present time and gives emphasis to his statement by quoting the sentiment of President Monroe in full, and notes that "its pronouncement by the Monroe administration at that particular time was unquestionably due to the inspiration of Great Britain, who at once gave to it an open and unqualified adhesion which has never been withdrawn."

Mr Olney gives in his note a firm indorsement to the principle enunciated by Monroe and defines Great Britain's position in this frank and unambiguous manner:

"She (Great Britain) says to Venezuela: 'You can get none of the debatable land by force because you are not strong enough; you can get none by treaty, because I will not agree, and you can take your chance of getting a portion by arbitration only if you first agree to abandon to me such portions as I may designate.'"

Continuing Mr. Olney says it is not perceived how such an attitude can be defended nor how it is reconcilable with that love of justice and fair play so eminently characteristic of the English race, and holds that if such position be adhered to, it should be regarded as amounting, in substance, to an invasion and conquest of Venezuelan territory.

Duty of the President Unmistakable.

In conclusion Mr. Olney says that in these circumstances the duty of the president appears to him unmistakable and imperative. To ignore Great Britain's assertion of title and her refusal to have that title investigated and not to protest and give warning against the substantial appropriation by Great Britain of the territory for her own use would be to ignore an established policy with which the honor and welfare of this country are closely identified. He therefore instructed Mr. Bayard to lay the views given before Lord Salisbury and said: "They (the views) call for a definite decision upon the point whether Great Britain will consent or will decline to submit the Venezuelan boundary question in its entirety to impartial arbitration." Expressing the president's hope that the conclusion will be on the side of arbitration, Mr. Olney concluded with the pointed statement that if the president "is to be disappointed in that hope, however—a result not to be anticipated and in his judgment calculated to greatly embarrass the future relations between this country and Great Britain—it is his wish to be made acquainted with the fact at such early date as will enable him to lay the whole subject before congress in his next annual message."

Lord Salisbury's Reply.

Lord Salisbury's reply is addressed to Sir Julian Pauncefote, British ambassador at Washington, under date of November 26 last. This dealt only with the application of the Monroe doctrine in the case at issue and was followed on the same day by another note discussing the boundary dispute per se. At the outset Lord Salisbury states that so far as he is aware the Monroe doctrine has never been before advanced on behalf of the United States in any written communication addressed to the government of another nation. He gives what he believes is the British interpretation of the doctrine and maintains the dangers which were apprehended by President Monroe have no relation to the state of things in which we live at the present day, and adds with thinly covered irony, that: "It is intelligible that Mr. Olney should invoke in defense of the views on which he is now insisting an authority (Monroe) which enjoys so high a popularity with his own fellow countrymen."

The dispute between Great Britain and Venezuela, says Lord Salisbury, is controversy with which the United States has no apparent practical concern.

Continuing in short, pithy sentences, he says it is difficult, indeed, to see how the question in controversy can materially affect any state or community outside those primarily interested; that the disputed frontier of Venezuela has nothing to do with any of the questions dealt with by President Monroe; that it is not a question of the colonization by any European power of any portion of America, nor of the imposition upon the communities of South America of any system of government devised in Europe. "It is," he says, "simply the determination of the frontier of a British possession which belonged to the throne of England long before the republic of Venezuela came into existence."

Salisbury Becomes Tart.

As he proceeds in the discussion the language of Lord Salisbury becomes tart. He argues in theory that the Monroe doctrine in itself is sound, but disclaims any intention of being understood as expressing any acceptance of it on the part of her majesty's government. He quotes Mr. Olney as saying: "That distance and 3,000 miles of intervening ocean make any political union between a European and an American state unnatural and inexpedient, will hardly be denied," and adds that "the necessary meaning of these words is that the union between Great Britain and Canada; between Great Britain and Jamaica and Trinidad; between Great Britain and British Honduras or British Guiana, are inexpedient and unnatural. President Monroe," says his lordship, "disclaims any such inference from his doctrine; but in this, as in other respects, Mr. Olney develops it."

CARLISLE'S VIEWS.

Secretary of the Treasury Submits His Annual Report.

Washington, Dec. 17.—The return of the president to Washington has released the report of Secretary Carlisle, which was sent to congress Monday.

It shows that the revenues of the government from all sources during the last fiscal year amounted to $390,373,203. The expenditures during the same period aggregated $433,178,426, leaving a deficit for the year of $42,805,223. As compared with the fiscal year 1894 the receipts for 1895 increased $17,570,705, although there was a decrease of $31,329,981 in the ordinary expenditures, which is largely accounted for by a reduction of $11,134,055 on sugar bounties. The revenues for the current fiscal year are estimated upon the basis of existing laws at $431,907,407, and the expenditures at $448,907,407, which will leave a deficit of $17,000,000.

For the coming fiscal year, ending June 30, 1897, the secretary estimates the receipts at $464,792,120, and the expenditures at $457,884,193, or an estimated surplus of $6,908,926. The secretary states briefly the facts concerning the issues of bonds during the year, the particulars of which have already been reported to congress.

"With a complete return to the normal business condition of the country and a proper legislative and executive supervision over expenditures, the revenue laws now in force will in my opinion yield ample means for the support of the public service upon the basis now established; and upon the assumption, which seems to be justified, that the progress now being made toward the restoration of our usual state of prosperity will continue without serious interruption, it is estimated that there will be a surplus of nearly $7,000,000 during the fiscal year 1897.

The secretary states in detail the different bond transactions entered into since the adjournment of the last congress and states that the contract entered into for the last issue of $62,315,400 of four per cent. bonds was fully carried out by the syndicate to whom the contract was given and that "the beneficial effects of this transaction were felt immediately not only in this country but in every other having commercial or financial relations with our people." But he says the safety of the existing situation is constantly menaced and further progress toward a complete restoration of confidence and prosperity is seriously impeded by the defects in our currency laws and the doubt and uncertainty still prevailing in the public mind, especially abroad, concerning the future monetary policy of the government. These difficulties he proposes to remove by the retirement of the greenbacks and the extension of the national bank system as indicated in the president's message. He controverts the convention that surplus revenue would extricate the country from its difficulties and states:

"No surplus revenue, however large, could extricate us from our present difficulties or give assurance of safety in the future unless it should be required to be paid in gold under a system which would exempt the government from the obligation to furnish the gold when demanded to be used in making the payments; and it is scarcely necessary to suggest that such a system is impossible as long as the United States notes and treasury notes are kept in circulation and are redeemable in gold by the government itself on presentation."

As a temporary remedy for existing conditions he suggests that authorization be given to the secretary of the treasury "to issue from time to time bonds payable in gold, bearing interest at a ratio not exceeding three per cent. per annum and having a long time to run, and to exchange the bonds for United States notes and treasury notes upon such terms as may be most advantageous to the government, or to sell them abroad for gold whenever, in his judgment, it is advisable to do so and use the gold thus obtained in redeeming the outstanding notes."

The secretary also favors the passage of a law allowing national banks to establish branches in small towns. The secretary in closing his report says that it is not probable that any plan for the permanent retirement of United States notes and treasury notes will be adopted that will not require considerable time for its complete execution, and he therefore urges upon congress the propriety of prohibiting any future issues of such notes or of national bank notes of less denominations than ten dollars, thus making room in the circulation for silver coins and silver certificates of small denominations. This, he says, would increase their use among the people and prevent their frequent return to and accumulation in the treasury.

Among the minor topics treated upon in the report are a reorganization of customs districts; more stringent regulations to prevent infection from yellow fever from the port of Havana (which is spelled "Habana" in accordance with the mandate of the board of geographic names); he renews the recommendation for a retiring provision for officers of the revenue marine service; he commends Commissioner Chamberlain's recommendations as to the revision of the navigation laws of the United States, and asks for an additional assistant secretary of the treasury to take charge of the consolidated marine bureau of that department. He commends the manner in which the work of patrolling Behring sea and the North Pacific ocean for the protection of seal life is carried out under the supervision of Capt. Hooper, of the revenue cutter Rush, and refers to the fact that notwithstanding the preponderance of British-Canadian vessels in the sealing fleet, the British government furnishes only one patrolling vessel, H. M. S. Pheasant, to assist in the patrol. This vessel, he says, was stationed for the greater part of the time at Sitka and Unalaska and took little or no part in the patrol other than to receive British vessels seized by our fleet.

Further commenting on the failure of the British government to carry out in good faith the Paris award, the secretary states that the "use of firearms in fur seal fishing in Behring sea was prohibited by the Paris award regulations and the legislation of the respective governments, passed to enforce the award. As the award regulations merely prohibited the use of firearms and did not make their possession illegal, it was agreed by the respective governments, in 1894, that all sealing vessels before entering Behring sea should have their firearms secured under seal. This provision worked satisfactorily during the season of 1894, but the British government refused to agree to such an arrangement for the season of 1895, alleging that "it had not in practice worked for the protection of British sealers from interference, as her majesty's government had hoped would have been the case."

This refusal leaves the question of the possession and use of firearms by British vessels to be determined wholly by the Paris award and the legislation enacted by the British government for making it effective. The secretary says it is to be regretted that the legislation of the respective governments is not harmonious, that of our government being much more stringent than that of the British government.

Handsome Gift to Chicago University.

Chicago, Dec. 16.—Chicago university is the recipient of another $1,000,000 gift, the donor being Miss Helen Culver, of this city. This, under the conditions of Mr. Rockefeller's recent promise, means $3,000,000 by January 1, and it probably means the establishment of a school of medicine in addition to benefits bestowed on the department of biology. Miss Culver, who is about 60 years of age, is a niece of the late Charles J. Hull, from whom she inherited a fortune valued at $6,000,000, consisting largely of property in New York, Philadelphia and Baltimore.

Wife Murderer Takes His Own Life.

Viroqua, Wis., Dec. 17. — Another chapter has been added to the tragedy near Chaseburg. The sheriff went after France Boudler, who had murdered his aged wife the night previous, and when he arrived he found the object of his search dead, hanging to a beam in the woodhouse.

Will Reduce Production

Houghton, Mich., Dec. 17.—The Calumet & Hecla mine will on January 1 reduce its production 6,000,000 a month—one-third of its capacity. The low quotation on copper is said to be the cause.

PERSIAN CARPETS.

Carpets That Have Retained Their Popularity for Years.

Persian carpets, of course, are still, as they have always been, superior in beauty and durability to all others, but their expensiveness disqualifies them from competition with Indian, Turkish and British fabrics and places them in the catogary of those exceptionally costly "articles de luxe" in the possession of which only the very wealthy may rightfully indulge themselves. A few years ago, at the sale of the Goupil collection in Paris, the equivalent in French currency of $6,000 was paid for one square of "old Persian" measuring seven feet by six, and several others of small size were eagerly snapped up at from $2,500 to $4,000 apiece. For an exemplification of the lasting capacities we may quote Sir Murdoch Smith, who states that a floor of the principal pavillion of the Chebel Situn palace at Ispahan is covered with a superb carpet, still in fine condition, which has been in continuous use for 300 years—that is, ever since the time of Shah Abbas, who reigned toward the close of the 16th century. Even at the present day in Persia itself as much as $1,000 is often asked and paid for a small carpet.

A Queer Hunting Pair.

While angling in a secluded glen some days ago a sportsman witnessed a curious combination of poaching and natural history. The facts are as follows: A hill shepherd, in destroying a litter of foxes, took it into his head to rear one as a pet. He did so, and the animal has not only become very tame, but is a most useful ally. It and a collie hunting together kill rabbits to a miracle. They work very much in the same way as two lurchers. The collie goes out and hunts the rabbits among the fern and heather of the braes or the rushes and long grasses of the stacks while Reynard all the time sneaks about the holes and picks them up as they come in. They understand their respective parts perfectly. The collie seems to know that it is not his business to kill, and the fox is never under the slightest temptation to bolt out and give chase.

THE CHRISTMAS BELLS.

HE midnight stars shine overhead
With more than usual brightness;
The hills and valleys are arrayed
In robes of dazzling whiteness;
And jeweled sprays of frost and rime
To forest boughs are clinging;
And sweet the anthem and sublime
The Christmas bells are ringing.

It wakes old memories again:
The vanished past is nigh us;
We feel anew old bliss, old pain,
And long-lost friends are by us—
Friends who have reached the better land,
Friends who have never faltered
In friendship e'en around us stand
With friends estranged and altered.

And voices silent long we hear
Sweet words of pardon speaking;
And other voices reach our ear,
Our words of pardon seeking;
The wrongs we met too trivial seem
To merit angry feeling;
The wrongs we did we greater deem
While Christmas bells are pealing.

And we forget to scheme and plan
While Christmas bells are telling
Of him who came in guise of man
On earth to claim a dwelling.
The sweet bells sounding near and far
Calm, holy thoughts are bringing,
And Heaven and earth the nearer are While Christmas bells are ringing.

A Few Ciphers

THERE! That's off my mind for another year."

Mr. March gave an impatient little fling to the last sheet in a series of letters he had been writing. Short and stereotyped they were—all running much like this:

"DEAR —: Inclosed find a trifle in remembrance of the day, with good wishes for all. Affectionately,
"JOHN MARCH."

"It's a kind of nuisance," went on Mr. March, as he gazed at five checks which lay on his desk with the letters, each one dashed off and left to dry while the others were written. "I don't know—" a grumbling coming into his tone—"really, I don't—why I should keep it up year after year. There are some things which might be considered outgrown as time goes on, and this is one of them."

Still Mr. March had a feeling that it would not be discontinued, this every-Christmas offering of a small sum of money to each one of his kindred; it was too firmly based on old association. With the passage of the years he had grown apart from them; his interests and theirs had become widely separated, and yet he could not well have persuaded himself to sever this almost only link which bound him to the members of his own family.

It had begun soon after he had left home and come up to the great city in search of the fortune which had finally crowned his efforts. He had done well from the first; and, even now, as he gazed upon the five checks, he recalled with a slight warmth at his heart the first time he had sent home gifts of money. They had been smaller then; a dollar each to three cousins, five dollars each to his brother and sister. What a stir they had made in the family. John could easily realize the feeling of opulence which it spread over his home roof and that of his uncle living near. Later he had enlarged the gift. Brother, sister and cousins had married and set up homes of their own. None of them had, like himself, prospered abundantly; and when first John March had written out three checks for ten dollars and two for twenty-five, he still knew the rejoicing they would carry into families in which money was scarce.

He had rejoiced in doing it, all the more that a little effort and self-denial had been necessary accompaniments of the gifts. That was many years ago. Time and circumstances had built up walls between him and his relatives, and the old heartiness of good will was wanting.

"It is really time I was letting it go." A thought crossed him of how good the bit of money still came to its recipients. "But I'm under no obligations to keep it up. I have made my money—they had the same chance. Their lives are what they have made them, just as mine is what I have made it. They expect help from me, and they have no right to."

He fretfully recalled the time when it had been represented to him that unless the brother who still held the old homestead had a lift of a few hundred dollars the place would pass out of his hands. It had been given, and that was the end of any trouble from David. With his sister it had been worse. She had made an unfortunate marriage, and then been widowed. Meek and mild in her disposition, she had never directly applied to him except when in extremities, but was given to keeping her burdens and struggles before him in a way which he sometimes found exasperating.

Cousin Tom had been a scapegrace—always in trouble, always looking for some one to help him out and set him going again on the basis of many promises of better things. Cousin Harvey was the possessor of a large family and small everything else. It was not so very long since Mr. March had helped him out west, finishing his assistance with the suggestion that in future it would be agreeable that he should keep his difficulties to himself. Cousin Matilda had a sickly family; a wail from her on the subject of pressing doctor's bills was frequently heard.

"No," resumed Mr. March, as he folded one of the checks, "people have no right to inflict their misfortunes on some one else just because he has achieved success where they have failed. —That you, Mike?"

"It's mesilf, sor. Ready to shut up when you say the worrud."

"I'll take the key myself. I'm not quite done yet, but you needn't wait."

Mike, however, showed no hurry to leave, but busied himself about the room with occasional glances at Mr. March.

"That'll do, Mike," at length said the gentleman, somewhat annoyed by the rattle of shovel and tongs, which seemed to show unusual excitement in Mike. He came slowly toward Mr. March—an undersized figure of an oldish man with a painful limp.

"If I might be thrubblin' ye jist a minnit, sur."

"Goon, Mike; no more lawsuits, hey?"

"No more o' thim. It's the funny man ye are, sor." Mike shook his head, his whole insignificant face beaming with delight. "It's only that bein' it's the blessed sayson comin' so near—Christmas eve to-morrow, glory be to God!—that I'm axin' a bit o' help o' ye, Musther March, to sind a bit of a prisint to me two brothers, Pat an' Dinnis."

"Oh! So you have relatives too, have you?"

"Thanks to the blissid saints I have, sor. An' so I'm comin' to ye to fix up the bits o' paper that'll carry some money to thim two—the leetle mite of a scrap that manes so much." Mike laughed aloud as if in great relish of the subject.

"Check, hey? Well, here," Mr. March again opened his check-book and again began rapidly filling a blank. "To the order of—what's the name?"

"Patrick O'Toole,"—Mike paused a moment as the name was written, then proceeded—"five hun'erd dollars."

"Hey?" Mr. March gave his chair a little jerk and gazed into the thin, freckled face surrounded with its fringe of ill-kept red hair streaked with gray.

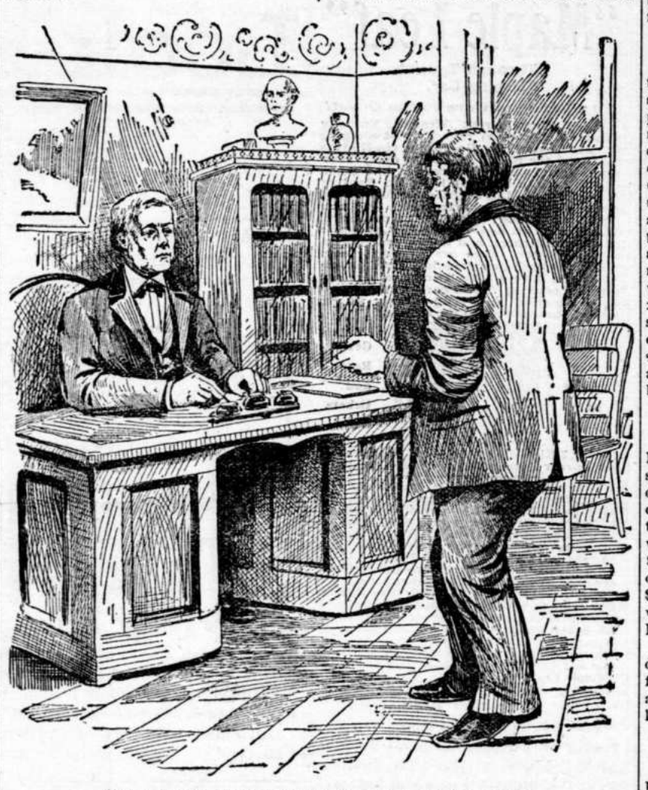
"Five hun'erd dollars to Patrick O'Toole," repeated Mike in the deliberate tone of one taking special pains to make himself understood.

"What do you mean, Mike?"

"Jist phat I'm afther sayin', sur. Five hun'erd dollars to Patrick O'Toole, an' five hun'erd dollars to Dennis O'Toole."

"Out of your damage money?" Mr. March asked, between two short breaths of astonishment.

"That'd be it, sur. Where else would the likes o' me be gettin' five hun'erd dollars?"



"IF I MIGHT BE TROUBLIN' YE JIST A MINNIT, SUR."

"Where, sure enough! Why—" Mr. March gazed at the old janitor with a comical mixture of amazement and friendly contempt. "Why—you old—fool!"

Mike stood quietly with a broad grin on his face.

"Do you mean to say," went on the gentleman, "that you're going to give such amounts out of the two thousand dollars you got as damages from the street railway for injuries which have made you a cripple for life?"

"Such amounts" seemed a little bewildering to Mike.

"Would ye be thinkin' I ought to be dividin' aiquil wid 'em, bein' they're me own brothers, sur?" he began.

"Go long with you!" said Mr. March, with a laugh and a stamp of his foot. "Mike," he continued, seriously, "if you do mean such a crazy thing, I hope you will hear me when I advise you against it. Why, man, you are getting old. Your two thousand dollars is almost all your dependence for your old age—for you and your wife."

"It's the ould wife and mesilf 'll be airnin' this many a year yit, sur, plase the Lord."

"But, Mike, think of the difference this money will make in your comfort. With your simple ways it will make years of ease in your life. You can sit by your fire in your own snug hired room, instead of working hard—you with your crippled limb."

The old man set his lips slightly together as he gazed at his employer. Mr. March had once or twice noticed the mildness of the insignificant gray eyes looking out from under lids reddened by exposure; now the mildness was intensified by a smile of rare sweetness.

"Musther March," he said, "I know it all, none betther nor mesilf. I know jist how much aisier it is to sit by the fire nor to go out in the perishin' cold wid the ache in me ould bones. But ye see, sur, they're me own flesh an' blood—Pat and Dennis. They feel the pinch and the hardness jist like mesilf. Would it be mesilf 'u'd sit by me fire takin' me aise knowin' things was harder for thim nor for me? Be me sowl! Musther March, I'm thinkin' it's the stingy ould rascal I'm bein' not to give thim more."

"Mike, you're a fool!" repeated Mr. March, but more quietly than before, and simply to fill in the pause.

"It'll be raichin' 'em the mornin' of the blissid Christmas day." Mike took a few limping steps in growing excitement. "Think of it, sur! It'll be makin' 'em feel rich! It'll bring the shmile to their faces, and the laugh to 'em, God bless 'em! on His own birthday! It'll aise the ache that no one but the blissid Lord an' thimsilves knows of."

Yes, there was a radiance added to the gentleness in the faded eyes—a radiance written by a joy of which few in this self-seeking world know the taste.

Without saying more Mr. March wrote the checks, to which the old man added his tremulous signature. As the sound of the limping footsteps died away in the hall, Mr. March turned again to the five checks on his desk.

"They look small—yes, they do." Mechanically he added a cipher to the one nearest him. "That looks better." A cipher was added to each check. "One hundred. Two hundred and fifty. They'll all have to be written over."

Mr. March leaned his head on his hands, less in a hurry to get home than he had thought. The glorified face of the old servitor was still before his mind's eye. Mr. March doubted if ever in his life he had looked into a happier one.

"Cutting down his bit of a nest-egg so—the poor old simpleton! Likely enough to end his days in the poorhouse yet."

But it was with a softened smile that the rich merchant thought it. Then his mind ran over his own affairs. Prospered from his first beginnings he had, during these few later years, taken huge strides towards a colossal fortune. Seven figures it would take, he well knew, to express what he was worth, and the initial figure would not be one of the smaller ones, either. His own family lived well, but not extravagantly; his yearly expenses were but a small proportion of his rapidly increasing yearly income

"And I've never made anyone feel rich. Old Mike's ahead of me there." With a shrug of his shoulders he drew towards him one of the checks and added to it another cipher.

Rich? There was not one of these families to whom such a check would not come as an angel's gift, with stares and catches of breath, tears of joy from care-burdened elder ones, shouts of delight from youngsters. He knew it all, for he had been poor himself, long ago.

"One thousand dollars. Twenty-five hundred dollars."

There was a little excitement about it. Mr. March left his chair and walked up and down the floor. How had it been that he had never before realized what a small scratch of his pen could do? They were his own flesh and blood. They were in one way and another enduring the hardness, the daily and nightly wear of mind, the pitiful, gnawing solicitude which belongs with small means. Soul, mind and body, the hardness touched them all, binding them down with its iron touch, narrowing them with its cruel limitations. His own flesh and blood. They had stood to him as of far less value than this money he had been accumulating—money which could never bring to him more than food, clothing and lodging.

Yes, it could. It could bring to him, to his very self, his very heart, the happiness of five families—this rare privilege which he thanked God could come with an easy scratch of his pen.

As he still crossed and recrossed his office floor his movements became quicker, a glow spread over his face, and a new light shone in his eye. At length he sat down and slowly wrote again the checks, lingering over them as over an enjoyable task; and when all were finished each showed still one more cipher.—Sydney Dayre, in Demorest's Magazine.

Mrs. Twickenham—Oh, the loveliest little penwiper you ever saw.—N. Y. World.

MINNESOTA NEWS.

Ghastly.

A man named Lawrence, while hunting near Minnetonka Mills, in a piece of woods, found the body of a man suspended from a tree by a rope. The body was resting on a stump, and it was at once apparent that it was a case of suicide, and the body had been there for a long time.

On the body was found a portion of the Chicago Saturday Blade, dated Aug. 18, 1894. It was soaked with water and torn, but on the top of the front page in lead pencil were the words: "My name is William Caffrey, Mt. Pleasant," or at least that is what the words appeared to be. They were almost illegible. The body must have been hanging there since July or August, for the flesh had all disappeared, and there was nothing but bones left. The wolves, also, seem to have made a feast of the body, and it was left in a horrible state. There was not besides the paper to indicate the man's identity.

The man did not commit suicide for lack of money, for in his pocketbook was found $6.78. The silver dollars had corroded even inside the leather case. The watch which the man had was green from corrosion, and there was very little left of the clothes.

Cannot hold Office.

In an exhaustive decision the supreme court has put the minds of Minnesota politicians and office holders at rest upon a question of constitutional law that has been agitating them ever since the adjournment of the last session of the legislature. The ruling is that John B. Sutton, of Stillwater, a member of the last legislature, appointed to the office of boiler inspector shortly after the adjournment of the legislature, is ineligible by reason of the provisions of Article 4, section 9, of the constitution.

The term for which Mr. Sutton was elected to the legislature does not expire until the first Monday in January, 1897, and until that time he may not hold any office under the United States, or the state of Minnesota. The fact of his resignation of that office cuts no figure.

Unconstitutional.

The attorney general has decided that it is unconstitutional for public schools in this state to be opened with prayer or reading of scriptures. The matter was laid before him several days ago by the state superintendent of public instruction, to whom a letter of inquiry had been written by a teacher in a country district, who had been accustomed to having the children repeat the Lord's prayer each morning, and to which proceeding one of the parents objected. The superintendent was asked to decide. This he has now done, through the attorney general. It seems that this custom is somewhat common in country districts in the state, and in some of the larger towns also, and the opinion, therefore, will be of considerable interest.

Fish and Game.

In his annual report Executive Agent Fullerton, of the game commission, shows that $1,825 has been received during the year from the sale of game confiscated; received from licenses for the use of pound nets in international waters, at the rate of $10 per net, $2,850; received from licenses for the use of pound nets in interstate waters at $5 per net, $55; from licenses to catch whitefish during November, at $1 per license, $66.

The game wardens have seized and destroyed during the year 60,000 feet of fish nets of all kinds and they made 124 arrests of persons for catching fish and killing game out of season.

A Good Cavel.

Representative Towne, of Minnesota, presented Speaker Reed with a gavel ornamented with silver. The gavel is the gift of one of Towne's constituents, E. P. Nelson, of Duluth. It is of oak, made from timbers of the sunken schooner Algonquin, the first to pass through Sault Ste Marie and reach the head of the Great Lakes.

News in Brief.

The Keeley institute at Minneapolis has been selected by St. Paul authorities to give the "cure" to Ramsey county inebriates.

J. E. Hall, formerly editor of the Mankato News, has been appointed to a clerkship at Washington, D. C.

Two freight wrecks are reported on the Great Northern, one at Avon, where the train broke apart and smashed together, and another at Garfield.

The People's Opera House at Pine Island, costing $30,000, has been opened with appropriate ceremonies.

A Northern Pacific dining car was burned at Fertile. The fire is supposed to have caught from the kitchen. The colored porters were sleeping in the car, and they made their escape in the very nick of time, as one end of the car was almost consumed before they were awakened.

The grand jury at St. Cloud found indictments against Sarah Williams and Frank Gammon for setting fire to the Park hotel last July.

James Murphy, a prominent farmer, was instantly killed by a passenger train at Sauk Rapids.

The big wholesale dry goods establishment of Hugh Harrison & Co., Minneapolis, has been purchased by the firm of Lindekes, Warner & Schurmeier, of St. Paul.

The suit against State Treasurer by an express company was dismissed by Judge Kerr of St. Paul. Mr. Koerner, it will be remembered, forwarded to Washington $200,000 in registered government bonds, valuing them at $1,000. The company claimed that they should have been valued for $200,000, and so brought the suit.

Representative Kiefer has procured a passport and letters of recommendation to diplomatic and consular representative in Europe from Secretary Olney for Frank Valesh, immigration agent for Minnesota, who will shortly cross the Atlantic to obtain additional information in the line of his duties.

At a charivari at Fraconia, Charles Abrahamson was seriously and Charles Mille, slightly wounded by a gunshot presumable discharged by the bridegroom, John Westlund. Abrahamson was taken to a hospital in St. Paul. He was shot in the breast and abdomen. No arrests.

The Immaculate Conception Church at St. Cloud, will next spring build a handsome school house, to cost $18,000. It will be a three-story building of stone and brick.

The farmers about Owatonna have about decided to establish a canning factory.

WOMAN'S WIT.

Told by a Society Girl.

Something About Morphine, Sulphur, Molasses and Other Things.

From the Evening News, Newark, N. J.

Among the popular society leaders in East Orange, N. J., Emma L. Stoll, a charming young maiden, stands in the foremost rank. She is of a lovable disposition and the light of the social set in which she moves. For two years she has been a sick girl from internal troubles peculiar to women, and having recently recovered, has given our reporter the following interesting account:

"Instead of improving under the care of my physician I became worse. For five weeks I was unable to get out of bed and about six o'clock each morning I suffered horribly. My lips were sore and lacerated from the marks of my teeth, for in my efforts to keep from screaming I sunk my teeth deep into my lips. At such times I rolled and tossed until the bed shook like an aspen leaf and it finally got so serious that the doctor—I won't tell you his name—gave me some morphine pills to take. The very thought of them now makes me shiver. These morphine pills simply put me to sleep for awhile and when I became conscious again my agony was renewed.

"The pain in my stomach and back was more than I could stand. 'Your blood is poor,' said the doctor, 'take sulphur and molasses,' and I did until it was a great wonder that I was not a molasses cake. It was time wasted in taking it because I was not benefited in the least; my suffering continued, but by a mighty effort after being in bed so long, I got up. Oh, but I was a sad sight then. From 112 pounds, I had fallen to ninety; my cheeks were pale and sunken and I limped; yes, actually hobbled from the extreme pain in my side. Then I read of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People and the testimonial in the News inspired me with hope. I got the pills and took them. Before many days I began to improve and before I had finished one box I felt as if I could go out and walk for miles. I soon stopped limping and through the Pink Pills I soon bid good-bye to my headaches while the pain in my stomach and back slowly but surely succumbed to the influence of these pills that seem to be able to persuade all pain to leave one's body. Now I am as I used to be; well and strong, light-hearted and merry but never without the pills. See I have got some of them now," and from a nearby desk she handed out one of the boxes.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills contain, in a condensed form, all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves. They are also a specific for troubles peculiar to females, such as suppressions, irregularities and all forms of weakness. They build up the blood, and restore the glow of health to pale and sallow cheeks. In men they effect a radical cure in all cases arising from mental worry, overwork or excesses of whatever nature. Pink Pills are sold in boxes (never in loose bulk) at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50, and may be had of all druggists, or direct by mail from Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

KANSAN—"Say, Bill, it says here that the crew of the schooner were compelled to rig a jury mast. What's a jury mast?" Missourian—"Why, anybody could tell you that. It's one of those big masts that it takes twelve men to put up."

A SCRAP OF TESTIMONY

Which Explains How a Capitalist Engaged in Iron Mining.

Some surprise has been manifested that Mr. J. D. Rockefeller, with his great wealth and multitude of business affairs, should have engaged in iron mining in Minnesota, and an effort has been made to create the impression that he embarked in the enterprise for the purpose of plucking the Merritts, of Duluth. The testimony of A. D. Thomson, of Duluth, given in the Merritt suit, throws some light on the matter. Here is one answer to a question which Mr. Thomson gave on the witness stand:

"Mr. Leonidas Merritt, at the Metropole hotel (New York), at the dinner table one evening told me plain, clear, decisive, that he and C. W. Wetmore were trying to get John D. Rockefeller in by degrees into this thing, $5,000 today, $10,000 tomorrow—as much as they could get every day, and lead him along by degrees until some day he would wake up and find that he was in so deep that he would have to go in and save the corporation and everybody connected with it. That is what Mr. Leonidas Merritt told me at the Metropole hotel."

It was fortunate for Minnesota that the Merritts were able to secure the capital necessary to develop the mines, and there seems to be no occasion to condemn the man who came to the rescue at so critical a period.

SEEDY APPLICANT—"Won't you give me a penny, sir?" Corpulent Gentleman—"A penny? Why do you ask me for a penny?" Seedy Applicant—"Because I didn't think you'd give it to me unless I asked for it."

ECLIPSES THEM ALL.

35½ Hours Chicago to Jacksonville, Florida.

The Monon Route with its customary enterprise has put on a new fast train that makes the run between Chicago and Jacksonville in 35½ hours.

This train is composed of elegant Pullman Perfected Safety Vestibuled, Open and Compartment Sleepers, including Drawing Room and Buffet Sleepers, as well as comfortable day coaches, with Monon Celebrated High-back Seats.

This train leaves Chicago daily at 8:32 P. M., arriving at Cincinnati next morning 7:30, Chattanooga 5:50 P. M., Atlanta 10:40 P. M., reaching Jacksonville at 8:20 the second morning, in ample time to make connection with all lines for points in Central and Southern Florida.

This is the fastest time ever made by any line between Chicago and Florida.

The Best. The Rest. The Test.

There are two kinds of sarsaparilla: The best—and the rest. The trouble is they look alike. And when the rest dress like the best who's to tell them apart? Well, "the tree is known by its fruit." That's an old test and a safe one. And the taller the tree the deeper the root. That's another test. What's the root,—the record of these sarsaparillas? The one with the deepest root is Ayer's. The one with the richest fruit; that, too, is Ayer's. Ayer's Sarsaparilla has a record of half a century of cures; a record of many medals and awards—culminating in the medal of the Chicago World's Fair, which, admitting Ayer's Sarsaparilla as the best—shut its doors against the rest. That was greater honor than the medal, to be the only Sarsaparilla admitted as an exhibit at the World's Fair. If you want to get the best sarsaparilla of your druggist, here's an infallible rule: Ask for the best and you'll get Ayer's. Ask for Ayer's and you'll get the best.

DELANO DIARY

- Read notice to Tax payers among our advertisements, and be ready when the Treasurer is in your town.

—Fred Knoll was enquiring Sunday if any one had seen any crows. It is a little early for next years birds yet.

—The Georgia University Graduates travel by special sleeper. It occupied a place on the switch, here, Monday night.

—You can find Christmas gifts at Geo. P. Schaffer's, C. H. Green & Co's, and at the Delano Furniture Co's. Call and see.

—Eph Ball and Tom Lanway have completed their contract for shipping 200 cords of maple wood to Minneapolis, at $3. per cord on board cars.

—We understand that J. W. McDonald is to take charge of the Insurance business of C. H. Vorse as soon as the latter is appointed Clerk of Court and removes to the County seat.

—The Georgia University Graduates under the management of J. Edward George, gave one of their musical entertainments at the City Hall on Monday evening to a full house.

—Notwithstanding the hard times so frequently heard about, Christmas goods are to be seen in most of the business houses in Delano. Some are new and quite ingenious devices.

—Some of our citizens seem to think the sidewalks are made for their own individual uses, and appropriate large shares of them for displaying goods' for storm houses and other inconveniences.

—Preparations are progressing for the reception of King Winter just before Christmas. This, it is predicted, will be the occasion of the winter. Let everybody be on hand as it is home talent and in a good cause.

—The weather the fore part of this week was quite summer like, warm and drizzling rain. This must be the garden spot of the country as we hear of snows all around us especially in Wisconsin have they had an unusual fall of the beautiful.

—Our village seems destined to lapse into big-woods once more so fas as officers go, unless a change soon comes about. Last spring officers were elected who had little interest in the town; two have already resigned and found homes elsewhere. If another should happen to move away or die, the Dictator would of course be in his glory for the balance of his days, as there would be none to dispute, save what he could manage. He might continue to hold over, and reign in his little monarchy independently, no need of any other officers. The reason given for not filling the vacancies is that "nobody will take the places." It speaks rather poorly for a town that "nobody wants to be an officer in it." Something wrong somewhere.

—Dont forget the King Winter Carnival at the City Hall Monday evening.

—John Niesland got his fingers into Kelseys feed mill and received quite an injury this morning.

—To the little folks. Don't fail to hang up your stockings next Tuesday night. The next morning will be Christmas.

—A social time and a "surprise" for Dr. Shrader and family, who are moving away, is to be held at the City Hall tonight.

—Among the names of members of the Dairy Association appears C. G. Roosen and Charles Kaemmer, of Delano. They came near getting a prize for butter, the Delano score being 93 5.

—We are pleased to notice that several of our cotemporaries in the county are following in the lead of the GAZETTE by quoting texts and giving a few of the points in the sermons delivered in the different churches, throughout the county. This is lots better reading than accounts of saloon rows, base ball scraps, and various other wrong deings. Give us more of the Gospel and there will be less of the evils.

—At a business meeting of the Epworth League held at the M. E. Church on Monday evening, A. E. Powell, Fred Farber and Minnie Farber were elected members. The election of officers for the next six months resulted in the choice of—Mrs. L. A. Frazee, President; 1st vice, Mrs. C. H. Green; 2nd vice, A. E. Powell; 3d vice, Chas. Hawker; 4th vice. Mrs H. V. Wilder; Secy., T. J Catlin; Treas., Miss Hattie Gross. The League is in a prosperous condition.

Personals.

Rev. J. L. Farber visited Watertown, Wednesday.

Mrs. Whiteman came up from Minneapolis, Wednesday.

John Higgins, of Rockford, was a Delano visitor Tuesday.

Drs. Ames and Catlin both visited Rockford on business, Tuesday.

Mell Powers, of Rockford, was a Delano visitor one day this week.

Peter Myer, of Minneapolis, is now assistant at the G. N. depot, here.

It's Mr. Bolton just the same if he does wear Jim Hill's cap while on duty.

Mrs. C. H. Green and Miss Mary Catlin visited Minneapolis and St. Paul, Monday.

Rev. John Ciemenski, of Winona, a young priest, is occupying the Catholic pulpit for the winter.

Rev. Lawrence Zawadzki, is in a hospital at Rochester, where he is being treated for Brights Disease.

Chape Farham, of Rockford, attended the Georgia University entertainment in Delano Monday evening.

Dr. J. S. Shrader expects to move to Sheboygan, Wis. next week, where he will engage in the practice of his profession.

County Cullings.

If the Eagle is as sure gbout the appointment of Clerk of Court as she was about the locating of the asylum, don't rely on her say so.

We would suggest that when it is found necessary to lock a jury up over Sunday in this country, it is getting to be pretty tough times. It can hardly be called a Civil Case.

Ex-Senator Eaton says: "It was the leakiest Grand Jury, perhaps ever assembled here." He does not say whether it leaked all over like a sieve, or simply run out at the bung-hole.

Wright County don't seem to be in it a little bit, when there are any prizes to be distributed among the people. So long as she turns out a reliable majority for the G. O. P. ticket, no matter who's on it, she need expect no favors at the hands of State politicians.

The Buffalo Journal complains that "In every case where any indictment was found, that had any public interest, it was known on the streets here almost as quick as in the Grand Jury room." "Of course every time any such matter of business got out from the Grand Jury, some one violates their solemn oath."

The Eagle has taken considerable pains to have her readers understand that to Senator Culkin more than to any other individual belonged the honor of getting the asylum located in Wright County; as Delano didn't get a single vote in the Commission meeting. Let Senator Culkin and the Eagle have all the "honor."

District Court is to adjourn over the holidays. Judge Elliott presided for a while, then Judge Pond took charge. It seems to drag along about as bad as ever this term It seems as if lawyers could be brought to beatify themselves a little faster than some of them do. The Judge might have them practice on foot ball for a few hours each day, in order to get up a circulation.

Besides the cases already mentioned in the GAZETTE the following have had a hearing:

Tarbox vs Frank Cruzen et. als. an atlas case, verdict for defendant. An appeal is talked of.

State vs. F. L. Duncan, defendant acquitted.

State vs. W. J. and Edward Ferrell, assault, defendants acquitted.

State vs. Ashley Riggs, defendant acquitted.

State vs. August Rochenberg, defendant guilty, sentenced to Stillwater

Isaac Podas is charged with having too much of I. O. O. F. funds.

Among Our Exchanges.

Rev. B. E. Sherwin, the M. E. pastor, has held revival services here evenings, for the greater part of the week.—Cokato Commoner.

F. N. Stacy is now a special reporter for the Pioneer Press and is conducting an investigation on the flax and cattle industry for Minnesota.—Howard Lake Herald.

Nothing is so offensive to Republicans as ring management. Whenever a man ceases to detest that sort of thing, he ceases to be a Republican. —Buffalo Journal.

Mr. Owen spoke for about an hour and a half and held his audience in close attention throughout. His address was clear, concise and convincing.—Waverly Tribune.

The revival meetings are progressing finely. Quite a large number of children and young people have made a start in Christian life.—Monticello Items in Annandale Post.

The Board of Education has decided that in order to keep up with the advance in educational matters our school should adopt the free text book system in the near future at least. —Clearwater News.

The very pleasant weather of the past few days has its advantages, even if we can't get our logs out or market our turkeys. There are a whole lot of farmers who are not saying a word, but husking corn.—Maple Lake Messenger.

Our Sunday dailies are massive and valuable. A great deal of time and money is spent in their production and the country weekly feels insignificant in their presence. But we are more powerful in the aggregate than the big daily. —Delano Eagle.

It is no wonder that a spirit of unrest, and even anarchy, is abroad in the land, when the courts of the country find excuses for such parties as the Goulds which prevents the state from collecting personal taxes. Millionaires play all sorts of tricks to avoid bearing a proper share of the burdens of the people, and invoke the aid of the courts for that purpose, where they are too often successful.—Wright County Times.

The curtain has dropped on the last act of this awful tragedy and all are glad of it.—St. Paul Broad Axe.

And br'er Harrison; he seems to have crawled under that hat and curled up for the winter.—St. Cloud Times.

As for Harry T. Hayward we believe he deserved his fate and was deserving of no mercy and no pity. —Dassel Anchor

Thus the curtrin drops over one of the most heinous crimes that has marred the annals of Minnesota.—Wabasha Democrat.

Why dosn't Rockfeller pay that million dollar judgment secured against him by the Merritts? He could have made it up by taking a slice off from his donation to the Chicago university and the money would go towards improving Northern Minnesota.—Swift County Monitor.

There is a ring in Mr. Cleveland's message to congress on the Venezuela question that must awaken a feeling of respect for the president that for the nonce overshadows the people's disgust for his financial and free trade fallacies. He has made a ten strike and should be accorded all the credit that his loyalty and a proper appreciation of the dignity of the subject deserve.—Duluth News-Tribune.

DELANO DIARY

- Read notice to Tax payers among our advertisements, and be ready when the Treasurer is in your town.

—Fred Knoll was enquiring Sunday if any one had seen any crows. It is a little early for next years birds yet.

—The Georgia University Graduates travel by special sleeper. It occupied a place on the switch, here, Monday night.

—You can find Christmas gifts at Geo. P. Schaffer's, C. H. Green & Co's, and at the Delano Furniture Co's. Call and see.

—Eph Ball and Tom Lanway have completed their contract for shipping 200 cords of maple wood to Minneapolis, at $3. per cord on board cars.

—We understand that J. W. McDonald is to take charge of the Insurance business of C. H. Vorse as soon as the latter is appointed Clerk of Court and removes to the County seat.

—The Georgia University Graduates under the management of J. Edward George, gave one of their musical entertainments at the City Hall on Monday evening to a full house.

—Notwithstanding the hard times so frequently heard about, Christmas goods are to be seen in most of the business houses in Delano. Some are new and quite ingenious devices.

—Some of our citizens seem to think the sidewalks are made for their own individual uses, and appropriate large shares of them for displaying goods for storm houses and other inconveniences.

—Preparations are progressing for the reception of King Winter just before Christmas. This, it is predicted, will be the occasion of the winter. Let everybody be on hand as it is home talent and in a good cause.

—The weather the fore part of this week was quite summer like, warm and drizzling rain. This must be the garden spot of the country as we hear of snows all around us especially in Wisconsin have they had an unusual fall of the beautiful.

—Our village seems destined to lapse into big-woods once more so fas as officers go, unless a change soon comes about. Last spring officers were elected who had little interest in the town; two have already resigned and found homes elsewhere. If another should happen to move away or die, the Dictator would of course be in his glory for the balance of his days, as there would be none to dispute, save what he could manage. He might continue to hold over, and reign in his little monarchy independently, no need of any other officers. The reason given for not filling the vacancies is that "nobody will take the places." It speaks rather poorly for a town that "nobody wants to be an officer in it." Something wrong somewhere.

—Dont forget the King Winter Carnival at the City Hall Monday evening.

—John Niesland got his fingers into Kelseys feed mill and received quite an injury this morning.

—To the little folks. Don't fail to hang up your stockings next Tuesday night. The next morning will be Christmas.

—A social time and a "surprise" for Dr. Shrader and family, who are moving away, is to be held at the City Hall tonight.

—Among the names of members of the Dairy Association appears C. G. Roosen and Charles Kaemmer, of Delano. They came near getting a prize for butter, the Delano score being 93.5.

—We are pleased to notice that several of our cotemporaries in the county are following in the lead of the GAZETTE by quoting texts and giving a few of the points in the sermons delivered in the different churches, throughout the county. This is lots better reading than accounts of saloon rows, base ball scraps, and various other wrong deings. Give us more of the Gospel and there will be less of the evils.

—At a business meeting of the Epworth League held at the M. E. Church on Monday evening, A. E. Powell, Fred Farber and Minnie Farber were elected members. The election of officers for the next six months resulted in the choice of—Mrs. L. A. Frazee, President; 1st vice, Mrs. C. H. Green; 2nd vice, A. E. Powell; 3d vice, Chas. Hawker; 4th vice. Mrs H. V. Wilder; Secy., T. J Catlin; Treas., Miss Hattie Gross. The League is in a prosperous condition.

Personals.

Rev. J. L. Farber visited Watertown, Wednesday.

Mrs. Whiteman came up from Minneapolis, Wednesday.

John Higgins, of Rockford, was a Delano visitor Tuesday.

Drs. Ames and Catlin both visited Rockford on business, Tuesday.

Mell Powers, of Rockford, was a Delano visitor one day this week.

Peter Myer, of Minneapolis, is now assistant at the G. N. depot, here.

It's Mr. Bolton just the same if he does wear Jim Hill's cap while on duty.

Mrs. C. H. Green and Miss Mary Catlin visited Minneapolis and St. Paul, Monday.

Rev. John Ciemenski, of Winona, a young priest, is occupying the Catholic pulpit for the winter.

Rev. Lawrence Zawadzki, is in a hospital at Rochester, where he is being treated for Bright-s Disease.

Chape Farham, of Rockford, attended the Georgia University entertainment in Delano Monday evening.

Dr. J. S. Shrader expects to move to Sheboygan, Wis. next week, where he will engage in the practice of his profession.

County Cullings.

If the Eagle is as sure about the appointment of Clerk of Court as she was about the locating of the asylum, don't rely on her say so.

We would suggest that when it is found necessary to lock a jury up over Sunday in this country, it is getting to be pretty tough times. It can hardly be called a Civil Case.

Ex-Senator Eaton says: "It was the leakiest Grand Jury, perhaps ever assembled here." He does not say whether it leaked all over like a sieve, or simply run out at the bung-hole.

Wright County don't seem to be in it a little bit, when there are any prizes to be distributed among the people. So long as she turns out a reliable majority for the G. O. P. ticket, no matter who's on it, she need expect no favors at the hands of State politicians.

The Buffalo Journal complains that "In every case where any indictment was found, that had any public interest, it was known on the streets here almost as quick as in the Grand Jury room." "Of course every time any such matter of business got out from the Grand Jury, some one violates their solemn oath."

The Eagle has taken considerable pains to have her readers understand that to Senator Culkin more than to any other individual belonged the honor of getting the asylum located in Wright County; as Delano didn't get a single vote in the Commission meeting. Let Senator Culkin and the Eagle have all the "honor."

District Court is to adjourn over the holidays. Judge Elliott presided for a while, then Judge Pond took charge. It seems to drag along about as bad as ever this term It seems as if lawyers could be brought to hustle themselves a little faster than some of them do. The Judge might have them practice on foot ball for a few hours each day, in order to get up a circulation.

Besides the cases already mentioned in the GAZETTE the following have had a hearing:

Tarbox vs Frank Cruzen et. als. an atlas case, verdict for defendant. An appeal is talked of.

State vs. F. L. Duncan, defendant acquitted.

State vs. W. J. and Edward Ferrell, assault, defendants acquitted.

State vs. Ashley Riggs, defendant acquitted.

State vs. August Rochenberg, defendant guilty, sentenced to Stillwater

Isaac Podas is charged with having too much of I. O. O. F. funds.

The schedule printed below is a comprehensive guide to the best and most desirable route to Atlanta from the North and Northwest, Chicago, Indianapolis, Cincinnati, Louisville, St. Louis Terre Haute, and Evansville.

Palace Day Coaches and Pullman Sleeping Cars are attached to all trains shown in this schedule.

Extremely low rates have been made to Atlanta and return via the Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis railway. All trains run solid between Nashville and Atlanta, except train in last column. The train in third column, which leaves Cincinnati at 4:30 p. m. runs solid to Atlanta. This is the route of the famous "Dixie Flyer," through "all the year round" sleeping car line between Nashville, Tenn., and Jacksonville, Fla.

To California on a "Maple Leaf"

Through Tourist Sleeping Car.

The Land of Plenty

No Change of Cars to the Coast!

The Chicago Great Western Railway (Maple Leaf Route) runs Tourist Sleeping Cars to Los Angeles, California, via Kansas City and the Santa Fe Route, every Tuesday. The Tourist Car rate is but $6.00 ($3.00 each, if two go) from St. Paul or Minneapolis to Los Angeles California, and the trip 24 hours shorter than by other lines. No Sunday traveling is necessary. The cars are divided into sections, the same as Palace Sleepers, and are in charge of a colored porter. They are plentifully supplied with fresh clean bedding, curtains and linen, and have a little kitchen at one end for light cooking. These cars were designed to give comfort in a long journey at the lowest possible cost to the traveler.

A SONG FOR THE NEW YEAR.

CHANT me a song for the New Year, poet,
A rhyme that is happy and gay;
Let your voice ring true and each word sound clear
As you sing me my sweet roundelay;
For the nobler the theme the grander the song,
And who shall predict what rare gifts may belong
To the twelve month commencing to-day?

Write me a prayer for the season, poet,
A prayer for a brave, hopeful heart;
Let it impress bear of a loving faith,
Of a trust that will vigor impart;
For the greater the strain the stronger the need,
The higher the effort the surer the meed,
Be the standard of life or of art.

Man cannot pierce through the curtain, poet,
Concealing the year's future fight;
Offer prayer or praise in its grief or joy,
From the darkness shall burst forth the light!
Tho' the clouds gather thick the sun will shine through,
The suitriest day hath its evening of dew,
And the world hath God's haven in sight!

LEE C. HARBY.

—From Demorest's Magazine for January.

WE are in receipt of a couple of Hood's Calendars for 1896. They are nicely gotten up; and are useful as well as ornamental.

THE Sherburne County Times says Constable Dingman makes tramps saw wood. Sherburn County must have better tramps or better constables than most counties if this wonderful feat can be accomplished there.

WONDER if the Hon. Knute Nelson thought, when he started that Norweigan Constitution on its rounds through the country press, that he might create a desire for a king; and himself capture the crown?

AFTER all the trouble to get that "yes" out of Editor Paradis why didn't the Grand Jury indict the druggist? Didn't they believe Mr. P.: or did the druggist promise to keep the latch string on the outside?

THE Swift County Monitor came to us this week with and edition which editor Matthews calls "one of the best newspapers ever gotten out in Swift County.' He might safely have included several more counties. It was a good one.

THE Representative has an article from the "Winona Kicker" accusing the "tall pine", W. W. Irwin, of having announced that he is a Republican. Mr. Donnelly, editor of that paper, believes in smart men changing their political opinions often.

SEVERAL of our exchanges have been publishing the Norweigan Constitution lately. It would be well to print our own, also. Many people who read papers have no book containing the constitution of our own country, and might be induced to read it if printed in the news papers.

FROM reading a list of the House Committees, announced last Saturday, and which is found on the inside of this paper, one is lead to think, or to know, that Speaker Reed believes "that to the victor belongs the spoils". Every man of them is a Republican, and reasoning from analogy, a Reed man.

WITH Hon. William Morrison, of Illinois, and Hon. Thomas Reed, of Main, as the Presidential candidates of the two old parties the tariff question would be shelved. One favors a horizontal reduction; the other a horizontal increase. This would form a parallel, which as everybody knows can come no nearer together.

EDITOR PARADIS didn't show up his friend, the druggist, in a very good light, nor the Grand Jury that refused to indict him, when he complained of having been taken taken away from his business as a witness in the case, when "Others much above him in political influence, were equally well known to be in possession of the same information, but were not wanted." Does Mr. Paradis wish to convey the idea that the drug store was a regular place for drinking?

OUR Anoka brethren have undoubtedly good cause to kick over the location of the Fourth Insane hospital.—Evening Tribune.

So have our Delano Brethren; but of what use is it! A neighbor, well onto political intrigues, informed us weeks ago that Hastings would almost surely get the asylum. If it did not Anoka would. He evidently knew a thing or two. Hastings is away down to the edge of the state. It is kind of fortunate for the balance of the state that Chicago or St. Louis didn't put in a bid.

FROM several sources comes the news that everybody is not satisfied that Harry Hayward was hung, and that his promises to haunt his brother Adry will not be fulfilled. The very kindly, and brotherly feelings expressed in certain quarters; the double dealing, and trickery resorted to in the prison by those in charge of him; the manner of the execution, the midnight revelry with friends, the execution at the hour of 2 A. M., the remarks of the condemned about hanging in a harness, the autopsy, on a man hurriedly driven to an undertaking establishment, and whose features were said to be unrecognizable, and many other things together with the public exhibitions of the hanging, on the scaffold used in the jail at the dime museum, and the sale of the confession which his father says the condemned son told him was a pack of lies, and the whole bearing of Hayward which tended to prove that he did not expect to hang, does give some chance for such a doubt as to the execution having been carried out. If any man present at the time the execution was supposed to have taken place was to express a belief that it was not real he would find plenty to agree with him among those who have only read of the circumstances.

FROM a copy of the Los Angeles Herald, sent us by Hon. B. F. Christlieb this week, we clip, from an article on the town of Clearwater, Los Angelese county, an interesting item concerning Dr. F. A. Atwater, a former Delanoite:

"Col. Fred A. Atwater, an original Vermonter, is one of the founders and pioneer residents of the town. He has had a wider range of experience in life as a merchant, a surveyor, a soldier, a publisher and printer, farmer and traveler. Prior to settling in Clearwater he spent four years in Sidney, Australia, where he was the head of a large publishing house. One of his war experiences was a narrow escape from death. Just before entering into a battle he had picked up a lost mule's shoe "for luck," and placed it in the left breast pocket of his coat. Shortly after that incident, while forming his men preparatory to an engagement, he was fired at by a sharpshooter in ambush. The large rifle ball struck Colonel Atwater's left breast near the heart, and laid him flat upon the ground, apparently killed. He was only stunned, however, as the ball struck the mule's shoe and glanced off without doing serious injury. The colonel has in his possession both the flattened bullet and the iron shoe; and he takes pleasure occasionlly in exibiting them to friends, and explaining how that lucky shoe saved his life. His oldest son, Edward is a physican, and the only one resident in the town."

PEOPLE from the country who have read and heard of the Ging murder trial for more than a year, now the instigator has paid the penalty of the law, had made up their minds to allow it to sink into oblivion as soon as possible. But when they visit Minneapolis and see the Dime Museum plastered over with flaming posters announcing that the Hayward Hanging ceremony will be performed on the actual scaffold on which the condemned man was hung, and the phonograph will grind out the language he used, for the public curiosity at ten cents per head, it is disgusting beyond measure. And then to hear boys crying up and down the street books for sale "All about the Ging murder," it makes one shudder. Most civilized people look on such occurences as did Dr. Hayward when he burned the effects of his late brother to prevent their becoming mementoes in the hands of those who would publicly exibit them. They prefer to let them rest, and not parade the minutia of the whole affair, from first to last, before the rising generation, to excite in some of them a spirit of emulation, to surpass even this man in wickedness. It disgusts country people to think of the way Minneapolis people seek to get rich. From Menage to Hayward and now on down to the dime museum and publisher all are trying to turn a dime into their own pockets, no matter how, or who it may injure. It is astounding in this age of intelligence that such things should be tolerated; much less patronized. What won't people give to gratify curiosity? What wont people do for money? It is wrong and should be rectified.

Carlisle and Sherman in 1878.

From the Representative, Donnelly's paper, we clip the following; which will be of interest to our readers as both men now take a different view of the situation:

CARLISLE.

I shall not enter into an examination of the causes which have combined to depreciate the relative value of silver, and to appreciate the value of gold since 1873, but I am one of those who believe that they are transient and temporary in their nature, and that when they have passed away or have been removed by the separate or united actions of the nations most deeply interested in the subject, the old ratio of actual and relative value will be re-established on a firmer foundation than ever. I know that the world's stock of precious metals is none too large, and I see no reason to apprehend that it will ever become so. Mankind will be fortunate, indeed, if the annual production of gold and silver coin shall keep pace with the annual increase of population, commerce and industry. According to my view of the subject, the conspiracy which seems to have been formed here and in Europe to destroy by legislation and otherwise from three-sevenths to one-half the metallic money of the world is the most gigantic crime of this or any other age.

The consummation of such a scheme would ultimately entail more misery upon the human race than all the wars pestilence and famine that ever occurred in the history of the world. The absolute and instantaneous destruction of half the movable property of the world, including horses, ships, railroads and all other appliances for carrying on commerce, while it would be felt more sensibly at the moment, would not produce anything like the prolonged distress and disorganization of society that must inevitably result from the permanent annihilation of one half of the metallic money of the world.

John G. Carlisle.

Feb. 21, 1878.

SHERMAN.

Treasury Dep't, July 15, 1878—

Dear Sir: To that part of your letter of the 12th inst., in which you ask my views of the matter confided to the monetary commission, I have some delicacy in replying very fully. During the monetary conference in Paris, when silver was excluded from circulation by being undervalued, I was strongly in favor of the single standard of gold, and wrote a letter which you will find in the proceedings of that conference, stating briefly my view. At that time the wisest of us did not anticipate the sudden fall of silver or the rise of gold that has occurred. This uncertainty of the relation between the two metals is one of the chief arguments in favor of monometallic system, but other arguments, showing the dangerous effect upon industry by dropping one of the precious metals from the standard of value, outweigh in my mind all theoretical objections to the bimetallic system. I am thoroughly convinced that if it were possible for the leading commercial nations to fix by agreement an arbitrary relation between silver and gold, even though the market value might vary somewhat from time to time, it would be a measure of greatest good to all nations. My earnest desire is that you may succeed in doing this.

You are so well informed upon this subject that it is not worth while for me to enlarge upon it. The statement and documents sent you by the director of the mint will give in authentic form most of the material facts which bear upon the question, and your own investigation on the silver commission will. I am quite sure, supply any deficiency. Very truly yours,

John Sherman. Secretary.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 20, 1895

Such a wave of enthusiastic patriotism as has greeted President Cleveland's message notifying Great Britain that the Monroe doctrine is not a historical myth, but a tangible policy that the United States is prepared to maintain by force of arms, has not been seen by the present generation. The White house has been flooded with messages by wire and mail from all sections of the country, containing not only congratulations, but offers of volunteers by thousands from organizations of veterans, both Union and Confederate. Congress forgot its past antagonism towards the President and gave him the the authority to appoint a commission to investigate and report the true boundary between Venezuela and British Guiana and appropriated the money to pay its expenses, and to show Great Britain that no bluff was being made a bill has been introduced in both branches of Congress appropriating $100,000,000, to be immediately available, for strengthening the military armament on our sea-coast and the Canadian frontier. Congress, like the President, fully recognizes the tendency of European governments to make light of the Monroe doctrine, and is determined to let them learn differently, if it takes a war to teach them the lesson.

Whatever may be the opinion of people as to President Cleveland's past acts it is universally believed that his Monroe doctrine message will be known in history as the second Declaration of Independence.

Secretary Olney is also getting high commendation from all quarters. His masterly communication to Lord Salisbury is justly regarded as the best interpretation of the Monroe doctrine ever printed, one which should be used as a text book in every school in the United States. It has placed him at one bound in the front rank of American Statesmen, and was never excelled by anything written by his great predecessor in the office of Secretary of State, Daniel Webster. It has also caused his name to be very frequently mentioned as the democratic candidate for President next year.

Rumors have already reached Washington of the intention of English financiers to frighten the administration by attempting to bring on a money panic by unloading American securities held by them. These rumors cause no uneasines here; such action would be more costly to the British than a war would be. The silver men in Congress would welcome such a move on the part of the British, as they believe it would result in the United States setting up an independent financial policy of its own. This country has too many resources which its patriotic citizens would place at the disposal of the government to be frightened by such rumors.

Senator Hill has introduced a bill in the Senate to repeal the law which prohibits those who served in the Confederate army and navy from holding commissions in the U. S. army or navy, and he will push it when Congress reassembles, January 3rd. after the holiday recess.

On the republican side of the House there are some new clowns, but Boutelle, of Maine, easily holds his own at the clown busines. He attempted to rescue Cannon, of Ill., from the drubbing he was getting at the hands of Ex-Speaker Crisp, in connection with the republican plan of having three election committees, so as to railroad the contested election cases, and not only failed to help Cannon any but got himself jeered at by the entire House. To make his failure to help Cannon more conspicuous Boutelle asked, after having been shut up on the election question by Mr. Crisp, for five minutes to make a speech on the Hawaiian question. He got a laugh instead. The question is often asked after one of Boutelle's exhibitions of himself?" By the way, Boutelle made another exhibition of himself by denouncing those republicans who joined the democrats in applauding the President's Monroe doctrine Message.

Democratic Senators were not greatly surprised when they learned that the republican caucus had treated the populist Senators much better than the democratic Senators in the distribution of the chairmanship of committees which it is customary to allot to the minority in the Senate. They suspected some time ago that the republicans had made a deal with the populists; now they know it. The populists all get chairmanships, either of a standing or a select committee, while the democrats with a membership of only five less than half of the Senate only get twelve chairmanships, five of a standing commitsees and seven of select committees, all unimportant.

Before adjourning the Senate adopted Senator Call's resolution for an investigation of the part taken in the election of members of Congress by corporations; also one by Senator Davis asking the President for information and correspondence relating to British encroachments in Alaska.

FROM CALIFORNIA.

BY HON. B. F. CHRISTLIEB.

Reports of tourists visiting Southern California during winter seasons represent the trees of that region as being covered with foliage the entire year leading to a supposition that such is the character of all the varieties of trees growing in that region which does not represent the facts. There are various deciduous trees to be found, but not many of the varieties of the Northern States east of the Rocky Mountains, and those of the latter, as the apple, peach, sycamore, and willow shed their foliage in California in the winter, and likewise those deciduous trees of the warmer climates as the fig tree, California umbrella tree and others, also lose their foliage during winter months. The conifer, or pine, balsm cedar and varieties, remain green the entire year the same as in the east, but the most attractive trees, those that give the impression of trees remaining green all the time are the orange, lemon, different varieties of the eucalyptus, grevilla, magnolia, live oak, Peruvian mastic or pepper trees, (not the pepper of commerce) and many other varieties. The leafage of the latter is of a foliaceous character. The trunks and main branches of the pepper tree are crooked and irregular in shape, the branches however become slim and drooping out from the trunk terminating in long tender stems which carry a foliage of small leaves in a form similar to ferns. These trees line the outer edges of the sidewalks of many streets in the residence portions of towns and cities and are also fast growers and if left to grow unrestrained would soon literally arch a street over with their limbs and foliage. The foliage remains clear of the California dust during rainless seasons and being of a light green shade intermingled with its fruit consisting of slim bunches of red berries of the size of pepper kernels, the senic effect of which is grand, as the branches are wafted by the gentle breezes. The berries have the texture and sharp flavor of peper kernels, which fact gives them the local name of pepper tree.

The orange and lemon trees have a dense foliage of a deep green; the leaves resembling apple leaves in shape, larger perhaps, and which seem to be changing and renewing themselves very often. Amongst the dense foliage of the orange tree hangs the fruit in all stages, from extreme greenness to ripeness. Oranges can be seen on trees the entire year.

On the lawns are to be seen palms of many kinds, California persimmon trees bearing a red fruit about the size of an apple, but still a persimmon with all its astringent qualities and it does not take a long pole to knock them as the trees are low. Many lawns are enclosed with cypress hedges kept trimmed in various shapes. Besides the cypress there are other varieties of the conifer pine, or spruce species, amongst which is a very beautiful tree known here as the star tree. It grows tall, and the trunk is visible from the ground to the top, but the branches radiate in all directions from certain places in the trunk and these branching places are situated along the trunk one above the other at distances or hights above each other of about 3 to 6 feet. These branches seem to radiate from the trunks at certain angles like the spokes of a wheel, the lowest set or star being near the ground and projects the furtherest from the trunk, and the next star projects less and each in succession projecting less, ending in a single upright top similar to that of the Minnesota spruce but much larger. The limbs and foliage are flat like, so that the form of the tree is visible and is interesting in appearance.

The weather latterly alternates considerable between periods of enjoyable summer weather with the thermometer ascending to the eighties and upward during day time which period closes with a rainy period, following which a cooler period sets in of what we would call pleasant fall weather with the temperature ranging from 40 to 60. On a few occasions however the temperature descended to the frost line, but for all that the numerous flowers remain in bloom. As far as my observation extends, it seems to me that we receive more rain during a dry Minnesota summer than they do here during the so called rainy season.

ONE of the curious revelations of the recent British census is the extraordinary predominance of the female over the male sex among the grown inhabitants of England. The figures show that the excess of the former over the latter amounts to exactly 899,000. Another remarkable thing in connection with this excess of women is the fact that more than five-sixths of the total 899,000 are widows.

THIRTEEN senators took their seats for the first time in the present congress, and they are all young men, with the exception of Mr. Baker, of Kansas, who is only 51. The rest range in age from Marion Butler, of North Carolina, now 32 years old, to Mr. Wetmore, of Rhode Island, who is 49. The average age of these 13 new men is 44 years, and the majority of them have never before served in public life.

IT has been figured out that owing to the pressure of the superincumbent atmosphere the air at the bottom of a shaft 20 miles deep would be as dense as water at the earth's surface, and that at the depth of 40 miles its density would equal that of quicksilver. As it would be impossible to live amid such conditions this statement may help to reconcile us to the fact that we have no known means of attaining any such depths below the surface of the earth.

This struggle he believes will come before the close of the century.

ST. LOUIS is confident that ill luck does not always attend the number 13. It appears that when the delegation of republican national convention boomers left that city for Washington there were 13 in the party. Yet at the last St. Louis won the coveted honor. The "13" superstition thus receives a bad setback.

THE post-mortem examination of the skull and brain of Harry Hayward, the Minneapolis murderer, reveals the reason for his going to the gallows with coarse jests and displaying a spirit of bravado. The surgeons have found that Hayward was congenitally defective; there was a lack of moral development, and to this extent he was insane. Had this fact been known before his death, his execution might not have occurred. Yet he was sane enough to plan and commit the worst of crimes. On the whole the law seems to have made no serious mistake in his case. He said gambling caused his downfall.

FIFTY-FOURTH CONGRESS.

The Proceedings of the First Session.

Washington, Dec. 19.—Bills were introduced in the senate yesterday providing an appropriation of $100,000,000 for a heavy increase in the national armement, and making ex-confederates eligible to service in the army and navy. A resolution was passed for an inquiry into alleged corporate influences operating in the election of United States senators and representatives. In the house a bill was passed appropriating $100,000 for the expenses of the commission suggested by Mr. Cleveland in his special Venezuelan message. Adjourned to the 20th.

Washington, Dec. 20.—The house bill appropriating $100,000 for the expenses of the proposed commission to Venezuela was laid before the senate yesterday and many speeches were delivered, but no decisive action was taken. A bill was introduced by Senator Hale (Me.) for the construction of six seagoing coast line steel battle ships. A message from the president on the subject of the outrages on Armenians in the Turkish empire was referred to the committee on foreign relations. The house was not in session.

Washington, Dec. 21.—The senate yesterday, by unanimous vote, passed the bill adopted by the house empowering the president to appoint a commission to determine the Venezuelan British Guiana boundary. A message was received from the president saying the nation's credit was in peril, and that he desired congress to remain in session and do whatever it could to reassure the country that the government of the United States will continue to meet its obligations, financial as well as otherwise. No action was taken. In the house the only business transacted was the passage of a bill for the changing of the terms of United States court in Iowa and the presentation of a notice of contest against Representative Jones, of Virginia, on the ground of fraud.

Washington, Dec. 23.—In the senate on Saturday the president's message on the financial situation was discussed, but no action was taken. Adjourned to the 24th. In the house Speaker Reed announced the standing committees. The president's financial message was read and referred to the committee on ways and means.

IT IS A LAW.

President Cleveland Signed the Venezuelan Commission Resolution.

Washington, Dec. 21.—The proceedings in the senate Friday were opened by a prayer by its blind chaplain, invoking the Christmas influence of "Peace on Earth and Good Will to Men" and asking that the two greatest nations of the earh of one language, one faith, one baptism and one Lord, should not be embroiled in war. It was delivered with such feeling, earnestness and eloquence that it was ordered to be printed in the record. A very unusual privilege to be accorded to a chaplain's opening prayer.

The day, however, did not respond to that peaceful opening; and when the hour of adjournment came the senate had passed, without amendment and without a single negative vote, the house bill appropriating $100,000 for a commission to report to the president on the true divisional line between the republic of Venezuela and British Guiana.

Washington, Dec. 23.—The president signed the Venezuelan commission resolution Saturday afternoon. It is therefore now a law. Secretary Olney and Secretary Herbert had a long conference with President Cleveland Saturday about the present and probable future aspects of the Venezuelan situation. Secretary Olney and the president, it is understood, discussed the appointment of the Venezuelan commission authorized by congress. According to the wording of the resolution authorizing the commission, the commissioners are directed to ascertain the true divisional boundary between Venezuela and British Guiana.

This, of course, makes their work so much more definite and increases their responsibility. It was said that when the report of the commission is received the president will adopt one of two courses. He will either send the findings of the commission to congress with a request for action or else issue a proclamation declaring the true boundary to be that ascertained by the commissioners.

What would follow this latter action can only be surmised, but it is probable that the president would use it as a basis for another attempt to secure Great Britain's agreement to arbitrate before taking any radical step, provided, of course, that the commission did not sustain the extreme claims of the British to the disputed territory.

ICE WAS TOO THIN.

Skaters Break Through and Seven Lives Are Lost.

Morris, Ill., Dec. 23.—Three boys lost their lives in the Illinois and Michigan canal at this place Sunday afternoon. The names of the dead boys are: William Lauerman, aged ten; Edward Lauerman, aged 12, and James Kinney, aged 13. The Lauerman boys were the sons of Mrs. Peter Lauerman, a widow, and the Kinney lad a son of Lawrence Kinney. They went to the canal to skate without the knowledge or permission of their parents.

Denver, Col., Dec. 23.—While skating on Lathrop lake, seven miles west of Denver, Charley Jones, aged eight, fell through an air-hole in the ice. His brother Robert and sister Maggie, aged 21 and 20 respectively, and Ida Ball, aged 16, attempted to rescue him and all four were drowned.

Utah to Be a State January 4

Washington, Dec. 23.—The new constitution of Utah, which was brought to Washington a week ago by the Utah commissioners, has been examined by the president and Attorney-General Harmon and found to be in all respects in accordance with the terms prescribed in the enabling act. Therefore the president will issue his proclamation January 4 next, declaring Utah, a state of the union. As the state officers are to assume their duties on the Monday following the admission of the new state they will be in office on January 6. Attorney-General Harmon has telegraphed these facts to the chief justice of Utah at the request of the president.

Can Make the Armor.

Philadelphia, Dec. 20.—Judge Dallas filed an opinion in the United States circuit court Thursday refusing the application made by the Harvey Steel company for a preliminary injunction to restrain the Bethlehem Iron company, of Bethlehem, Pa., from the making of an alleged infringement on the patent Harveyized armor plate process.

Texan General Merchants Fail.

Dallas, Tex., Dec. 21.—John Beyett & Brother, general merchants at Chico and Alvord, failed Friday morning. Their liabilities are $35,000, and assets comparatively insignificant.

Cigarettes Claim Another Victim.

Niles, Mich., Dec. 20.—Willard Green, a 16-year-old Buchanan boy, who has been at the point of death some weeks from cigarette-smoking, died Thursday. The boy has smoked as high as 165 boxes in a month, always inhaling the deadly nicotine. On his deathbed he raged and cried piteously for cigarettes.

Big Haul by Burglars.

Kelso, Mo., Dec. 20.—The safe in George Wright's general store was blown by burglars Thursday night and $2,000 in currency and notes stolen. The burglars left no clew.

REBELS WHIPPED.

Cuban Insurgents Dispersed with Heavy Loss.

Havana, Dec. 23.—Gen. Navarro, who was reported as leaving Colon for the relief of the Spanish forces, encountered the insurgents at the plantation Espana, where his coming served to rescue the detachment of Antilla. He followed the insurgents upon their retreat and overtook them. A fierce fight occurred, and the insurgents were dispersed with heavy loss. The number of soldiers killed was 17. Gen. Navarro again went in pursuit, and at Benaguizs the insurgents attacked him. Gen. Prat made a forced march to cut off the retreat of the insurgents.

The Dieromen battalion under Gen. Asturias with artillery attacked Gomez and a force of 4,000 insurgents. The fight occurred near the River Colemna and lasted two hours. The positions controlled by the insurgents were attacked eight times, the insurgents fighting with the machete. The attack of the troops was made with the bayonet. The insurgents left 25 killed and prisoners on the field and 70 wounded.

Congratulated by Brazil.

Washington, Dec. 23.—In the senate Saturday a letter from Secretary Olney gave a congratulatory cablegram from the Brazilian senate, sent through Minister Mendonca of Brazil, on President Cleveland's recent enunciation on the Monroe doctrine.

The Chosen Friends.

Indianapolis, Ind., Dec. 20.—The supreme council of the Order of Chosen Friends elected officers Thursday. H. H. Morse, New York, was chosen supreme councilor. The treasurer's report shows that the receipts and disbursements for the last six months amounted to $540,000.

Negro Hanged.

Camden, N. J., Dec. 20. — Theodore Lambert, a negro, was hanged in the jail yard shortly after 10 o'clock Thursday morning, for the murder of William G. Kairer, a baker, which occurred in the early part of December, 1893.

Alleged Ghouls Arrested.

Topeka, Kan., Dec. 20.—M. E. Lowe, ex-city scavenger, was arrested, charged with the numerous grave robberies in this city. F. H. Martin and L. C. Duncan, students at the Kansas medical college, were arrested as his accomplices.

Death of a Bishop.

La Porte, Ind., Dec. 20.—Bishop Daniel Brundage, of the Mennonite church, is dead at his home at Wakarusa, aged 84 years. The deceased was a native of Canada and one of the acknowledged heads of his chosen faith in the United States.

A GRIM AMUSEMENT.

Torture Self-Inflicted While Playing a Curious Game.

A custom of the Abyssinian braves is described by Pearson's Weekly. The girls themselves play an active part there. When young people are gathered for amusement, one of them will begin peeling a straw of green millet, which is full of pith.

Her lover's blood runs cold, probably, but he must smile or own himself a craven. When she has cut the pith into bits an inch long, he stretches out his bare arm. The example set, every girl who respects herself and has a lover follows it.

The young men form a circle with arms extended. Blithely, then, with many a jest, doubtless, the maidens arrange their bits of pith upright in some fanciful design on the bare flesh, and set them alight. They are nearly an inch thick, and they burn very slowly, but the hapless youth must stand and smile as well as he can till the blood of the seared flesh extinguishes them.

KNOWLEDGE

Brings comfort and improvement and tends to personal enjoyment when rightly used. The many, who live better than others and enjoy life more, with less expenditure, by more promptly adapting the world's best products to the needs of physical being, will attest the value to health of the pure liquid laxative principles embraced in the remedy, Syrup of Figs.

Its excellence is due to its presenting in the form most acceptable and pleasant to the taste, the refreshing and truly beneficial properties of a perfect laxative; effectually cleansing the system, dispelling colds, headaches and fevers and permanently curing constipation. It has given satisfaction to millions and met with the approval of the medical profession, because it acts on the Kidneys, Liver and Bowels without weakening them and it is perfectly free from every objectionable substance.

Syrup of Figs is for sale by all druggists in 50c and $1 bottles, but it is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only, whose name is printed on every package, also the name, Syrup of Figs, and being well informed, you will not accept any substitute if offered.

HEADSMAN OF NAPLES.

Death in Exile of a Man Who Had Taken Many Lives.

On the little island of Ustica, 40 miles from Palermo, Italy, there died the other day a man who was for years the terror of the people of Naples and the kngdom of the Two Sicilies. He was Gaetano Impellizzeri, once the headsman under Ferdinand II. of Naples. The useless executions attributed to Impellizzeri, says the New York Tribune, are countless, and with the cruelty which he showed led to his denunciation by Mr. Gladstone 40 years ago in the philippics which the statesman directed against Ferdinand. The executions were only in part public; it was the executions in secret—usually at night—which gave the man his power. It was he who executed in San Francisco place, Naples, the Calabrian Agesilas Milanoque, who on December 9, 1856, had made a bayonet thrust at King Ferdinand II., and patriots innumerable became his victims.

When Garibaldi entered Naples in September, 1860, the excited populace went in search of the hated headsman, but he cared much for his own life, although he thought little of that of others, and escaped with his wife. Later he was imprisoned on the island of Ustica, where he became an officer of the fort built in those days to protect the island against pirates. He was in receipt of a pension of five dollars a month—much more than he deserved. He was 81 years old at the time of his death.

SWEETHEARTS ALWAYS.

If sweethearts were sweethearts always,
Whether as maid or wife,
No drop would be half as pleasant
In the mingled draught of life.

But the sweetheart has smiles and blushes
When the wife has frowns and sighs,
And the wife's have a watchful glitter
For the glow of the sweetheart's eyes.

If lovers were lovers always,
The same to sweetheart and wife,
Who would change for a future of Eden
The joys of this checkered life?

But husbands grow grave and silent,
And care on the anxious brow
Oft replaces the sunshine that perished
With the words of the marriage vow.

Happy is he whose sweetheart
Is wife and sweetheart still,
Whose voice, as of old, can charm him;
Whose kiss, as of old, can thrill;

Who has plucked the rose to find ever
Its beauty and fragrance increase,
As flush of passion is mellowed
In love's unmeasured peace.

Who sees in the step a lightness;
Who finds in the form a grace;
Who reads an unaltered brightness
In the witchery of the face,

Undimmed and unchanged. Ah, happy
Is he crowned with such a life!
Who drinks the wife pledging the sweetheart,
And toasts in the sweetheart the wife!
—Daniel O'Connell, in Domestic Monthly.

SCARING AUNT ABBIE.

BY J. L. HARBOUR.

MISS ABBIE TRASK was a short, bustling little elderly woman with a determined air, and was known to possess great force of character. She was visiting at her brother's house in the country, and had been unwise enough to boast, in the presence of her two nephews, Bert and Lawrence, that she "wasn't afraid of anything." And now Bert and Lawrence intended to put her courage to a test.

This was with her full knowledge; she had said that they might do so if they were willing to suffer the consequences. They had laughed heartily at this, and declared themselves quite willing to run all risks.

Aunt Abbie's list of brave deeds included an actual encounter with a burglar found under her bed. She had on this occasion produced a little pocket-pistol from her bureau drawer and kept the man a prisoner under the bed until help came in response to her calls, and he was captured. So the boys gave up trying to hide under her bed and pretend that they were burglars.

She had once killed a large rattlesnake at a picnic, when every other woman present was screaming or fainting. Snakes were therefore of no use.

Moreover, she would go long distances alone on the darkest night; she would go down cellar or up into the attic at midnight without a light and without fear. She had been known to walk through a burying ground alone at 12 o'clock on a dark and stormy night.

She had once slept alone in a house which was reported to be haunted, and had come forth in the morning declaring that she had "slept like a top."

She was not afraid even of a moose. Bert and Lawrence felt that they would have to exercise all their ingenuity to get up anything that would startle Aunt Abbie.

But at last they hit upon a plan. Their aunt had lived all of her life in a city, seldom visiting the country. She knew almost nothing at all about country sports. Some grotesque thing that she had never seen might frighten her.

It was in the fall of the year, and Bert and Lawrence finally decided to try the effect of a "pumpkin ghost" on Miss Abbie. A "pumpkin ghost," sometimes called a jack-o'-lantern, is a pumpkin hollowed out, with holes to represent eyes, nose and a grinning mouth cut in one side of it. When a lighted candle is placed inside a pumpkin cut in this way, and the pumpkin is fastened to the end of a long pole, the effect is startling enough on a dark night.

And the night was as "dark as a stack of black cats" when Bert and Lawrence prepared to sally forth with their pumpkin ghost. They proposed to hoist it before Miss Abbie's window, and then make all sorts of dismal noises. They were quite sure she had never seen a pumpkin ghost, and probably she had never heard of one.

They slyly got the pumpkin ready in the barn in the afternoon. In the evening they went to their room, and ostensibly to bed, as usual, at half-past nine. No one in the house knew of their plan but themselves, and they proposed to slip out of their room and out of the house without arousing anyone.

The roof of a shed kitchen sloped from the window-sills of their room to within about nine feet of the ground. They decided to climb quietly out of a window, slip down over the kitchen roof to the eaves, and drop lightly to the ground. Then they would get the pumpkin from its place of concealment, light the candle, and, as Bert said, "the fun would begin."

Bert was to carry the pumpkin, and he intended to wrap himself in a sheet from his bed to add to the frightfulness of his appearance. Lawrence was to do most of the groaning; but in the end one groaned about as much as the other.

The night was very dark and unusually cold, even for late October. It had rained a little early in the evening, and the kitchen roof was wet. Bert and Lawrence shivered as they climbed out, one behind the other, fully dressed, Bert carrying his sheet rolled up under his coat. They shivered more and more the longer they stayed out.

Bert was in advance of Lawrence when they climbed out upon the roof. No sooner were they fairly on the wet and almost icy roof than they began to slide down much faster than they had expected or desired, and they found it impossible to slacken their speed or to lessen the noise they were making in their hurried, somewhat rolling descent.

Down they slid, vainly grasping at the roof or trying to stay their progress by bracing their heels on the shingles. It was of no avail.

"Look out for the rain-water barrel," shrilly whispered Lawrence, when they were within three feet of the edge of the roof.

But it was too late to look out for any danger. Under the eaves was a huge barrel, or tank, set to catch rain water. It partly took the place of a cistern, since it was large enough to hold several ordinary barrels of water.

It was also quite large enough to hold three or four boys the size of the two Trask boys; and now, although it was full of icy water to the very top hoop, it was suddenly called upon to receive Bert and Lawrence within its depths.

Down they came, Bert shooting swiftly over the edge of the roof and Lawrence sliding as swiftly after him. Both landed with mighty splashes and loud screeches in the tank of water!

Bert struck in a sitting position and went down entirely beneath the water, while Lawrence went in only up to his ears.

The ground sloped a little away from the tank; and, as the boys had both landed heavily on the side of the tank next to the slope, they overthrew the big receptacle and were swept out on the ground in one mighty wave that buried them beneath it for an instant.

All this made a great deal of noise. Lights appeared suddenly in the house and Mr. Trask came quickly to the kitchen door.

"Who's that? What's the trouble out here?" he asked, sharply. "Answer me quickly, or I'll shoot!"

His wife and Aunt Abbie stood behind him, holding lamps and wrapped in bedclothes and peering out into the darkness. Aunt Abbie really looked frightened.

"IT'S—ONLY—US!"

"It's—only—us!" gasped Bert, still ejecting water from his mouth, while his teeth chattered.

"'Us!' repeated Mr. Trask. "Well, who's 'us?' and what—why, if it isn't Bert and Lawrence!"

"Why, they are dripping wet all over!" cried Mrs. Trask.

"Why, boys!" exclaimed Aunt Abbie.

"What does it all mean?" demanded Mr. Trask, in a tone that admitted of nothing but the simple truth in reply.

"Why—we—we—wanted to scare—auntie," said Lawrence, with chattering teeth, "and we fell into the rain water barrel!"

"Wanted to scare me?" cried Aunt Abbie. "Well, that's a great way to do it—to go to plunging into a tank of ice-cold water with your clothes on at almost midnight. But I am scared—scared 'most to death lest you take a dreadful cold! Get out of those wet clothes and into bed just as soon as ever you can, while I mix you up a hot drink. Wanted to scare me! Humph!"

"But we did scare you, after all," said the boys; and to this assertion they clung ever afterward.—Youth's Companion.

FUN FOR YOUNG FOLK.

A Doll Party Is Great Sport and Offers a Wide Field for Ingenuity.

Parents too often forget that they were once young and liked amusement. A mother of my acquaintance, with a house full of young people, is a shining instance of one who remembers.

She lately gave a unique party, which was a most successful affair. The invitations were sent by little Chinese and Japanese dolls, of the kind sold on the street at two for five cents, which are already dressed in gay oriental garments of paper. In the sash a tiny envelope was thrust, addressed to the person to whom the doll was sent and containing an invitation to a doll party, the receiver being requested to come in a costume personating a doll of some sort.

One of the most amusing features of the evening was a row of paper dolls, dressed in white and leaning against the wall, with hands joined. To do this well one must contrive to drive every bit of expression from the face, and by the aid of powder to assume a ghastly complexion.

An ingenious costume of gray Jaeger underwear, drawn over the shoes and stockings and sleeves, with short skirt and waist of gray silesia, made a very good rubber doll, but the belle of the evening was a turbaned black Dinah. Of course, in most cases, masks are worn, but these can be dispensed with early in the evening. A prize is given to the one who can guess the identity of the greatest number. There is a field here for any amount of ingenuity. As this was in a suburban town, the invitation dolls were delivered by a messenger.—St. Louis Republic.

Napoleon at the Surrender of Milan.

While the 23,000 Austrians went through the forms of surrender, Napoleon, as one of their officers wrote in his journal, "in the simplest garb, surrounded by his embroidered marshals, chatted with Mack and several of our generals, who, after laying down their arms, had been summoned to him. The emperor, in the uniform of a common soldier, with a gray coat singed on the elbows and tails, a slouch hat without any badge of distinction on his head, his arms crossed behind his back, and warming himself at a campfire, conversed with vivacity, and made himself agreeable."—Prof. W. M. Sloane, in Century.

Cleveland Sends Congress a Special Message on Finance.

A Critical Condition in Wall Street, and the Standing of the Gold Reserve Calls Out the Document—Needed Legislation.

Washington, Dec. 21.—In the senate at 4:30 p. m. Friday the following special message was received from the president on the subject of bonds:

"TO THE CONGRESS: In my last annual message the evils of our present financial system were plainly pointed out and the causes and means of the depletion of gold were explained. It was therein stated that after all the efforts that had been made by the executive branch of the government to protect our gold reserve by the issuance of bonds amounting to more than $162,000,000, such reserve then amounted to but little more than $79,000,000; that about $15,000,000 had been withdrawn from such reserve during the month next previous to the date of that message, and that quite large withdrawals for shipment in the immediate future were predicted.

"The contingency then feared has reached us, and the withdrawals of gold since the communication referred to and others that appear inevitable threaten such a depletion in our government gold reserve as brings us face to face with the necessity of further action for its protection. This condition is intensified by the prevalence in certain quarters of sudden and unusual apprehension and timidity in business circles. We are in the midst of another season of perplexity caused by our dangerous and fatuous financial operations. These may be expected to recur with certainty as long as there is no amendment in our financial system. If in this particular instance our predicament is at all influenced by a recent insistence upon the position we should occupy in our relations to certain questions concerning our foreign policy, this furnishes a signal and impressive warning that even the patriotic sentiment of our people is not an adequate substitute for a sound financial policy.

"Of course there can be no doubt in any thoughtful mind as to the complete solvency of our nation, nor can there be any just apprehension that the American people will be satisfied with less than an honest payment of our public obligations in the recognized money of the world. We should not overlook the fact, however, that aroused fear is unreasoning and must be taken into account in all efforts to avert public loss and the sacrifice of our people's interests. The real and sensible cure for our recurring troubles can only be effected by a complete change in our financial scheme. Pending that, the executive branch of the government will not relax its efforts nor abandon its determination to use every means within its reach to maintain before the world American credit, nor will there be any hesitation in exhibiting its confidence in the resources of our country and the constant patriotism of our people.

"In view, however, of the peculiar situation now confronting us, I have ventured to herein express the earnest hope that the congress, in default of the inauguration of a better system of finance, will not take a recess from its labors before it has by legislative enactment or declaration done something not only to remind those apprehensive among our people that the resources of this government and a scrupulous regard for honest dealing afford a sure guarantee of unquestioned safety and soundness, but to reassure the world that with these factors and the patriotism of our citizens the ability and determination of our nation to meet in any circumstances every obligation it incurs do not admit of any question. I ask at the hands of the congress such prompt aid as it alone has the power to give to prevent in a time of fear and apprehension any sacrifice of the people's interest and the public funds or the impairment of our public credit in an effort by executive action to relieve the dangers of the present emergency.

"GROVER CLEVELAND.

"Executive Mansion, Dec. 20, 1895."

The Cabinet Meets.

The message was the outcome of a session of the cabinet. Reports of the serious condition of affairs in Wall street had been coming in for an hour, and after the cabinet assembled these were sent as fast as received to the treasury officials, who dispatched the information to Secretary Carlisle at the white house.

The dealings at the New York stock exchange had been attended with unusual excitement. Before the opening of the local stock market it was known there that prices for American securities in London had broken anywhere from one to four per cent. The result was a great rush to sell stocks. Local operators, who had become weakened financially by the recent break in the industrials, were forced to sell, and thus add to the depression. Rumors of heavy withdrawals of gold for export to Europe also had a demoralizing influence. Again money which had been ruling at two per cent. and under to stock exchange borrowers suddenly rose 80 per cent., and a number of banks began to call in loans. This helped to swell the amount of offerings of long stock and three stock exchange firms were forced to the wall. At the consolidated exchange there were also two small failures.

Before the cabinet session had lasted two hours, a decision had been reached to send to congress the message transmitted later. At 1:30 o'clock the assembled officials took a recess in order to give the president an opportunity to draft the message. Mr. Cleveland immediately set to work, and probably had all his ideas in presentable shape when his official associates returned an hour later. By this time it had become known that the gold withdrawals amounted to $3,400,000, bringing down the gold reserve to $69,288,080, very nearly to the figure which was reached at the time of the first bond issue in February, 1894. It was 4:40 o'clock when the cabinet meeting adjourned. Twenty minutes before that time Mr. O. L. Pruden, assistant secretary to the president, had started from the white house for the capitol with a copy of the message to be delivered to the senate.

Not a Trust.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Dec. 20.—The manufacturers of plumbers' brass goods of the country formed a national organization in Pittsburgh Thursday. The organization is not called a trust by the persons present, who state that the consolidation of interests is for mutual benefit only. There was a large attendance.

Fortune for an Iowa Family.

Dubuque, Ia., Dec. 19.—A family named Bergman, residing in Dubuque, have been notified that they are heirs to an estate in Australia worth $1,000,000

Nearly 100,000 Sparrows Killed.

Niles, Mich., Dec. 19.—Van Buren county has paid out since January 1, 1895, $2,822 for bounties on English sparrows. Nearly 100,000 of the pests have been killed, but it seems as though the war of extermination had only begun, as they seem thicker than ever.

Heavy Rains Stop Trains.

St. Louis, Dec. 19.—Passenger trains on the Frisco, both ways from Carthage, Mo., were abandoned Tuesday on account of the storms. Bloomington, Arcola and New Douglas, Ill., report the roads almost impassable and houses damaged by the heavy rains.

MINNESOTA NEWS.

Collapsed.

The large south gable and a portion of the wall of the immense dining room and amusement hall, which is being built at the state hospital, at Rochester, gave way, falling with a terrific crash into the Administration building, which was completed last July. The large plate glass windows on the stairs and in the office of this latter building were demolished and the rooms strewn with debris. The Butler-Ryan Company, of St. Paul, which has the contract for the building, had about 100 men at work on it, but no one was injured, though three men working on the cornice, near the gable, had an almost miraculous escape. The cause of the fall was the thawing of the mortar, which had frozen when the gable was in process of construction. The loss is estimated at about $600.

The Ging Insurance.

The Ging insurance matter has been settled. W. W. Hayward informed his attorney, S. A. Reed, that he had no desire to keep the sister from getting the insurance of Cathering Ging, if she could. Accordingly, Mr. Reed and W. H. Eustis, the attorney of the estate, held a conference, and without any consideration, the former made and filed a stipulation by which he renounced on the part of his client all claims on the insurance.

In this connection the insurance companies are said to be ready to do the fair thing. Mr. Eustis says that he understands that they will pay the full amount of the policies without waiting the event of the litigation that has already been commenced.

Hastings Gets It.

The fourth state hospital for the insane will be located at Hastings.

Such was the decision reached by the commission appointed by the governor to look up a location and supervise the work of construction. The commission decided not to advertise for plans until several hospitals had been visited. They will go to St. Peter and Rochester to look over the buildings.

The offer made by the city of Hastings to the commissioners is a very liberal one. The city is to receive $1,500 for the site, which is 642 acres in extent. The value of the land is $60 per acre, and it has a water power valued at $80,000. The city agrees further to put improvements on the site to the value of $40,000.

A Panic.

A fire broke out in Grand Rapids' city hall, where the ladies of the Presbyterian church were holding the "Survival of Months." The hall was crowded with men, women and children. A rush was made for the stairs and despite the efforts of brave men the crowd could not be kept from rushing headlong down the steep stairs. For a few monents it seemed as though many would be crushed to death. Several ladies fainted and Miss Cox is in a critical condition. The blaze originated in one of the booths by the upsetting of a fancy lamp. Several were hurt.

A Generous Offer.

Sheriff Holmberg presented to the county commissioners of Hennepin county a bill for $500 for the Hayward execution. It had been practically decided that the commission would allow $250 for the work, but the sheriff came in with a proposition that he be allowed $500, all of which he offered to donate to the county for the purpose of purchasing what would be the beginning of a jail library. The commission liked the idea, and without a dissenting voice allowed the bill, with thanks to the sheriff.

Taxes and Good Roads.

St. Paul wants a county commissioners' convention to be held within its domains in the fore part of next January. The Commercial club has asked the common council to join it in extending an invitation to all the county commissioners in the state to meet in St. Paul in such a convention. Its object would be to discuss the adoption of some uniform and equitable methods of taxation, the best way of securing good roads and such other matters as come within the jurisdiction of the commissioners.

Killed.

Burt Hazelwood, car clerk for the Great Northern road, was run down by a switch engine and instantly killed. He was on the top of the train, when he slipped and fell between two of the cars, the wheels passing over his body. The accident occured at the St. Anthony elevator, Minneapolis. The coroner was at once summoned and he had the mangled remains taken to the county morgua.

News in Brief.

The assets of the Winona Willow Works has been sold to Minneapolis parties.

Two cattle thieves, Steve Gorner and Nally Wyzinzski, were arrested at Anoka.

Ryan voted to bond itself for $500 for a public well, wind mill and tank.

The gallows upon which Hayward was hung is now being exhibited in a Minneapolis dime museum.

The First M. E. church of Minneapolis paid off a $12,000 mortgage and celebrated the event by publicly burning the document.

F. H. Britton has been appointed superintendent of the St. Cloud & Fergus Falls division of the Great Northern road, vice J. B. Rice, transferred.

The National Citizens' Bank of Mankato has made application for the appointment of a receiver for the E. C. Burdick Company, building contractors and owners of the Security flats.

The appraisers for the Birch Coulee monument site have made their award. They selected six acres from the farm of Wolgang Weiss, an old German, as marking the site of the battle, and allowed him $30 an acre for it, and $300 damages, equivalent to $90 an acre.

Daniel Kehoe, a woodsman, who has been working in the neighborhood of Mille Lacs, died on the train from injuries received by falling from a skidway. He was being taken to St. Paul.

Frank Fallon and George Gilmore, confined in the county jail, at Crookston, escaped by prying a lock off a window next to the fire escape. They used an iron bar furnished by outside parties. Fallon was under indictment for burglary and Gilmore was serving sentence for larceny.

Marian Shaw, of Moorhead, was fined $5 and locked up because he whipped his wife.

Hayward's defense cost his father $13,000. Mr. Erwin received $2,500 and $500 for the appeal. John Day Smith received $1,000. Hayward's personal expense while in jail was about $1,000.

How completely THE BLACK CAT, Boston's new five-cent magazine, has captivated the story-reading world, is shown by the fact that in three months it has already reached a sale of 150,000 copies. And the favor it has found with the press is equally well indicated by the editorial comments of leading papers throughout the country. The New York Mail and Express, for instance, refers to it as "the literary pet," while the Louisville Commercial says: "We predict that this delightfully original and interesting magazine, which is published by the Shortstory Publishing Co., Boston, Mass., will have the largest sale ever reached by any publication. Its cleverly told stories of mystery, exciting detective tales, and thrilling stories of adventure render THE BLACK CAT a delightful new departure in story telling."

DELANO DIARY

—The schools are taking a two weeks vacation for holidays.

—Look at the Venezuela map on the second page of this paper and see what the trouble is all about.

—On the inside of this paper will be found a calander for the year, cut it out and past it up for reference, if you need it.

—A public installation of officers of the Epworth League took place at the M. E. Church, Sunday evening. Rev. J. L. Farber conducted the ceremonies.

—Happy New Year, to all our readers! Next Wednesday you will have to begin to write 1896. Only four more years until the twentieth century will be ushered in.

—Professor Probst, while passing our office at 1 P. M. Tuesday, opened the door and announced to us that the Watertown mill had just whistled one, on time. Mr. Probst says he has heard it before and knows the whistle.

—Frequent wrecks on the Great Northern delay trains. Some of them are charged to new men. If the charge is correct it looks as if it might pay better to keep the old men than to make changes too frequent and extensive.

—Visitors from Minneapolis to Delano on Christmas, were surprised to find no snow. They say three inches fell in Minneapolis, Christmas Eve. Surely we are living in the garden of the country, from all accounts of other places compared with ours.

—On Christmas morning at about 7 o'clock, the fire alarm brought out the citizens to Mrs. Mulford's residence to find a fire well under headway, in and about a chimney. The fire apparatus was quickly on the ground and soon squenched the flames. It was rather a close call. The need of organization in our fire department was once more emphatically demonstrated.

—The Cantata, King Winter, at the City Hall on Monday evening, was an elaborate affair. About fifty persons participated in the exercises. The Hall was well filled with an appreciative audience. Everything passed off smoothly, Santa Claus and the little folks received the heartiest applause. The singing and instrumental music was exceptionally fine. Everybody had a good time.

—The "surprise" party given to Dr. Shrader and family, on Friday evening at the City Hall, was quite a success. A silver water set was presented to them, F. H. Lindsley making the presentation speech. Dr. Shrader in a very few words acknowledged the receipt of the same. Supper was served. Those desiring to do so spent the rest of the evening in dancing. Music enlivened the occasion during the evening.

—Last Manday, the morning train from the West went to St. Paul on another road, and people here waited until noon and went on a freight train all on account of a wreck at Grove City, where several freight cars were thrown off by a "frog", and about a quarter of a mile of track torne up.

—Most of the Sabbath Schools and churches had christmas trees for the distribution of gifts. We attended at the M. E. Church, where quite a lengthy programme was carried out to the satisfaction of a fair sized audience. Many presents were received, Prof. Hawker getting the most conspicuous one.

—Ex County Superintendent Lindsley, we are told, has been circulating a petition among the citizens of Delano and vicinity, to the District Judges, asking them to appoint C. H. Vorse, of this place, Clerk of Court, to supersede John O'Leary. We understand that a Democrat signed it, while a strong republican refused to do so.

—The surprise party, for Dr. J. S. Shrader and family, in the City Hall, Friday evening was largely attended. A silver water set was presented to the family; F. H. Lindsley makins the presentation speech. The Dr. replied saying, he unfortunately belonged to a profession not noted as speech makers, but thanked the donhrs for the memento and would keep it as a memento. Refreshments were served, after which those desiring engaged in dancing.

—Christmas was a most enjoyable day. The air just fresh and bracing enough to make people feel well, skating was fine but traveling had to be done on wheels as there was no snow for sleighing. The beautiful weather we have had so far has served to shorten our usually long winters materially. Farmer's feed piles are destined to hold out better than they had expected, while those who buy wood are getting along at far less expense than is customary at this time of the year.

—According to the city dailies, Mrs O. L. Billings has commenced a suit for divorce, accusing him of cruelty, and of not providing for her wants. People here, generally, sympathize with O. L., blaming his "predicament" for his wrong doings, and it is claimed that the charges alluded to are a long ways from being the truth while the family lived here. It was commonly understood that O. L. strained many points in order to meet the "wants"; was altogether a too indulgent and forgiving parent and husband for the family good. Whatever else he has been blamed with here these were not among the charges.

Maple Lake threatens to have a free delivery of malls, after Jan. 1 '96

The Maple Lake Messenger is certainly enterprising, but it can't use Uncle Sam's mail to deliver it's lottery goods.

Some of the Republicans seem to think there is liable to be a bigger split in their Wright County ranks than ever this campaign.

Is it possible the Wright County "grip" on the asylum has been "swapped off" for a chance on the Congressional ticket? Or wasn't there ever any "grip?"

Ex-Senator Eaton' slittle Congressional boom has not yet died out. For a Republican Mr. E. would stand head and sholders above any other Wright County aspirant. He is an able man; but then Wright County Republicans seem to have very little influence outside of Wright County.

The Clerk of Court war goes merely on. The chief disputants for the office are the ex-Post-Master C. H. Vorse, of Delano, and the present incumbent Col. John O'Leary, of Buffalo. The gentlemen are to be represented in Minneapolis, today, before the District Judges, by Senator W. E. Culkin and Joseph H. Wendell, of Buffalo. The Judges were to decide the case last Saturday, but for some reason defered action until today, to allow the parties to be represented by attorneys, or politicians. We have heard no mention of a jury in the case: but from all that has cropped out about it, we think the Republican Judges on the bench would much, very much, prefer a jury in the matter. It looks as if O'Leary was pretty solid with the people, having been elected by them and that his petitions to the judges, for appointment, are much the strongest; but Mr. Vorse seems to rely almost wholly on political promises. Perhaps they will put him off now with a promise of the nomination next fall in which case O'Leary would surely beat him in case that promise should be fulfilled. Politics are awful slippery, and polititians terribly tricky. It ought not to be so.

In addition to what has been given concerning District Court cases, the following have been heard, Augusta Fells vs. Gottfried Marschel. This seems to have been a case of difficulty about getting a renter out of a house. Mrs. Fells sued for $5000 damages and the jury allowed $500.

Archie Gilmer and John Hendrickson, charged with selling liquors without license, dismissed.

Jacob Reichel, Waverly, selling liquor to Minors, dismissed.

John Holuptzok, not guilty. Has another charge for June term.

Joseph Velsch vs. J. A. Neiss and Nicholas George for plaintiff.

Wm. S. Conrad vs. H. N. Cleary to be submitted on briefs.

Court adjourned to Jan. 6, 1895.

Mr. and Mrs. Julius Hardt, of Maple Plain, visited Delano yesterday.

Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Corey, returned from Minneapolis, Monday evening.

John Turngren, of West Franklin, was a Delano business visitor Tuesday.

A. R Chaffee sold his team to Al Hitsman and returned this week to Illinois.

Mrs. Harry Haynes, of St. Paul, is visiting her parents Mr. and Mrs. Swedeback.

John Sturman after a short holiday vacation, returned to work on the R. R. Thursday.

Dr. Shrader and John Campbell, of Watertown, attended the "surprise" party Friday evening in the hall.

Miss Grace O'Hair and Messrs Emery Cunningham and Vernon Wilder, of the "U" are home for a vacation.

Mrs. Frank curry, and child. of cedar Mills, is having a holiday visit with her parents William Stanley and wife.

Roy Wilder, (we omit the "Prof." to save profanity in the post office department,) who is teaching near Annandale, came home for a short vacation.

Jenner and Miss Vinnie Chance came up from Minneapolis Friday evening for a visit. Jenner says the Medical School has joined Hamline University.

Dr. J. S. Shrader and family left on Tuesday for Minneapolis for a short visit, thence to Sheboygan, his new home, where he will engage in the practice of medicine.

Among Our Exchanges.

Potatoes if subjected to temperatures just at the freezing points, will not be injured for eating but they are ruined for seed purposes.—Northwest Weather and Crops.

The side tracks at Maple Lake contained not a single car, loaded or empty, last Friday morning. This has not happened before since the first wheat began to move, early this fall. It shows that the railroad company must be getting over their rush a little, and are clearing up and getting business under control.—Maple Lake Messenger.

The scruples about taking human life seems to have developed more in the governors of Kansas than in other classes of her citizens. There are, it is said, at present 47 convicted murderers in jails awaiting execution, but as no governor for years past would sign a death warrant, the executions cannot be legally made.—Weeping Water Republican, Neb.

The decision of Judge Buck relative to members of the legislature is seen to be more sweeping than it was thought. It developes that no member of the legislature can hold any office during the term for which he was elected, whether he serves his term or not. It also appears that it does not matter whether the offices are salaried or not and even applied to a notary public.—St. Peter Herald.

From the Hastings Gazette: To the Hastings saloon keepers: I would urge on brother saloonkeepers that we contribute liberally to the support of the revival of religion. Church members are nearly all in favor of the saloon. Not one in ten will vote against our business when we conduct it according to law. I know in some of these churches a few crazy ranters resolve and pray against the saloon, but that does little hurt so they vote right. They almost all vote the Republican or Democratic ticket, and we can depend on these parties to sustain us in our business so long as we pay a liberal fee or license.—W. B. R.—Waseca Couty Herald.

THE GREAT.

Who are the great?
They who don diadems royal and rare,
They who the laurels of victory wear,
They who intrepidly dark dangers dare—
Are these the great?

Who are the great?
They who have mounted to fame's monument,
They who have nations' destinies bent,
They who to thund'rings of wisdom give vent—
Are these the great?

Who are the great?
They who've commanded the praises of men,
They who have wielded the sword or the pen
They who have conquered ten theusand times ten—
Are these the great?

Who are the great?
Harken! the answer comes filtering through
The beautiful Heaven's illimitable blue:
"There is only one greatness that God holdeth true.
The good are the great!"
—Susie M. Best, in Zion's Herald.

SOME OTHER DAY.

There are wonderful things we are going to do
Some other day;
And harbors we hope to drift into
Some other day!
With folded hands the oars that trail,
We watch and wait for a favorite gale
To fill the folds of an idle sail
Some other day.

We know we must toil if ever we win
Some other day,
But we say to ourselves there's time to begin
Some other day;
And so, deferring, we loiter on,
Until at last we find withdrawn
The strength of the hope we leaned upon
Some other day,

And when we are old and our race is run,
Some other day,
We fret for the things that might have been done
Some other day.
We trace the path that leads us where
The beckoning hand of grim despair
Leads us yonder, out of here,
Some other day.

NOTICE OF LIS PENDENS.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, County of Wright } ss.

District Court, 4th Judicial District,
Minnie King, Plaintiff, vs.
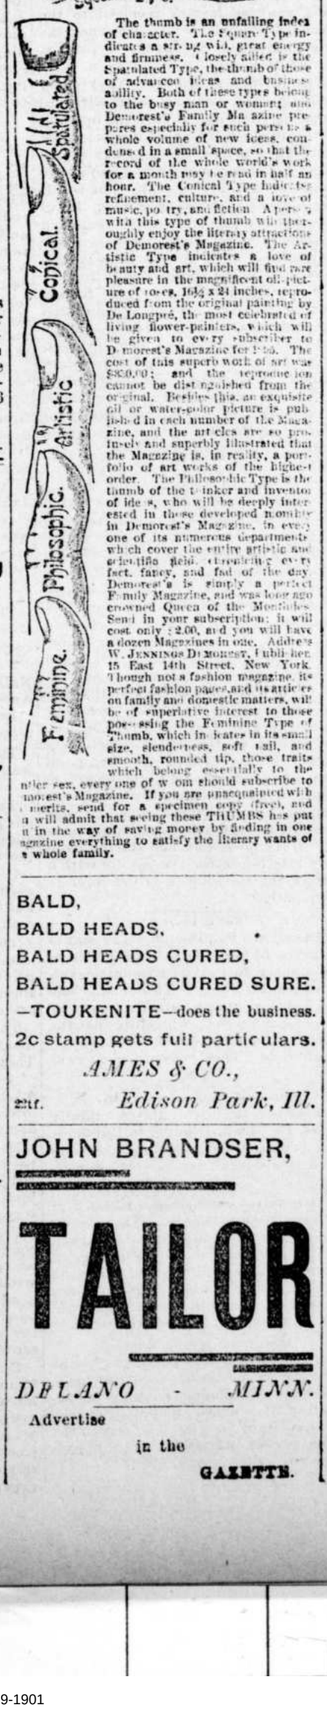
O. W. Butler, also all other persons or parties unknown claiming any right, title, estate, lien or interest in the real estate described in the Complaint herein, Defendants.

Notice is hereby given, that an action has been commenced in the above named court against the above named defendants, the object of which is to have the plaintiff's title in and to the real estate hereinafter described quieted and set at rest as against the adverse claim to, or lien upon, the same of the defendants as above named.

The real estate affected by this action is situated in the County of Wright and State of Minnesota and is described as follows, to-wit: the North West quarter of the South West quarter (NW. ¼ SW. ¼) of section thirteen (13). Township one hundred and twenty one (121), Range twenty eight (28).

Respectfully,
G. W. STEWART,
Attorney for Plaintiff,
St. Cloud, Minnesota.

Dated November 9th, 1895.



The thumb is an unfailing index of character. The Square Type indicates a strong will, great energy and firmness. Closely allied is the Spatulated Type, the thumb of those of advanced ideas and business ability. Both of these types belong to the busy man or woman; and Demorest's Family Magazine prepares especially for such persons a whole volume of new ideas, condensed in a small space, so that the record of the whole world's work for a month may be read in half an hour. The Conical Type indicates refinement, culture, and a love of music, poetry, and fiction. A person with this type of thumb will thoroughly enjoy the literary attractions of Demorest's Magazine. The Artistic Type indicates a love of beauty and art, which will find rare pleasure in the magnificent oil-picture of roses, 16½ x 24 inches, reproduced from the original painting by De Longpre, the most celebrated of living flower-painters, which will be given to every subscriber to Demorest's Magazine for 1896. The cost of this superb work of art was $20.00; and the reproduction cannot be distinguished from the original. Besides this, an exquisite oil or water-color picture is published in each number of the Magazine, and the articles are so profusely and superbly illustrated that the Magazine is, in reality, a portfolio of art works of the highest order. The Philosophic Type is the thumb of the thinker and inventor of ideas, who will be deeply interested in those developed monthly in Demorest's Magazine, in every one of its numerous departments which cover the entire artistic and scientific field, chronicling every fact, fancy, and fad of the day. Demorest's is simply a perfect Family Magazine, and was long ago crowned Queen of the Monthlies. Send in your subscription; it will cost only $2.00, and you will have a dozen Magazines in one. Address W. JENNINGS DEMOREST, Publisher, 15 East 14th Street, New York. Though not a fashion magazine, its perfect fashion plates, and its articles on family and domestic matters, will be of superlative interest to those possessing the Feminine Type of Thumb, which is here in its small size, slenderness, soft nail, and smooth, rounded tip, those traits which belong essentially to the softer sex, every one of whom should subscribe to Demorest's Magazine. If you are unacquainted with its merits, send for a specimen copy (free), and you will admit that seeing these THUMBS has put you in the way of saving money by finding in one magazine everything to satisfy the literary wants of a whole family.
